And he also gave 40l. to the Company to be lent to four young men being householders of the parish of Ashwell for three years gratis.

Both of the sums of 120l. and 40l. form part of the "Trust Loan Account. (See Cecilia Long's Charity.)"

The sum of 3l. a year is paid by the Company to the churchwardens of Ashwell, but no provision seems to be made by the decree for loans to householders of that parish.

All which I submit to the Board.

THOS. HARE,
Inspector of Charities.

PART I.

TO THE CHARITY COMMISSIONERS FOR
ENGLAND AND WALES.

IN pursuance of a Minute of the Board of the 7th day of November 1862, I have inquired into the condition and circumstances of the following Charities under the management of the Goldsmiths' Company of the City of London, and I have stated in the Report under the head of each specific endowment the result of my investigation.

The constitution of the Company is—

The prime warden, three wardens, and a Court of 21 assistants.

The assistants are chosen by the Court from the livery.

The liverymen are 150 in number, besides those who are liverymen by special grant, and the number of freemen is not known, but it is thought that their number does not diminish.

Freedom is acquired by apprenticeship according to the custom of the City; to a freeman of the Company by birth, after the admission of the father to the freedom: and by redemption. The number who acquire it in this form rather increase than the contrary. The fines and fees on such admissions are about 130*l*. There is another but a rare case of freedom admitted by special grant.

Besides the allowances to the regular pensioners, it is the habit of the Company to receive application for casual relief from freemen, freemen's widows, or daughters of freemen of the Company. These applications are made in writing, and evidence is collected by the visitation and report of the headle in each case.

The amount distributed for charitable purposes to the casual poor, exclusive of the gifts in pensions, which I have before mentioned, forms in the aggregate a large sum varying according to the exigencies of each particular year.

I have been furnished with the following tables as to the pensions and exhibitions which exhibit in another form an abstract of the statements I have collected and mentioned under the heads of the several Charities.

There are also two of 5l. each chargeable to Strelley's estate—seldom applied for.

The charity expenditure of the Company in the year 1861-2, preceding that of my inquiry, was:

	£	s.	d.
Pursuant to wills of donors and benefactions of founders -	6,525	6	4
Additional sums disbursed by the Goldsmiths' Company from their proper funds for charitable objects -	9,326	13	9
	£15,852	0	1

I am informed that there is nothing extraordinary in this year in point of amount, the gifts of the Company exceed rather than fall short of this amount. The voluntary portion is supposed to average 10,500l. a year.

ASH'S CHARITY.

Francis Ash, by indentures of the 5th and 6th September 1652, granted to the Company an old messuage and five other messuages between Shoe Lane and Fetter Lane, upon trust to pay out of the rents as follows:

To the wardens and commonalty -	4	0	0
To the nominee of the mayor and aldermen of Derby -	20	0	0
To eight poor working goldsmiths -	16	0	0
For apprenticing two sons of poor freemen -	10	0	0
To the four wardens, 10s. each; clerk, 13s. 4d.; and beadle, 6s. 8d. -	3	0	0
And the residue as the Court of Assistants should direct.	-	-	-

The estate derived from the Gift is—

No. 13, Little New Street, let to John Weller, on lease for 21 years, from Michaelmas 1850 -	39	6	0
No. 14, Little New Street, let to William Scattergood, on lease for 21 years, from Lady-day 1848 -	44	6	0
No. 15, Little New Street, let to James Pettard, on lease for 21 years from Lady-day 1848 -	44	6	0
No. 16, Little New Street, let to Edmund Roberts on lease for 21 years from Midsummer 1844 -	44	6	0

£172 4 0

I do not find that any judicial interpretation has ever been obtained of the effect in this case of the gift of the residue to the appointment of the Company. Such an interpretation is rendered immaterial by the ancient and constant habit of the Company to apply the whole income of the estate for charitable purposes.

The 20l. per annum is annually paid upon the receipt of the town clerk of Derby.

A portion of the residue is carried to the account of pensions paid to the almspeople in the almshouses at Acton, belonging to Perryn's Charity.

The sum thus appointed to the women pensioners at Acton is -	35	2	4
And the men -	66	10	10

£101 13 2

The sum of 1l. a year is given to 16 poor freemen of the Company, whose names are on a list, but who are generally unsettled, that is to say, those who are not in receipt of regular annual pensions, under classes A. B. C. and D., and the Acton almspeople. The gift in the will is 2l. each to eight men, but the same men in most cases receive 2l. a year from this and other sources

The sum of 5l. is applied in apprenticing a boy the son of a freeman whenever application is made for it. In such cases care is taken that the apprenticeship actually takes place. The payments are made to the wardens, clerk, and beadle, and the balance is usually the amount given to the casual poor. The account is closed every year, leaving no balance on either side.

THOMAS ATTE HAY'S CHARITY.

Thomas Atte Hay, by will of the 6th of April 1405, gave to the Company his tenements in St. Martin, Ludgate, and St. Dunstan, Fleet Street, for the relief, augmentation, and better support of the blind, aged, and infirm members of the Company.

In 1832, subsequent to the Report of the Commissioners' inquiry an information was filed at the relation of Peter Upjohn and John Hitchin, against the Goldsmiths' Company, and by a decree of the 26th June 1833 it was ordered that the messuages or dwelling-houses and hereditaments stated in the defendant's answer were to be considered as the hereditaments given and devised by the will of Thomas Atte Haye, and were held upon and subject to the charitable trusts and purposes of his said will, and it was thereby referred to one of the Masters of the Court to take an account of the rents and profits of the said messuages or dwelling-houses and hereditaments, since the time of the filing of the information, received by the defendants or by any person by their order or for their use. And it was thereby ordered that the Master should inquire and state to the Court whether the rents and profits had been substantively applied for purposes justified by the will of the said testator, and in taking the said account and making the said inquiry, the Master was to be at liberty to state special circumstances; and it was thereby ordered that it be referred to the Master to settle and approve of a scheme for the application of the said rents and profits and the future rents and profits, having regard to the said testator's will, and to the other trusts of other charitable estates and property vested in the defendants for the use of the poor of the Goldsmiths' Company.

The cause was referred to Master Wingfield, and on 23rd February 1835, he made his general report as follows:—

That Thomas Atte Hay by his will gave and devised to the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Goldsmiths certain messuages or dwelling-houses with the appurtenances therein particularly mentioned, to hold the same for ever in aid of the subsidy, increase and better support of the sustentation of the poor blind, aged, and infirm of the Commonalty of the said Mystery, and he found by the answer of the said Defendants, and by the examination of the said defendants to certain interrogatories exhibited on behalf of the relators, that the rents and profits of the said messuages or dwelling-houses and hereditaments held by the said defendants yield a clear yearly income of 675*l.* or thereabouts, applicable to the said charitable trusts and purposes of the said testator's will according to the scheme to be settled and approved in pursuance of the said decree. But that inasmuch as it appeared from the answers of the said defendants to the said information, and from their examination to the interrogatories first exhibited on behalf of the relators, that the said defendants had made no other specific application of the said rents and profits than the payment of a small annual sum, but had been in the habit of putting together the funds of the several charity estates (the income of which was vested in them to or for the use of the poor of their Company), and paying and administering from such common funds all such charities, he was of opinion that he could not report that the rents and profits of this charity estate had been applied to or for purposes justified by the said testator's will, without taking an account not only of the rents and profits of this particular charity estate, but also of all other charity estates, funds, and property vested in the said defendants to or for the use of the poor of their Company. He therefore allowed certain interrogatories to be exhibited for the examination of the said defendants, with a view to ascertain what was the annual income of the several charity estates, funds, and properties so vested in them for such uses and purposes. And it appeared to him by the examination of the defendants to such last-mentioned interrogatories, and by the schedule to such examination, that the annual income of the several charity estates, funds, and property so vested in the said defendants as aforesaid was about 3,791*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.*, and he certified that from the answer of the said defendants and the accounts therein set forth it appeared that the annual expenditure of the said defendants in charities to the poor of their Company amounted to about 5,000*l.*; and he further found from the said last-mentioned examination that the said defendants since the said decree had changed the mode of keeping their accounts, and to the accounts now kept by the said defendants the funds and income of each and every of the said estates and properties which were vested in the above-named defendants either wholly or in part for charitable purposes were separately credited in an account opened to each and every of their benefactors, each and every of which said accounts was debited with the payments which defendants were bound to make in pursuance of the trusts reposed in them for or in respect of the same, and which accounts commence from Lady-day 1833. And it appeared that the account opened to the said testator Thomas Atte Hay contained on the credit side the annual rents of the messuages and hereditaments declared by the said decree to be the hereditaments devised by his will, amounting to the annual sum of 675*l.*, and on the debit side the following items:—

Leaving a balance of 3*l.* to be appropriated to the Christmas donations.

And it was stated to him that the said third class of almsmen was composed of 63 poor freemen of the Goldsmiths' Company, of the age of 55 years and upwards, who were elected pensioners of the said Company for life, their pensions being whilst they were in the said third class of almsmen a fixed payment of 12*l.* per annum each, and further that they receive no other fixed pension, but are eligible with all the other poor freemen of the said Company to receive casual relief. And he certified that it had been submitted to him on behalf of the said defendants that the present application of the rents and profits of the said charity estate of the said testator would be a proper scheme for the future application of the said charity funds. And he certified that upon consideration of the several matters aforesaid he found that the rents and profits of the said testator's estate since the filing of the information had been substantively applied in and for the purposes justified by the will of the said testator; and he further certified that he approved of the application of the funds of the said charity estate, as stated in the account, as a proper scheme for the application of the future rents and profits thereof, having regard to the said testator's will and to the other trusts of other charitable estates and property vested in the defendants for the use of the poor of the said Goldsmiths' Company; and that he was of opinion that the separate account so opened to the said testator Thomas Atte Hay should be continued; and that when and as any vacancy should occur among the objects of the said charities, public notice of such vacancy should be affixed at the hall of the said Company, and that a subsequent notice should also be given of the person selected to fill up such vacancy immediately after such selection. And as to that part of the said decree whereby it was referred to him to tax the costs of the relators to the date of the said decree as between solicitor and client, he certified that he had considered and taxed the said costs, as appeared by his report dated the 2nd August 1833.

The Master's report was confirmed by order of the Court dated the

This fund as well as the other charity funds of this Company are administered by the Company without any charges of management. The balance of the fund after the necessary expenditure on the buildings, if any, is carried by the Company to the account of the disbursements in respect of the two classes of pensioners B. and C., the males of Class B. and the females of Class C.; thus, in the year ending Lady-day 1861 the account of disbursements stood thus,—

	£	s.	d.
1. Paid the male pensioners, class B. towards their pensions of 18 l. each, 70 l. 1 s. 6 d. - - - - -	70	1	6
2. Ditto, the widow pensioners, class C. towards their pensions of 21 l. each - - - - -	614	18	6
	£685	0	0

If the fund derived from this charity should in any year exceed what is required for these classes, it would be carried over to some other class or classes. But this it will be seen is not likely to occur.

The Company, it should be explained, have established several classes of pensioners, which they distinguish by the respective denomination of Classes A., B., C., and D.

The Class A. consists entirely of women pensioners, who are widows of freemen.

The qualification for this class is the age of 55 and under 60, and the allowance is 15*l.* a year each. Of this class there are about 20.

The Class B. comprises:—Males,

Pensioners, poor freemen of the Company, each of whom receives 18*l.* a year. The number of these pensioners is variable. The habit of the Company is to admit no male as a settled pensioner under 60 years of age. The pensioners from 60 to 70 years old form the Class B. The average number of males of this class is about 50.

The female pensioners of the Class B. are widows of freemen of the age of 60 and under 70, and the allowance 18*l.* a year each. The number of this class is about 50.

The Class C. consists of male pensioners from 70 to 80 years old, who receive 21*l.* a year. The average number of this class is about 50.

The female pensioners of Class C. are widows of the ages of 70 and under 80. They receive 21*l.* a year each. The number on this list is about 60.

The Class D. consists of male pensioners of 80 years and upwards, whose allowance is 24*l.* per annum each. The number in this class does not amount to 10. Lately they have not exceeded six.

The female pensioners of Class D. are widows of the like age of 80 and upwards, who receive 24*l.* a year each. The number on this list is 17, which is said to be about the average.

The amount thus distributed in pensions would therefore be as follows :—

Class A., women, 20 at 15 l. each -	300
„ B., men, 50 at 18 l. each -	900
„ „ women, 50 at 18 l. each -	900
„ C., men, 50 at 21 l. each -	1,050
„ „ women, 60 at 21 l. each -	1,260
„ D., men, 6 at 24 l. each -	144
„ „ women, 17 at 24 l. each -	408
	£4,962

The amount distributed by the Company in pensions in the year ending 31st March 1862 was 7,637*l.* 14*s.* This includes the above classes—the Acton almspeople, the Hugh Middleton pensioners, the fixed pensioners under gifts such as Ash's of 20*s.* a year each together with four classes of daughters of freemen, who are entirely relieved out of the proper funds of the Company, and of whose allowances therefore I have not thought it necessary to inquire.*

BANNISTER'S CHARITY.

Henry Bannister, by will of the 16th July 1622, gave to the Company 160*l.* to pay 8*l.* to the parish of Hackney towards setting out of four poor men's children to be apprentices.

The Company pay annually, on the receipt of the rector of Hackney, the sum of 8*l.* The Company charge themselves with this sum as interest of 160*l.* at 5*l.* per cent.

BARRETT'S (otherwise READ'S) CHARITY.

John Barrett, by his will of the 16th October 1511, gave to the Company three messuages, &c., in Westcheap to pay out of the rents 10*l.* a year, as follows, viz.: 5*l.* a year for coals amongst the poor of the following parishes :—

St. John Zachary	-	20	quarters.
St. Mary Steyning	-	15	„
St. Ann's	-	15	„
St. Michael	-	10	„
St. Peter, Westcheap	-	15	„
St. Foster	-	20	„
St. Leonard	-	5	„

And he also directed the following payments :

	£	s.	d.
To poor widows of Goldsmiths	-	3	0 8
To the Churchwardens of St. John Zachary for superstitious purposes	3	6	4
To 12 almsmen	-	0	12 0
To officers of the Company	-	0	11 0

I am informed that the property derived under this will, of whatever it might have consisted, had become forfeited to the Crown, under the statute (of Henry 8th or Edward 6th) of superstitious uses, and that the Company took the estate by re-grant from the Crown, in consideration of a money payment, and that the property has since been held by the Company, as of their own estate. The words of the gift for the distribution of the coals are to the intent they (the poor recipients) "shall pray for the good estate of Dame "Eliz Read while she liveth and of the soul of the "said Sir B. Read, her late husband, and for both "their souls when she is departed out of this world." Under this form of gift the donation would be probably held as incidental to the superstitious use and therefore void. The Company have, however, continued the payment to the several parishes, as under :

ROBERT BLANCHARD'S CHARITY.

Robert Blanchard, by a codicil to his will of the 17th August 1680, gave to the Company 200*l.* to pay 4*l.* a year a piece to two widows.

The Company charge themselves with 8*l.* a year, as the produce of this fund, and apply it towards payment of the pensioners to the Acton almswomen.

BLUNDELL'S CHARITY.

Peter Blundell, by his will of the 9th June 1599, from 150*l.* to the Company to purchase lands out of which 40*s.* a year should be paid to the poor prisoners in the Compter, Wood Street. It does not appear that any land was purchased, and none has certainly ever been appropriated by the Company to this endowment, nor is it material, as the residue of the income beyond the 40*s.* a year is given to the wardens absolutely. The 2*l.* a year is paid annually upon the receipt of Mr. Temple, the officer appointed by the Court of Aldermen, to receive the fund payable for the benefit of the city prisoners."†

SIR MARTIN BOWES' CHARITIES.

Sir Martin Bowes, by deed of the 28th September 1560, gave to trustees his five messuages and gardens in Woolwich, to permit five poor persons to have the use thereof, such persons to be poor inhabitants of Woolwich, and, in default, the poor of the Company.

By his will of the 20th September 1562 he gave to the Company two messuages in Lombard Street of 15*l.* a year, and a messuage in St. Botolph, Bishopsgate, of 20*s.* a year, viz. :—

	£	s.	d.
To the five poor folk of Woolwich, 1 l. 10 s. 5 d. a year each -	-	7	12 1
To a preacher at Woolwich -	-	0	6 8
To the poor of Woolwich -	-	0	7 11
To the wardens -	-	0	13 4
To the poor of the parish of Woolnoth, London, in coals -	-	3	0 0
To the almsmen of the Company -	-	1	0 0

And the surplus of the 16*l.* a year he gave to the Company for the maintenance of the hall and the relief of the poor.

This endowment, and those of Southwood and Mundie, were the subject of an information filed in 1832 against the Company, since the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry. In this suit a decree of the 1st July 1833 was made by Sir John Leach, Master of the Rolls, by which it was declared that the lands, tenements, and hereditaments stated in the defendants' answer, excepting those relating to the inquiry therein-after directed, were to be considered as the hereditaments given and devised by the deed of feoffment and will of Sir Martin Bowes, Knight, and William Southwood respectively, and were held upon and subject to the charitable trusts and purposes of the said deed and wills. And his honour did order and decree the same accordingly. And it referred to the Master to whom the decree in the cause "Attorney General v. Goldsmiths' Charity" made on the 26th day of June 1833 in the Charity of Thomas Atte Hay was referred, to inquire what lands and hereditaments had been possessed by and were then held by the defendants under the will and codicil of Roger Mundie, and his honour did declare that the stocks or funds purchased with the premiums received by the Company on leases of the said premises, as stated by the defendants' answer, belonged to the charity entitled to the hereditaments for which the premises were given. And it

* THOMAS ATTE HAY'S CHARITY.

By an order of the Board of 16th July 1880, the trustees were authorised to grant a lease of part of Anderton's Hotel, comprising the sites of Nos. 164 and 165, Fleet Street, for 80 years from Lady-day 1878 at a peppercorn rent for the first year, and the annual rent of 1,031*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* during the remainder of the term, and also the annual sum of 18*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* in respect of redeemed land tax.

† PETER BLUNDELL'S CHARITY.

This charity is now administered by the trustees of the prison charities acting under the provisions of a scheme approved by an order of the High Court of Justice (Chancery Division) dated 8th December 1876.

By an order of the Board of 30th April 1878, the above-mentioned yearly payment of 2*l.* was redeemed by the transfer into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* Consolidated 3*l.* per cent. annuities.

was ordered that the said Master should inquire of what such stocks or funds consisted, and that it be referred to the said Master to take an account of the rents and profits of such lands, tenements, and hereditaments since the time of the filing the information received by the defendants, or by any person by their order or for their use. And it was ordered that the said Master should inquire whether such rents and profits had been substantively applied by the defendants in and for the purposes justified by the said deed and wills and codicil respectively. And the said Master was to be at liberty to state circumstances specially with regard to the last-mentioned inquiry. And it was ordered that it be referred to the said Master to settle and approve of a scheme for the application of the said rents and profits and the future rents and profits, having regard to the said deed and wills and codicil respectively, and to the other trusts of other charitable estates and property vested in the defendants for the use of the poor of the Goldsmiths' Company.

The cause was referred to Master Wingfield, who on the 23rd February 1835 made his general report as follows:—

After reciting the deed of feoffment of 1560, and the will of 1562, he found that the said Sir Martin Bowes, being seized of other freehold estates which he was minded and desirous to bestow upon the charitable purposes in the pleadings and decree of this cause mentioned, made assurance thereof unto the several persons whose wills were therein-after set forth to the intent that they might devise the same in manner therein-after mentioned, and accordingly William Southwood, by his will bearing date the 23rd of October 1557 (he being a grantee of the messuages and tenements conveyed to him by the said Sir Martin Bowes) after reciting a deed of conveyance from the said Sir Martin Bowes to him to the effect therein mentioned, gave to the wardens and commonalty of the Mystery of Goldsmiths all those messuages, lands, and tenements which had been conveyed to him by said Sir Martin Bowes, situate in Scalding Alley, in the parish of St. Mildred, in the Poultry, London, of the yearly rent of 16*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*, and also several rents and quit rents growing out of certain tenements with their appurtenances in Matthew's Alley, in West Street, in the parish of St. Matthew, in Friday Street, London, amounting to the yearly rent of 1*l.* 13*s.* 2*d.* To the intent that the said wardens and commonalty should make certain payments amounting to the annual sum of 15*l.* or thereabouts; and he declared that the surplus of the rents and profits of the said premises should remain and go yearly to the said wardens and commonalty towards the reparation of the said almshouses at Woolwich, and the relief and maintenance of the almsmen and poor of the said Company perpetually; and he found that Roger Mundie, another grantee, in trust for the said Sir Martin Bowes, by his will dated 12th August 1562, after reciting that the said Sir Martin Bowes by his will granted and confirmed to him, the said Roger Mundie and his heirs for ever, all that great messuage or tenement, with all stables, courts, gardens, and hereditaments thereto belonging situate in the parish of St. Botolph Without Bishopsgate, in London, and also 22 gardens and a small tenement or garden which are therein particularly described, all situate in the same parish, and reciting that the said messuage, gardens, and premises were at the time of the said grant and will of the yearly value of 13*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*; and further reciting that the intent and meaning of the said Sir Martin Bowes was that he, the said Roger Mundie, should by his will give the said hereditaments with the appurtenances therein mentioned to the Wardens and Commonalty of the Art or Mystery of Goldsmiths and to their successors for ever, for the purpose and to the intent in the said will mentioned, he the said Roger Mundie minding only to perform the mind, will, and intent of the said Sir Martin Bowes, Knight, Did give, will, and bequeath unto the wardens and commonalty of Goldsmiths and their successors for ever all the said great messuage and hereditaments therein-before described; and after reciting that the ward of Langbourne, London, in which Sir Martin Bowes then inhabited, was charged for every fifteenth granted by Act of Parliament to the King the sum of 20*l.* 10*s.*, which was a great burden to the poor within the said ward, for the relief and ease of the said ward, and the inhabitants thereof from the payment of the said fifteenth the will mind, and intent of the said Sir Martin Bowes, and of the said Roger Mundie was that whensoever every fifteenth, after the decease of the said Sir Martin Bowes, should be granted by Act of Parliament to the King, the said wardens and commonalty should discharge the inhabitants of the said ward of Langbourne from the payment of the said sum of 20*l.* 10*s.* for every fifteenth. And further, that one moiety of all the rents, revenues, issues, and profits of the said premises, with the appurtenances, that should remain over and above that should fully discharge the said fifteenth to be paid to the said ward in form therein-above expressed, should be distributed among the poor people of the said Company of Goldsmiths, and the other moiety should remain to said wardens and commonalty towards the maintenance of the house of Goldsmiths' Hall and the charge of the same. And the Master found that by a codicil to his will, dated 10th October 1562, the said Roger Mundie after reciting a deed of feoffment from Sir Martin Bowes to him, dated 10th October in the same year, gave and devised to said Company all those two messuages or tenements therein divided into three with all and singular their appurtenances situate in the said parish of Saint Botolph, therein particularly described, for the several uses and intents in his said will declared of or concerning the other lands and tenements therein contained. And he found that by the answer of the defendants to the information filed in this cause, and also by their examination to the interrogatories first exhibited before him on behalf of the relators, it appeared that the lands, messuages, tenements, and hereditaments constituting the charity estate of the said Roger Mundie, the testator in the pleadings and decree mentioned, and held by the defendants under the said testator's will and codicil, consist of two houses with their appurtenances situate in Primrose Court, and 34 houses with their appurtenances in Primrose Street, in the parish of St. Botolph Without Bishopsgate, and that other than and besides the said premises last mentioned, the said defendants were not nor had been seized or possessed of any lands, messuages, tenements, or hereditaments under, upon, and subject to the trusts of the said will and codicil of the said Roger Mundie. And he found by the answer of the said defendants to the said information, and also by their examination to certain other interrogatories exhibited before him on behalf of the said relators, and the schedule annexed thereto, it appeared that the lands, messuages, or tenements and hereditaments so declared by the said decree as aforesaid to be held by the said defendants under and subject to the said trusts of the said will of the said testator, Sir Martin Bowes, yield a clear yearly income of 258*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* applicable to the said charitable trusts and purposes of the said Sir Martin Bowes' will, according to the scheme to be settled and approved in pursuance of the said decree in that behalf, and that the lands, messuages, or tenements and hereditaments so declared by the said decree as aforesaid to be held by the said defendants under and subject to the trusts of the said will of the said testator, William Southwood, yield a clear yearly income of 475*l.* 7*s.* or thereabouts applicable to the charitable trusts of the said will of the said testator, William Southwood, according to the scheme to be settled and approved in pursuance of the decree in that behalf, and that the lands, messuages, or tenements and hereditaments so appearing by the answer and by the examination of the defendants to constitute the charity estate of the said testator, Roger Mundie, as aforesaid, yield a clear yearly income of 752*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.* or thereabouts applicable to the said charitable trusts of the said will and codicil of the said testator, Roger Mundie, according to the scheme to be settled and approved in pursuance of the decree in that behalf. But he certified that inasmuch as it appeared from the answer of the defendants to the said information, that the said defendants had made no other specific application of the residue of the said rents and profits, after making the specific payments directed by the said deed, wills, and codicil respectively as aforesaid, than the payment of a small annual sum to the poor of their Company in respect of the said charity estates of each of the aforesaid donors, but had been in the habit of putting together the funds of the several charity estates (the income of which was vested in them), to or for the use of the poor of their Company, and paying and administering from such common fund all such charities, he was of opinion that he could not report that the rents and profits of the several charity estates of the said testators, Sir Martin Bowes, William Southwood, and Roger Mundie respectively had been applied to or for purposes justified by the said deed, wills, and codicil of the said testators respectively, without taking an account, not only of the rents and profits of these particular charity estates, but also of all other estates, funds, and property vested in the said defendants to or for the use of the poor of their Company, and therefore he allowed certain interrogatories to be exhibited before him for the examination of the said defendants with a view to ascertain what was the annual income of the several charity estates, funds, and properties so vested in them for such uses and purposes. And he found by the examination of the defendants to such last-mentioned interrogatories, and by the schedule to such examination, which was brought in on the 22nd day of May 1834, that the annual income of the several estates, funds, and property so vested in the said defendants for the use of the poor of their Company was about 3,791*l.* 9*s.* 7*d.* And he found by the answer of the said defendants and the account therein set forth that the expenditure of the said defendants in charities to the poor of their Company amounted to about 5,000*l.* per annum. And he further found from the answer of the said defendants to the said information and from their examination to the interrogatories so exhibited before him as aforesaid, that two several sums of 420*l.* and 300*l.* had been received by them or their predecessors in the years 1817 and 1818 respectively as considerations on the granting of two leases of two houses in St. Mildred's Court, part of the charity estate of the said testator William Southwood and another, of a house in Primrose Street, part of the charity estate of the said Roger Mundie, and that the sums of 553*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.* Bank three per cent. annuities, and 376*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.* Bank three per cent. annuities had been purchased with the said sums of money respectively so received as aforesaid, and that the said purchases were made in the names of the said defendants, and that such sums then stood invested in their names. And he found from the examination of the said defendants to the interrogatories so last exhibited as aforesaid, that the said defendants had, since the said decree, changed their mode of keeping their account, and that in the accounts now kept by the said defendants, the funds and incomes of each and every of the estates and properties vested in the said defendants either wholly or in part for charitable purposes, were separately credited in an account opened to each and every of their benefactors, each and every of which said accounts was debited with the payments which the said defendants are bound to make in pursuance of the trusts reposed in them for or in respect of the same, and which accounts commenced from Lady-day 1833. And it appeared to him that the accounts opened to the above-named testator Sir Martin Bowes contained on the credit side the annual rents arising out of the messuages and hereditaments so declared by the said decree as aforesaid, to be the messuages and hereditaments so declared by the said decree as aforesaid to be the messuages and tenements devised by his will amounting at that period to the sum of 258*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.* as aforesaid, and on the debit side the following items: "To five Woolwich almswomen at 13*l.* each per annum, 65*l.*" "Coals and candles, 16*l.*" "Donation on visitation, 2*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*" "Taxes, &c., 5*l.*" "Sundries on visitation to the clergyman, &c., 3*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.*" "Repairs of houses, 29*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.*" "St. Mary Woolnoth's parish, 3*l.*" "Clerk, beadle, and almsmen, 1*l.*" "Goldsmiths' Hall for repairs, 66*l.* 15*s.* 7*d.*" "To the 10 widows at Acton, in aid of the pension of 15*l.* each, allowed them as almspeople, 66*l.* 15*s.* 7*d.* = 258*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*" And it further appeared to him that the account opened to the above-named testator William Southwood contained on the credit side the annual rents of the messuages and tenements so declared by the said decree as aforesaid to be the messuages and tenements devised by the will of the said testator William Southwood and the interest of the said sum of 553*l.* 12*s.* 3*d.* Bank 3*l.* per cent. annuities, amounting in the whole to the annual sum of 491*l.* 19*s.* 0*d.*, and on the debit side the following items: "To the Minister of St. Mary's Woolnoth on sermon, 4*l.* 3*s.* 0*d.*" "Poor of the parish 12*l.* 19*s.* 8*d.*" "Parish of North Cray in Kent 12*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.*" "Twenty-one almsmen of the first class at 11*l.* 2*s.* 0*d.* each for one year, to 227*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.*" "Eighteen of the senior widows of the second class at 10*l.* each, 180*l.*" "Four senior widows of the first class at 12*l.* each, 48*l.*" "Balance to Christmas donations 6*l.* 19*s.* 10*d.*" And it further appeared to him that the account opened to the above-named testator Roger Mundie, contained on the credit side the annual rents of the messuages and hereditaments so appearing by the said answer and by the said examination as aforesaid, to be the hereditaments devised by his will and codicil, together with the interest of the said sum of 376*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.* Bank 3*l.* per cent. annuities, amounting in the whole to the annual sum of 763*l.* 10*s.* 3*d.*, and on the debit side the following items: "Moiety to the maintenance of the Hall and charges of the same, 381*l.* 15*s.* 1*d.*" "To thirty-one widows of the first class at 12*l.* each for one year to 372*l.*" "Balance 9*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.* to be appropriated to the Christmas donations." And he certified that the payments mentioned in the account opened to the said testator Sir Martin Bowes, to the Woolwich almswomen was an application of that part of the income of his charity estate, which was justified by his will. That the Acton almswomen amongst whom one half of the residue of the income of the said charity estate had been appropriated as in the said account mentioned, are ten poor widows of Freemen of the Goldsmiths' Company of the age of 60 years and upwards, residing in the Company's almshouses at Acton, who receive as a settled pension the sum of 22*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.* per annum, and that half of the residue so appropriated as in the said account mentioned to the repairs or Goldsmiths' Hall, was so given by the said will of the said Sir Martin Bowes, and he certified that the payments mentioned in the account so opened to the said William Southwood to the minister and poor of Saint Mary Woolnoth and to the parish of North Cray in Kent, were an application of that part of the income of his charity estate which was so applied justified by his said will, and that the senior widows of the first-class amongst whom part of the residue had been appropriated, were poor widows of Freemen of the Goldsmiths' Company of the age of 65 years and upwards, who received the sum of 14*l.* per annum each, as a settled pension, and the senior widows of the second-class amongst whom the remainder of the residue had been appropriated were poor widows of freemen of the Goldsmiths' Company of the age of 60 and upwards, who received the sum of 11*l.* per annum each, as a settled pension. And he certified that 30 were widows of the first-class to whom half the income of the charity estate of the said testator Roger Mundie had been appropriated as aforesaid were poor widows of freemen of the Goldsmiths' Company of the age of 60 and upwards, who received 12*l.* per annum each, as a settled pension, and that the appropriation of the other half of the income of the said estate of the said Roger Mundie to the maintenance of Goldsmiths' Hall, and the charges of the same was a purpose directed by the said Roger Mundie's will, and he certified that upon consideration of the several matters aforesaid, he found that the rents and profits of the said charity estates of the said Sir Martin Bowes and of the said William Southwood, and of the said Roger Mundie, since the filing of the said information had been substantively applied to or for purposes justified by the said deed and wills and codicil of the said testators respectively. And he further certified that he approved of the application of the said rents and profits as stated in the said accounts respectively as a proper scheme for the application of the future rents and profits respectively, having regard to the said deed and wills and codicil respectively, and to the other trusts of other charitable estates and property vested in the defendants for the use of the poor of the Goldsmiths' Company. And he was of opinion that the separate accounts so opened to the said testators respectively should be continued, and that when and as any vacancy should occur among the objects of the said charities public notice of such vacancy should forthwith be affixed at the Hall of the said Company, and that a subsequent notice should always be given of the person selected to fill up such vacancy immediately after such selection. And as to that part of the decree whereby it was referred to him to tax the costs of the relators to the date of the said decree, as between solicitor and client, he certified that he had considered and taxed the said costs as approved by his Report, dated the 31st day of July 1833.

The almshouses at Woolwich consist of five houses, which were rebuilt about a century ago, and remain as stated, in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry. They have a court in front and a garden behind.

In the year ending Lady-day 1862, a sum of 104*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.* was spent on their repair out of the income of Bowes' Charity. They are occupied by the widows of parishioners who have been ratepayers of Woolwich selected by the Company.

The estate devised by Sir M. Bowes consists of a part of the house, No. 67, Lombard Street (the banking house of Glyn & Co.) extending from the outside of the adjoining house, No. 66, 39 feet 6 inches in front, and 41 feet on the back, with a depth of 66 feet, the remaining portion of the house being the property of Messrs. Glyn, and the whole of No. 67 having been built by them. The charity premises are let to Messrs. Glyn & Co. upon a building lease for 81 years from Lady-day 1828, at a rent of 192*l.* 18*s.* a year.

The income of Bowes' Charity is applied in the support of the Woolwich almshouses and pensions.

The five Woolwich almswomen now receive—

The gift of 3*l.* to the poor of the parish of St. Mary Woolnooth in coal is more than met by the additional gift of 10*l.* to the poor of that parish mentioned in the disbursement of Southwood's Charity.

MUNDIE'S CHARITY.

Roger Mundie, by will of the 12th August 1562, gave to the wardens a great messuage, &c. in St. Botolph Bishopsgate, of the yearly rent of 13*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.* for discharging the inhabitants of Langbourn Ward from the payment of fifteenths. And of the residue, one moiety should be distributed amongst the poor of the Company, and the other moiety towards the maintenance of the Company's Hall.

This property was one of the subjects of the information mentioned in the report on Sir M. Bowes' Charity.

The property consists of Primrose Street and Primrose Court, as mentioned in the Master's report. It is now let as follows :—

BROCKLESBY'S CHARITY.

Robert Brocklesby, by his will of the 3rd September 1615, gave to the Company 40s. a year for five poor men at Christmas and Good Friday at 4s. a piece at each distribution.

This gift, which is for poor persons generally, the Company carry to the account of the Pensioners, Class D. There is no record of any investment of the principal of this gift, which appears to have been a sum of 34l. the receipt of which the Company acknowledged by a deed poll of 1625.

CHENEY'S CHARITY.

Richard Cheney, by his will of 29th June 1625, gave to the parish of St. Mary Woolnoth, London, a parcel of marsh ground at West Ham, Essex, and charged the same with 4l. for four poor men of the Company at the discretion of the Company.

The churchwardens of St. Mary Woolnoth pay the Goldsmiths' Company 4l. a year. It is paid to the account of the poor of the Company in the Hackney Almshouses. (See Morrell's Charity.)

CROSHAW'S CHARITY.

Richard Croshaw, by his will of the 26th April 1631 gave to the Company 400l., to pay 20l. yearly to 20 poor working goldsmiths.

There has been no specific investment nor charge of this sum of 400l., but 20l. a year is carried to the account of the male pensioners, Class D.

CURETON'S CHARITY.

Harry Osborn Cureton, by a deed dated the 9th February 1838, made between himself of the one part, and the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery of Goldsmiths of the other part, reciting that he was desirous of founding and perpetuating a charity for the relief of poor blind aged men, free of the said Company, who had served their apprenticeship to the craft of goldsmithery, and of such other poor blind persons as were therein-after mentioned, to be called "Cureton's Charity." And that he had transferred into the name of the said wardens and commonalty in the books of the Governor and Company of the Bank of England the sum of 3,000l. New 3l. 10s. per cent. annuities, it was witnessed that for the purpose of founding and perpetuating the said charity, and declaring the trusts of the said stock it was thereby declared and agreed, and they, the said wardens and commonalty, thereby for themselves and their successors covenanted with the said Harry Osborn Cureton, his executors and administrators, that they the said Wardens and Commonalty should stand possessed of the said sum of 3,000l. New 3½l. per cent. annuities upon and for the trusts and purposes following, that is to say, upon trust during the natural life of him the said Harry Osborn Cureton, to pay to him and his assigns or otherwise to permit him and them to receive the dividends which should from time to time accrue, and become payable for and in respect thereof for his and their own use and benefit, and for that purpose to execute and give such power or powers of attorney, and do such other acts as might be necessary or proper for enabling him the said Harry Osborn Cureton and his assigns to take and receive the said dividends as he the said Harry Osborn Cureton should reasonably require in that behalf. And it was declared and agreed that in case the said Harry Osborn Cureton should happen to die on any day not being one of the half-yearly days on which the said dividends accrue and become due and payable on or in respect of the said trust stock, then and in such case the executors, administrators, or assigns of the said Harry Osborn Cureton should not be entitled to any rateable share or proportion whatsoever of the dividends to accrue due at the expiration of the then current half year, and from and after the death of the said Harry Osborn Cureton, they the said Wardens and Commonalty should stand possessed of the said sum of 3,000l. New 3½l. per cent. annuities, and the dividends then accruing or thereafter to accrue due upon or in respect thereof upon trust by and out of the said dividends, to pay to each of five poor persons to be elected as therein-after provided for, and to be called and designated as "Cureton's Pensioners," the clear yearly sum of 20l. during his or her natural life (except and determinable as therein-after mentioned), and to be paid half-yearly on the 28th May and the 21st December in each and every year or thereabouts, and in case any person should be elected to be any such pensioner on any day not being one of such half-yearly days as aforesaid, then such person should on the next of such half-yearly days receive such part only of the half-yearly sum of 10l., as should be proportionate to the time which should have elapsed from the day of such election, and in case any of such pensioners should die on any day not being one of such half-yearly days as aforesaid, then the said Wardens and Commonalty should pay to the widow, widower, or such one or more relative or relatives, friend or friends of the deceased pensioner, as the Wardens and Court of Assistants of the said Company should in their discretion think fit, such part of the said half-yearly sum of 10l. as should have elapsed between such last preceding half-yearly day of payment, and the day of his or her death. And it was thereby declared and agreed that the election of the said "Cureton Pensioners" should be in the Wardens and Court of Assistants or other the Governing Body for the time being of the said Company, who should proceed to elect them in such manner as they usually adopt in the elections of their pensioners. And it was thereby declared and agreed that every such pensioner should be at the least 50 years of age, and should have been totally blind for 12 months before his or her election, and should not be in the receipt or enjoyment of any other Blind Charity, or any endowment or public gift whatsoever for the blind, and should not be in the possession or receipt of any other income exceeding 25l. per annum, and such persons (if any) as should be freemen of the said Company of Goldsmiths and should have actually and bona fide served an apprenticeship to the craft or act of goldsmithery, being otherwise duly qualified as aforesaid, should be preferred and elected before any other person whomsoever, and in case there should not be at any such election any candidate or applicant or sufficient number of candidates or applicants so qualified as aforesaid, who should have served such apprenticeship, then such candidates or applicants as should be freemen of the said Company, or the widow of such freemen being in other respects qualified as herein-before provided should have the next preference, and be elected before any other person whomsoever, and in case only there should not be at any such election any candidate or applicant or sufficient number of candidates or applicants so qualified as aforesaid, being freemen or widows of freemen of the said Company, then and in such case the vacancies or vacancy should be supplied by the election of persons or a person so qualified in all other respects as aforesaid, who should be freemen or widows of freemen or freeman or the widow of a freeman of the city of London, and for the better making such election, it was thereby declared that the Wardens and Court of Assistants of the said Company as soon as conveniently might be after the decease of the said Harry Osborne Cureton, and afterwards from time to time, when any of the said pensioners' places should become vacant, as soon as conveniently might be after the happening of every such vacancy, and before they should proceed to any such election should cause to be advertised, at least twice a week for four successive weeks, in two of the most public daily London newspapers, that they intend to proceed on a day to be therein mentioned, not less than six weeks and not more than eight weeks from the first advertisement, to elect the said five Cureton pensioners or to supply such vacancy as the case might be, therein stating the qualifications required for such pensioners, and the order or priority of preference or eligibility as therein-after declared, and the time and place and manner in which the applications and testimonials of the candidates or applicants were to be made produced and left. And it was thereby declared and agreed that when and so often any such election should be made the said Wardens and Court of Assistants should cause the names or name of the successful candidates or candidate, with their, his, or her addresses or address, to be twice advertised in the same two newspapers, within one fortnight after such election. And it was agreed and declared that if any candidate or applicant should neglect to comply with any of the forms to be prescribed by the said Wardens and Court of Assistants as to the making, producing, and leaving his or her application and testimonials as aforesaid, or if any candidate or applicant should fail to make out to the satisfaction of the said Wardens and Court of Assistants that he or she was qualified as therein-before provided for, such candidate or applicant should not be eligible to be elected, notwithstanding that by reason of the want of candidates or applicants of the class of which such person should be or claim to be, the Wardens and Courts of Assistants should be obliged to elect out of any other class of persons or altogether to postpone such election. And provided further, that if at any such election there should not be a candidate or a sufficient number of candidates of any of the classes aforesaid, who should be duly qualified and eligible as aforesaid to be elected to the place or places then to be filled, the said Wardens and Court of Assistants should adjourn the election to fill up such vacancy or vacancies as should not then be filled up to any other time not more than three months from that period, and previous to such election cause the like notice to be given by such advertisements as aforesaid, and so from time to time as occasion might require. Provided always, and it was declared and agreed that if the said Wardens and Court of Assistants should be satisfied that any candidate or applicant, although in all other respects qualified and eligible as aforesaid, was a person who had been convicted of any shameful offence, or was of dishonest character, or of drunken or dissolute habits, and should make a minute that such had been shown to their satisfaction, then and in such case it should be lawful for the said Wardens and Court of Assistants, if they should think fit, to pass over such person altogether, although by reason of the want of candidates or applicants of the class of which such person should be or claim to be, the said Wardens and Court of Assistants be obliged to elect out of any other class or to postpone such election altogether. Provided also, that if after any person should be elected a pensioner as aforesaid he or she should be ascertained to be in the receipt or enjoyment of any other blind charity or any endowment or public gift for the blind or in the receipt or enjoyment of any income from any source exceeding 25*l.* per annum, or be convicted of any shameful offence, or be of dishonest character or of drunken or dissolute habits, and the said Wardens and Court of Assistants, after having investigated such matter, and heard such explanation or answer as he or she might give therein, should be satisfied that he or she was in such receipt or enjoyment, or had been so convicted, or was of such character or habits as aforesaid, then and in any of such cases it should be lawful for them to declare the place of such pensioner vacant, and to proceed to an election to supply such vacancy, as if such pensioner had been dead or had resigned such pension, and as to the annual sum of 5*l.* being the balance or residue of the said dividends after paying and providing for the said five annual sums or pensions of 20*l.* each; and as to the proportions or parts of any of the said several pensions which should at any time or times remain to be disposed of or applied by reason of any vacancy in the place of any such pensioner for or in respect of the time which should elapse before the same should be filled up, it was agreed that the said Wardens and Commonalty of the said Company should stand possessed of the same upon trust for or towards defraying the costs charges and expenses of or attending the execution of the several trusts aforesaid, and after full payment and satisfaction of all such costs, charges, and expenses, then upon trust to pay over the surplus or residue thereof, if any, to any charitable fund of the said Company, or to pay, apply, and distribute the same to or for such charitable purposes and in such manner for the benefit of the poor of the said Company as they the said Wardens and Court of Assistants should in their discretion at any time or from time to time think proper, it being the intent and meaning of the said Harry Osborne Cureton, and hereby expressly declared, that the application of the said surplus should be in the absolute and uncontrolled discretion of them the said Wardens and Court of Assistants. And it was agreed and declared that if at any time the Parliament of this Kingdom should convert the said sum of 3,000*l.* New 3½*l.* per cent. annuities into any other stock so as to produce a less income than the present amount of the dividends thereon, or if from any other cause the income of the said trust fund should be diminished, then and in such case the said several pensions or annuities of 20*l.* each should respectively abate and be diminished in proportion to such reduction. And it was agreed that the said Wardens and Commonalty of the said Company of Goldsmiths, or their successors, should not be answerable or accountable for any loss of the said trust funds, or of any dividends or interest thereof, unless the same shall happen or be occasioned by the wilful act or default of the said Wardens or Commonalty or of the said Wardens and Court of Assistants, and that no election or other act or proceeding whatsoever, made or done in or about the execution of the trusts aforesaid, should be void or liable to be set aside, or in any manner whatsoever to be questioned, nor should the said Wardens and Commonalty, or the said Wardens and Court of Assistants, or any person or persons whomsoever, be answerable or liable for or in respect of the same for or by reason of any accidental violation, omission, or neglect of any of the forms, rules, and directions herein-before prescribed, expressed, or declared, or for or upon any other reason or ground whatsoever, unless the same should have been made in wilful and fraudulent breach of the trusts of the deed. And in case from any neglect, omission, or other cause whatsoever, any time therein-before appointed for the giving of any notice or the proceeding to any election, or the doing of any other act therein-before mentioned, should have elapsed without the giving, holding, or doing of such notice, election, or act, the said Wardens and Court of Assistants should nevertheless proceed to give such notice, make such election, or do such act, notwithstanding such default conforming as near as might be, or the circumstances would admit, to the forms, rules, and directions therein-before prescribed, expressed, and declared so far as the same should be applicable thereto. Provided lastly, and it was thereby lastly declared and agreed that the now abstracting deed should be recorded in the book or books of the said Wardens and Commonalty of the said Company of Goldsmiths, in which their charities were usually recorded, and should be therein entitled "The Gift of Mr. Harry Osborne Cureton" so that the memory thereof should be preserved and perpetuated.

Subsequently to the deed Mr. Cureton by his will of the 19th July 1848, bequeathed to the Company 2,000*l.* consols in addition to the 3,000*l.*, because the interest of the 3½ per cents. having been reduced to 3¼, and it being probable that it would be further reduced to 3*l.* per cent., the testator found that the former gift of 3,000*l.* would not produce enough to pay his five pensioners their 20*l.* per annum as set forth in his said trust deed. The Company would therefore by the bequest have the sum of 5,000*l.* 3*l.* per cent. consols, being 50*l.* over and above the sum required for the payment of 20*l.* to each of his five pensioners. And he declared his will that the five pensioners should have out of the annual produce of the whole amount of the fund given to the Goldsmiths' Company and settled by the deed aforesaid, and bequeathed by his will a pension or annual sum of 20*l.* each; and he directed that at every election for one or more pensions the Prime Warden should have 40*s.*, and each of the other three Wardens 20*s.* if they attend the election. That the clerk should have the sum of 40*s.* for his trouble, and the beadle the sum of 15*s.* for his trouble, and that advertisements be put into two or three of the principal London newspapers two or three times six weeks before the election, and that the names and addresses of successful pensioners be advertised in the same newspapers, (the testator wished this to be particularly attended to as he thought it would prevent frauds) and after payment of the above-named sums to his pensioners, and to the wardens, clerk, and headle, and the expenses of printing papers for the use of the candidates and the advertisements, such sum as might remain over of the interest, dividends, or annual produce of the said trust fund, it was his will should go to the general funds of the said Company of Goldsmiths, to be applied for their general corporate purposes in such manner as they should think fit. And he gave to Mr. John Lane, then the Clerk to the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths of the City of London, the sum of 100*l.* 3*l.* per cent. consols; but in case of his death before testator's, he gave the same legacy to whoever might be clerk of the said Company at his decease as some little remuneration for his trouble in preparing for the election of pensioners, but the sum was not to be paid until his executors were fully satisfied that the best had been done to comply with the above instructions.

The first sum of 3,000*l.* New 3½ per cent. stock has been reduced to the same sum, New 3*l.* per cent. annuities, and in respect of the second sum the Company received only 1,800*l.* 3*l.* per cent. consols—200*l.* stock having been deducted for legacy duty. Both sums stand in the corporate name of the Company, omitting in the description the words "of the City of" London, and describing the Company as "of London," in order to separate the account.

PART II.

FARMER'S CHARITY.

Rachael Farmer, by will of the 18th September 1813, gave to the Company 1,000*l.* 4*l.* per cent. annuities, the interest to be paid to 10 poor blind men or women. The stock was transferred to the Company, less the 100*l.* legacy duty, but the Company have charged themselves, in addition to the dividends, with a further sum of 10*l.* annually, making up 40*l.* The Company credit the Charity with the capital sum of 1,000*l.* New 3*l.* per cent. stock; the 100*l.* lost by legacy duty having been made up by accumulations. There are 10 poor blind persons on this list who receive 4*l.* a year each.

FICKETT'S GIFT.

Anthony Fickett, by will of the 10th February 1685, gave to the Company 100*l.* to pay 4*l.* a year to two poor working goldsmiths. The Company pay the 4*l.* a year to the account of the Male Pensioners, Class D.

FOUNTAIN'S CHARITY.

Jane Fountain, by her will of the 3rd December 1842, proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, gave to John Lane, clerk of the Goldsmiths' Company, the sum of 700*l.* for the benefit of the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths, and to be applied in such manner as he the said John Lane should think fit. An entry in the book of the Company entitled, "The Book of Copies of Wills and Foundation of Deeds of Charity Foundation," is as follows:—

"Memorandum.—The said John Lane decided that the charity fund bequeathed by Jane Fountain should be held by the Goldsmiths' Company in trust for the men and women pensioners, inhabitants of the Acton almshouses. The legacy duty, amounting to 70*l.*, having been paid, reduced the principal sum bequeathed by the

The dividends, amounting to 144*l.* a year, are carried to the account of the Charity without deduction.

There are now four pensioners on this fund. It is contemplated, in the event of objects within the description of the gift being permanently deficient, to apply for some enlargement of the scope of the donation. The charges for printing and advertising according to the directions in the years 1859–60, and 1860–61, were upwards of 12*l.* in each year. The balance of cash in favour of this Charity at Lady-day 1862 was 213*l.* 13*s.

DAVY'S CHARITY.

Oliver Davy, by his will of the 27th May 1474, gave to the Company all his lands and tenements in London. To the use of his wife for life, remainder to his daughter and her heirs, and if she died without heirs, then to the Company to pay weekly to two poor men of the fellowship 2*s.* 4*d.*, and the remainder for the use of the said Company. The sum 6*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.* is carried to the account of the Hackney almsmen. The system of carrying 36*l.* 8*s.* in respect of this and Newman's Charity to the settled pension fund, which existed at the time of the last inquiry, has been since put an end to.

SIR J. DRAX'S CHARITY.

Sir James Drax, by his will in 1663, gave 100*l.*, which was paid into the hands of the Company, and the interest thereof to be paid to the poor of St. John Zachary parish. The Company pay annually to the Churchwardens of the parish of St. John Zachary, the sum of 5*l.* as the interest of the money received under this endowment.

"will to 630*l.*, which was laid out in the purchase of "656*l.* 6*s.* 5*d.* 3*l.* per cent. consols."

This fund forms part of the charity funds invested by the Company and standing in their corporate name, the dividends amounting to 19*l.* 13*s.* 8*d.* The Company give annually 1*l.* each, or 20*l.* to the 20 almspeople in the Acton almshouses in respect of this Charity. This gift is in addition to the other allowances they receive.

SIR THOMAS FOWLES' CHARITY.

Sir Thomas Fowles, by his will of the 30th July 1691, gave to the Company a rentcharge of 10*l.*, payable by the Bishop of Bath and Wells, for five poor widows, 40*s.* a piece on St. Thomas' Day. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners pay the 8*l.* per annum, deducting 2*l.* for land tax, to the Goldsmiths' Company. The 8*l.* a year is carried to the account of the almswomen in the Acton almshouses, and forms part of their allowance.

FOX'S CHARITY.

John Fox, by will of the 14th March 1597, gave to the Company his shop in New Fish Street of the yearly value of 6*l.*, and also 150*l.* to purchase lands of 8*l.* or 9*l.* a year to pay for a schoolmaster to teach poor men's children in the Free Grammar School of Deane, Cumberland, 10*l.* a year, and give to an honest poor man of the Company 1*s.* 4*d.* weekly.

The premises are supposed to be those described as 22 Fish Street Hill. The Company receive, in the name of George Pochin, a sum of 8*l.* a year as representing their interest in the property. This rent with the interest of 150*l.* with which the Company charge themselves at 4*l.* per cent. make together 14*l.* a year. The sum of 10*l.* a year is paid to the master of Dean School.

* HARRY OSBORN CURETON'S CHARITY.

By an order of the Board of 17th November 1868 the following scheme was established for the future regulation of this Charity.

Scheme.

1. The income of the charity shall be received by the Goldsmiths' Company and applied by them towards the support and assistance of poor blind persons residing in the county of Middlesex. The county of Middlesex is to be taken as including the cities of London and Westminster.

2. The objects of the Charity shall be selected by the Goldsmiths' Company according to the necessities and deserts of the candidates.

3. In selecting the recipients the Goldsmiths' Company shall have regard to the following qualifications, and shall give preference to candidates (being otherwise deserving objects) in the following order:—

a. Freemen of the Goldsmiths' Company who are of the craft.

b. Other freemen of the Goldsmiths' Company and their widows.

c. Freemen of the city of London and their widows.

d. Other poor blind persons residing in the county of Middlesex.

4. If any recipient not specially qualified under the classifications A., B., and C. ceases to reside in the county of Middlesex, it shall be in the discretion of the Goldsmiths' Company, upon consideration of all the circumstances of the case, whether he or she shall continue to receive any and what amount of benefit from the Charity.

5. The benefit of the Charity shall be conferred on the recipients either by way of direct pension or money gift, or indirectly as in the shape of clothing, payment of rent, schooling of children, or in any other mode of assistance as the Goldsmiths' Company may determine in each case.

6. The Goldsmiths' Company shall be at liberty to discontinue the benefit, pension, gift, or other payment on misbehaviour or change of circumstances rendering the recipient an unworthy or improper object of charity.

The sum of 4*l.* a year is paid to the account of the Hackney almsmen.

GURDEN'S CHARITY.

Benjamin Gurden, in January 1894, gave to the Company 300*l.* Consols, the dividends to be paid to nine junior widows in the 2nd class.

The sum forms part of the general charity investment of the Company. The dividends, amounting to 9*l.* a year, are paid to the account of the Female Pensioners, Class C.

HALL'S CHARITY.

George Hall, who died in 1803, by his will dated the 5th August 1795, gave to the Company 1,000*l.* Reduced annuities, the dividends thereof to be divided amongst six of the senior pensioners.

This sum forms part of the sum 5,385*l.* 5*s.* Reduced annuities, the charity investments of the Company in that stock. The dividends, amounting to 30*l.* a year, are given to 30 poor men in sums of 20*s.* each. The directions that the gift should be distributed amongst six of the senior pensioners in addition to their other pensions is not observed : it is not in fact given to regular pensioners.

AGAS HARDINGE'S CHARITY.

Agas Hardinge, by her will of the 22nd January 1513, gave all her lands and tenements in London to the Company to pay weekly to two poor widows of goldsmiths 8*d.* each.

The property, as stated by the Commissioners of Inquiry, is in Shoe Lane and Fetter Lane. It comprises East Harding Street and New Street, and forms a very considerable estate. The annual sum of 3*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.* is carried to the account of the Acton almswomen.

T. HARDING'S CHARITY.

Thomas Harding, by his will dated the 16th January 1824, proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, gave to the Company, on the contingency therein mentioned, all the 3*l.* per cent. Consolidated annuities and 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities standing in his name at the time of his decease in trust that the Prime Warden and Wardens for the time being do divide the dividends every six months equally between the pensioners living in the almshouses near Acton.

The stock referred to at the decease of the testator or found to be standing in the names of the executors on the death of the testator upon the 14th October 1829 was—

3,000 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities, and
2,396 3*l.* per cent. consols.

And the contingency, which was the death of a legatee under age and without issue having happened, there were transferred to the Company, after payment of the legacy duty—

£ s. d.
2,379 12 2 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities, and
2,396 17 6 3*l.* per cent. Consols.

These sums now form part of the respective stocks standing in the name of the Company. I have stated the aggregate amount of the Reduced annuities in my report on George Hall's Charity. The total amount of consols held by the Company on these trusts is 6,219*l.* 12*s.* 1*d.*, and Cureton's Charity 1,800*l.* 3*l.* per cent. consols, together with other like funds in the Court of Chancery.

The clear dividends of the two funds amounting to 143*l.* 5*s.* 8*d.* a year are equally divided between the almsmen and the almswomen at the Acton almshouses.

HETHERINGTON'S CHARITY.

Humphry Hetherington, by his will of the 17th April 1728, gave to the Company 100*l.*, the interest to be distributed to the poor of the Company.

* JOHN HILLE'S CHARITY.

By an order of the Board of 2nd February 1869, the trustees were authorised to grant a building lease of No. 124, Wood Street, for 60 years from Michaelmas 1869, at the annual rent of 250*l.*

By an order of the Board of 16th July 1880, the trustees

The charge of 8*l.* a year which the Company, before the last inquiry, would seem to have imposed upon themselves in respect of this Charity, has long since been reduced. The Company now pay 4*l.* to the account of the Hackney almsmen.

HEYDON'S CHARITY.

John Heydon, by his will of the 6th March 1579, gave 100*l.* to the Company to be lent out, and the interest 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* paid to the Mercers' Company.

The Company have no sum representing this gift, but the interest which was to have been gathered from the fund at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* a year is paid to the Mercers' Company.

HILLE'S CHARITY.

John Hille, by will of the 6th September 1430, gave to the Goldsmiths' Company 19 messuages in St. Vedast Foster to give to 13 poor goldsmiths 13 black gowns in those years that the livery customarily have new clothing, and to distribute 52*s.* annually, that is to say, amongst the most indigent persons of the parishes of St. John Zachary, St. Mary Steyning, St. Ann, St. Vedast, and St. Michael, Huggin Lane, 20 quarters of coal, and the residue of said 52*s.* (except 6*s.* 8*d.* for the Wardens) amongst poor goldsmiths.

And he further gave to the Company three shops in Wood Street, and one in Fleet Street for the poor brethren of the Company who receive alms.

The Company possess certain houses, Nos. 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, and 43, Gutter Lane, in the parish of St. Vedast, occupying about 124 feet frontage, on which the rentcharge of 52*s.* and the cost of the gowns are imposed. The Company pay to the churchwardens of the five parishes 8*s.* each, and carry 12*s.* annually to the account of the casual poor of the Company.

Under the devise of the buildings and gardens in Wood Street, and the shop in Fleet Street, for the poor brethren, the Company held the following property:—

No. 118, Wood Street, the entire house is let to John Ray, on a building lease which expires in 1888 at a rent of 75 l. , of which 20 l. belongs to the Charity of Sir Edward Shaa, and to this estate	55	0	0
No. 119, Wood Street, let to George Brettell, on a building lease expiring March 1885, at 183 l. 10 s. , of which the portion of this estate is	120	0	0
No. 124, Wood Street, let to Messrs. Foster and Porter, for 21 years from Michaelmas 1848	117	14	6
No. 162, Fleet Street, let to Frank Clemow, for 21 years from Michaelmas 1847	110	0	0
No. 163, Fleet Street, let to Messrs. Leve-ridge, for 21 years from Michaelmas 1847	120	0	0
	£522	14	6

On this estate there is a quit rent of 4*l.* 1*s.* 10*d.* payable to the Dean and Chapter of Westminster.

The income, deducting the quit rent, is apportioned amongst the Hackney almspeople and the different classes of pensioners as follows:—

The Hackney almsmen	206	12	8
The Men Pensioners, Class B.	46	14	5
The Widows " " D.	257	4	8
The Widows " " C.	8	0	11
	£518	12	8

These three latter sums may occasionally vary according to the amount required to make up the aggregate payment to each class.*

were authorised to grant a lease of part of Anderton's Hotel, comprising the sites of Nos. 162 and 163, Fleet Street, for 79½ years from Midsummer 1878, at a peppercorn rent for the first year, and the annual rent of 533*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* during the remainder of the term, and also the annual sum of 16*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* in respect of redeemed land tax.

HENRY HOARE'S CHARITY.

Henry Hoare, by a codicil to his will of the 5th March 1722, gave 200*l.* to the Company to pay 8*l.* yearly to poor freemen or their widows. The 8*l.* a year, which is supposed to represent this Charity, is annually carried to the Pensioners, Class C.

SIR RICHARD HOARE'S CHARITY.

Sir Richard Hoare, by will of the 2nd October 1718, gave 200*l.* to the Company to pay 8*l.* a year to 8 poor widows who should most frequently receive the Sacrament. The sum of 8*l.* a year, as the produce of this gift, is annually paid to the almswomen in the almshouses at Acton, in addition to their pensions. They are at present all communicants, and receive 8*s.* a year each.

JAMESON'S CHARITY.

Thomas Jameson, on the 13th June 1679, paid to the Company 100*l.*, they covenanting to pay 5*l.* annually to Hackney parish—

	£	s.	d.
For two sermons on Good Friday and Holy Thursday	-	-	2 0 0
To the poor of the parish	-	-	3 0 0
The Company pay 5 l. per annum to the churchwardens of the parish of Hackney.

JENNER'S CHARITY.

Robert Jenner, by indentures of lease and release of the 1st and 9th December 1648, granted to the Company a messuage in Foster Lane, upon trust out of the rents to pay yearly 43*l.* 10*s.*, as follows:—

To 15 poor goldsmiths, 20 s. each	-	15	0 0
To Bartholomew's Hospital	-	15	0 0
To the parish of St. John Zachary, London	-	5	0 0
To the poor of St. Leonard Foster	-	5	0 0
To the four wardens 13 s. 4 d. each, the clerk 10 s. , and the beadle 6 s. 8 d.	-	3	10 0

And the residue of the rent to be disposed of by the said Company to such uses as they should think fit.

And by will of the 5th December 1651 he directed that the money to the two parishes should be laid out in bread, and that the 15 poor men of the Company should be incapable to receive the 20*s.* each again for three years.

The property charged is part of Nos. 1 and 2, Foster Lane, the other part of which belongs to the Company absolutely. The sum of 15*l.* a year is paid to St. Bartholomew's hospital, 15*l.* a year is carried to the account of the Pensioners, Class D., 5*l.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of the parish of St. John Zachary, and the like sum to the churchwardens of the parish of St. Leonard. The remaining 3*l.* 10*s.* is paid to the wardens, clerk, and beadle.

LOVEDAY'S CHARITY.

John Loveday, by his will of the 15th June 1693, gave to the Company 100*l.* to pay 5*l.* to five poor widows.

The Company charge themselves with 5*l.* a year, which they carry to the account of the Acton almshouses.

MAKEPEACE'S CHARITY.

Robert Makepeace, by his will of the 8th August 1798, proved in January 1801, which was invested in 177*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.* per cent. Consols to the Company, should pay the dividends to four poor widows.

This forms part of the consols standing in the name of the Company. The dividends, amounting to 5*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.*, are received and carried to the account of Widow Pensioners, Class D.

MORLEY'S CHARITY.

Elizabeth, the widow of John Morley, prior to 1588, gave 100*l.* to the Company, in consideration of which the Company covenanting to pay 5*l.* yearly to the poor of St. Botolph, Aldersgate.

The Company appears to have discharged the property on its sale by a covenant against incumbrances, and they now charge themselves with the annual payment of 5*l.* a year to the churchwardens of St. Botolph, Aldersgate.

MORRELL'S CHARITY.

Richard Morrell, by his will of the 7th October 1703, gave a competent sum of money for the purchase of an annuity of 52*s.* for bread for the poor of St. Olave, Silver Street, London.

And he also appointed a competent sum of money for erecting six almshouses for six poor decayed liverymen, or, in want of liverymen, of freemen of the Company.

And he also appointed a competent sum for the purchase of an annuity of 31*l.* 4*s.* per annum for the use of the said six almsmen.

And he also gave them three chaldrons of coal and a hundred and a half of faggots, and for each a new gown every year.

And he gave all the residue of his messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments to the use of the said Company and the poor thereof.

The almshouses, which appear to have been built in the year 1705, are in Goldsmith's Row, Hackney, and are the same buildings as are described in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 8, page 343). The fee simple of the almshouse is vested in trustees by a deed of the 9th April 1839, whereby the premises were conveyed to 15 trustees, of whom William Cox, James Boyle Smith, and William Taylor Copeland are the survivors. The clerk of the Company concurs with me in thinking that the keeping up of the trust is now an unnecessary expense and may be discontinued.

The Commissioners of Inquiry state that the residuary gift consisted of leasehold property of which the term had expired, but this appears to be inaccurate, in so far as it describes the estate as consisting only of leaseholds which had expired. There appears to have been a freehold house in Mark Lane, and a piece of land at Barking, which is supposed to have formed the residuary estate of the testator after payment of his debts, legacies, and funeral expenses, exclusive of the two sums directed to be laid out in annuities, and which the Company was probably satisfied to derive from the unconverted residue of the real estate. The house in Mark Lane was sold in 1816, is now represented by a sum of 1,025*l.* with which the Company have charged themselves, and for which they allow interest to the Charity at the rate of 4*l.* per cent.

The land at Barking, Essex, consists of 31*a.* 2*r.* 11 p., including watercourses, lying in the middle of the Marsh. The surface capable of being let, exclusive of the watercourses, is 24*a.* 2*r.* 1*p.* It is let at 3*l.* 8*s.* an acre to William John Corfe on lease for 14 years from Christmas 1860, producing 83*l.* 4*s.* a year.

The total income of the Charity therefore is—

The interest on the 1,025 l.	-	-	41 0 0
The rent of the land at Barking	-	-	83 4 0

Out of this there is an annual quit rent payable to the Manor of Barking of 5*l.* 5*s.* with 8*d.* for an acquittance, such 5*l.* 5*s.* 8*d.* which, with a deduction for the land tax of 1*l.* 1*s.* leaves 4*l.* 4*s.* 8*d.* and 1*s.* 6*d.* and 4*d.* acquittance for a right of way makes the annual payment. The buildings are old and require considerable repair. In the year 1861-2 the sum of 134*l.* 4*s.* 5*d.* was applied on such repairs, leaving the Charity in debt to the Company at the end of that year in a balance of 179*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.*

The Company do not, however, in their disbursements on account of the almsmen in the Hackney Almshouses limit themselves to the sum they receive from this or any other

Charity. The allowances or stipends are made up from several charities, but supply the fund necessary for repairs or other extra charges from the income of the Company. The Hackney Almshouses receive annually a sum of 300*l.* per annum, or 50*l.* each, in addition to the 6*l.* a year given on the visitation. They are paid quarterly 75*l.* in money besides the allowance of coals, gas, water, gowns, pew rents, &c., above mentioned. The 300*l.* a year is made up of the following gifts :—

Morrell's endowment	-	-	31 4 0
Taddy's	-	-	12 0 0
Cheney's	-	-	4 0 0
Davy's	-	-	6 1 4

Perchard's	-	-	6 0 0

The senior almsman has also an additional allowance for looking after the gardens.

The almsmen are chosen from the persons already on the pension list, and, therefore, must be of the age required to be placed on those lists. An exception would be admitted in case a poor liveryman were chosen. They are not necessarily single men ; some of those now in the almshouses are married men.

TADDY'S CHARITY.

James Taddy in 1818 transferred 400*l.* 3*l.* per cent. consols into the name of the Company. This gift was stated to the Commissioners of Inquiry to be a donation of an unknown benefactor, but it was known after the death of Mr. Taddy in 1828,* that he had communicated his name and the object of the gift to some officers or persons connected with the Company. The object was that the income should be paid to the six Hackney almsmen in equal portions half-yearly, and that the name of the benefactor should not be disclosed during his life. The dividends form part of the income paid to the Hackney almspeople.

SIR HUGH MYDDELTON'S CHARITY.

Sir Hugh Myddelton, by his will of the 21st November 1631, gave to the Company one share in the New River Company, and the profits to be distributed half-yearly to the poor of the Company, and especially to those of his name, kindred, or countrymen free of the Company.

At the time of the last inquiry the produce of this share, which then amounted to about 190*l.* a year, was given away in small sums.

On the 22nd June 1852 a petition was presented by the Company to the Master of the Rolls stating, amongst other things, that the income of the Charity then amounted to upwards of 800*l.* a year, and praying for a scheme as to the future distribution of the said income. It was ordered that the following scheme should be established. "That the said Wardens, or the major part of them, shall, out of the poorer members of their said Company, or the widows of such members, elect 20 pensioners, to be called Sir Hugh Myddelton's Pensioners, and that in electing such pensioners the said Wardens and Assistants shall have regard to the preference given by the will of the said Sir Hugh Myddelton to such poor men of his name, kindred, or countrymen as should be free of the said Company.

That each of such pensioners shall, so long as he or she shall remain in the number of such pensioners, receive out of the income of the said Charity an annuity of 20*l.* by equal half-yearly payments. And that the said

Wardens and Assistants, or the major part of them, shall have power at their discretion to remove any pensioner, but every pensioner, unless so removed, shall continue in the number of pensioners for life. That the remainder of the income of the said Charity not required for payment of the said annuities of the said pensioners shall half-yearly be distributed to such of the poor members of the said Company, or of the widows of such members as the said Wardens and Assistants, or the major part of them, shall from time to time think most deserving objects of the said Charity, in such sums as they shall think fit; but in such distribution the said Wardens and Assistants shall have regard to the preference given by the said Sir Hugh Myddelton's will to such poor men of his name kindred or countrymen as aforesaid be carried into effect." And it was ordered that the Wardens and Assistants of the Company of Goldsmiths, or the major part of them, should carry such scheme into effect, and distribute and apply the future income of the charitable bequest accordingly.

The Company in pursuance of this order elect 10 men pensioners and nine women pensioners, who receive 20*l.* a year each. These pensioners form no part of any of the classes before referred to, but are especially denominated Sir Hugh Myddelton's Pensioners. The Company also distribute sums of 2*l.* 12*s.* a year to all the men pensioners, averaging about 110 in number. This distribution amounted in the year ending Lady-day 1862, to the aggregate sum of 288*l.* 12*s.*

The residue is carried to the fund applicable to the payment of the Women Pensioners of Class C.*

NEWMAN'S CHARITY.

Gaius Newman, about the year 1614, or his widow after his death, made an offer to the Company for maintaining two almsmen at 1*s.* 4*d.* a week each, and that she paid them 140*l.* for that purpose. The sum of 6*l.* 18*s.* 8*d.* in respect of this benefaction forms part of the 300*l.* a year, which constitutes the aggregate of the stipend of the Hackney almsmen.

PAINE'S CHARITY.

Robert Paine in his lifetime desired his wife to pay after his decease to the Company 300*l.*, and pay—

To the poor of the Company	-	-	5
To the poor of Marlborough	-	-	5
To the poor of the Tower precinct	-	-	5

There is no sum of 300*l.* invested to provide for this payment, but the sum of 5*l.* a year is carried to the men pensioners, Class D. The Company pay to the churchwardens of the parishes of St. Peter the Apostle, and St. Mary the Virgin, in the town of Marlboro', an annual sum of 5*l.* The other 5*l.* is paid generally to the overseer of the precinct of the Tower without St. Peter's Vincula, in the liberty of the Tower of London.

PATTESLIE'S CHARITY.

John Patteslie, by will of the 7th March 1450, gave to the Company all his lands and tenements in St. Mildred, Poultry, to pay five poor almsmen 1*s.* 2*d.* each weekly. The property on which this rent is charged is erroneously mentioned by the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 8, page 321) as not specifically existing, consists of a house at the corner of St. Mildred's Court (No. 1 from the Poultry), agreed to be let to the Union Bank with other property of the Goldsmiths' Company. The sum of 15*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* a year is paid to the account of the stipends of the Barking almsmen.

SIR JAMES PEMBERTON'S CHARITY.

Sir James Pemberton, by will of the 8th September 1613, gave to the poor of the Company 200*l.* to be dis-

*SIR HUGH MYDDELTON'S CHARITY.

By an order of the Board of 28th November 1876, directions were given by way of scheme that the Wardens and Assistants of the said Company of Goldsmiths, or the major part of them, should out of the poorer members of the said Company, and the widows and unmarried or widowed daughters of the poorer members of the said Company, elect so many pensioners as the income of the Charity would from time to time permit, to be called "Sir Hugh Myddelton's Pensioners," and that their pensions should be of such amounts as the said Wardens and Assistants should from time to time think fit, but should in no case exceed 40*l.*; and that in the administration of the said Charity the Wardens and Assistants should have regard to the preference given by the will of the founder to such poor men of his name, kindred, and countrymen, as should be free of the said Company, and that the said Wardens and Assistants, or the major part of them, should have power at their discretion to remove any pensioner, but that every such pensioner unless so removed should continue in the number of pensioners for life.

tributed amongst them at the discretion of his executrix. The Company charge themselves with the interest of 200*l.* at 5*l.* per cent. amounting to 10*l.* a year, which is carried to the account of the Acton almswomen.

PERCHARD'S CHARITY.

Peter Perchard in his lifetime gave to the Company 250*l.* four per cent. stock, and by a codicil to his will of the 3rd January 1806 gave a further sum of 100*l.*, which was invested in the purchase of 166*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.* Consols, and directed the Company to pay annually:—

To 4 poor widows	-	4	0
To 5 other poor widows	-	4	19
To 6 Hackney almsmen	-	6	0

The 166*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols - 4 19 8

12 9 8

The reduction of the 4*l.* per cent. stock having diminished the income to the amount of 2*l.* a year, the Company make up the payments from their own funds, adding 6*l.* a year to the Hackney almsmen's stipends, and to the widow pensioners (Class C.) 8*l.* 19*s.* 8*d.*

PERRYN'S CHARITY.

John Perryn, by his will of the 18th December 1656, gave all his freehold messuages, lands, and hereditaments in Acton to the Company upon trust to dispose of the rents thereof as follows:

To the parish of Bromyard, Herefordshire, for a weekly lecture	26
To the parish clerk	1
To the Free Grammar School at Bromyard	20
To the poor of that parish	5
To the poor of the Company	20
To Christ's Hospital 5 l. , and for an exhibition to Oxford or Cambridge 5 l.	10
To the poor of St. Vedast Foster	5
To the poor of East Acton	10
To the poor of St. Sepulchre, London	5
And for a septennial sermon and dinner	3

And the remainder of the rents for the poor of the Company, and for exhibitions for scholars in the universities.

The Company, as stated by the Commissioners of Inquiry, acquired a considerable estate at Acton in Middlesex under this devise, and in 1812 built 20 almshouses on part of that estate at an expense of about 12,000*l.* The Company charge the Charity interest at 4*l.* per cent. on 10,000*l.* part of this expenditure. The present condition and rental of the Acton estate is as follows:—

* JOHN PERRYN'S CHARITY.

By an order of the Board of 3rd May 1878, the trustees were authorised to make an agreement with Mr. George A 14546.

The estates have been reduced in quantity of 10a. 2r. 14p. under the following circumstances:—

A portion of this estate, in quantity 3a. 3r. 5p., was taken in 1836 by the Great Western Railway Company, for which 1,890*l.* 12*s.* 0*d.* was paid, and in 1837 a small additional plot of 0a. 2r. 10p. was also taken for which 100*l.* was paid; these sums, amounting to 1,990*l.* 12*s.* 0*d.*, were laid out in the purchase of 2,005*l.* 12*s.* 10*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Reduced annuities - - - 60 3 2

In 1838 a further portion, 1a. 0r. 21p. of land, was taken by the Great Western Railway at the price of 500*l.*, which was invested in the purchase of 523*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols in the name of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery, to an account intitled In re Great Western Railway and The Goldsmiths' Company - - - 15 14 2

In 1851 the North and South-West Junction Railway Company took 5a. 0r. 18p. of land at the sum of 1,000*l.*, which was laid out in the purchase of 2,046*l.* 9*s.* 0*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols, in the name of the Accountant-General, a sum which has subsequently been reduced to 1,077*l.* 2*s.* 3*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Stock by an order of the Court dated the 23rd May 1856, under which 968*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* Consols, producing 912*l.* cash, was invested in the enfranchisement of such of the lands at Acton as were of copyhold tenure - - - 32 6 4

A fine received from Sir Moore Disney of 1,175*l.* in June 1851 as a portion of a consideration for a lease of the Manor House (which has since expired) was invested in 1,192*l.* 13*s.* 2*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols - - - 35 15 6

From this income there is deducted the interest of the 10,000*l.* part of the 12,000*l.* expended in the building of almshouses, which at 4*l.* per cent. is permanently charged on the estate - - - 400 0 0

The Company pay to the account of the Acton almspeople:—

	£	s.	d.
The 10 almsmen	-	55	15
The 10 almswomen	-	66	15
The vestry clerk of the parish of Acton, for the poor	-	10	0
The churchwardens of St. Vedast	-	5	0
of St. Sepulchre	-	5	0
The Vicar of Bromyard:	£	s.	d.
For the lecturers	-	28	0
" " poor	-	5	0
" " parish clerk	-	1	0
The master of the Grammar School at Bromyard	-	32	0
Five exhibitors at 30 l. a year	-	20	0

The Company support from their own funds a large number of exhibitors, 17 of which are at Oxford and 17 at Cambridge. The only exhibitions charged to charity estates are the above five, and two under Strelley's Charity at 5*l.* a year each. The 34 are all of the same annual amount; they are distributed according to the rules specified in the printed circular which I append.

In the year 1861-2 there was a sum of 223*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.* applied in builder's work and repairs on the Acton estate. In 1860 the repairs amounted to 2*l.* 13*s.* 3*d.*, and in 1859 to 5*l.* 17*s.* 7*d.*

The addition of the repairs on the estate of 223*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.* to the 344*l.* 10*s.* 8*d.* the other disbursements on the charity account in the same year (1861-2) left only a sum of 21*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.*, which was carried to the account of the casual poor to which account this balance is always paid.

The almshouses are described by the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 8, page 340) which description is still applicable. The inmates are 10 men and 10 women (who may be married couples). They are appointed from the settled pension list, but are not (as the Commissioners state) always the oldest persons on that list.

The pensioners, both men and women, are all classed as ordinary pensioners, and receive the pension to that class on which they are placed. In addition to which they have 2*l.* each annually, and 1*l.* each from Jane Fountain's Gift, and another 1*l.* each in addition given by the Company at the annual visitation. The 24*l.* thus paid to them, especially as Acton almsmen or women, does not vary in amount. The pension payable is dependent, as above stated, on their class.

The establishment, other than the pensioners, consists of a chaplain, medical attendant, and gardener, who are paid by the Company out of their proper funds. The Company also pay in like manner for coals, candles, rates and taxes, repairs, &c. The whole of these disbursements not charged to the Charity, was in the year 1861-2, 761*l.* 19*s.* 10*d.

Wright for the sale and working of the brick earth upon and under two pieces of land at East Acton, containing 39½ and 10 acres respectively, to a depth of six feet.

By another order of 8th July 1879, the trustees were Goldsmiths' Hall,

In reply to your letter of the , I beg to inform you that vacancies in the exhibitions in the gift of the Goldsmiths' Company are only declared once in the year, viz., at the end of the month of January, and if application is made to me in the early part of February, stating at which University the applicant is resident, the necessary form of petition, and also a list of the members of the Court of Assistants, in whom the election is vested, will be furnished to you.

The petitions are required to be properly filled up, and returned by some fixed day, about the middle of the month of April; after which time, and until the next vacancies are declared, no application can be received.

A student who desires to become a candidate for one of these exhibitions must have been in actual residence at his college at least two terms before the time appointed for the return of the petition, and his income arising from preferment at college or elsewhere must not amount to more than 70*l.* a year, exclusive of the Goldsmiths' Exhibition.

The exhibitions are at the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, and are of the value of 30*l.* per annum each, and can be enjoyed by the student until he takes his degree, or has kept the required number of terms for so doing.

I am, &c.

(Signed) WALTER PRIDEAUX,
Clerk.

To

PIERSON'S CHARITY.

William Pierson, on the 13th May 1689, paid to the Company 50*l.* to pay 2*l.* to four freemen's widows, and 10*s.* to the wardens and clerk. The Company charged themselves with interest at 5*l.* per cent., of which 2*l.* forms part of the payment to the Acton almspeople, and 10*s.* goes to the account of the wardens and clerk.

authorised to make a further agreement for the working of the brick earth in certain parts of the land to a greater depth than six feet.

The amount of the royalties received in respect of the bricks for 1878, 1879, and 1880, were invested in the purchase of 2,829*l.* 5*s.* 6*d.* Consols in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

The Board have approved a building agreement of the above-mentioned land for 90 years, from Lady-day 1879, at the annual rent of 35*l.* an acre, the lessee covenanting to expend not less than 800*l.* on each house, which, with the garden and appurtenances, is not to occupy less than a quarter of an acre of land. No leases have yet been granted under this agreement.

By another order of 16th January 1880, the trustees were authorised to grant a repairing lease of the house known as "The Beeches," for 50 years, from Midsummer 1879, at the annual rent of 50*l.*

The Board have approved a building agreement of a piece of land at Acton, containing 1*a.* 2*r.* 10*p.*, and having a frontage of 465 feet to East Acton (now Church-field) Road, for 99 years, from Lady-day 1879, at a peppercorn rent for the first year, 39*l.* for the second year, and the annual rent of 78*l.* during the remainder of the term, the lessee covenanting to build not less than twelve private dwelling-houses, and to expend not less than 600*l.* on each such house.

Under this agreement the Board have by orders authorised the grant of leases of the 12 houses.

The Board have approved two building agreements of a piece of land at Acton, containing 4*a.* 0*r.* 9*p.*, and having a frontage of 749 feet to Myrtle Road, for 99 years, from Michaelmas 1879, at the total annual rent of 170*l.*, the lessee covenanting to build not less than 22 private dwelling-houses, and to expend not less than 600*l.* on each such house.

Under this agreement the Board have already, by orders, authorised the grant of leases of 16 houses, numbered 1 to 16, Goldsmiths' Gardens.

The Board have approved a building agreement of a piece of land situate in Perryn Road and Shaa Road, Acton, containing 12*a.* 2*r.* 17*p.*, for 99 years, from Lady-day 1880, at the rent of a peppercorn for the first year, 73*l.* for the second year, 147*l.* for the third year, 220*l.* for the fourth year, 294*l.* for the fifth year, 367*l.* for the sixth year, and the annual rent of 441*l.* during the remainder of the term, the lessee covenanting to build not less than 87 private dwelling-houses and to expend not less than 600*l.* on each such house.

DAME MARY RAMSAY'S CHARITY.

Dame Mary Ramsay, by her will of the 8th July 1600, gave to the Goldsmiths' Company 200*l.* to be lent out at 5*l.* per cent., and distributed towards the relief of the poor. The fund is not lent, but the Company charge themselves with interest at 5*l.* per cent., carrying 10*l.* a year to the account of the men pensioners, Class D.

SIR B. READ'S CHARITY.

Sir Bartholomew Read, by his will of the 19th October 1505, gave to the Company a messuage in St. John Zachary, and other tenements in London, to find and sustain a virtuous priest cunning in grammar to perform certain services in the parish church of Cromer, Norfolk, and to keep in the said town a Free Grammar School, teaching there gentlemen's sons and good men's children, and especially poor men's children, the said priest to receive 10*l.* a year. And the testator appointed an obit at the church of St. John Zachary, and that 1*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* should be paid on that occasion. The Company hold a considerable estate in the situation indicated. Of this estate, the houses in Bread Street were taken for city improvements in the year 1852, and a sum of 3,324*l.* 16*s.* 2*d.* 3*d.* per cent. Consols paid into the Court of Chancery to the account, In re The Goldsmiths' Company ex parte The Mayor and Corporation of London; and they pay annually a sum of 10*l.* a year to the master of a school at Cromer, who is not in orders. In addition to this payment they contribute from their own funds to the support of the school and the school premises, which stand on the lands of this Company. I append a copy of the last report from the master of the state of the school.

The Company annually visit the church of St. John Zachary, and make a distribution to the minister, organist, clerk, &c., and charity school children, which varies in amount from about 7*l.* and upwards.

Under this agreement, the Board have already by orders, authorised the grant of leases of 30 houses.

By another order of 1st November 1881, the trustees were authorised to expend 2,550*l.* in constructing a road from the Uxbridge Road to East Acton village.

Of this amount the sum of 1,737*l.* 7*s.* 4*d.* has already been expended, which was provided partly by the appropriation of 883*l.* 16*s.*, being royalties received in respect of bricks for 1881, and the remainder by the sale of 856*l.* 15*s.* 7*d.* consols.

The Board have approved a building agreement of a piece of land at Acton, containing 9*a.* 2*r.*, and having a frontage of 550 feet to the Uxbridge Road, for 99 years, from Lady-day 1880, at the rent of a peppercorn for the first year, 77*l.* for the second year, 154*l.* for the third year, 231*l.* for the fourth year, 308*l.* for the fifth year, and the annual rent of 388*l.* during the remainder of the term, the lessee covenanting to build not less than 46 private dwelling-houses, 10 of which are to be of not less value than 900*l.* each, and the remainder of not less value than 600*l.* each.

No leases have yet been granted under this agreement.

Under order of 21st July 1882, the sum of 1,402*l.* Consols was transferred to the Goldsmiths' Company, as the consideration for the release of the Charity estate at East Acton from the annual payment of 42*l.* 2*s.* 10*d.* in respect of land tax, which was redeemed by the Company in 1799 out of their corporate property.

By order of 2nd January 1883, the trustees were authorised to expend 1,200*l.* in the purchase of an additional or improved ground rent of 60*l.* to be secured upon the last 10 houses to be erected in Myrtle Road. The sum of 1,200*l.* is to be provided partly by the sale of the sum of 570*l.* 9*s.* 11*d.* Consols the residue of the said sum of 2,829*l.* 5*s.* 6*d.* Consols and partly out of the royalties to be received for bricks, and is also to be replaced out of income within 30 years.

The Board have approved a building agreement of a piece of land at Acton, containing 12*a.* 1*r.* 28*p.*, and having frontages to Perryn Road and Friarsplace Lane, for 99 years, from Midsummer 1882, at the rent of a peppercorn for the first year, 67*l.* 10*s.* for the second year, 135*l.* for the third year, 202*l.* 10*s.* for the fourth year, 270*l.* for the fifth year, 337*l.* 10*s.* for the sixth year, and the annual rent of 405*l.* during the remainder of the term, the lessee covenanting to erect not less than 82 private dwelling-houses, and to expend not less than 600*l.* on each such house.

No leases have yet been granted under this agreement.

SIR, Cromer, July 2nd, 1862.
THE following is the half-yearly report of the state of the Free School to Midsummer:—

Number of boys at Christmas 1861	-	78
		<hr/> 66
Admitted	-	9
		<hr/> 75
Present number	-	75

Of the 12 boys who have left six were from the first class and three from each of the other classes.

One of the boys left is dead, and one I expelled from truanting and encouraging others to do so; the other 10 boys are gone to work. The boy who has been expelled is brother to the one expelled last half-year. They have also been both turned out of the Sunday school for the second time as incorrigible.

In addition to the nine boys admitted I had taken in five or six more, all from the country; but after a few weeks they became so remiss in their attendance that I dismissed them all.

The attendance during the half-year has been tolerably good, but it now begins to be slack, as the usual summer work is coming on, and it is of no use refusing them leave. I made no holidays at Christmas.

ROBINSON'S CHARITY.

Ralph Robinson, by his will of the 17th January 1648, gave 200*l.* to the Company to pay yearly—

To the poor of St. John Zachary parish	-	£ 2
To the Company's poor	-	2

The Company charge themselves with 4*l.* a year, of which 2*l.* is paid to the churchwardens of St. John Zachary, and 2*l.* to the account of the men pensioners, Class D.

SIR E. SHAA'S CHARITY.

Sir Edmund Shaa, by his will of the 20th March 1487, directed his executors to convey to the said Company sufficient property to pay 17*l.* a year to support the salary of a priest cunning in grammar and able to teach it in Stopford-cum-Chester (P) 10*l.*, and the remaining 7*l.* he directed to be applied to certain superstitious uses.

The foundation continues nearly on the footing at which it stood at the time the Commissioners of Inquiry made their report until the year 1832, when the Company having acquired some adjoining land, at their own expense greatly improved the school-house and buildings, and added largely to the stipends of the masters, making the school free. Further alterations forming the school into two divisions were made about the year 1848. In 1859 the Company formed the desire of relinquishing the trust to the management of local authorities, offering at the same time to transfer it with an additional endowment of 290*l.* a year.

On the 29th July 1859 application was made to the Board by the clerk of the Goldsmiths' Company and the town clerk of Stockport for an order and certificate authorising an application to the county court for an order vesting the lands of the Charity and the rentcharge of 10*l.* in the Official Trustee of Charity Lands, and to establish a scheme for the future management of the school (File 6086); and the Board having authorised the application, an order was made in the county court of Chester, holden at Stockport on the 20th January 1860, in the matter of this Charity, settling a scheme whereby the Mayor of Stockport for the time being was appointed a trustee ex-officio, and 12 other persons to be elected by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of Stockport were appointed trustees of the Charity, and a general scheme for its management, consisting of 33 articles or clauses (which are registered in the Department, and I forbear, therefore, to set forth), was settled and subsequently confirmed by the Board.

By a deed of the 28th March 1860, made between the Master, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Mystery of Goldsmiths of the one part, and George Chapman, the mayor of Stockport, and Edward Oldham, the town clerk, of the other part, reciting the said order of the county court of the 20th January 1860, and the scheme thereby sanctioned, and reciting that with a view to providing an endowment for the said schools, the Wardens and Commonalty for themselves and their successors covenanted with the said parties of the second part that they, the Wardens and Company and their successors, would at all times thereafter pay unto the said parties of the second part, their executors, administrators, and assigns, the annual sum of 290*l.* clear of all deductions (including the property or income tax if any) by equal half-yearly payments at Michaelmas and Lady-day, commencing at Michaelmas 1860, and that the said parties of the second part should stand possessed of the said moneys as an endowment for the benefit of the said school, and upon trust to the intent that the same should be applied as part of the income of the said schools, applicable to the maintenance and support thereof in accordance with the said scheme. And the said parties of the second part thereby covenanted that within two months after the 12 elective trustees mentioned in the said scheme should be duly constituted, they the said parties of the second part would assign and transfer the said annual sum of 290*l.* and the interest that the same may be vested in the said 12 elective trustees upon the trusts therein-before declared, and the deed provided that if the Wardens and Commonalty transferred a sufficient sum of stock to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds the dividends whereof should produce the said sum of 290*l.*, the said covenant should be deemed to be satisfied.

By a deed of even date between the same parties reciting certain indentures of lease and release of the 22nd and 23rd September 1837, made between George Lees, George Ashton, and the said Wardens and Commonalty, reciting and setting forth the said order and scheme of the 20th January 1860, and reciting that the said Wardens and Commonalty had determined and agreed to grant and convey the pieces or parcels of land therein mentioned to the parties of the second part for the purposes of the said school, it was witnessed that the said Wardens and Commonalty did then voluntarily grant and convey to the said mayor and town clerk (the parties of the second part) First, all that plot, piece, or parcel of land situate and being in Stockport aforesaid, delineated in the plan thereof, drawn in the margin of the now stating indenture marked with the letter A, and being theretofore part and parcel of a certain plot called the Dole in the Longshutt, bounded on the easterly side thereof (being 80 yards in length or thereabouts) by land and premises belonging to the Grammar School aforesaid and by the Wellington Road, south of the westerly side (being 77 yards 12 inches in length) by land then or late belonging to Lady Vernon on the northerly side, being 27 yards 27 inches in length by other part of the premises belonging to the Grammar School and on the southerly side thereof, being 28 yards and 18 inches in length by land, formerly conveyed to one Thomas Fitton, together with the dwelling-house and buildings erected and being thereon. Secondly, all that plot, piece, or parcel of land, or ground situate in Stockport aforesaid, bounded on the northerly side thereof, being 18 yards in breadth in part by Greek Street, and in other part by the Grammar School aforesaid, on the southerly side thereof, being 27 yards in breadth by land, then or late belonging to Henry Coppock, on the easterly side thereof, being 76 yards in length by other part of the said Grammar School premises, and on the westerly side thereof, being 114 yards and 12 inches in length, in part by land and premises then or late of Mr. Joseph Rayner, and on other part by land belonging to the said Henry Coppock, and containing in the whole 1,880 superficial square yards of land or thereabouts be the same more or less. All which plot of land was more particularly described in the plan thereof drawn in the margin of the now stating indenture and distinguished by the letter B.

Under the new scheme and the several instruments the school has, I apprehend, become a local foundation, and has ceased to be one of the charities under the management of the Goldsmiths' Company.

SMITH'S CHARITY.

John Smith, on the 1st May 1703, paid to the Company 420*l.* in consideration that they should pay 21*l.* yearly for ever, viz. :—

To five poor widows	-	-	-	10
For apprenticing two poor boys	-	-	-	10
Clerk of the Company	-	-	-	1

The Company charge themselves with 21*l.* a year, of which they apply 10*l.* a year to the account of the gifts to the Acton almshouses, and 1*l.* to the church. (On the apprenticing fund there was at Lady-day 1862 a balance of 55*l.* In the year 1861-2 three boys were bound at an expense of 5*l.* a year each.

STRELLEY'S CHARITY.

Philip Strelley, by will dated the 6th September 1603, after reciting that he had been seized of a manor and estate at Ulkerthorpe, alias Ogarthorpe, alias Hogarthorpe, Derbyshire, and that he had levied a fine of the said estate to the use of certain members of the Goldsmiths' Company, declared the uses of such fine to be upon trust to demise the said estate for 99 years at 55*l.* a year and no more, on the provisoes and conditions therein mentioned to his wife, then to his father, and then to his brother Ralph Strelley, if he survived the father, for the term of 99 years, with limitations to determine the same lease at such of the feasts of All Saints or May Day as shall next happen after the end of one year next after the decease of his brother Ralph, and after their decease to such person as at the time of the decease of the survivor of the father and brother should be the next heir male of the body of his brother Ralph for the like term to begin immediately after the end of the next preceding lease at the like rent, and with the like provisoes, conditions, and limitations, and after the decease of the same heir male then to the next heir male of the body of his said brother Ralph, and so every heir male of the body of his said brother Ralph successively one after another so long as there shall be any heir male living of his said brother to have the like lease, and for default of heirs male of the body of his said brother Ralph, or if his said brother or his heirs male should wilfully forfeit the estate by non-performance of the conditions or otherwise determine the same then George Strelley, his brother, should have the like lease, and then such person as should be for the time being heir male of his body, with similar limitations successively in favour of his brother John Strelley the heir male of his body, and so from heir male to heir male with like directions for demising the same to several other persons successively and their successors heirs male. And the testator directed that the persons from time to time seized of the said hereditaments should, after the termination of certain gifts for life therein mentioned, employ and dispose of the said yearly rent of 55*l.* as follows :—

For apprenticing poor men's sons in the counties of Derby and Nottingham, the town of Nottingham or city of Worcester	-	20	0	0
---	---	----	---	---

For two exhibitions to Oxford and Cambridge	£	s.	d.
for poor men's sons from the same counties and city	-	10	0
For the relief of poor maimed soldiers	-	10	0
For the relief of poor people of St. John Zachary parish	-	2	0
For poor workmen of the Company	-	8	0
The Wardens and Clerk	-	5	0

The Company receive applications annually about Midsummer every year from persons or families in the two counties of Derby and Nottingham and the city of Worcester for the two sums of 10*l.* for assisting apprentices who have served their apprenticeship to set them up in business. The sums are given away upon the testimonials or recommendations furnished by the applicants.

The sum of 20*s.* a year is given to each of 10 poor maimed soldiers. Since the Crimean war there have been abundant applicants for this fund; they continue on the list as long as they need the assistance. 2*l.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. John Zachary, and 5*l.* to the wardens and clerk of the Company. The Company give 10*s.* a year to 16 poor freemen of the Company independently of the other and casual gifts, the same persons remaining on the list from year to year. The Company support 34 exhibitioners at the Universities, the minimum and ordinary amount of which is 30*l.* a year each. There have been no applicants for exhibitions so small as 5*l.* a year, but the Company propose to write off the balance of 172*l.* by attributing one of the exhibitions especially to this gift for the future.

New trustees of the Goldsmiths' Company were from time to time appointed of the estate, and the leases were made to the persons designated from time to time. About 1834 difficulties arose from the refusal of Benjamin Strelley the heir male of Ralph the testator's brother then in possession, to execute the lease, and also from his putting forward a claim to a larger estate in the premises than that which the lease would confer. In 1837 the trustees for the time being, acting at the instance of the Company, filed their bill against Benjamin Strelley and the Attorney-General, praying a decree against the former for execution of the lease, or if the Court should think the trusts so far as to granting the said leases to be void, then that the same might be carried into effect under the directions of the Court. The cause was heard on the 27th June 1840, when the Court declared that the trust for granting successive leases to the heirs male of Ralph Strelley and the others mentioned in the will was void as tending to a perpetuity, and that the real intention of the testator was that Ralph Strelley and the others named in the will should have an estate in tail male subject to a rent of 55*l.* per annum for the charitable purposes mentioned in the will. And it being admitted that the defendant Benjamin Strelley was heir male of the body of Ralph Strelley and heir-at-law of the testator, it was ordered that the trustees (the plaintiffs) should convey the premises mentioned in the pleadings, so that a legal rentcharge of 55*l.* per annum should be secured to the Charity, with powers of entry, distress, and perception of rents and profits, and subject thereto, to the use of the Defendant Benjamin Strelley in tail male with proper remainders over. And it was directed that the conveyance should be settled by the master, and that the costs of the trustees and of the Attorney-General should be paid and raised out of the corpus of the estate with liberty for all parties to apply.

TAYLOR'S CHARITY.

Roger Taylor directed the Company to pay annually 5*l.* to the poor of St. Boltoph, Aldersgate. The sum is annually paid to the churchwardens.

SIR THOMAS VYNER'S CHARITY.

Sir Thomas Vyner, by will of the 16th March 1664, gave the Company 200*l.* to pay 7*l.* to seven poor men of the Company, and to the clerk 12*s.* The Company charge themselves with 7*l.* 12*s.* a year, paying 7*l.* to the Pensioners Account, Class D., and 12*s.* a year to the clerk.

WALKER'S CHARITY.

By indenture of the 10th October, 3rd and 4th Philip and Mary, in consideration of 100*l.* paid by William Walker to the Company, they agreed to pay 1*s.* 4*d.* a week to a poor man of the Company, and a gown of 8*s.* value once in three years. The Company charge themselves with 4*l.* a year, which is carried to the account of the Hackney almsmen.

WALTER'S CHARITY.

Anthony Walter, by his will about 1664, gave to the poor of St. John Zachary 100*l.* in the hands of the Company, and the interest paid annually to such poor. The sum of 5*l.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. John Zachary.

WALTON'S CHARITY.

William Walton, by will of the 20th November 1458, gave to the Company his tenements in Wood Street and Goderon Lane, and two messuages in Fenchurch Street in trust to pay,—

	s.	d.
For an obit on the 16th September, in St. Peter Westcheap Church - - - -	6	8
For the poor of that church - - - -	3	4
To four poor goldsmiths 1 s. 2 d. each weekly, and to each 4 yards of cloth at 2 s. a yard - -
To the Wardens - - - -	6	8

And the residue for the support of poor goldsmiths.

In the year 1832, an information was filed by the Attorney-General at the relation of P. Upjohn, and another against the Goldsmiths' Company, upon which a decree was made on the 1st January 1833 by Sir John Leach, then Master of the Rolls, whereby it was referred to the Master to whom the decree in the cause Attorney-General against the Goldsmiths' Company in the Charity of Thomas Atte Hay was referred to inquire and state what lands, messuages, or tenements and hereditaments had been possessed and were then held by the defendants under the will of William Walton the testator in the pleadings named. And if the said Master should find the account of such lands, messuages, or tenements and hereditaments set out in the defendants' answer as being then in their possession to be a correct account and description of the same, or if the parties should agree as to the said lands, tenements, and hereditaments before the said Master, then he was to take an account of the rents and profits of such lands, tenements, and hereditaments since the time of the filing the information received by the defendants or by any person by their order or for their use. And it was ordered that the said Master should inquire whether such rents and profits had been substantively applied by the defendants in and for purposes justified by the will of the testator. And it was ordered that the said Master should settle and approve of a scheme for the application of the said rents and profits, and the future rents and profits, having regard to the said testator's will and to the other trusts of other charitable estates and property vested in the defendants for the use of the poor of the Goldsmiths' Company. And it was thereby further ordered that His Majesty's Attorney General should have notice to attend the Master thereon.

The cause was referred to Master Wingfield, who on the 23rd February 1835, made his general report as follows:—

That William Walton, the testator in the pleadings in this cause named, by his will bearing date the 20th day of November 1458, gave and devised to the Wardens and Commonalty of the Art and Mystery of Goldsmiths of the City of London all his lands and tenements situate and being in Wood Street and Gooderon Lane, in the parish of St. Peter, West Cheap, in the City of London, therein particularly described, and also those two messuages with the appurtenances situate in Fenchurch Street, in the parish of St. Mary Fenchurch, therein also particularly described, To hold the same for ever as regards the residue of the said income of the said hereditaments after making some inconsiderable payments specified in the will of the said testator as well for the reparation of the said lands, tenements, and messuages as for the sustentation of the poor men of the art or mystery aforesaid as it should seem best to them to be done. And he found by the answer of the said defendants to the said Information filed in this cause on the 21st November 1832, and from the examination of the said defendants to certain interrogatories exhibited before him on the part of the relators, that it appeared that the lands, messuages, and hereditaments constituting the charity estate of the said William Walton, the testator, consist of three houses with their appurtenances in Wood Street, numbered respectively 4, 5, and 6, and a house in Gutter Lane, numbered 8, and the half of a house at the corner of Gutter Lane aforesaid, and a house, No. 142, Fenchurch Street, which said premises were the same as stated in the answer of the said Defendants as composing the charity estate aforesaid, and that other than and besides the said several messuages and tenements with the appurtenances last mentioned the defendants were not seized or possessed of any lands, messuages, tenements, or hereditaments under, upon, and subject to the trust of the said will of the said testator William Walton. And he found by the answers of the said defendants put into said Information, and from the examination of the said defendants before him, that it appeared that the rents and profits of the aforesaid lands, messuages, or tenements and hereditaments held by the said defendants upon the trusts of the said will of said testator yield a clear yearly income of 388*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*, or thereabouts, applicable to the said charitable trusts and purposes of said testator's will, according to the scheme to be settled and approved in pursuance of the said decree. But he certified that inasmuch as it appeared from the answer of said defendants to said Information that the said defendants had made no other specific application of said rents and profits than the payment of a small annual sum, but had been in the habit of putting together the funds of the several charity estates, the income of which was vested in them to or for the use of the poor of their Company, and paying and administering from such common fund all such charities, he was of opinion that he could not report that the rents and profits of the charity estate had been applied to or for purposes justified by the said testator's will without taking an account not only of the rents and profits of this particular charity estate but also of all other estates, funds, and property vested in the said defendants to or for the use of the poor of their Company, and therefore he allowed certain interrogatories to be exhibited before him for the examination of the said defendants with a view to ascertain what was the annual income of the several charity estates, funds, and properties so vested in them for such uses and purposes. And it appeared to him from the examination of the said defendants to such last-mentioned interrogatories, and by the schedule to the examination to similar interrogatories exhibited in the suit relating to the Charity of Thomas Atte Hay then remaining in his office that the annual income of the several charity estates funds and property so vested in the said defendants for the use of the poor of their Company was about 3,791*l.* 19*s.* 7*d.* And he certified that from the answer of the said defendants and the account therein set forth it appeared that the annual expenditure of the said defendants in charities to the poor of their Company amounted to about 5,000*l.* And he further found that from the said first-mentioned examination of the said defendants it appears that since said decree the said defendants had changed the mode of keeping their accounts, and that in the accounts then kept by the said defendants the funds and income of each and every of the estates and properties which were vested in the above-named defendants either wholly or in part for charitable purposes were separately credited in an account opened to each and every of their benefactors, each and every of which said accounts was debited with the payments which the defendants are bound to make in pursuance of the trusts reposed in them for or in respect of the same, and which accounts commence from Lady-day 1833. And it appeared to him that the account opened to the said testator, William Walton, contained on the credit side the annual rents of said messuages and hereditaments so appearing by said answer and examination as aforesaid to be hereditaments devised by his will, amounting to the annual sum of 388*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*, and on the debit side the following items, viz.:—

To payments to seven almsmen of the third class at 12 l. - - - -	84	0	0
To 20 almsmen of the second class at 12 l. 8 s. - - - -	248	0	0
To 12 almsmen of the first class at 11 l. 2 s. each - - - -	54	2	6
Leaving a balance - - - -	2	14	2

to be appropriated to the Christmas donations. And it was stated to him that the first class of almsmen composed of 26 poor freemen of the Goldsmiths' Company of the age of 55 years and upwards, who received the sum of 17*l.* per annum each as a settled pension, and the second class of almsmen was composed of 20 poor freemen of the Goldsmiths' Company of the like age and upwards who received the sum of 15*l.* per annum and as a settled pension, and the third class of almsmen was composed of 63 poor freemen of Goldsmiths' Company of the like age and upwards who received the sum of 12*l.* per annum each as a settled pension, and he certified that it had been submitted to him on behalf of the said defendants that the then application of the rents and profits of the said charity estate of the said testator would be a proper scheme for the application of the future rents and profits of such charity. And he certified that upon consideration of the several matters aforesaid he found that the rents and profits of the said charity estate of the said testator since the filing of this Information had been substantively applied by the defendants to or for purposes justified by the will of the said testator. And he further certified that he approved of the present application of the funds of the said charity estate as stated in the said account as a proper scheme for the application of the future rents and profits thereof having regard to the said testator's will, and to the other trusts of other charitable estates and property vested in the said defendants for the use of the poor of the Goldsmiths' Company, and that he was of opinion that the separate account so opened to the said testator should be continued, and that when and as any vacancy should occur among the objects of the said charities, public notice of every such vacancy should forthwith be affixed at the hall of the said Company, and that a subsequent notice should in like manner be given of the person selected to fill up such vacancy immediately after such selection.

SIR J. WOLLASTON'S CHARITY.

Sir John Wollaston, by his will of 15th June 1658, gave to the Company two messuages to pay yearly out of the rents:—

To Bethlem Hospital - - - - -	20	0	0
To two poor almsmen of the Company - - - - -	10	0	0
To the poor of St. John Zachary - - - - -	5	4	0
To the parish officers - - - - -	0	10	0

And the residue for buying gowns for the two almsmen.

The messuages devised by this will were taken by the Government for the site of the new post office, and a sum of 2,521l. 10s. was paid to the Company.

An information was filed by the Attorney-General in 1833 at the relation of Peter Upjohn and John Hitchin, freemen of the said Company, against the Wardens and Commonalty of the Company, the Governors of Bethlem Hospital, and the Churchwardens and overseers of St. John Zachary Parish, and a decree was made by the Master of the Rolls on the 29th January 1834, whereby it was declared that the Defendants the Goldsmiths' Company were trustees of the principal sum of 2,521l. 10s. the proceeds of the sale of the messuages or tenements and premises devised to them by the will of Sir John Wollaston in the pleadings mentioned, the amount paid by them for the redemption of land tax having been deducted, and also of interest thereon at the rate of 4l. per cent. per annum from the filing of the information in the cause for the objects and purposes expressed by the said testator in his said will. And it was ordered and decreed that the surplus or residue of the increased income of the said charity fund, after payment of the costs therein-after directed to be paid thereout, beyond the specific sums mentioned in the said testator's will, be from time to time annually applied proportionably among the different objects of the Charity. And it was ordered that the gift of the residue for gowns to the two poor almsmen be taken as at the date of the will at 3l. per annum. And it was ordered that the apportionment to be made for or in respect of the said 3l. per annum, after providing thereout the said almsmen for gowns be held and applied by the said defendants, the Goldsmiths' Company in trust and for the benefit of the poor of their Company. And it was ordered that it be referred to Mr. Wingfield, the master, to whom three former causes of Attorney-General against the Goldsmiths' Company stand referred in case the parties differ, to make the said apportionment and to compute interest at 4l. per cent. per annum on the said sum of 2,521l. 10s. from the time of filing his said information, and to tax the relators their costs between party, and party and also their extra costs between solicitor and client, and also the costs of the defendants the Governors of Bethlem Hospital, and of the defendants Thomas Tanner and William Watson. And it was ordered that the defendants the Goldsmiths' Company should pay the relators what should be taxed for the said relators' first-mentioned costs. And it was ordered that they should pay what should be taxed for the said relators' extra costs out of the charity fund. And it was ordered that what should be taxed for the costs of the said several defendants be paid by the relators, who were to have them over again against the Goldsmiths' Company. And it was ordered that the defendants the Goldsmiths' Company should pay such last-mentioned costs accordingly.

By the general report made by Master Wingfield, dated 9th May 1834, the master certified that he had computed the interest on the said principal sum of 2,521l. 10s. at 4l. per cent. And that the said interest amounted to the annual sum of 100l. 17s. 2d., and he certified that he had made the proper apportionment of the said yearly sum of 100l. 17s. 2d. as and for the future interest on the said principal sum of 2,521l. 10s. to and among the several objects named in the above decree in manner following, that is to say,—

1st. To the Governors of Bethlem Hospital	52	2	5½
2nd. To the said two poor almsmen in respect of the said gift of 10l.	26	1	2½
To ditto for gowns - - - - -	7	16	4½
3rd. To the said churchwardens and overseers of St. John Zachary for the use of their poor inhabitants - - - - -	14	7	1½
4th. To the said churchwardens and overseers for their care and pains - - - - -	0	10	0
	£100	17	2

Under this scheme the Company appropriate the income of the charity fund, 2,521l. 10s. at 4l. per cent. 100l. 17s. 2d. amongst the several objects as follows:

	£	s.	d.
To the account of the Acton almsmen - - - - -	26	1	2
To Bethlem Hospital - - - - -	52	2	6
To the churchwardens of the parish of St. John Zachary - - - - -	14	17	2
A certain sum is applied in every year by the Company in the purchase of gowns for the almsmen in the almshouses, and also for some of the pensioners who are called gownsmen, and of this expenditure there is charged to this Charity - - - - -	7	16	4
	£100	17	2

All which I submit to the Board.

THOMAS HARE,
Inspector of Charities.

*WILLIAM WALTON'S CHARITY.

By an order of the Board of 19th January 1877, the trustees were authorised to grant a lease of No. 5, Wood Street for 80 years from Lady-day 1876, at a peppercorn rent for the first year, and then at an annual rent of 520l.

until Christmas 1885, and subsequently at an annual rent of 673l.

The Board have also approved the grant of a building lease of Nos. 8, Goldsmith Street and 10, Gutter Lane, for 80 years from Lady-day 1877, at a peppercorn rent for the first 9 months, and then at an annual rent of 350l.

GOLDSMITHS' COMPANY.

CHARITY ACCOUNTS for One Year ending 31st March 1882.

COPY LETTER from THE GOLDSMITHS' COMPANY to THE COMMISSIONERS OF CHARITIES.

Goldsmiths' Hall,
31st October 1881.

To the Commissioners of Charities for England and Wales.

GENTLEMEN,

THE Goldsmiths' Company are trustees of 56 Charities. Of these, the income of 31 is given by the founders solely for the benefit of the poor of the Company, and of 12 the income is partly applicable to the poor of the Company. The amount of the income of the 31 Charities for last year was about 8,420*l.*, and the amount of that part of the income of the 12 Charities which is applicable to the poor of the Company for last year was about 1,400*l.*, making together 9,820*l.* The sum expended by the Company for the benefit of poor freemen of the Company, widows of freemen, and daughters of freemen, unmarried or widows, was 10,733*l.* The income of some of these Charities is likely to increase in amount. The poor of the Company have been for some time diminishing in number. Of each of the 56 Charity foundations of which the Company are trustees, a separate debtor and creditor account of receipts and payments is kept in the Company's Charity ledger (56 separate accounts), and accounts of all the Charities are annually sent to the Charity Commissioners.

Tables of the names of the founders of the Charities for the benefit of poor members, and of the income thereof, are appended hereto.

It is now evident that the Charity revenues applicable to the poor of the Company will soon much exceed the necessities of the objects of those foundations, and therefore that it will be expedient to find some other beneficial application of the surplus.

With this in view, and for the purpose of simplifying our accounts, I am instructed by the Wardens and Court of Assistants of the Company to apply to the Charity Commissioners for an order enabling the Company to consolidate all their Charities founded solely or partially for their poor and providing that the whole of the revenues applicable thereto shall be carried to the credit of one account with an appropriate heading, and that all payments for the benefit of poor freemen, widows and daughters of freemen, whether by way of pension or donation, shall be debited thereto, the balance whenever there shall be a surplus, to be carried to an accumulation fund, the application of such fund for some charitable object such as the founding a Convalescent Hospital, establishing additional Pensions for the Blind, or the advancement of Education, to be decided on, with the consent of the Commissioners of Charities, so soon as it shall amount to 10,000*l.*

The Wardens and Court of Assistants hope that this scheme will appear to the Commissioners as it does to them to be expedient, and that the Commissioners will give it their sanction.

I have the honour to be,
Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
WALTER PRIDEAUX,
Clerk of the Goldsmiths' Company.

In the return made to the inquiries of the Royal Commission, at the end of the accounts of the Income and Expenditure of our Charities for ten years, ending 31st March 1880,* is the following observation:—

"An examination of this return will show that four fifths of the income of all the Charity property vested in the Goldsmiths' Company is applicable to the poor of the Company, and it will be seen by the accounts that the annual amount expended for the relief of poor freemen, and poor widows and daughters of freemen is considerably in excess of the income applicable to these objects.* A large number of the freemen of the Goldsmiths' Company belong to the artisan class, and become objects of the bounty of the Company in consequence of sickness, age, and want of employment. No deserving member of the Company, no deserving widow, or unmarried or widowed daughter of a freeman, falls into poverty or decay without receiving on application to the Company, pecuniary assistance. The number of persons applying for pecuniary relief, however, diminishes year by year, and the time may probably come when the improved annual value of the Company's trust property, and a diminution of the number of persons requiring relief, will render it desirable for the Company to take into consideration the expediency of applying some portion of the income of the trust estates under a scheme to be approved by the Charity Commissioners, in a manner different from that provided by the wills of benefactors."

SKINNERS' COMPANY.

TO THE CHARITY COMMISSIONERS FOR
ENGLAND AND WALES.

In pursuance of a minute of the Board of the 2nd February 1863, I have inquired into the condition and circumstances of the following charities under the management of the Skinners' Company, of the City of London, and I have stated in the Report, under the head of each specific endowment, the result of my investigation :—

		Sir W. Alleyn's Gift	- 343

The Skinners' Company is composed of the master, four wardens, and court of assistants of about 30 members. The court of assistants are self chosen from the livery. The number of the livery are at present . . . It is impossible to ascertain the number of freemen.

The title of the Company is, "The Master, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Mystery of the Skinners of London, of the Body of Christ."

THE FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL AT TONBRIDGE.

Sir Andrew Judd, by his will of the 2nd September 1558, gave to the Company, for the maintenance of a free grammar school erected by him, several messuages and tenements in the county of Middlesex and the City of London: the said Company to retain for their pains 40s. yearly, and pay to the almspeople of St. Helen's 10l. 8s. yearly, and for coals to such almspeople 1l. 5s. 4d.; the residue of the rents to be employed in needful reparations of the messuages, and the overplus for the use of the Company at their wills and pleasures.

The grammar school referred to in the will was founded by letters patent of the 7th of Edward VI. (1553), whereby it was ordained that there should be one grammar school at Tonbridge, to be called the Free Grammar School of Sir Andrew Judd, for the education, institution, and instruction of boys and youths in grammar, to continue for ever under one master and one usher, and the said Company to be incorporated by the name of the Governors of the possessions, revenues, and goods of "the Free Grammar School of Sir Andrew Judd."

This institution became the subject of the suit which (after the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, Vol. I., p. 149-156) was instituted by the Attorney General, at the relation of the Rev. Charles Hardinge and others, against the Skinners' Company, which has been reported in the 5th Maddock's Reports, p. 173, and on appeal in Jacob's Reports, p. 629. By the decree, as varied on appeal, it was declared that certain property, described as having been purchased of Gates and Thorogood, was vested in the defendants in their special corporate character as governors of the said grammar school, and not under the effect of the instrument mentioned as the will, but upon a trust previously and duly declared thereof by Sir A. Judd, and it was referred to the master to approve of a scheme for the establishment of the school, having regard to the then annual rents of the said estates.

The estate of the charity consists of the property in the City of London, herein-after mentioned, and the Sandhills estate, on the south side of the New Road in the parish of St. Pancras, extending from Tonbridge Street on the east, to Burton Street on the west, and Leigh Street on the south. It was given under the description of "a close of pasture with the appurtenances called the Sandhills,

"situate, lying, and being on the back side of Holborn, in the parish of St. Pancras, in the county of Middlesex, being of the yearly value of 13l. 6s. 8d." and it at present includes Burton Street, Crescent Place, Chapel Place, Crescent Mews, south and north, Burton Crescent, Mabledon Place, Leigh Street, Sandwich Street, Thanet Street, Judd Street, Hastings Street, Claremont Place, Bidborough Street, Tonbridge Street, and the houses on the south side of the New Road from Mabledon Place to Tonbridge Street.

The particulars of the property was found and set forth in the report of the master in the above-mentioned cause, dated 13th July 1825. The London property has since undergone considerable change, owing to exchanges with another charity, effected under the order of the court.

By an order in the cause, Attorney General v. the Skinners' Company, of the 4th December 1840, it was referred to the master to inquire whether it would be for the benefit of the school that the exchange of the premises in Leadenhall Market should be carried into effect, and as to raising a fund for re-building certain houses in the market. By the master's report of the 25th January 1841, after finding the respective portions of the property which belonged to the School Charity and to Alice Smith's Charity, and the necessity for the reasons therein mentioned to pull down part of the Herb Market and other buildings therein mentioned, and to dedicate a part of the centre of the said market to the use of the public, he found that the Skinners' Company proposed to give up a portion of income of Alice Smith's estate (therein described as the estate of the Skinners' Company) and he approved of the exchange as therein mentioned. By an order of the 5th February 1841 the report was confirmed, and it was ordered that the Skinners' Company should take for their own use and benefit the plot in the centre of the market therein mentioned, which belonged to the School Charity, and that they should give over to and convey to the School Charity land to the same extent.

This order, in which the Company is expressed to take the land for their own use and benefit, must of course be understood in their capacity of governors of Alice Smith's Charity. The exchange was carried into effect by a deed dated 1st April 1841, made between the Skinners' Company of the one part, and the governors of Tonbridge School of the other part, and which was enrolled in the Court of Chancery the 24th April 1841.

The following tables exhibit the present rental and lettings of the Charity estates. The first part relates to the property in the parish of Allhallows, Lombard Street, in the City of London, which was apportioned to the Tonbridge School Charity under the decree and master's report referred to above and in my report on Sir A. Judd's Almshouses and Alice Smith's Gift, and the second part consists of the St. Pancras estate.

The property in hand at Tonbridge consists of a chapel recently built by subscription, of the school house, of the date of 1553, and the master's and under master's residences, with dormitories for the scholars. The house of the under master is a detached building, and is adapted for the reception of about 34 or 35 boarders. There are also 12 acres of land. The head master and under master have gardens, which occupy about 2 acres, and the whole of the remainder of the land is play ground. The land has a frontage on the high road to London, which, it is suggested, may hereafter be made advantageous for building purposes.

PART II.—ST. PANCRAS PROPERTY.

The whole of the land on the south side of the New Road, part whereof has built upon and let to James Burton, Esq., under an agreement for 99 years, from Michaelmas 1807, at the annual rent of 2,500*l.*, and of such part as hath been built upon, the following leases have been granted:—

SUMMARY.

St. Pancras Estate (Sandhills)	£ s. d.
City Estate	2,526 5 0
Total -	1,150 0 0

Two houses, Nos. 5 and 6, Judd Place, West, on the north side of the New Road, near Judd Place, were given up to the Church Building Commissioners, under the statute enabling them to take such grants from trustees and others, upon which the church of St. Luke, King's Cross, has been built.

This, and the whole of the rest of the property on the North side of the New Road, had been granted upon leases under a building agreement for the term of 99 years, made with James Haygarth, at an aggregate rental of 84l. a year, which was reduced to 76l. by the grant of the two houses to the Church Building Commissioners.

On a petition of the Skinners' Company to the Court of Chancery entitled in the cause of the Attorney General v. The Skinners' Company, an order, dated 13th July 1861, was made by the Master of the Rolls, reciting that the Court being of opinion that it would be fit and proper that the agreement of the 18th June 1861 made between the Skinners' Company and the Midland Railway Company for the purchase by the latter of the whole of the Charity estate on the north side of the New Road at the price of 32,000l. should be confirmed; ordered that the same should be carried into effect, and that the petitioners on payment to them of the purchase money should convey the estate to the Midland Railway Company. The purchase money was paid to the Company in August 1861, and was thereupon under authority given to them in the same order applied in the first place in paying off the 12,000l., owing to George E. Beecham, Esq., which had been some years previously borrowed under the authority of the Court for the buildings and alterations in the school premises, and on which 4 per cent. interest had been paid.

The order expressed that the Company should be at liberty out of the purchase money to pay off all principal moneys, interest, and costs in respect of the said 12,000l. charged upon the school estate. That a sufficient part of the said purchase money be set apart for the purpose of restoring the exhibitions to the original number of four; and that the Company also be at liberty to apply a portion of the said purchase money in repairing and altering the school buildings and premises according to their present exigencies, and that a scheme should be settled for applying the residue of the purchase money for such other purposes for the benefit of the said school, as the judge should think fit.

The Master of the Rolls has recently approved of plans and specifications for altering and rebuilding part of the school premises at an expense not exceeding 14,000l., but the works have not yet been executed.

The whole of the residue of the fund beyond the sum appropriated in payment of the mortgage is now invested in the sum of 18,887l. 3l. per cent. Consols standing in the corporate name of the Company.

The outgoings on the estate are—

	£ s. d.

The school is now governed by the scheme of the Court of Chancery, approved by the order of the Court of the 12th June 1844, and certain additional rules and regulations settled by the governors. I annex copies of the scheme and rules.

The disbursements under the scheme are—

(1861-2.) A donation towards the repair of Tonbridge church -	35	0	0
Twelve exhibitioners at any college at either of the universities (In 1861-2 I find only 10 exhibitioners on the list. They are, under the scheme, held for three years.) -	1,200	0	0
	£2,961	15	0

The outgoing on the estate may therefore be reckoned at about 550l. a year and the expenses of the institution at about 3,000l. In April 1862 there was a cash balance of 6l. 10s. 4d.

The number of scholars in the school in July 1862 was—

Foundation boys -	84
Non-foundation boys -	76

The foundation boys are those whose parents or guardians are living in Kent, within 10 miles of Tonbridge, which is the interpretation affixed by the master and the court in the scheme of 1824 on the words of the charter, "in dca villa et patria ihm adjacen."

The non-foundationers, except under special circumstances, must be boarders, and may be so either with the masters or with some person licensed by the Skinners' Company. There is at present only one person licensed to receive boarders other than the masters. The child of a parent living beyond the area and residing with a relation in the town has been usually admitted as a non-foundationer. Many about 30) of the foundationers are boarders.

The charges of pupils are then as follows;—

FOUNDATION BOYS.				NON-FOUNDATION BOYS.

Second master	3 0 0
	£10 10 0

The following are optional expenses for the special instruction referred to:—

German -	4 guineas per annum.
Drawing -	4 " "
Music -	4 " "
Dancing -	4 " "
Fencing -	4 " "
Drilling -	15s. per annum.

Boys intended for the military colleges can be taught military drawing.

Some of the parents of the boys (widows and others) who are not qualified to attend to the getting up the lessons of their sons in the evening place them for a couple of hours in the evening under the tutorship of the masters. They make their private arrangements with the master, but a suggested scale is that of 1l. 1s. per term for every evening per week. There are very few boys in the 6th, 5th, or 4th forms who adopt this plan, not more, I am told, than two in each form. In the lower forms there are more boys whose parents avail themselves of such assistance.

The fees above stated, exclusive of such tutorial fees, are received by the head master, who makes himself responsible for the payment the assistant masters to whose stipends vary from 150l. to 300l. per annum, including the 84 allowed by the scheme.

The scholarship from Lady M. Boswell's foundation at Sevenoaks school, has not been held in the time of the present master (19 years).

I annex printed forms of notices which are published as to the terms of admission to the school, and I also append a letter from an inhabitant of Tonbridge, which is not of sufficient importance to require comment. The observations which it contains as to the number of assistant masters is answered by the fact that an assistant master is granted for every 20 boys after the first 40.

The following suggested improvements of the school scheme have the sanction of Dr. Welldon, the head master, as I gathered from his evidence:—

1. The abolition of the gifts of silver pens under the 16th clause of the scheme and the substitution of prize books.
2. That the exhibitions should be open to the entire school without any preference and the clause in XXXI. as to preference should be abolished.
3. That the exhibitions to the universities being at present too numerous and too large in amount for the school, have the effect of inducing persons to go to the university who are unfitted for it, and tend to diminish effort when they are there. It is proposed that there should be henceforth three in number of 100l., 80l., and 60l. in value.
4. That instead of such abolished university exhibitions, certain minor exhibitions of 50l., 40l., or 30l. a year should be held by scholars, during their residence in the school, and awarded upon a competitive examination to boys showing classical and mathematical talent.
5. That the period of attendance in the school to qualify a scholar for the university exhibition be reduced by substituting "four" for "five" in Clause XXX.
6. That in all examinations, whether for the university exhibitions or the proposed minor exhibitions, mathematical should be placed on an equal footing with classical learning, and the Clause XXXVII. should be amended by adding after the word classical the words "and mathematical learning combined or separately."
7. That there should be two examiners, so that the mathematical examination may be as complete as the classical.

8. That the restriction of 84*l.* per annum by Clause XLVII. as the salary of the assistant master be abolished, and that the mathematical and French masters be recognised as a part of the school staff, with assistant masters for other modern languages and subjects of study as occasions and the progress or means of the school should present.
9. That the limitation of the assistant masters to 20 borders each by Clause XLVI. be extended to 30, it being practically found that boarding schools with so small a number as 20 boys are not remunerative.

I think that these suggestions deserve the serious attention of any authorities having power to amend the scheme. They seem to me in every respect judicious and desirable improvements. As to Nos. 3 and 4, the reduction of exhibitions which tempt people to go to the universities without any special adaptation for the life for which such an education should qualify them, and the establishment of minor exhibitions, which, as in cases of Bangor and Sevenoaks grammar school schemes, might afford means for educating children of the really poor at the school, would be but measures of prudence and justice.

FISHER'S EXHIBITION.

Henry Fisher, by deed poll of the 30th April, 4th Elizabeth, granted to the Company certain messuages and tenements in the City of London for the support of a student at Oxford.

To the scholar	-	-	2 13 4

Principal and scholars of Brasenose	1	13	4

On the 30th April 1833 an information was filed by the Attorney General at the relation of Dr. Knox, the then master of Tonbridge school, and Samuel Forbes Auchmuty, a student of Brasenose College, the exhibitor elected by the Company under the foundation (an infant by his next friend), against the Skinners' Company and the principal and scholars of Brasenose College, Oxford, to determine the question of the right of the exhibitor to the entire rental of the estate, and on the 30th April 1833 upon the hearing it was declared that according to the true construction of the deed of gift the Company were beneficially entitled to the surplus rents and profits of the messuages and hereditaments after providing for the payments directed to be made by the said H. Fisher by the said deed of gift. And it was ordered that the information should stand dismissed with costs.

This suit disposes of all question with regard to the right of the property in Gracechurch Street and Pewter Alley.

Prior to the foregoing suit, the sum of 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* a year for the scholar having been some time in arrear was augmented to 20*l.* a year by agreement between the Company and Brasenose College, and the 13*s.* 4*d.* per annum for the tutor was augmented by like agreement to 4*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.*, and the 1*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* to the college was augmented to 2*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*

The Company now elect an exhibitor from Tonbridge school, who is at the same time a scholar at Brasenose, to whom they pay 20*l.* a year so long as he is at college. The exhibition is generally full; if not, the fund is to be accumulated to increase the exhibition. There is not at present any accumulation.

The 4*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.* and 2*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.* for the tutor and the college are annually paid in one sum to the bursar of the college.

FISHER'S CHARITY.

Henry Fisher, by deed poll of the 30th April, 4th Elizabeth, directed the Company to cause two sermons to be made in St. John, Walbrook, yearly, and to pay for the same 10*s.* each.

And he directed the Company to permit certain persons to occupy tenements in Harrow Alley, 10 paying yearly for the same 6*s.* 8*d.* each, and after their deaths to bestow the same upon decayed men and women of the Company, at their discretion, paying such yearly rents, and using and behaving themselves in a quiet manner.

Nothing is known of the tenements in Harrow Alley. The site of the locality is, in fact, unknown. One sermon is preached in St. John, Walbrook, on the Thursday of Corpus Christi, and for this the Company pay the preacher 2*l.* 2*s.* a year (who is generally selected by the master of the Company), the pulpit being allowed to be so used by the rector of the parish.

SIR THOMAS SMITH'S CHARITY.

Sir Thomas Smith, by his will of the 18th April 1619, gave to the Company several messuages in the City of London, upon trust, out of the rents to make the payments following:—

To the parish of Bidborough, Kent, for bread to six poor, 5 l. 4 s. ; to the parson, 2 s. ; churchwarden, 2 s. ; and clerk, 2 s.	5	10	0
To the parish of Tonbridge, Kent, bread for 12 poor persons	10	8	0
To the parish of Speldhurst, Kent, for bread for six poor persons	5	10	0
For bread for the three parishes at the annual visitation at Tonbridge	0	8	0
To the 24 poor people in clothing	24	0	0
To the parish of Otford, Kent, for bread	5	10	0
To the parish of Sutton-at-Hone, for bread	5	10	0
To the parish of Darent, Kent, for bread	4	6	8
To the master of Tonbridge School	10	0	0
To the usher of Tonbridge School	5	0	0
To six scholars from Tonbridge School for exhibitions	60	0	0
Towards defraying the Company's expenses at the yearly visitation at Tonbridge	6	13	4 and the residue to the Company to be disposed of in exhibitions from Tonbridge school.

And the testator directed that when the leases expired, and the revenue increased, it should be applied by the Company for the poor of the parishes of—

Sutton-at-Hone, Darent, Wilmington, Otford,	Tonbridge, Bidborough, Speldhurst, and Shorne.
--	---

The devised property consists of the following particulars:—

- I.—Two houses, Nos. 20 and 21, Lime Street, let to John Adamson on lease for 21 years, from Lady Day 1843. 85*l.*
- II.—Warehouses forming the angle at the corner of Watling Street and Old Change, in the parish of St. Augustine. This property, which formerly was let to J. Wood, Mr. Clew, Mr. Shand, and Mr. Challis, and lately to Wilson, Shand, Richardson, and Keith, is now as to part of No. 32 and 34 Old Change, and the property in Watling Street, under agreement (subject to the sanction of the Commissioners) to be let to Phillips, Faithful, and Palmer on a building lease for 70 years, from Lady Day 1863, at the yearly rent of 160*l.* for the first eight years and a quarter, at a peppercorn for next six months, and 275*l.* for the remainder of the term; and as to part of Nos. 32 and 33, Old Change, under a like agreement, to Palmer at the yearly rent of 350*l.* per annum, from the 9th September 1863, for the same term. In the first lease the lessee proposes to lay out 6,000*l.*, and in the second 3,000*l.* in the rebuilding. 510*l.*
thence-forward.

* SIR THOMAS SMYTHE'S CHARITY.

The grant of the leases of the secondly above-mentioned property upon the terms above stated were sanctioned by an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners, dated 28th June 1864.

By an order of the said Board, dated 10th May 1867, the Company were authorised to grant a new lease of the firstly above-mentioned property in Lime Street to Ebenezer Howard for a term of 80 years, from Midsummer 1865, at an annual rent of 220*l.*, and such further amount of rent as shall be equal to 4*l.* per cent. for redemption of land tax, the lessee covenanting to expend 3,000*l.* in buildings on the demised property.

The land tax has recently been redeemed in anticipation of the improvements of the premises, the payment is to be made by instalments; and has not yet been brought into the account.

There is also a sum of 1,000*l.* 3 per cent. Consols standing in the corporate name of the Company, with other funds of their own, which had accumulated in respect of unappropriated exhibitions, on which a dividend of 2*8*l. 17*s.* 6*d.* a year is received, and is added to the annual income out of which exhibitions have been increased.

The collection of the rents, receipt stamps, &c. amounted in the year 1861 to 25*l.* and is carried, as in other cases in this Company, to the general account of the Company, out of which the payment to the committees, the salary to the clerk, and other incidental expenses are paid.

The specific payments are made according to the direction in the will.

The master and wardens, and any member of the court of assistants who thinks proper (generally 14 or 15), attend annually at Tonbridge, at the school, and then the 24 poor and generally aged men from the parishes of Tonbridge, Bidborough, and Speldhurst, who are selected by the churchwardens of the several parishes, attend, and each receives 1*l.* value of coarse blue cloth.

At the same time the following sums are paid to the churchwardens of:—

Bidborough - - - - -	5	10	0
Tonbridge - - - - -	10	8	0
Speldhurst - - - - -	4	10	0
Bread at the same time given away to the same people - - - - -	0	8	0
The payments are made also, if they attend, and if not, by remittance—
Otford - - - - -	5	10	0
Sutton-at-Hone - - - - -	5	10	0
Darent - - - - -	4	6	8
The master and usher of the school -	15	0	0
The portion of the expenses of the visitation carried to the account of the Company - - - - -	6	13	4
The six exhibitions at the University, which are now always full - - - - -	60	0	0

These have been increased to 15*l.* a year by means of the dividend on the stock, arising from unappropriated exhibitions in former times.

There is no specific investment of these accumulations, but the Company holds itself liable to make the amount up to 15*l.* per annum.

The disposition of the residue under the last clause of the will, which gives the increased rents of the houses and premises to the poorest people of the parishes mentioned in that clause, is an unfortunate bequest, having regard to the existing state of the law, as it causes the distribution of a continually increasing fund in a manner which cannot but be injurious. It is impossible to suppose that the testator ever contemplated that the income would become so enormous. He had regulated his gifts to the parishes just named at from 5*l.* to 10*l.* each, and it is reasonable to suppose that he calculated the possible increase at a sum which would afford something less. The rents mentioned at the former inquiry as having been received before the then existing rents would have sufficed to give about 5*l.* or less to each parish, they were by increased rentals produced after 1820, raised to 20*l.* each. By the subsequent increase of income they have been brought to 35*l.* in each parish, and will hereafter be far more. It is obvious that some legislative remedy should be applied to such a state of things.

The residue was distributed in 1861, as follows:—

* SIR THOMAS SMYTHE'S CHARITY.

The income of the charity having increased to an amount more than sufficient to satisfy the existing object of the charity, the Company applied to the Board for the establishment of a scheme for the future regulation of the charity.

The Board, upon consideration of the application of the Company, certified the case to Her Majesty's Attorney General, in order that he might cause proceedings to be taken ex officio for the establishment of a scheme for the future administration of the charity and for the application of the surplus income thereof.

The following scheme was approved by an order of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice on the 2nd March 1883 for the future regulation of the charity:—

SCHEME.

1. The property of the charity (a description whereof as now existing is contained in the first schedule hereto) shall remain vested in the master and wardens of the guild or fraternity of the Body of Christ of the skimmers of London, hereinafter called "the Skimmers' Company," and the management thereof, and of the income thereof (as distinguished from the distribution of such income) shall remain in their hands.

2. The Skimmers' Company shall, out of the income of such property, in the first place provide for all proper costs, charges, and expenses, repairs, and other outlay incidental to the management of the said property, and the costs, charges, and expenses of and incidental to the distribution of the funds, including the payment of examiners' fees, and shall divide the residue of such income into two parts (as herein-after mentioned), and shall carry one of such parts to an account, to be intitled "The Exhibitioners' Fund," and the other to an account to be intitled "The Poor Fund."

3. The moneys to be carried to the account of "The Exhibitioners' Fund" shall consist of the annual dividends of the sum of 2,025*l.* 18*s.* Consolidated 3*l.* per cent. Annuities (which has been purchased with accumulations on the sum of 60*l.* a year given by Sir Thomas Smythe, the founder, for scholarships), and of future payments of the said sum of 60*l.* a year, which shall be contributed by the general income of the charity. If in any year the whole of the said dividends and sum of 60*l.* shall not be applied for the purposes of the said "Exhibitioners' Fund," the part unapplied shall be accumulated and added to the said fund, and such accumulations and the income thereof, or any part thereof respectively, may be applied in any succeeding year for the purposes of the said fund.

4. The Skimmers' Company shall apply "The Exhibitioners' Fund" in providing for payment of exhibitions (to be called "Smythe Exhibitions") for poor scholars of Tonbridge School, in manner following:—

(a) Exhibitions at the universities of Oxford or Cambridge of such amounts, being not less than 20*l.* or more than 40*l.* per annum each, and tenable at such of the said universities, and for such terms, being not less than two or more than four years, and generally on such conditions as the Skimmers' Company, in their discretion, shall from time to time direct.

(b) Exhibitions at Tonbridge School of such amounts, tenable thereat for such terms and generally on such conditions as the Skimmers' Company, in their discretion, shall from time to time direct, but so that no more than 40*l.* a year shall be applied out of "The Exhibitioners' Fund" for this purpose.

5. The Skimmers' Company shall award such exhibitions to such boys only as by reason of straitened circumstances shall, in their opinion, stand in need of the assistance afforded by such award, and, subject as aforesaid, shall award such exhibitions on the results of such examinations as they shall deem sufficient, but they may withhold all or any of such exhibitions, if for want of a sufficient number of duly qualified candidates, or by reason of a lack of proficiency on the part of such candidates in the subjects in which they shall be examined, or for any other sufficient cause, it shall appear to the said Company to be expedient so to do.

Application of "The Poor Fund."

6. The moneys to be carried to the account of "The Poor Fund" shall consist of the remainder of the income of the charity.

7. The Skinners' Company shall apply "The Poor Fund" as follows:—

(c) In making the payments set forth in the second schedule hereto in manner therein mentioned and in satisfaction of the specific payments (other than for scholarships) directed to be made by the will of the founder.

(d) In paying 25*l.* a year each to the incumbent and churchwardens of each of the parishes of—

Sutton-at-Hone (including Swanley);

Darenth (formerly called Durrant);

Wilmington;

Otford;

Tonbridge (the part remaining to the parish church);

Biddborough;

Speldhurst (including Rusthall);

to be applied by them respectively, but without division into moieties, in any of the ways in which the residue of "The Poor Fund" may under Clause 25 hereof be applied, for the benefit of such of the poor of their respective parishes as would be qualified to participate in such residue under the said clause;

(e) The residue shall be paid to the trustees, to be appointed as after mentioned, to be applied by them as herein-after directed.

Trustees.

8. For the purpose of applying such residue there shall for the present be 26 trustees, and they shall be appointed as follows:—

Five by the Skinners' Company;

One by the inhabitants in vestry assembled of each of the following parishes or ecclesiastical districts:

Sutton-at-Hone parish,

Swanley district;

Darenth parish;

Wilmington parish;

Otford parish;

Tonbridge, parish church district;

Hildenborough,

St. Peter, Southborough,

St. Stephen, Tonbridge,

St. Thomas, Southborough,

Holy Trinity,

Christ Church,

St. John,

St. James,

St. Peter,

Biddborough parish;

Speldhurst parish,

Rusthall district;

Shorne parish;

St. Augustine parish, London;

St. Dionis Backchurch parish, London.

Ecclesiastical districts;

Tonbridge Wells,

In case any new ecclesiastical district shall hereafter be formed out of any of the above-named parishes or districts, a trustee to represent such district under and for the purposes of this scheme shall be elected by the inhabitants of such district, in vestry assembled, as soon as conveniently may be after the formation of such district, and the number of trustees of this scheme shall be increased accordingly.

9. For the purpose of applying such residue, the said parishes and ecclesiastical districts shall be considered as one parish.

10. The solicitor to Her Majesty's Attorney General shall by notice in writing move the Skinners' Company and the inhabitants of the said parishes and districts to appoint the first trustees. Such notice shall, in the case of the Skinners' Company, be addressed to the clerk of that Company, and in the case of such parishes and districts to the incumbent of the parish or district. If the said company, or the inhabitants of any of the said parishes or districts, shall for eight weeks after receipt of such notice neglect to appoint trustees or a trustee pursuant to this scheme, it shall be lawful for the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, upon the application of the solicitor to Her Majesty's Attorney General, to appoint, on behalf of the body or persons so neglecting, first trustees or a first trustee of this scheme.

Parishes and districts to be considered as one.

Appointment of first trustees.

1. If any trustee, whether originally appointed by the Skinners' Company, or by the inhabitants of the said parishes or districts, or by the inhabitants of any new district to be formed as aforesaid, or by the Charity Commissioners, shall decline to act, or shall become bankrupt, or file a petition for liquidation, or suffer his goods to be taken in execution, or compound with his creditors, or shall not attend any meeting of the trustees during a consecutive period of two years, or shall desire to be discharged from the trusts hereby reposed in him, or shall refuse or become unfit to act therein, or become incapable of acting therein, the trustees shall cause a record of the fact to be entered in their books, and upon such record being entered the trustee to whom it applies shall immediately cease to be a trustee; and thereupon, or upon the death of any trustee, the other trustee shall cause the vacancy to be forthwith notified to the body of persons having under this scheme the right of nomination, in order that such vacancy may be duly filled up, and if such body or persons shall not within three calendar months from the time when notice shall have been so given nominate a fit and proper person to fill up such vacancy, the same may be filled up by the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales or by Her Majesty's High Court of Justice. All appointments of trustees, whether of first trustees or of new trustees, shall be made by the body or persons having the right of appointment at a meeting called and conducted as nearly as may be in accordance with the ordinary rules or practice of such body or persons.

Appointment of new trustees.

Pending the filling up of any vacancy in the body of trustees, the continuing trustees may act for all purposes in the execution of the trusts hereby reposed in them.

12. Notice of the time and place for holding the first meeting of the trustees shall be given by the Solicitor to Her Majesty's Attorney General, in writing, to each trustee, not less than seven days previous to the time appointed, and such notice may be sent by post.

First meeting of trustees.

13. The trustees shall hold not less than four general meetings in each year, and such meetings shall be held on the first Wednesday in the months of January, April, July, and October respectively, unless the trustees shall appoint some other days for the holding thereof; and notice of the time and place for holding every meeting, not being an adjourned meeting, shall be given in writing to each trustee seven clear days at least before the time appointed for holding the same. Such notice may be delivered at or sent by post to the residence of each trustee.

General meetings of trustees.

14. At every meeting any five of the trustees shall form a quorum; and, so soon after the time fixed for the holding of any meeting as a sufficient number of trustees shall be present to form a quorum, they shall elect a chairman from amongst the trustees present, and, in the event of an equality of votes on the election of chairman, the question shall be decided by lot between the persons having such equality of votes.

Quorum and proceedings at meetings.

15. The acts and proceedings of a majority of trustees voting at any meeting properly held shall be binding on the whole of the trustees, until altered or rescinded as herein-after mentioned; but the trustees, or the majority of them present at any subsequent meeting duly held, shall have power from time to time to alter or rescind any resolution or direction which may have been come to or given at any previous meeting, provided that seven days' notice in writing shall be given in manner aforesaid to each trustee of any motion to alter or rescind any such resolution or direction. But such alteration or rescission shall not prejudice or affect any acts or payments bona fide done or made in accordance with such resolution or direction prior to the alteration or rescission thereof.

Power to rescind resolutions.

16. The chairman of every meeting shall, in the event of an equality of votes, have in addition to his original vote a second or casting vote.

Casting vote of chairman.

17. If at any time there shall not, after the space of half an hour from the time appointed for holding any meeting, be a sufficient number of trustees in attendance to form a quorum, the trustees or trustee who shall be present may adjourn the meeting until some subsequent day. The trustees may likewise adjourn any meeting as they may think fit. Three clear days' notice of any adjourned meeting shall be given to each trustee in the manner herein-before directed.

Power to adjourn.

18. Special meetings of the trustees may at any time be called, on the requisition in writing of two or more trustees, and such meetings shall be convened by giving seven clear days' notice in writing to each trustee, which notice shall specify the object, time, and place of the meeting. No business shall be transacted at a special meeting other than that which shall be mentioned in such notice. Special meetings may be adjourned in the same manner as ordinary meetings.

Power to appoint a committee.

19. The trustees may at any ordinary or special meeting appoint from their own body, as there may be occasion, three or more trustees to be a committee for the purpose of making any inquiry or performing any duty, which in the opinion of the trustees would be more efficiently executed by a committee.

Minute and account books to be kept.

20. The trustees shall provide a minute book, wherein shall be entered a minute of their proceedings at every meeting, which minute shall be signed by the chairman of such meeting, or of the next succeeding meeting, and in which book shall also be entered the reports of any committees appointed by the trustees. The trustees shall likewise provide all necessary account books, wherein shall be entered an account of the receipts and payments on behalf of the charity.

Clerk to be appointed.

21. The trustees may from time to time appoint some fit and proper person to be clerk to the trustees during their pleasure, at such annual salary as they shall think fit not exceeding 4 per cent. on the amount of "The Poor Fund" for the time being.

Duties of clerk.

22. The duties of the clerk shall be to summon the meetings of the trustees, to attend such meetings, to attend and give information to any committee of the trustees, to keep the accounts of the charity, and to furnish and send duplicates or true copies thereof in manner directed by the Charitable Trusts Acts, or otherwise, for the time being by law required; to preserve, subject to the direction of the trustees, all vouchers for payments made by or on behalf of the trustees; to enter in the minute book the minutes of every meeting of the trustees, and the reports of every committee that may be appointed; to attend to the application of "The Poor Fund," under the direction of the trustees, and to perform all such duties in respect of the charity and the management thereof as the trustees shall direct, or are by this scheme directed.

Banker.

23. The trustees shall appoint as their banker or bankers some responsible joint stock banking company, or some fit and responsible person or persons carrying on the business of bankers, with whom shall be deposited the moneys received by the trustees, and they shall change such banker or bankers at any time if they shall think fit.

Orders for money to be signed by two trustees and countersigned by clerk.

24. All payments by the trustees on account of the charity shall be made by cheques or orders of at least two of the trustees, and countersigned by the clerk (if any), and no such cheque or order shall be signed or countersigned except under the authority of an order of the trustees at a meeting duly convened. Provided that the trustees may make provision for small and casual payments by giving the clerk from time to time a cheque for petty cash for such amount not exceeding 20*l.* as they may think necessary, of which he shall duly dispose, and for which he shall account.

Application of "The Poor Fund" by trustees.

25. The trustees shall apply the residue of "The Poor Fund" herein-before directed to be paid to them in manner following:—

As to a moiety,

To the following objects, or either of them, at the discretion of the trustees:—

- (1) In granting pensions, not exceeding 15*l.* a year to poor persons, being inhabitants of one of the parishes or districts aforesaid, giving a preference to widows with children and those who have brought up families well and have been of good character, such pensions to be tenable for one year only, but renewable at the end of each year for the life of the recipient. Such pensions shall only be granted to persons who from age, ill-health, accident, or infirmity, are unable to maintain themselves by their own exertions, and shall not be granted to persons who shall have received parochial relief during the preceding twelve months (except medical relief or relief in an infirmary or during sickness), and shall only be granted after a full investigation of the character and circumstances of the applicant; such investigation resulting in proof, to the satisfaction of the trustees, that the intended pensioner has lived with reasonable providence, and has no relations able and liable to support him or her.

- (2) In making contribution towards the purchase of annuities, present or deferred, but not exceeding 15*l.* a year each, for the benefit of persons qualified under the above subsection No. (1), or in making contributions, not exceeding in any one case 15*l.* in any one year, in aid of income and other means of support possessed by such persons.

As to the remaining moiety, and such part of the first-mentioned moiety as shall not have been applied in manner before directed.

- (3) In payments not exceeding 5*l.* each, in order to encourage the continuance of their attendance at school, to or for the benefit of children attending some public elementary school, being children of poor inhabitants of one of the parishes or districts aforesaid, and being not less than 11 years of age, who shall have attended the same or some other public elementary school or schools for not less than three years next preceding such payment, and shall have received from the principal teacher of the school or schools last so attended such a certificate in writing of their good conduct, regularity in attendance, and proficiency during that period, as shall be satisfactory to the trustees.
- (4) In payment of exhibitions of a yearly value, not exceeding 10*l.* each, tenable for any period not exceeding three years, either at any place of education higher than elementary or of technical, professional, or industrial instruction, to be approved by the trustees, by children of poor inhabitants of one of the parishes or districts aforesaid, not being less than 12 years of age, who shall have attended some public elementary school for not less than four years next preceding the award of such exhibition, and shall have received from the principal teacher of the school or schools last so attended such a certificate in writing of good conduct, regularity in attendance, and proficiency as shall be satisfactory to the trustees. The exhibitions shall be awarded by the trustees on the results of any examinations which they shall deem sufficient.
- (5) In payment of sums not exceeding 10*l.* each for or towards furnishing outfits or tools for the children of poor inhabitants of one of the parishes or districts aforesaid, being under the age of 18 years, on entering a trade or occupation, or going into service, the trustees having received satisfactory evidence of the good character of the applicant.
- (6) In payment of sums for the journey to and from and maintenance at any convalescent home, hospital, infirmary, or lodging at the sea-side or elsewhere, of sick or infirm poor inhabitants of one of the parishes or districts aforesaid, or their children, having received medical evidence that such a visit is likely to be of permanent benefit to the recipient.
- (7) In subscriptions to any convalescent home, hospital, infirmary, or nursing institution, on the condition that the same shall enure to the benefit of the poor inhabitants of the parishes or districts aforesaid.
- (8) In providing nurses in any of the parishes or districts aforesaid for attending generally to any epidemic among the poor therein, or particularly on the sick and infirm poor therein.
- (9) In providing food, fuel, blankets, clothing, medical comforts or appliances, or medical attendance for the poor of the said parishes or districts who have not received parochial relief (except medical relief, or relief in an infirmary or during sickness) for the preceding 12 months, but so that not more than 50*l.* be applied out of such residue in any one year for the last-mentioned purposes.

No candidate for the benefits of the charity shall be disqualified for the receipt of the benefits offered by subsections 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, or 8, of this section by reason only that he or she has been in receipt of parochial relief within the 12 months next preceding his or her application for such benefits.

26. This scheme shall be printed, and a copy deposited in the parish chest of each of the said parishes and districts and with the Skinners' Company, and at the office or Scheme to be printed.

THOMAS HUNT'S CHARITY.

Thomas Hunt, by will of 1st July 1557, gave all the rest of his goods not before bequeathed to the Company to be bestowed upon lands, and the rents thereof delivered to young men, 20*l.* each for three years, paying 10*s.* a year as interest, viz., for the Company, 6*s.* 8*d.*; clerk, 2*s.*; and beadle, 1*s.* 4*d.*: and that when the rents should amount to 400*l.* that thenceforth the rents should be bestowed towards the relief of five poor men.

THOMAS HUNT'S CHARITY.

Under the authority of an order of the Board, dated 14th December 1866, the Company, as the trustees of the charity, granted a new lease of the site of the buildings above described, and Nos. 26 and 27, Fenchurch Street, to Mr. George Moffatt for a term of 77 years, from Lady Day 1864, at an annual rent of 415*l.*, the lessee covenanting to expend a sum of 4,000*l.* upon buildings upon the demised property.

Under the authority of another order of the Board, dated 1st August 1879, the Company granted a new lease of the site of the three houses above described, and numbered 24, 25, and 26, Rood Lane, to Messrs. Hinton and White for a term of 80 years from the 25th March 1878 at an annual rent of 2,100*l.*, the lessees covenanting to expend a sum of 10,000*l.* in buildings on the demised property.

The charge for collection of the rent is 5*l.* per cent. A committee of the Company attend quarterly to receive the rents which are paid by the tenants at the Hall, and the per-centage for collection is carried to the account of the Company. The members of the committee attending to receive the rents are paid 1*l.* 1*s.* each for their attendance at the committee. The sum charged for collection, stamps, &c., in 1861 was 50*l.* 10*s.* 4*d.* The law charges in the same year were 11*l.* 17*s.* 2*d.* The net income is therefore about 1,000*l.* In 1861 the land tax was redeemed on the Fenchurch Street property comprised in the lease to Edwards, on which it had not been previously redeemed, at an expense of 474*l.* 17*s.*

On the 24th June 1862 a balance of 472*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.* cash stood to the credit of the Company.

The Court of Chancery in the year 1822 settled a scheme for the administration of the charity, which is set forth in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 8, p. 352).

The scheme directed the accumulation of 4,000*l.* to be lent to freemen of the Company in the manner specified in the first seven clauses of the scheme; and, second, the application of a sum of 150*l.* a year for the relief of five decayed freemen and householders until the 4,000*l.* should be accumulated; and, third, that the residue amounting to 69*l.* 16*s.* should in the meantime be retained by the Company to defray their costs and charges; and, fourth, when the 4,000*l.* should be accumulated, then the whole residue of the rents and profits, after payment of the costs and charges, should be given towards the support and relief of as many decayed freemen of the Company and their widows so that no freeman or his widow should be entitled to receive more than 70*l.* per annum.

First, the accumulation of 4,000*l.* took place and forms a separate account; I annex a copy of the account made up to June 1862. The sums marked X are supposed to be irrecoverable, and if that be so the fund is now reduced by nearly the sum of 900*l.*

The residue is now administered according to the directions given under the fourth head; namely, in pensions to freemen and their widows, after payment or deduction of 5*l.* per cent. for stationery, collecting rents, and management generally, and also law charges. These deductions were, in 1861, 5*l.* per cent., for management 50*l.* 10*s.* 4*d.*, and law charges 11*l.* 17*s.* 2*d.*

The residue was, in 1861, divided between 18 pensioners, male and females receiving pension, varying from 25*l.* to 70*l.* They have been occasionally as low as 20*l.*, the total amount of the pensions being 750*l.*

I append a balance sheet of the Company showing the state of the loan fund at this time.

SIR ANDREW JUDD'S ALMSHOUSES AND ALICE SMITH'S GIFT.

Sir Andrew Judd, by his will of the 2nd September 1558, devised to the Company property in the parish of Allhallows, Lombard Street—

	£	s.	d.
Occupied by Judd and Jackson, of the value of - - -	7	0	0
Occupied by Smyth, of the value of - - -	8	0	0
Occupied by Pepp, of the value of - - -	2	13	4
Occupied by Peterborough of the value of - - -	2	0	0
Making together the annual value of	19	13	4

And he directed that 4*s.* a week, or 8*d.* each person, should be paid by the renter warden to six poor almsmen inhabiting the almshouses in the close of St. Helen, and also 1*l.* 5*s.* 4*d.* annually for coals for the said almspeople, and that the renter warden should have for his pains 10*s.* yearly out of the rents and profits of the premises.

And Alice Smith, by her will of the 10th July 1592, directed her executors to purchase lands of 15*l.* a year to be conveyed to the Company who were to pay—

	£	s.	d.
For the almspeople in Great St. Helen's 10	10	8	0
For three poor women of Allhallows, Lombard Street - - -	1	16	0
For two poor women of St. Gabriel's, Fenchurch - - -	1	4	0 and the residue to the poor of the Company.

The Commissioners of Inquiry state that there was nothing in the books of the Company to show that any such purchase had been made.

In the course of the suit of the Attorney General at the relation of the Rev. C. Hardinge against the Skinners' Company, in which a decree was made on the 16th of March 1820, and on appeal on the 22nd November 1821, the defendants the Skinners' Company either admitted or proved that they held under the will of Alice Smith property in the parish of Allhallows immediately adjoining the premises comprised in the said will and statutes of Sir A. Judd; and the master by his report of the 10th March 1823 certified that he had directed inquiries and surveys to be made with a view to distinguishing the two properties so as to enable him to comply with the directions in the decree, and to state the particulars whereof the same messuages and lands devised by Sir Andrew Judd consisted, and what were the then present rents thereof. And the master certified that it having been proposed before him, on behalf of the said parties, as the only means of dividing the estates held by the governors of the Free Grammar School from those which they acquired under the said will of Alice Smith, to have the whole of the property, then in the possession of the said defendants, situate in the said parish of Allhallows, and which it was admitted comprised no more than what the defendants, held as such governors and under the said will as aforesaid, valued by competent persons and then divided in the proportion of 19*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* and 15*l.*, being the respective values of the said several properties in the said 16th century, and apportion the said messuages or tenements and hereditaments according to such values respectively having regard to the situation of such respective properties as far as the same could be defined or made out. But inasmuch as by the said decree the said master was not authorised to make such valuation and apportionments, but required to set forth the particulars of the said property, he could not act in the same without the authority of the Court; that, by an order made in the cause dated the 13th March 1823, it was referred to the master to apportion the respective messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments held by the defendants respectively as governors of the said Free Grammar School of Tonbridge and under the will of Alice Smith, having regard to the respective values thereof as stated in his said report of the 10th March 1823, and the situation of such several properties so far as the same could be defined, and made out, that the said master, by his report dated 10th July 1823, made in pursuance of the last-mentioned order, certified that having considered the evidence laid before him, and having had regard to the respective values of the several messuages and hereditaments held by the said defendants respectively as governors of the Grammar School and under the will of Alice Smith, as stated in his said report, and to the situation of the same as far as they could be defined or made out he found and apportioned the several messuages, lands, and hereditaments, mentioned and comprised in the first schedule to his report, to be held by the said defendants in respect of the messuages and hereditaments devised by the will of Alice Smith as aforesaid.

By an order made in the cause of the 26th July 1823 it was ordered that the said last-mentioned report be confirmed, and it was declared that the several messuages and hereditaments mentioned in the first schedule to the said report were held by the said defendants in respect of the messuages and hereditaments devised by the will of Alice Smith in the said order named as therein mentioned.

The property thus apportioned to Alice Smith's Charity now consists of the following particulars:—

No. 3, Skinners' Place, Leadenhall Market, let to P. Cox for 21 years, from 1855 -	55
No. 4, Skinners' Place, Leadenhall Market, let to — Burnell for the same term -	80

The whole of this estate was rebuilt under the arrangements stated in the report of the master in The Attorney General v. Skinners' Company of the 25th January 1841, mentioned in my report on the property of the grammar school, the expenditure being out of the funds belonging to the Company, which were thus dedicated to the charitable trust, and Nos. 1 and 2 Skinners' Place, which had formerly been allotted to this charity under the apportionment above stated, were given up in exchange to the Tonbridge School, and rebuilt at the expense of the charity.

The master, by a further report of the 24th December 1824, found the premises devised or expressed to be devised by the will of Sir A. Judd to be as follows:—

The Court, by the decree of the 11th August 1826, declared that according to the true construction and effect of the will of the said Sir A. Judd the Skinners' Company became and were entitled for their own use to the rents of such of the messuages, &c. devised by such instrument as consisted of the several particulars set forth in the fourth schedule to the master's report, subject to the payment thereof of such one of the several specific sums in the said will mentioned as thereafter set forth, viz., 4s. to be paid weekly to the six almsmen of St. Helen's as in the said will directed, the yearly sum of 10s. to the renter warden of the Company, and the annual sum of 17. 5s. 4d. for coals to be distributed among the six almsmen as in the said will directed, and also subject to a contribution out of such rents towards reparations since the filing of the information of such part of the messuages used as the school premises at Tonbridge as was originally erected for such purpose, and also subject to a contribution towards the 150l. annually allowed to the defendants in taking their accounts in the cause for the expenses of visiting the school at Tonbridge for the time past, and also towards the 200l. allowed for that purpose by the scheme for the establishment of the said school, such contributions for repairs and for the past and future expenses of visiting the said school to be apportioned and made according to the relative annual value of the messuages devised by the will of the said Sir A. Judd with the annual value of the messuages, &c. purchased of J. Gates and T. Thorogood, such annual values to be ascertained by the master.

The effect of the decree in the suit Attorney General v. Skinners' Company (referred to more particularly in the report on the Grammar School) was to exonerate the whole of the devised property of Sir A. Judd from any charitable trust, except the sums before stated as expressly directed to be paid by the renter warden, viz.:—

	£	s.	d.
1. The sum of 4s. a week to the six alms- men in St. Helen's almshouse	-	10	8 0
Coals, do.	-	1	5 4
Renter warden	-	0	10 0

2. The contribution towards the repairs of the ancient part of the school house at Tonbridge. This contribution has to be calculated by the relative annual value of the devised premises and the annual value of the school estate.

3. The contribution towards the sum of 200l. allowed to the defendants by the scheme for the expenses of visiting the school.

The first contribution was determined in 1862 thus:

	£	s.	d.
The repairs were	-	275	2 8
The school estate	-	3,615	10 0
The devised estate	-	689	12 6
	£4,305	2	6

The proportion therefore of the 275l. 2s. 8d. to be paid by the devised estate was 44l. 2s. 8.

The contribution to the expenses of visitation is determined on the same principle, the difference being only that the charge is fixed.

The specific payments directed by the testatrix (exclusive of the gift to the almspeople) are made as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To the churchwardens of All Saints, Lombard Street	-	1	16 0
	£3	0	0

A charge of 5l. per cent. is made by the Company and carried to their own account for collecting rents, and taxes and incidental expenses. This has been about 38l. a year for some years past. In 1861 it was 38l. 19s. 0d. The net income is then applied to the benefit of the almspeople and for the general poor of the Company.

The application, so far as the almshouses and almspeople are concerned, is as follows:—

The Company are the governors of the almshouses at St. Helen's and Mile End. In the almshouses at St. Helen's there are six almsmen, and in the almshouses at Mile End 12 almswomen.

The almshouses in St. Helen's on the left hand after passing the gateway and entry into Crosby Square, consist of a building with one outer door and six apartments for almsmen, which were founded by Sir A. Judd in his lifetime.

St. Helen's Almsmen.

	£	s.	d.

The present rental of the property being higher than formerly will probably leave a balance to be carried forward or credited to the fund for the general poor of the Company.

I have calculated the present or prospective income at 788*l.* per annum and the present rate of disbursement for the almspeople at about 680*l.* per annum, including the small gifts of Sir A. Judd, leaving a surplus of about 100*l.* a year. The rent of the Leadenhall Market property is, however, very variable, and depends greatly upon the personal circumstances and success of the tenants in their trades.

The donations and incidental expenses of the almshouses and almspeople have considerably exceeded the amounts charged in the account of the Company, it being the habit to charge only so much as the fund will bear and so as exactly to balance the account.

The actual endowments possessed by the Skinners' Company in trust for charitable purposes amount to about 2,575*l.* a year, and in addition to this sum the Company give away ordinarily upwards of 1,000*l.* per annum in other annual payments in relief of members of the Company and in general donations and contributions to public charities. Two freemen of the Company in decayed circumstances receive each pensions of 150*l.* a year, and large donations are occasionally made to individual freemen or pensioners on especial exigencies.

NEWBERRY'S CHARITIES.

Lewis Newberry, by his will of the 20th February 1683, gave to the Company 100*l.* to be lent gratis to two young freemen; and also 50*l.* to the Company to be employed by them as they should judge most to conduce to their public benefit.

And he directed the residue of his estate to be laid out for the use of six poor widows by purchasing some small piece of ground and building so many houses for them, and endowing the said houses with the remainder of his estate.

It appears by the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 8, page 351, and Appendix, p. 757) that the Company received from the executors of Mr. Newberry the sum of 1,851*l.*, and that the executors built the almshouses at Mile End as directed by the will. By an agreement between the executors of Mr. Newberry and the Company, the latter seems to have bound itself to pay 5*l.* per cent. on the 1,851*l.* for the support of the almspeople.

The almshouses consist of two rows of tenements, one end of which abuts on the Mile End Road and adjoining Trinity Almshouses, with a considerable garden at the rear. There are 12 doors, each opening into one room on the ground floor, occupied by twelve women. They are maintained by the Company principally from Alice Smith's Gift (as to which see my report on Sir Andrew Judd's Almshouses and Alice Smith's Gift). It does not appear that the interest on the 1,851*l.* at 5 per cent. has been brought into the account of the almshouses or of the other charity funds of the Company. The officers of the Company approve of my suggestion that the interest on this fund should be brought into account as a permanent endowment of the Mile End Almshouses, which will then have the effect of enlarging the balance of Alice Smith's Gift applicable to the general poor of the Company.

There is no record of the distinct existence of the 100*l.* for loans, nor is there any such application.

SPURLING'S CHARITY.

Henry Spurling, by his will of the 1st October 1730, directed his executors to purchase 200*l.* Bank Stock upon trust to pay the dividends amongst the poor persons in the hospital at Mile End belonging to the Company.

The bank stock was sold out in 1801, and from that time the Company has charged its funds with an annual sum of 12*l.* a year, which is given in equal portions to the 12 almspeople at the Mile End Almshouses (see my report on these almshouses in the account of Sir A. Judd's and Alice Smith's charities).

M. AWDELEY'S GIFT.

Margaret Awdeley, by her will of the 18th November 1716, gave the Company 100*l.* to be lent to poor young beginners, and she gave 700*l.* to the Company to purchase lands to pay to the churchwardens of Hackney 35*l.* a year to be employed as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To the poor in bread	-	5	4 0
For repairing the parish church	-	5	16 0
For repairing the bridges, &c. between Clapton Street and Shoreditch	-	4	0 0
Towards the maintenance of a school	-	20	0 0

There is no trace of the existence of the 100*l.* to be lent out to young beginners. It has been probably lost.

The Company pay 35*l.* a year to the churchwardens of Hackney, who do not furnish the Company with any account of its disposition.

BLUNDELL'S GIFT.

Peter Blundell, by his will of the 9th June 1599, gave to the Company 150*l.* to purchase lands to pay 40*s.* to the poor prisoners of the Wood Street Compter, and the residue for the benefit of the Company.

The hall of the Company is on the site of Whittington College, and is probably the estate on which the 40*s.* a year is charged.

The sum is paid to Mr. Temple, the receiver appointed by the Court of Aldermen.

SIR JAMES LANCASTER'S CHARITIES.

Sir James Lancaster, by his will of 18th April 1618, reciting that he had levied a fine of his manor of Maidenwell and of other lands in the parishes of Somercotes, Abie, Claythorpe, Farford, and Pamber, and that he bargained and sold to certain trustees an annuity of 100 marks issuing out of lands, which were the Lord Wattall's, declared that the said fine should enure to the use of the said trustees, and that they should stand seized of the said yearly rent to the intent that the rents of the lands and the said yearly rent should be paid over to the Company to be bestowed as follows:—

To the poor of Basingstoke, Hants	-	30	0 0
To a preacher there	-	40	0 0
To the Free School of Basingstoke, Hants	-	20	0 0
To a schoolmaster of Basingstoke, Hants	-	13	6 8
To three poor scholars at Oxford and Cambridge (15 l. each)	-	45	0 0
To poor widows of freemen	-	20	0 0
To four poor preachers (5 l. each)	-	20	0 0
To a schoolmaster, Kingscleare, Hants	-	20	0 0
To the poor of the same place	-	10	0 0
To the Company	-	35	0 0
For an annual dinner	-	3	6 8

And he directed that his executors should make a purchase of lands of 30*l.* or 40*l.* a year for the Company to dispose of as follows:—

To the poor of Basingstoke	- 45
To the increase of the payments of the three poor scholars	- 15

By a decree of the Court of Chancery of the 10th July 1713, made in the cause of the Attorney General v. The Skinners' Company. Upon the undertaking of the corporation of Basingstoke to pay the charities in full, it was ordered that the four poor scholars studying divinity at Oxford and Cambridge, and the four poor widows and preachers named by the Skinners' Company, should be entered in a book and notice given to the town of Basingstoke, who were to pay the Company the charities given them by the will, and it was ordered that two of the scholars should be sent to Oxford and two to Cambridge; and the Company were to be allowed 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per annum for a dinner in place of the gift of the 35*l.* given to the Company.

The Corporation of Basingstoke under this arrangement pay the Company 103*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* a year, out of which the Company apply—

To the payment of four poor scholars at Oxford and Cambridge	60	0	0
They are filled up by applications from the different colleges, being generally sons of clergymen with large families.
To the poor preachers. The vacancies are advertised, and many applications are made for it by beneficed clergyman from all parts of the country. It is never given to any incumbent of a benefice of more than 100 l. a year	20	0	0
To poor widows of freemen of the Company	20	0	0
(Three widows of the Company receive 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. each, annually making up 20 l. a year.)
The sum allowed for the dinner carried to the account of the Company	3	6	8
	103	6	8

MEREDITH'S CHARITY.

John Meredith, by his will of the 16th April 1630, gave to the Company a messuage in West Smithfield to pay to three poor aged freemen and two poor aged freemen's widows 39*l.* (3*s.* a week each).

	£	s.	d.
To the renter warden 10 s. , clerk 6 s. , and two beadies 6 s.	1	2	0 and the residue to be disposed of at the discretion of the Company.
And he also gave to the Company a close of 8 acres in Clerkenwell to pay to—

	£	s.	d.
Two poor unbeneficed preachers	10	0	0
For coals to the poor of the Smithfield quarter of the parish of St. Sepulchre	4	10	0
To the poor of St. Bartholomew the Less	1	0	0
For coals to poor prisoners in London	4	8	0

and the residue of the rents to the Company to such uses as they in their grave wisdoms and discretions should think meet and convenient.

The last-mentioned gift of the residue has not, so far as I can discover, been the subject of any suit or judicial construction, and I assume there is no doubt it must be taken as an absolute gift to the Company. They, however, deal with it as a fund for general charity at their discretion.

The estate charged consists of Clarke's Close, containing about 8 acres of land, on the west side of Goswell Street Road, going from St. John Street to Islington, and near Sadler's Wells.

It is now built upon under leases granted by the Company at ground rents of 525*l.* a year.

The Company administer the funds so far as relates to the foregoing charges as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To nine widows, 12 guineas per annum each	113	8	0
To four poor preachers, 20 l. per annum each	80	0	0
To the churchwardens of the parish of St. Sepulchre	4	10	0
To the poor prisoners (this is paid to Mr. Temple the officer of the corporation)	4	8	0
	203	6	0

The remainder of the fund being distributed at the entire discretion of the Company without any legal obligation, I have not thought it within my province to inquire into it.

J. DRAPER'S GIFT.

John Draper, by his will of the 18th April 1496, gave four messuages in St. Antholin's parish to the Company to pay 13*s.* 4*d.* for the poor of St. Antholin and 13*s.* 4*d.* to Ludgate or Newgate gaols.

The Company hold property in Budge Row and the neighbourhood, in the parish of St. Antholin, which having been devised for superstitious uses, forms, I presume, part of the estate purchased and confirmed to the several companies respectively by the Act of James 1st referred to in my report on the Fishmongers' Company.

The Company pay 13*s.* 4*d.* to the churchwardens of St. Antholin's parish, and the sum of 13*s.* 4*d.* to Mr. Temple, the officer of the corporation, for the prisoners of Ludgate and Newgate.

N. JENNINGS' CHARITY.

Nicholas Jennings by his will (date unknown) founded an obit to be kept on the day of his death for ever, and devised for that purpose a tenement called the Ram's Head in Eastcheap, giving over either the residue of the estate or the residue of the 2*l.* a year, appointed for the obit, to the poor of Barking.

The Company have not at present any property in Eastcheap. The premises belonging to them in that locality were taken for the purpose of the improvements at the foot of London Bridge. This estate was probably included in the re-purchase by the Company of the estate held by them for superstitious uses and confirmed by the Act of James 1st mentioned in my report on the Fishmongers' Company. Nothing is now recorded with respect to this estate as a charity.

ATTWELL'S CHARITY.

Laurence Attwell gave by his will of the 6th November 1588 to the Company his messuages in Fenchurch Street, his house in St. Thomas the Apostle, his lands, &c. in Godalming, also his interest in tenements at Christchurch, London, upon trust, with the profits thereof to make a stock, whereby poor people might be set on work, reserving only 20*l.* a year for a dinner.

The Commissioners of Inquiry in their report (Vol. 8, p. 375) stated that the rents and profits were received by the Company and carried to the general account without any particular application thereof being made of them for charitable purposes, and they appear to have certified the case to the Attorney General.

An information ex-officio was therefore filed by the Attorney General, praying that the Company were mere trustees for the application of the rents and profits of the messuages, &c. to the charitable purposes mentioned in the said will; and that it might be declared that the whole of such rents ought to be distributed accordingly and an account might be taken of the rents and profits of the said messuages, &c. which have been received by the defendants from such time as the Court should think fit to direct and of the application thereof by the Company, and that what upon such account appeared to have been received by the Company might be answered and paid by the Company; and that, if necessary, it might be referred to the master to approve of a scheme for the application of such arrears and of the future rents thereof; and that a proper person might be appointed to receive such rents with the usual directions.

After hearing the cause on the 3rd February 1825, the Court ordered that it should be referred to the master to take an account of the rents, &c. received by the defendants since the filing of the information, and that he should inquire and state in what manner such rents had been applied since that time. And it was ordered that the master should approve of a scheme for the application of the income of the charity estates and state the same to the Court.

The master made his report dated the 12th February 1827, whereby he found that the defendants had received on account of the rents of the said messuages, &c. since the filing of the information 1,067*l.*, and that the defendants had disbursed thereout 67*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.* for taxes and repairs, leaving 999*l.* 16*s.* 9*d.*; and he found that the defendants stated that the surplus of the said rents had been applied generally in objects of charity and had been added to and mixed up with the surplus of the general funds of the Company, which were appropriated more particularly as follows:—

Towards the maintenance of 12 alms-women of Mile End, annually	343	0	0
Annual donation to the Dowgate Ward School	5	5	0
Annual donation to the Vintry Ward School	10	10	0
Annual distribution to certain poor widows	75	0	0
Annual donation to the National and Sunday schools at Tonbridge	10	5	0
To two poor preachers of the City	10	0	0

And he found that the property possessed by the Company under Attwell's will, consisted of certain houses in the City of London and a house and land at Godalming, the whole income of which amounted to 533*l.* 10*s.* And he certified that there had been laid before him on the part of the Company a scheme to the effect following:—

That in submitting the scheme therein-after mentioned for the appropriation of the annual income of the charity, it was material, in the first place, to advert to the peculiar objects of charity within the literal meaning expressed in the will, namely, that the residue should be lent as capital to be employed, whereby poor people might be set at work, and yet this capital should be kept whole and increased yearly with the revenues, so that according to that method, if it should be strictly followed, it would amount to perpetual accumulation of capital, the testator's will being made long previous to the statute, which prohibits a perpetual accumulation of capital, such mode cannot be objected to as illegal, though it is submitted that it would be impolitic from the vast accumulation which must in time accrue from the funds and by the employment of it to the purposes of trading and working companies, it would become extremely injurious, and prejudicial to individual traders working upon their own capital, and moreover it was further submitted that the accumulations if suffered to go on in perpetuity, would eventually arrive to such an extent as must render it absolutely impracticable to apply the fund in the manner before alluded to; and the scheme went on to propose the establishment of almshouses for poor freemen of the Company, and to allow them certain stipends as therein mentioned.

And he further certified that on the part of the Attorney General there had been laid before him a scheme for the application of the income, whereby it was prepared as follows:—

Scheme.

That instead of the 20*l.* allowed by L. Attwell towards a dinner at the Company's Hall on the election day, taking into consideration the difference in the value of money at that time and at the date of the will, there should be allowed for that purpose 100*l.* out of the rents of the Charity estate.

That the residue of the said rents after the payment of all outgoings should be lent out in sums not exceeding in any one case 200*l.* by the Company to young men of good characters, beginners in trade, without interest, taking security by bond from the borrower and sufficient security or securities.

That the amount of the loans, the period of repayment, and the security to be taken should be settled by the Company according to the circumstances of the applicants for such loans, that members of the said corporation when they should be proper objects, should have the preference.

That a register should be kept of the sums of money lent out and the security taken for the same with all the particulars of the loans, and all proper and necessary caution should be used to prevent the money from being lost for want of timely application for the same when the period of repayment should arrive.

That before any money should be lent by the said Company on account of the said charity, all proper and due inquiry should be made into the circumstances and character of the borrowers and their sureties.

That the estates and property of the charity shall be duly managed and let to the best advantage under the superintendence of the said Company and their officers, and that a regular account of the receipts and expenditure in respect of the said estate should be kept and the sum made up and audited by the Company once in every year.

And the master further certified that he had considered the said two several schemes laid before him on the part of the Company and of the Attorney General, and the several facts and circumstances respectively stated. But inasmuch as the scheme of the Company appeared to him to go to a greater extent than under the decree he should be authorised to sanction without the authority of the Court, the said master certified that he had not thought fit to allow the same, and therefore he approved of the last-mentioned scheme, except so far as regarded the proposed allowance of 100*l.* per annum for a dinner which the master did not feel himself authorised to allow, the founder having limited the amount to 20*l.*, without the sanction of the Court for that purpose.

A house in Modiford Court, Fenchurch Street, let to — Nicholson for 21 years, from Michaelmas 1855	250	0	0
A house, No. 36, Fenchurch Street, let to Messrs. Barber on a building lease for 61 years, from Lady Day 1858	310	0	0
A house, No. 12, Great St. Thomas Apostle, let to Thos. Pollock on a building lease for 61 years, from Christmas 1858	50	0	0
Houses and tenements and garden ground and land containing 9½ acres at Godalming, Surrey	65	0	0
	£675	0	0

The outgoings of the estate are a charge of 5 per cent. on the rental for management and the expense of surveys relating to the premises and occasional subscriptions to local purposes at Godalming.

The scheme allows the Company the sum of 100*l.* a year, as suggested by the Attorney General.

The operation of this scheme has been to accumulate a constantly increasing loan fund of which advertisements are published, and which is lent out in sums of 200*l.* without interest, and without any expense in preparing the security, the whole cost being borne by the fund. A stamped bond is given with two securities for each loan.

The charge for preparing the security depends upon the extent of the inquiries made in each case, and I am informed the average may be 10*l.* for each loan.

The money is lent for three years, but it is often impossible to recover it punctually, and then it is received by instalments. The charges of the management of the loan, including bonds and attendances for receiving of instalments amount to about 150*l.* a year.

There are generally more applicants for the loan fund than can be received but not commonly more persons to whom it is thought secure to lend it.

The fund has accumulated to the sum of 11,165*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.*, of which 8,255*l.* is now out on security to about 46 persons, of whom seven are freemen of the Company. It is not believed that any very considerable portion of this is irrecoverable.

I append to this report a table of the names of the borrowers, and the dates of the respective loans up to the 1st May 1863.

SIR WOLSTAN DIXIE'S CHARITY.

Sir Wolstan Dixie, by his will of the 15th May 1592, gave to the Company 500*l.*, of which 200*l.* was to be lent to four poor young men, 50*l.* each, and 300*l.* to be lent to ten poor young men, 30*l.* each, they to pay for every 50*l.* 1*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, and for every 30*l.* 1*l.*, whereof the wardens should have 1*l.* and the clerk and two beadles 6*s.* 8*d.* each, and for coals to the poor of St. Michael Bassishaw five marks (3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*).

And he gave to the Company an annuity of 10*l.* for a lecture of divinity at St. Michael Bassishaw.

The Company has no account of the 500*l.*, nor was any such account rendered at the time of the last commission of Inquiry, it is supposed to be lost, and I do not find that any legal proceedings have been taken with reference to this charity. The Company receive 10*l.* a year from the Merchant Taylors' Company for the rentcharge, which they pay over to the lecturer appointed by the parish of St. Michael Bassishaw, and they pay also 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* to the churchwardens of the same parish.

MRS. F. CLARK'S GIFT.

Frances Clark, by her will (date not known), referring to a payment of 200*l.* made in her lifetime to the Company, and to an indenture whereby they covenanted to pay 10*l.* a year to the poor and lame of St. Thomas' Hospital, directed that the Company should see the same performed.

The Company pay 10*l.* a year to the treasurer of St. Thomas' Hospital.

STODDARD'S CHARITY.

William Stoddard by his will of the 24th February 1611, gave a copyhold tenement and 17½ acres of land to trustees upon the trusts declared in an indenture of even date.

And by such indenture they were directed to sell the copyhold and purchase freehold lands, &c. of 100 marks a year, and pay thereout for two dinners yearly for the

To the resident officers of the hospital	- 1
To the Skinners' Company for the relief of their poor	- 6

and the residue for the poor children of the hospital.

The governors of Christ's Hospital pay 6*l.* a year to the Skinners' Company, who have two presentations to Christ's Hospital, which are confined to sons of freemen of the Company. The Company always inquire into the means of the parents to advance their children in life after the education given in the hospital, and give the advantage to those who have the better means of so doing.

The 6*l.* a year is not specifically affixed, but is applied with the other funds of the Company to the general purposes of charity.

JOAN BUSH'S CHARITY.

Joan Bush, by her will of the 30th March 1566, directed the Company to distribute to poor people within the City of London four cart loads of coal.

The Company appear to have given a bond to the Corporation of London for the performance of this trust, and they pay annually 16*s.* a year to the churchwardens of St. Margaret Moses, and the same sum to each of the churchwardens of St. Giles, Cripplegate, and St. Sepulchre.

EDWARD LEWIS'S EXHIBITION.

Edward Lewis, by will of the 3rd March 1673, gave to the Company 100*l.* to pay for the better maintenance of a poor scholar at Cambridge—5*l.* a year.

The Company pay annually 5*l.* a year to a poor scholar at Cambridge selected by the court. It is held until he takes his degree.

RANDAL MANNING'S GIFT.

Randal Manning, by his will of the 9th January 1611, gave to the Company 120*l.*, to be lent to three honest young men, each paying 1*l.* a year as interest, and to be distributed as follows:—

	£	s.
To the poor of St. Swithin's, London	2	0
For a sermon in the parish church	- 0	10
For the Company's officers	- 0	10

There is no loan fund in respect of this charity, but the Company continues to pay the 2*l.* 10*s.* per annum to the churchwardens of the parish of St. Swithin's, and the 10*s.* to the officers of the Company.

FLETCHER'S GIFT.

Thomas Fletcher, by his will of the 5th October 1616, gave to the Company 300*l.* to purchase lands with part thereof to the value of 13*l.* a year, to be disposed of as follows:—

To the schoolmaster at New Woodstock	- 4
To five sermons there (16 s. each)	- 4
To the almspeople there	- 4

And the remainder of the 300*l.* to be lent to two young freemen at 5 per cent. for a dinner on the 10th May.

The Company pay 9*l.* 12*s.* a year to the Corporation of Woodstock, Oxfordshire, deducting 2*l.* 8*s.* for land tax. There is, however, no record of any investment of the fund. It is suggested that some investment was made upon which the land tax has been redeemed by the Company. The charge of 9*l.* 12*s.* seems, however, to have been the payment constantly made and accepted, as evidenced by receipts expressing the deduction for more than 30 years past.

MARY WILKINSON'S GIFT.

Mary Wilkinson gave 100*l.* to the Company to pay 5*l.* towards the relief and maintenance of the children of Christ's Hospital.

The Company pay 5*l.* a year to Christ's Hospital.

SIR WILLIAM ALLEYN'S CHARITY.

Sir William Allyn, by indenture of the 27th October 1567, gave to the Company 101*l.* 10*s.*, they covenanting to pay 6*l.* to the churchwardens of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate, viz. :—

	£	s.
For bread to 12 poor householders	- 5	4
For the repair of the parish church	- 0	7
To the parish clerk	- 0	4
To the churchwardens	- 0	5

The Company pay 6*l.* a year to the churchwardens of the parish of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate.

All which I submit to the board.

3rd June 1864.

THOS. HARE,
Inspector of Charities.

APPENDIX.

SIR, Tunbridge, April 25, 1863.

WE, the undersigned, hope that you will not consider the following suggestion relative to the Tunbridge school as out of your province to present to the notice of the worshipful Company of Skinners.

The Company is going to expend a large sum of money upon a new school, which will be a lasting ornament and improvement to the ancient town of Tunbridge.

We have seen, Sir, the plans of the elevation, and the building is already in progress, but we find, to our great surprise, that though there will be a fine central tower, admirably adapted for such a purpose, there is to be no clock.

Upon the paramount necessity of a good turret clock in a building of this kind we need not dilate, as the utility is so apparent that we feel sure it has only to be properly represented to the worshipful Company to be at once acceded to.

A couple of hundred guineas would be sufficient for the purpose, which we are sure will not weigh for one moment in the scale against the benefits to be derived, leaving the ornamental part of the question out of view. Immediate steps, however, should be taken, as a peculiar chamber is needed for the purpose.

Hoping, Sir, that you will excuse the liberty we have thus taken in intruding ourselves upon your notice, and will kindly further our object,

We remain, Sir,

Your very obedient servants,

SIR,

CHARITY COMMISSION.

TONBRIDGE FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

Tonbridge, Kent, 30th April 1863.

HAVING read your notice of the 18th instant, affixed to our parish church, that you, as Inspector of Charities, should attend at Skinners' Hall, Dowgate Hill, on the 1st proximo, to receive information touching the management of the Free Grammar School of Tonbridge, and any improvement, in the statutes or otherwise, whereby the benefit of the same may be extended, I, as one of the many cestui que trusts of the school property, avail myself of your invitation to address you.

Many of the inhabitants of Tonbridge and its vicinity have larger families than pecuniary means. I may say, by way of short preamble, I have 10 sons, one of whom has completed his education at this school, two are now at it, and others preparing for it, and therefore it is a subject of importance to myself.

The school property has the reputation of being very large, and likely to be increasingly so by the falling in of leases, &c.

1st. I would suggest that the statutes and regulations of the school should be more freely distributed among the parents of the school boys than they are, that a printed copy should be given on each boy's admission for guidance and information of parents and scholars.

If, as I understand, that they are out or nearly out of print, it would be well to have a new edition forthwith printed and circulated.

All boys are foundationers whose parents or guardians (their parents being dead) reside in Kent within 10 miles of Tonbridge.

There is reference in them made to certain original orders of Sir Andrew Judd; these should be given in notes for the right understanding of the statutes.

2ndly. That the annual accounts of the school estates and funds be advertised in the local papers in a clear and intelligible form, or at least printed and transmitted to the parents of the boys.

3rdly. The objects of the founder being twofold—first, a gratuitous education in grammar to the youths in Tunbridge and parts adjacent; and, secondly, the benefit of the town of Tunbridge from the increase of trade and other advantages, which would result from the influx of scholars—all regulations, and extensions, therefore, which may operate as inducements to parents to send their boys to Tunbridge school, would be in strict conformity with and complete fulfilment of the declared objects of the founder.

The education here is not now confined to what is understood by "grammar." The time of the masters is not therefore wholly devoted to instructing therein, which it ought to be, or the boys ought to be gratuitously taught writing, arithmetic, mathematics, French, &c., out of funds of the school estates if they are included under the term "grammar," instead of being extra charges.

The present annual payment for each boy by his parents for learning at the school is—

Writing and arithmetic	-	-	3	3	0
Mathematics -	-	-	4	4	0
French -	-	-	2	2	0
A year			9	9	0

To say nothing of other acquirements and accomplishments learnt and paid for by the parents of foundationers, or boys of the first class, which are generally included in a liberal education.

4thly. Upon the supposition that the school property has the wherewithal that this school should a free and thorough education in its fullest sense as far as possible and become a model to other schools similarly circumstanced and not to be fettered by precedents here or elsewhere, if not suited to the circumstances and requirements, the place, and age.

5thly. That an assistant master should be appointed for a less number of scholars than 40 boys in the first class or foundationers, (see Statute XLIII.), and that there be an assistant master for every 10 or 15 boys.

6thly. That the salary of every assistant be considerably raised above 84*l.* per annum, so as to ensure first-rate instruction, and at the same time to enable them to devote themselves to the development of the scholars' mental powers and to their instruction without parents having to supplement the present mode of education by a costly private tutorial system, which is now absolutely necessary with respect to 19 out of 20 schoolboys.

This reformation or improvement was strongly urged by the late Prime Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, and has been adopted in some of its colleges.

7thly. The plan of the 16 munificent exhibitions appears to me good, though it is not sufficiently defined what is meant by "duly qualified."

8thly. Alterations in the house and buildings for the head master of the school were imperatively required, especially the dormitories were not in a state fit for the scholars. (See Statutes XXI.)

The want of a clock in the plans of the proposed new buildings is considered a serious omission, and your attention is drawn to the subject by a memorial largely signed in the town, and which want of time, I understand, only prevented being much more numerous signed.

9th. I must add that the school, though susceptible of the above improvements for the twofold object of Sir Andrew Judd, appears to me to be very well mastered, and that it reaps its full proportionate share of success at the universities, &c.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Yours truly,

J. H. PATTISSON.

Thos. Hare, Esq.,
Inspector of Charities.

The STATUTES AND REGULATIONS of the FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL at TUNBRIDGE, founded by SIR ANDREW JUDD, Knight, 1553, of which the Master, Wardens, and Court of Assistants of the Worshipful Company of Skinners of London are Governors.

Introduction.

By the letters patent or charter of King Edward the Sixth made in the seventh year of his reign, A.D. 1553, for erecting and establishing a grammar school in the town of Tunbridge, in the county of Kent, for the institution and instruction of boys and youth in the said town and country there adjacent ("expressed in the language of the said charter, "in dictâ Villâ et Patriâ ibidem adjacentē""), it was ordained that from thenceforth there should be one grammar school in the said town of Tunbridge, which should be called the Free Grammar School of Sir Andrew Judd, Knight, in the said town, for the education, institution, and instruction of boys and youth in grammar, with one master and under-master, to continue for ever; and it was further ordained, after the death of the said Sir Andrew Judd,—who was thereby empowered, during his life, to make fit and wholesome statutes and ordinances in writing, for the government and direction of the master and under-master and scholars of the school aforesaid, and other things concerning the said school,—that the master, wardens, and commonalty of the Mystery of Skinners of London, for the time being, should be called, and they were thereby constituted governors of the possessions, revenues, and goods of the said school, with full power and authority to nominate and appoint the said master and under-master of the said school so often as the said school should be void of a master and under-master; and that the same governors, with the advice of the warden and fellows of the college of All Souls, in the University of Oxford, for the time being, from time to time, should, and might be able to make, if need should be, fit and wholesome statutes and ordinances in writing, concerning the order, government, and direction of the master and under-master, and scholars of the school aforesaid, for the time being, and other things touching and concerning the same school, and the order, government, preservation, and disposition of the revenues to be appointed for the same school, which same statutes and ordinances it was ordained should be inviolably observed from time to time for ever: and the said Sir Andrew Judd, in his lifetime, in exercise of the power given to him by the said charter, made certain orders or statutes in writing, which he appointed to be observed for the government of the said Free Grammar School.

A suit having been instituted in the Court of Chancery, touching the school estates, and the application thereof, and for the establishment of the school, by the decree made therein, dated the 16th day of March 1820, it was, amongst other things, referred to one of the masters of the said Court, to approve of a scheme for the future establishment of the Free Grammar School, having regard to the then annual rents of the school estates.

By the report of the said master, dated the 24th day of December 1824, he certified that, having considered of the several schemes which had been laid before him, together with the said letters patent, and the said orders or statutes of the said Sir Andrew Judd, he had thought it expedient and proper to consider, that the privileges of the said Free Grammar School should not only extend to boys and youths whose parents or guardians should bonâ fide reside within the town and parish of Tunbridge, but also to such boys and youths whose parents or guardians should reside in any other parish or place in the county of Kent, within the distance of ten miles by the ordinary roads and ways from the church of the said town of Tunbridge; which boys and youths should be considered as constituting the first class: and, that there might be a sufficient number of youths to receive the exhibitions therein-after mentioned, he had thought it proper and advisable, that there should be another, or second class, comprehending all boys and youths of the United Kingdom of Great Britain, who being qualified under the regulations therein-after mentioned, should be capable of receiving the said exhibitions: and the said master further certified, that he had thought it requisite and proper to alter and enlarge several of the said orders of the said Sir Andrew Judd, and that certain other of the orders of the said Sir Andrew Judd appeared to him to be inapplicable or unnecessary for the future government of the said school: and the said master being of opinion that exhibitions for youths going from the said school to one of the universities of Oxford or Cambridge, might be most beneficially established, he had prepared such articles as appeared to him to be necessary for effectuating that purpose; and also such other new articles as from the then present circumstances appeared to him to be necessary for the future government and establishment of the said Free Grammar School; and that the several articles therein-after set forth in his said report formed, and he had approved of the same as, a proper scheme for the future establishment of the said Free Grammar School, from Christmas 1824, having regard to the then annual rents of the said school estates.

By orders of the Lord High Chancellor, dated respectively the 18th of July 1825 and 12th June 1844, it was directed that the aforesaid report as to the scheme for the future establishment of the Free Grammar School at Tunbridge should be varied in certain articles of the same scheme, and that the scheme for the establishment of such Free Grammar School should be, and consist of the several articles therein-after mentioned, reserving at all times to the Skinners' Company,—they taking the advice of All Souls, College, in the University of Oxford,—the power to make such regulations respecting the said Free Grammar School, as having relation to the plan thereby directed to be carried into execution, are not inconsistent with the said plan; and also such regulations, as having no relation to the said plan, the said Company had authority to make, prior to the institution of the said suit; the same being made with the advice of the said college, where it was requisite for the Company to act with such advice, and without it, where such advice was not necessary, as in the said order is mentioned.

THE SCHEME.

For the future establishment of the Free Grammar School, as directed to be carried into effect by the said order of the Court of Chancery, is as follows, viz. :—

I.

That the master of the said school be whole of body, well reported, Master of Arts in degree, if it may be, chosen by the Company of Skinners of London, to whose direction the founder committed the governance of his said school and order, always foreseen that the schoolmaster and usher teach the grammar approved by the King or Queen's Majesty, and that the schoolmaster be first allowed by the ordinary, and by examination found meet, both for his learning, and dexterity in teaching, as also for his honest conversation, and for right understanding of God's true religion, set forth by public authority, whereunto he shall stir and move his scholars, and also shall prescribe to them such sentences of Holy Scripture as shall be most expedient to induce them to godliness.

II.

That the master always appoint and elect the usher, as often as the place shall be void, whom, so appointed, and presented to the said Company of Skinners, they are to admit, not knowing sufficient cause to refuse him.

III.

That the master and usher have their houses and wages during their lives, not sufficiently convicted to have neglected their office; and if it shall happen that either of them be so convicted at any time, yet that he be not straightly removed, but gently warned and admonished, and so for the second time; and that then, if, after the second admonition, he do not amend and diligently follow his office and charge in the school that he, so offending, be utterly expelled and removed, and another to be received into his room, and to be done with all diligence by the said Company of Skinners.

IV.

That the master and usher shall neither of them be a common gamester and haunter of taverns; nor by any extraordinary or unnecessary expenses in apparel, or otherwise, become an infamy to the school, and an evil example to the young, to whom, in all points, they ought to show themselves an example of an honest, continent, and godly behaviour.

V.

If it happen that the master or usher be visited with a common disease, as the ague, or any other curable sickness, that he, so visited, be tolerated for the time, and his wages fully allowed, so that his office be discharged by his sufficient deputy; but if they or any of them fall into any infectious or incurable disease, especially through their own evil behaviour, then that he, so infected, be removed and put away, and another to be chosen in his room.

VI.

If it happen that the master or usher, after long time spent in the school, do wax impotent, and unable, through age or other infirmities, to endure the travail and labour necessary in the school, that he be favourably borne withal, so that his office be satisfied by his sufficient deputy, although he himself be not present,

VII.

That the master or usher be at liberty to remain single, or to marry, or to take priesthood, so that he trouble not himself with any care or worldly business that might hinder his office in the school.

VIII.

That if any controversy happen to arise or grow between the master and usher at any time, that they then refer the whole matter to the master and wardens of the Company of Skinners in London, and to their successors; and they to stand to their order and determination in the same, upon pain of deprivation from their office.

IX.

If there happen to be such contagious sickness as the plague, or such like, that the school cannot continue, yet, nevertheless, both the master and usher shall have their wages fully paid, being always in readiness to teach as soon as God shall make such contagious sickness to cease.

X.

If it shall happen that the master or usher shall die at any time in their office, their executors or administrators shall receive so much money as for his or their service was due at the hour of his or their death, and in such case the room to be supplied with as much convenient speed as may be; and, for the vacant time, the survivor to satisfy for the whole charge, and to receive so much as is due for the time.

XI.

That the master keep a register, and in the same write the name and surname of every scholar at his entering; and that the same master of the same school shall make a just and true account to the said master and wardens of Skinners, or two of them, yearly, of all such scholars as shall have been received into the school, and the names of such as shall have departed thence, so that a true account may be kept thereof.

XII.

Acknowledging God to be the only author of all knowledge and virtue, it is declared by the said Sir Andrew Judd, that the master and usher of the school, with their scholars, at seven of the clock, do, first devoutly kneeling on their knees, pray to Almighty God, according to the form to be by the master prescribed.

XIII.

That the master, twice in a month at least, examine those that be under the usher's hands, to understand how they profit and go forward in their learning.

XIV.

That the usher practise and use such order and form in teaching as the master shall think good.

XV.

That all the scholars, upon Sabbaths and Holydays, resort in due time to Divine Service in the parish church of Tunbridge, the master and usher, or one of them at the least, being present to oversee them; and that the master and usher do duly, every Monday in the morning, call to reckoning all such of his scholars as shall either absent themselves from the church, or come tardy to it, or otherwise use themselves not reverently there in praying, every one of them having a Prayer Book, in Latin or English, according to the said master's appointment.

XVI.

Considering that virtue and knowledge, by praise and reward, are in all estates maintained and increased, and especially in youth, it is declared by the said Sir Andrew Judd, that in every year, once, to wit on the day of the visitation of the school herein-after appointed, there be kept in this school disputations upon questions provided by the master, from one of the clock at afternoon, till even song time, at which disputation the master is to desire the vicar of the town, with one or two others of knowledge, or more, dwelling nigh, to be present in the school, if it please them to hear the same:—the disputations ended, to determine which three of the whole number have done best by the judgment of the master and learned hearers; and that the first allowed have a pen of silver, whole of gilt; the second a pen of silver parcel gilt; the third a pen of silver, for their rewards; and that the whole company go in order decently, by two and two, into the parish church, the three victors to come last next to the master and usher, each of them having a garland upon their heads, provided for the purpose, and in the church, then and there to kneel or stand in some convenient place, to be approved by the discretion of the warden and master of the school, and to say or sing some psalms or hymns, with a collect, for the preservation of the King's or Queen's Majesty, and to have some honourable remembrance of their founder, so to be appointed and devised by the master.*

XXVII.

That it shall not be lawful for the master or usher, or any of their friends, at going away from their office, to spoil beforehand, or take away from thence, any such things as are set up and fastened in their house or houses, and planted in their orchards or gardens, but freely to leave the same with as good will as for their time they have enjoyed the use thereof.

XXVIII.

That the Company of Skinners have an inventory in their hands of all things that appertain unto the school, be they books or implements in the master's or usher's house, so that at the departing they may be staid to the school's behalf.

XIX.

That there shall be truly written, word for word, two copies of these ordinances, the one ever to remain in the hands of the Skinners, the other in the custody of the master of the said school; or at such time as the master's place is vacant, to remain in the usher's hands, so that they both may thereby learn what appertaineth to their office, and also that on their admission they shall promise, before honest witnesses, to keep and see executed all such points as concern them and their scholars, to the uttermost of their power, during all the time they remain in the office.

XX.

That both the master and usher shall endeavour themselves to the continual profiting of all the said scholars of the said grammar school, and of their parts faithfully observe and keep all the points and articles herein-before and herein-after contained, as by the same orders more plainly doth and may appear; and finally, if the said master or usher shall manifestly neglect or break any such orders, being thereof twice admonished by the said master and wardens, governors aforesaid, and, notwithstanding, continue the breach thereof, that then it shall be lawful to the said master and wardens, governors aforesaid, to expel and put out the party so offending, and to place another able man in his room or office.

XXI.

That the house and buildings for the master of the said school shall be made to accommodate, and shall be maintained in a state fit for the accommodation of his family and scholars; and that a suitable house and building shall be provided and maintained for the usher, his family, and scholars.

XXII.

That the master of the said school shall not take, or board, diet, or lodge in his house, or rooms, above the number of sixty scholars, inclusive of the twelve scholars mentioned in the sixth original order of Sir Andrew Judd; and that the usher shall not take above the number of forty scholars, inclusive of the eight scholars mentioned in the said sixth original order of Sir Andrew Judd, unless it shall seem convenient to the Company of Skinners that the said master and usher, upon occasion may have a greater number at board and lodging with them.

XXIII.

That no boy be admitted into the school, who shall not at the time of the application for admission, be of the age of eight years.

XXIV.

That no boy be admitted into the said school, who shall not, previously thereto, be able to write competently, and read English perfectly; and the master of the said school, for the time being, shall examine every proposed scholar, and admit him, if he shall be so qualified, but not otherwise.

XXV.

That no boy shall be allowed to continue in the said school after he shall have completed the nineteenth year of his age.

XXVI.

That any housekeeper of the town of Tunbridge shall be permitted to receive not exceeding thirty boys as boarders, who shall be scholars of the said Free Grammar School, provided such inhabitant shall obtain from the said governors a written license for that purpose, upon the production of testimonials from the master as to the moral character and fitness of the applicant for the charge of such boarders, and that the said license be renewed annually by the said governors.

XXVII.

That the salary of twenty pounds, given to the master by the said Sir Andrew Judd, be increased to the sum of five hundred pounds per annum, clear of all deductions; and that the salary given by the said Sir Andrew Judd to the usher be increased to the sum of two hundred pounds per annum, clear of all deductions; the said salaries to be paid half-yearly, at Christmas and Midsummer, by the said governors, out of the rents of the said estates; such respective salaries to commence from Midsummer Day, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-four.

XXVIII.

That the annual sum of seven pounds ten shillings be paid by every boy, who shall not be in the first of the aforesaid two classes described in the master's report to the scheme, to the master, and the annual sum of three pounds to the usher, for his instruction at the said school: such payments to be respectively made by the parents or guardians of the said boys.

XXIX.

That sixteen exhibitions of one hundred pounds a year each be founded, as part of the establishment of the said school, for the boys thereof, who shall go off to the University of Oxford or Cambridge, under the regulations herein-after set forth.

N.B.—By an order of the Court of Chancery, dated 14th August 1828, these exhibitions are reduced from four to three in number every year, until a certain debt incurred for erecting the school buildings is satisfied.

XXX.

That such boys as shall be of the first class of scholars, and shall be duly qualified to receive such exhibitions, shall be preferred to those of the second class. Provided such boys have been continuously of the first class for five years, or fifteen school terms preceding; but no boy shall be eligible to an exhibition unless he shall have been a scholar of the said school for five years, or fifteen school terms.

XXXI.

That the boys now in the school, whether above or under nineteen years of age, who shall respectively be applicants to go off to college upon the said exhibitions prior to Christmas, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-nine, shall, in case such boys respectively shall, at the time of such application, have been five years in the said school, immediately after such application, be examined by such person or persons as the governors shall appoint; and, if found duly qualified, such boys shall respectively be thereupon presented by the governors to such exhibitions, provided that a number not exceeding two be presented in any one year.

XXXII.

That until Christmas, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-nine, the said governors shall appoint an examiner to attend at the annual visitation, for the purpose of examining all the boys in the school.

* See 14th additional rule.

XXXIII.

That upon the annual visitation, from and after Christmas, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-nine, an examiner shall be appointed by the governors for the examination of the boys and youths who shall be candidates for the said exhibitions.

XXXIV.

That the said examiner shall be of not less than seven years' standing at, and a resident member of, one of the universities of Oxford or Cambridge, and have taken the degree of Master of Arts, or Bachelor of Civil Law, and that application be made by the said governors to the warden and fellows of the college of All Souls, Oxford, to nominate such examiner, if the said warden and fellows shall think fit.

XXXV.

That the said examiner do, on every annual visitation, publicly examine all the boys and youths in the said school, to ascertain their progress in learning.

XXXVI.

That the said examiner shall subsequently examine in the schoolroom all such boys and youths as shall become candidates for exhibitions, and shall report to the governor and master respectively, the names of all such of the said last-mentioned boys and youths in the said classes respectively, as he shall find qualified to stand for exhibitions.

XXXVII.

That the said examiner shall in such report arrange the names of the said candidates in the said respective classes, according to their respective excellence in classical learning.

XXXVIII.

That from and after Christmas, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-nine, the said governors shall yearly present or give, at their said visitation, the exhibitions to any four of the boys and youths of the said first class, who shall be reported by the said examiner as qualified for the same; and in case there shall not be found in the said first class boys and youths qualified as aforesaid for an university education, to receive the said four exhibitions, then the said governors shall present or give all or so many of the said annual exhibitions as the boys and youths in the first class shall not receive, to any of the boys and youths of the second class, who may be reported by the said examiner as qualified to receive such exhibitions.

XXXIX.

That the said examiner shall be paid the sum of fifteen pounds fifteen shillings; and also the further sum of fifteen pounds fifteen shillings for his travelling and other expenses; and that such payments shall be provided for by the said governors out of the said estates.

XL.

That the said exhibitions shall be held by the said exhibitioners for four years, from the commencement of the university term next after the presentation of such exhibitioner, and for such portion of the said four years only, as they shall be bonâ fide resident at one of the universities during the usual terms; and in case any of the said exhibitions shall cease before the expiration of such period as aforesaid, then the said exhibitions, for the residue of the said period, shall be given by the governors of the said school, for the time being, to any youths then, or formerly members of the said school, who shall have undergone the aforesaid examinations, and proved themselves qualified for the exhibitions, although they failed in obtaining the same, and who shall be then resident members of one of the said universities, and be under the degree of Bachelor of Arts; always preferring the youths of the first class to those of the second class.

XLI.

That, it appearing from the list of boys and youths now of the said school, and of the times of their entrance, that a small number only can be qualified to be candidates for the said exhibitions prior to Christmas, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-nine, and that the full number of exhibitions intended to be hereby established cannot, at the soonest, be filled until four years from that period, the unappropriated surplus funds, and the surplus of the general account of the rents of the said estates, shall from time to time be applicable to the expense which will attend the alteration and repairs of the said house of the master, and of that intended for the usher, and of the schoolroom and other buildings, and of the garden and other grounds to be enjoyed therewith respectively, and the purchase of suitable books for a library, and increase of the number of exhibitions, or rewards to the said exhibitioners, who may distinguish themselves at either of the said universities, or for the establishment of other branches of classical education, or for any other purposes for the better establishment of the said school, as the court shall from time to time think proper to order and direct; and that for the purposes aforesaid, the said governors, or any persons interested in the said school, are to be at liberty to apply to the court as they may be advised.

XLII.

That all the assistant masters, which may be necessary for the boys of the second class, shall be provided by the master, and be paid by him, and the usher, in the proportions of their respective salaries.

XLIII.

That in case the scholars of the said school, belonging to the first class, shall amount to the number of forty, there shall be provided at the expense of the said estates, one assistant master, to assist in the education of such boys; and so an additional assistant master shall be provided for every additional twenty scholars, unless it shall appear to the Skinners' Company, with the advice of All Souls College, that an assistant master should be appointed for a less number of scholars in the first class than forty.

XLIV.

That every such assistant master requisite for the boys of the first class, shall be a member of the established religion of England, and, if such can be obtained, shall have taken a degree at either of the universities of Oxford or Cambridge.

XLV.

That the said master shall have the appointment and removal of all assistant masters, subject always to the visitatorial power of the governors.

XLVI.

That every assistant master shall be at liberty to take boys, scholars of the said school, as boarders in his house, not exceeding twenty in number.

XLVII.

That the salary of every such assistant master shall not exceed eighty-four pounds per annum.

XLVIII.

That a sum not exceeding twenty pounds per annum be allowed to the master for supplying the schoolroom with coals.

XLIX.

That the annual sum of two hundred pounds be allowed to the governors for the expenses of the visitation of the said school.

L.

That neither the master, usher, or assistant masters of the said school shall absent themselves therefrom, except at the periods of, and during the vacation.

LI.

That rules and regulations as to the hours of attendance in the school of the master, usher, and assistant masters, and boys, or youths, and the fixed holidays to be given, shall be submitted by the master of the said school to the said governors, during the recess at Christmas, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-four, who are, before the expiration of such recess, to settle the same; and such governors are, from time to time thereafter, to alter or vary such rules or regulations, as circumstances may require, and in the settlement of such rules and regulations, and in any subsequent alteration or variation thereof, the said governors are to have regard to the twentieth and twenty-first articles in the statutes of Sir Andrew Judd, in the said report set forth, and the general purpose of the founder as therein expressed.

LII.

That the said rules and regulations, when settled by the said governors, and as the same shall be from time to time altered or varied by them, as in the next preceding article is mentioned, shall be considered as, and be part of the scheme for the future establishment of the said Free Grammar School, and shall be from time to time added to the other articles herein set forth as forming the scheme for the future establishment of the said school, and the future conduct and government thereof, and the same shall be printed with such other articles, as is mentioned in the next or following article.

LIII.

That the governors do provide printed copies of the articles approved for the future government of the said school, to be distributed at their said annual visitation in the said school.

LIV.

That instead of the annual visitation of the governors as directed by the twenty-seventh original order of the said Sir Andrew Judd, being on the first or second day after May-day, it shall hereafter be held on the Tuesday next preceding the day on which the summer vacation in each year is appointed to commence.

ADDITIONAL RULES AND REGULATIONS, SETTLED BY THE GOVERNORS, VIZ. :

I.

That the master and usher, and such assistant masters as may be hereafter appointed, and all the scholars of the said school, shall daily attend at the school, from Lady Day till the 5th of November, at a quarter before seven o'clock, and from the 5th of November till Lady Day, at half-past seven o'clock in the morning, and prayers being read on their first entrance into the school, according to the 12th article, they shall continue in the school till half-past eight o'clock.

II.

That after breakfast, the master and usher, and assistant masters, and all the scholars shall return to the school at half-past nine, and shall continue therein until half-past twelve o'clock on whole school-days, and until one o'clock on half-holidays.

III.

That on whole school-days, the master and usher, and assistant masters, and all the scholars shall return to the school after dinner at two o'clock in the afternoon, and shall continue therein till four o'clock, and that then prayers shall be read according to the form to be by the master prescribed.

IV.

That the master and usher, and all assistant masters shall remain in the school, diligently teaching, reading, and interpreting, during the several hours and times above prescribed, and that neither the master, usher, or any assistant master shall depart, or be absent from the school during such hours or times, without urgent and sufficient cause, and that in anywise either the master or usher shall be present always.

V.

That the master be at liberty to give twelve holidays in the course of the year, the following to form part of the same, viz., the founder's day, the King's birthday, and the gunpowder plot.

VI.

That a certificate of the entry and admission of every boy into the school, in the form subjoined, be forwarded to the governors by the master of the school, on the same day (or following day at farthest to that) on which such entry and admission take place, viz. :

To the Master and Wardens of the Skinners' Company, Governors of Tunbridge School.

This is to certify that aged years, son of and of in the county of was this day entered and admitted a scholar of Tunbridge School as a boy.

Dated this day of 18 .
(Signed)

Master.

VII.

That no boy leave the school before the day and time appointed by the master for the commencement of the Christmas, Easter, and Midsummer holidays, except upon urgent and unavoidable necessity, and with permission from the master under his own signature.

VIII.

That no boy remain away from the school after the day appointed for his return by the master, except in case of illness or unavoidable necessity, of which notice must have been given to the master; as the active duties of the school will commence on the next day.

IX.

That during the half-year no boy be absent from the school without the especial permission of the master; and that a written notice be given to the master by the parent or guardian of every boy, whenever absence from school may be required.

X.

That all instances of disregard of the above orders be reported to the governors, who may direct that the half-year in which the offence shall be committed shall not be allowed to form part of the five years necessary to qualify a boy to become a candidate for an exhibition.

XI.

That no boy after his admission into the school, shall be permitted to be absent from the same, except at the stated periods of the holidays, unless prevented by illness; of which a certificate, signed by a medical attendant, must be sent to the master, under the penalty of his being disqualified from becoming a candidate for an exhibition.

XII.

That the vacations be at three periods of the year, viz., at Christmas, Easter, and Midsummer; that the Christmas holidays do commence on the Thursday before Christmas Day, and that the boys do return on that day four weeks;—that the Easter holidays do commence on the day before Good Friday, and that the boys do return on that day two weeks;—that the Midsummer holidays do commence on the last Thursday in July, and that the boys do return on that day six weeks.

XIII.

That in all cases of extreme impropriety of conduct on the part of any boy, which may in the opinion of the master render it advisable to expel the boy from the school, the master shall in the first instance have the power of suspending him from attending in the school, and after reporting the case to the governors, shall, with their sanction, proceed to expulsion.

XIV.

That the gilt, parcel gilt, and silver pens be awarded to the three boys who shall, in the judgment of the examiner, have done best in the production of Greek verses, Latin verses, or Latin essays, so that no one boy may receive more than one of the pens as a prize at the same visitation in accordance with the statutes. All other prizes (except those given by the master of the school) to be awarded by the governors, according to the respective merits of the boys, as reported by the examiner.

The Merchant Taylors Company under the style of "The Master and Wardens of the Merchant Taylors of the Fraternity of St. John the Baptist, in the City of London," consists of—

The Master and four Wardens and Court of Assistants.

The freedom of the Company is obtained by patrimony, redemption, and servitude. The number of freemen is not known, but they are supposed to diminish in number.

ALSTON'S CHARITY.

Judith Alston in 1687 gave to the Company 300*l.* to pay,—

	£	s.	d.
To the vicar of St. Giles', Cripplegate, for the use of the poor -	5	0	0
To the vicar of St. Mary, Whitechapel -	5	0	0

The bonds stated by the Commissioners of Inquiry to have been given for these sums are probably not in existence, and if they were, would not, I apprehend, be available by the successive incumbents. No special investment exists in respect of the donation, but it forms a charge on the corporate funds.

The three sums of 5*l.* per annum are paid to the three incumbents upon their several receipts.

DR. JOHN ANDREW'S EXHIBITION.

Dr. John Andrew, by his will of the 15th May, 1747, directed all his stock in the Bank of England to be sold out and invested in the purchase of a freehold estate, and that the rents (after the payment of certain life estates) should be paid to Trinity Hall, Cambridge.

And he directed that four new scholarships from the Merchant Taylors' School should be founded, each to receive 5*l.* quarterly, and that the remainder of the rents should be invested in Government securities until there should be raised 20,000*l.* to be laid out in additional buildings to the said college; and after such 20,000*l.* should be raised, he directed that four new civil law fellowships should be erected and added to their number.

And the testator gave to his brother William 1,050*l.* for the support of his son John for life, and after his decease to the said college.

And he gave to his brother's son William the dividends of 500*l.* Bank Stock for life, the said stock to be transferred to the said college.

The arrangements for carrying out this bequest between the representatives of the testator and the Merchant Taylors' Company were made under a decree of the Court of Chancery of the 21st June, 1802 which is set forth in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 17, page 453). The sum agreed to be accepted by the Company in satisfaction of the bequest was accumulated to the sum of 10,140*l.* Consols at the time of the last enquiry, and at the end of 1861 the amount of the capital applicable to this charity was 13,446*l.* 16*s.* Consols, producing an annual dividend of 403*l.* 8*s.* 2*d.*

There are six exhibitioners of 60*l.* each at St. John's College, Oxford. They are chosen from the Merchant Taylors' School according to rule set forth in the indenture of the 6th February 1801, which provided that the money should be paid to the Company for establishing six scholarships or exhibitions so soon as the funds and accumulating interest would admit thereof at 50*l.* per annum each, to be elected from the said school, and taken out of the bench or table thereof from among such as had been four years at least scholars in the said school, or from such other persons as had been at the bench or table and in the school four years, but had left the said school, not under 16 nor above 20 years of age at the time of election, who were to continue 12 years and not longer, and to be accounted civil law scholars or civil law exhibitioners, with such other provision respecting their residence and accommodation and studies at college as therein mentioned.

The following were the proposals agreed to between the Company and the President and Scholars of St. John's College, Oxford, which received the sanction of the Court of Chancery.

That the sum of 2,610*l.* cash, with interest at 5 per cent., and 2,666*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* Consols, to be allotted out of the funds in the name of the accountant-general in trust in the cause to remain in the name of the accountant-general, and the dividends to be paid to the Company for establishing six scholarships of the said College, as soon as the said funds and accumulating interest will admit, and that such number of the said six scholarships be in the meantime established at 50*l.* per annum each, as the Company should think proper.

Such scholars to be elected at the Feast of St. Barnabas by the said Company, with the assent of the President or Vice-President and two senior Fellows of the said College, in the chapel of the grammar school of the said Company, immediately after the election is had and made of the scholars directed by Sir Thomas White, Knight, deceased, formerly one of the assistants of the said fraternity, to be elected from the said Merchant Taylors' School and admitted into the said College, and such scholars to be taken out of the bench or table of the said school who have been scholars of the said school four years at least, or from such other persons who have been at the bench or table and in the school for four years, but have left the said school, not under 16 or above 20 years of age at the time of election, and to continue 12 years and not longer, and to be accounted civil law exhibitioners.

To remain unmarried and to reside at the College for the same time in every year as the commoners of the said College are required to reside, and to proceed regularly to their law degrees, and that after the first four years, during the remainder of the term for which they hold their scholarships, they shall reside at least 30 days in every year.

The scholars to be provided with residence within the College for the first four years, they paying for their rooms the same rent which the commoners do, and to observe all the rules of the College; and the scholarships to become vacant in case of any scholar entering into holy orders, marrying, or entering into any employment incompatible with the practice of the civil law, or by resignation of such scholar or expulsion by the College, or by quitting the said College, or on any other account; on a vacancy to a scholarship the College to certify the vacancy to the said Master and Wardens.

In case of a vacancy of a scholar not exceeding six months, the pension to go to the immediate succeeding scholar, and if longer than six months to constitute a part of the accumulated fund.

These rules have not undergone any change, but the stipends have been increased to 60*l.* each.

After paying the amount of these scholarships to the holders annually, or so far as they are full, the surplus income is added to the capital from which, according to the present disposition of the Company, it is intended to increase the annual stipends, as the fund may hereafter admit.

They are at present full, and on the occasion of a vacancy the election is made in June.

There is not an election annually.

It appears by the following table that during the 10 years there has been on an average less than two annually:—

1853	-	3	1858	-	Nil.
1854	-	2	1859	-	4
1855	-	Nil.	1860	-	4
1856	-	1	1861	-	2
1857	-	Nil.	1862	-	Nil.

EXHIBITIONS FOUNDED BY DR. JOHN ANDREW.

By an Order of the Board, dated 10th December 1875, it was provided by way of scheme that the annual value of each of these exhibitions which should thenceforth be five in number, should be raised to the sum of 86*l.*, and that the same should be tenable for not more than five years, and that the Company should have power from time to time, subject to the approval of the Board, to frame rules and regulations for the election and examination of candidates for such exhibitions or scholarships.

The following regulations were sanctioned by an Order of the Board, dated 19th May 1876, namely—

1. The election of candidates for the said exhibitions or scholarships, which are henceforth to be five in number, of the value of 86*l.* a year each, and tenable for a period of not more than five years, shall be made by the Master, Wardens, and Court of Assistants of the Merchant Taylors' Company, and the President or Vice-President, and two Fellows of St. John's College, Oxford, or such of them as shall be present at and take part in the election on St. Barnabas' Day at Merchant Taylors' School, immediately after the election of Sir Thomas White's scholars.

2. At the date of election, candidates must be in the head form of the Merchant Taylors' School, and not under 16 or above 20 years of age, and must have been in the school at least four years.

3. Candidates shall be examined by examiners appointed for the purpose by the said Master and Wardens; and in order to be eligible for election must satisfy the examiners that they have attained such a knowledge of classics and mathematics as would enable them to pass the responsions examination in their first term at Oxford, and the election shall be made from the candidates who satisfy that test according to their proficiency in history and modern languages, except that, in any case in which there shall be no duly qualified candidate whose proficiency in history and modern languages is considered to entitle him to election, a candidate may be elected for proficiency in any branch of study.

4. The exhibitions are to be paid half-yearly at Christmas and Midsummer, and each exhibitioner will be required to become and remain a member of St. John's College, Oxford, and must, during the first four years after he shall have proceeded to the University, or until he shall have taken some degree in the University, produce before any half-yearly payment on account of the exhibition is made, a certificate from the President or Vice-President of that College of his residence, good conduct, and satisfactory progress, down to the end of the academical term next preceding the time fixed for such payment.

5. The exhibitions will be tenable for five years from the date of election, but any exhibition will be rendered vacant by the resignation or expulsion from the College of the exhibitioner, or by the exhibitioner's name being taken off the books of the College, or by his ceasing to reside during an entire academical year without good cause to be allowed by the President or Vice-President of the College, and any exhibition may be declared vacated by the Master and Wardens, if the exhibitioner shall fail to produce such certificate from the President or Vice-President of the College as is required by the last regulation, or in such case the Master and Wardens may hold the exhibitioner disentitled to any half-yearly payments of the exhibition without depriving him of the exhibition altogether.

6. Pending the establishment of a regular recurring vacancy in each year, the Master and Wardens reserve to themselves the power of suspending the election to any exhibition over and above one in each year.

7. The Master and Wardens reserve to themselves the power to add to the corpus of the exhibition fund any unapplied income that may arise, under the last preceding regulation or otherwise, from any exhibitions which during any period cease to be payable wholly or in part, and to increase the value of the exhibitions hereafter at their discretion out of the improved income.

BARKER'S CHARITY.

Reynold Barker, by deed of the 21st September 1608, granted to the Company certain lands at Bow, Essex, to bestow the rents amongst the poor almsmen and almswomen in the Company's almshouses.

The estate of this Charity consists of about one acre and two roods of land in the parish of Stratford-le-Bow, bounded by the high road from London to Stratford on the south, and property belonging to the Corporation of London to the N.N.W. and N.E., and intersected by the River Lea.

It is at present let in two portions:—

	£	s.	d.
1.—The houses (being a public house and cottages) situated on the high road, are demised by a lease of the 21st March 1858 to Messrs. Charrington, Head, and Co., Brewers, for 21 years, from Lady Day 1858, at - - - - -	150	0	0
2.—The remainder, consisting of the land at the back abutting on the river and dock, and on which warehouses and buildings have been erected, are demised to Messrs. Howards, Manufacturing Chemists, for 21 years, from Lady Day 1858 - - - - -	100	0	0

The sum of 250*l.* a year is carried to the Almshouse Account without any deduction.

BIGG'S CHARITY.

Walter Bigg, by an indenture of the 6th June 1659, assigned to the Company a messuage in St. Giles-

CHARITY OF WALTER BIGG.

This property, known as Nos. 3, 4, and 5, Little Denmark Street, St. Giles, is now (1882) let to Messrs. Crosse and Blackwell, at the rent of 350*l.* a year.

In consequence of the increase of the annual income available for the benefit of the poor freemen of the Company, by an order of the Board, dated 28th July 1874, it was directed by way of scheme that the annual pensions payable to four poor freemen of the Company

BLUNDELL'S CHARITY.

Peter Blundell, by his will of the 9th June 1599, gave to the Company 150*l.* to purchase lands, &c., out of which 2*l.* was directed to be paid to the poor prisoners in Newgate, London.

The rentcharge of 2*l.* is upon a house in Threadneedle Street, and is paid annually to Mr. Temple at the Guildhall, for administration by the Corporation of London.

BOONE'S CHARITY.

A full account of this endowment is set forth in my report of the 2nd July 1862, made on the occasion of the application of the Company for a new scheme in consequence of the increased income of this Charity.

in-the-Fields, Middlesex, for the remainder of a term of 1,000 years, in trust to bestow the rents thereof in manner following:—

To 4 poor men of the Company -	10	0	0
To 10 poor persons of Wallingford, Berks - - - - -	10	0	0

The property is situated at the back of Great and Little Denmark Street, Soho, in the parish of St. Giles, and is let by lease of 11 July 1809 to Joseph Seger, for a term of 61 years, from Midsummer 1806, at a rent of 80*l.*

It appears to be entered from a court in Little Denmark Street, through which there is an access into Lloyd's Court. It is bounded on the east by Little Denmark Street, on the north by the backs of the houses in Great Denmark Street, on the south by Lloyd's Court, and on the west by houses at the back of Crown Street.

The distribution of the rent is made pro rata according to the original gift of 30*l.* a year.

The sum thus appropriated to the poor of the Company amounts to 26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, which is given to four pensioners, being free of the Company, in the sum of 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* each.

The pensioners are not elected under 50 years of age, and being once elected are continued as pensioners unless removed for a good cause. The pensions may be held with some other pension from other Charities.

The remaining two-thirds, amounting to 53*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, is annually paid over to the treasurer of the Wallingford Municipal Charities, and is suffered to be applied by them, according to the terms of the foundation, amongst the poor, and for the grammar school.

should be increased from 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* to 12*l.* each, and that the residue of the income thereof, which should remain after providing for the payment of such augmented pensions, should be applied in paying yearly pensions of 10*l.* each, to be awarded under such reasonable regulations as might be prescribed by the Company unto deserving poor freemen, or the widows or orphan daughters of such freemen, all of whom should be called "Bigg's Pensioners."

The estate is situated in the parish of Lee, and consists mainly of 22*a.* 3*r.* 26*p.* of land, bounded partly by the road from London to Eltham (through Lewisham) and partly by the Church Lane, which separates it from the almshouses of the Company.

There is also a small detached plot at the corner of Church Lane, Lee Road, and the lands which are occupied by the Chapel, almshouses, and gardens which face the same road from London to Eltham.

The main portion of the property has lately been let under an agreement for building to Messrs. Todd, builders, under which leases, which have received the sanction of the Board, have been granted as follows:—

* In consequence of the increased income of the Charity arising from the development of the Trust Estate, application was made to the Commissioners, and by an Order of the Board, dated 27th November 1868, a scheme was established for its future regulation and management. The provisions of the scheme are as follows:—

Boone's Charity Scheme.

1. This Charity and the funds and endowments thereof shall be managed and administered by the Master and Wardens of the Merchant Taylors' Company of the City of London as the trustees thereof in conformity with the provisions of this scheme.

2. The trustees, with the sanction of the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, shall be at liberty to rebuild the almshouses and chapel belonging to the Charity upon sites and in accordance with plans and estimates to be approved by the said Commissioners, and to apply the sum at their disposal arising from the accumulations of income of the Charity (so far as the same will extend) towards the cost of such new buildings, and to provide the remainder of such cost by means of a loan or loans to be raised and borrowed by the trustees either upon the security of the Charity estate or a competent part thereof or in such other manner as the said Commissioners shall sanction or approve.

In the reconstruction of the chapel, accommodation shall be provided primarily for the almspeople and the officers and other persons belonging or attached to the Charity, and subject thereto for the lessees or tenants of the Charity estate and other persons resident in the locality, to whom the privilege of attending the services in the chapel may be conceded by the trustees upon such terms and conditions, and subject to such reasonable regulations as they shall from time to time think fitting and expedient.

The pew rents (if any) to be reserved by the trustees in exercise of the foregoing authority for sittings in the said chapel, shall be applicable towards the maintenance of the chapel and its services and the payment of the salaries of the chaplain and clerk, and subject thereto to the general purposes of the Charity. One half at least, however, of the pews and sittings in the chapel shall be free.

3. The clear amount of the annual income of the Charity, after the payment thereof of the cost of repairing and insuring the almshouse buildings and chapel and all other necessary and proper outgoings and expenses of management and receiver's commission for collecting the rents shall be applied by the trustees first in the payment of the annual interest of the principal sum or sums (if any) that may for the time being be due and owing in respect of any such loan or loans

RALPH BOLTON'S CHARITY.

Ralph Bolton, by a deed poll of the 27th February 1648, gave to the said Company 466*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* on condition that they should pay yearly 20*l.* towards the maintenance of a free school at Audlem, in the county of Chester. The Company pay 20*l.* per annum to the master of the grammar school at Audlem, in Cheshire.

BRAYBROOKE'S CHARITY.

Gerard Braybrooke, by his will, gave 2*l.*, of which 6*s.* was for an obit, at St. Martin Outwich, and the residue for the Company.

The sum of 2*s.* 3*d.* a year, which is the entire charitable charge, is paid to the churchwardens of St. Martin Outwich annually.

as aforesaid, and in the establishment of a sinking fund for the repayment of such loan or loans within the period of 20 years from the date of their respective contraction, and subject thereto to the several purposes herein-after mentioned.

The Almshouses.

4. There shall in future be 12 almspeople belonging to the Charity, who shall respectively be single persons of either sex of good character, being of the age of 57 years at the least, who shall have resided in one of the parishes of Lee, Lewisham, or Greenwich, for not less than five years next preceding the time of election, and who shall not during that period have been in receipt of parochial relief, with a preference for those persons qualified as aforesaid who from misfortune or accident shall have fallen from better circumstances into indigence. Provided that candidates from the parish of Lee having the qualifications aforesaid shall in every case be entitled to be elected in preference to candidates from either of the parishes of Lewisham or Greenwich, and candidates from the said parish of Lewisham in preference to those from Greenwich. A married couple, having each of them the qualifications aforesaid, may in special cases be appointed in lieu of and with the same stipend and emoluments as a single almsperson, and the survivor of any such couple may continue to hold his or her appointment in the same manner as a single almsperson after the death or removal of the other of them.

5. The trustees may appoint one of the almspeople to be the superintendent. It shall be the duty of the superintendent, subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by the trustees, to assist the trustees and the chaplain in maintaining order and discipline amongst the almspeople, and to report to the chaplain, for the information of the trustees, any breach of rule or other occurrence calling for their notice or intervention. The superintendent shall be removable from his distinctive office at any time by the trustees at their discretion.

6. There shall be paid out of the income of the Charity to each of the almspeople a weekly stipend or sum of 10*s.*, and to the superintendent a further weekly sum of 4*s.* in addition to his stipend as an almsperson.

7. The almspeople shall be nominated and appointed in manner herein-after mentioned. There shall be a body of "nominators," who shall consist of the rector and churchwardens of the parish of Lee, and the respective incumbents and churchwardens of the districts of Christ Church and Holy Trinity in the same parish, and their respective successors for the time being, and of seven other persons resident in one of the said parishes of Lee, Lewisham, or Greenwich, who shall be elected by the vestry of the said parish of Lee, as soon as conveniently may be after the establishment of this scheme, and whose election shall be forthwith notified to the said trustees by the vestry clerk of the same parish. Upon the death, resignation, or removal from residence in one of the aforesaid parishes of any elective nominator, a fresh election of a nominator shall be made by the said vestry in a similar manner. The power of appointing the elective nominators shall lapse to and be exercisable by the trustees if the election by the vestry shall not have been fully made and notified to the trustees as aforesaid as to the first election within the period of three calendar months next after the establishment of this scheme, and as to any subsequent election within the like period next after the occurrence of the vacancy. In the event of any further division of the said parish of Lee the body of nominators may be increased by the addition of any official or other persons as may be directed by the order of the Charity Commissioners upon the application of the trustees.

8. A written notification of the occurrence of every vacancy in the almshouses shall be forthwith given by the trustees or their clerk to the vestry clerk of the parish of Lee, who shall thereupon convene a meeting of the nominators, stating in the notices convening the meeting the particulars of the existing vacancy or vacancies; and such nominators, or a quorum of them, consisting of not less than nine, present at such meeting, shall, by a resolution adopted by a majority at least of them, proceed to elect and nominate to the trustees for appointment some duly qualified person or persons to fill such vacancy or vacancies respectively; and the person or persons so elected and nominated shall be appointed accordingly by the trustees. In the event of the number of votes of the nominators upon an election being equal, the chairman to be elected by those present at such meeting to preside thereat shall have a double or casting vote.

If and so often as the nominators shall neglect or omit to elect and nominate to the trustees a duly qualified candidate for appointment to the almshouse as aforesaid within the period of three calendar months next after the transmission of the notice of the vacancy to the vestry clerk of the said parish, the trustees shall be at liberty to appoint some duly qualified person to fill such vacancy without any further communication with the nominators.

9. The trustees shall be at liberty to appoint a medical officer to attend upon the almspeople and to supply them with medicines and such medical appliances as may be necessary, at a yearly salary not exceeding 20*l.*, such salary to include the cost of such medicines and appliances. A special payment may, however, be made by the trustees to the medical officer in addition to his fixed annual salary as a remuneration to him for his attendance and services in any case requiring extraordinary care and treatment.

10. No almsperson shall be absent from the almshouse for a period exceeding 24 hours without the consent in writing of the chaplain, but in special cases such consent may, for any sufficient reason, be given retrospectively after the absence has occurred.

11. If any almsperson shall be guilty of insobriety, insubordination, breach of rules, or immoral or unbecoming conduct, or shall become disqualified from retaining his or her appointment, or if in any case it should appear that any almsperson has been appointed without having the required qualifications, the trustees, upon proof thereof to their satisfaction, may remove such almsperson and take possession of the tenement or room occupied by him or her, and may proceed to appoint another almsperson in his or her place, or in any such case (except that of disqualification) the trustees may, if they so think fit, suspend the payment of the stipend to the almsperson either wholly or in part, during such time as they shall think fit and expedient.

12. No almsperson shall be permitted to let or part with the possession of the room or rooms allotted to him or her, or to suffer any stranger, except in cases to be allowed by the trustees, of sickness or infirmity, to occupy the same or any part thereof.

13. The almspeople, unless prevented by sickness or other reasonable cause, shall attend divine service in the chapel once at least on every Sunday and on every Good Friday and Christmas Day.

The Chaplain.

14. There shall be a chaplain for the purposes of the charity, who shall be appointed by the trustees, and shall be a clergyman of the Church of England, in priest's orders.

15. The rector for the time being of the parish of Lee, if resident therein and willing to accept the office of chaplain, shall be preferred by the trustees in making any appointment to the office, unless the vacancy shall have been occasioned by the removal of such rector from the chaplaincy or his resignation of that office.

16. The trustees shall pay to the chaplain out of the income of the charity a yearly salary or stipend of not less than 75*l.* and not more than 100*l.*, as they shall from time to time determine.

17. The chaplain shall be required to perform either in person or by his licensed curate, or substitute appointed as herein-after mentioned, one full service at the least in the chapel attached to the almshouses on every Sunday throughout the year, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon, or such other hour as shall be from time to time prescribed by the trustees, having regard to the convenience of the almspeople and other persons attending such service.

CANDISH'S CHARITY.

Hugh Candish, by his will of the 29th May 1640, gave to the Company messuages and tenements in St. John Walbrook and St. Mary Fenchurch, to pay—

	s.	d.
To the wardens and officers of the Company	11	8
For certain superstitious uses in St. Martin Outwich	6	8

And the residue for the Company.

Notwithstanding the gift of the residue of this estate to the Company for their own use, they apply the entire residue to charitable purposes.

After the small payment to the officers of the Company and 1s. 7d. to St. Martin's Outwich, and the 15s. 1d. to the Company in respect of their purchase of the superstitious charges (confirmed by the Statute of the 4th James I., for which see my report on the Fishmongers' Company), the residue of the rents, amounting in the last year to 168l. 11s. 8d., was carried to the almshouse account.

The property consists of a house No. 30, Fenchurch Street, bounded on the west by premises belonging to Christ's Hospital, and extending backwards 64 feet. It is let to Thomas Snelling, oilman, for a term of 21 years from Lady-day 1847, at a rent of 170l.

CHADWICK'S CHARITY.

James Chadwick, by will of the 4th April 1679, gave to the Company 100l. to pay to four poor women 5s. each quarterly.

The trustees may, if they so think fit, require that the chaplain shall provide for the performance of two full services in the said chapel on each Sunday, and they may in that case make such an additional payment to him out of the income of the Charity, if sufficient for that purpose, as shall make up his full yearly stipend to any sum not exceeding 150l.

18. The chaplain shall visit and administer spiritual consolation to the almspeople, and shall have the immediate superintendence and control over them, subject to the superior authority and direction of the trustees. The chaplain shall also once at least in each year make a report to the trustees upon the state and condition of the almshouse branch of the Charity, mentioning in such report any special circumstances which shall in his judgment call for attention on the part of the trustees.

19. The chaplain may be removed from his office by a resolution of the trustees for incapacity or refusal or omission to perform the duties of such office, or for any other sufficient cause to be determined by the trustees. During the temporary legal absence of the chaplain the duties of the office may be performed by a duly qualified substitute to be appointed by him subject to the approval of the trustees.

20. The trustees may pay out of the income of the Charity a yearly sum not exceeding 15l. for the salary of the clerk of the said chapel, who shall be appointed by the said trustees upon the recommendation of the chaplain, and who in consideration of such salary shall attend the services in the chapel, and perform all the duties of clerk, pew opener, and sexton thereof, as shall be directed by the chaplain, and shall also keep in order the garden and ground attached to the almshouses and chapel, and the tomb or vault of the founder of the said Charity in the churchyard of the parish of Lee.

The trustees shall also apply a further yearly sum not exceeding 25l. in lighting and warming the said chapel, and providing and maintaining the requisite furniture, books, and utensils, and for the other expenses incidental to the due performance of divine service in the same chapel.

21. The trustees may from time to time prescribe such reasonable regulations as they may consider expedient for the government of the almshouse and the inmates, officers, and attendants thereof, provided that no such rules shall be inconsistent with the provisions of this scheme.

The Education Fund.

22. Out of the clear yearly income of the Charity which shall remain after providing for and satisfying the several payments and purposes aforesaid, the trustees shall reserve and set apart a yearly sum of 120l., or such other less sum as the said residuary income shall be sufficient to provide, and shall invest the same ▲ 14546.

The Company pay 4l. a year, which is given in sums of 1l. a year each to four poor widows of freemen. These are generally added to other gifts, which make up a larger sum to the particular pensioners. I have elsewhere stated the number of widow pensioners and their amounts.

CHURCH'S CHARITY.

James Church, by a deed poll of the 16th January 1681, gave to the Company 500l.,—to lend 200l. to four young men, gratis, and to pay interest on the remaining 300l., at 4 per cent., to 12 poor men and 12 poor women.

The 200l. being apparently lost by loans, the only endowment remaining is the 12l. per annum, which is made up to 12l. 12s., and is distributed on Good Friday to 12 poor persons of each sex who attend St. Margaret Lothbury, being selected by the court and receiving half a guinea each. The rules as to receiving no other pension, and as to attendance at divine service are adhered to.

FRANCIS CLARKE'S CHARITY.

Francis Clarke, about the year 1608, gave to the Company 200l.,—to pay 10l. a year to the parish of Odiham, county of Southampton, towards the relief of the poor there.

And the said F. Clarke, in 1609, gave a further sum of 200l. to the Company to pay 10l. a year to St. Bartholomew's Hospital.

There are no specific funds representing this capital, but 10l. a year is paid to the churchwardens of the in the purchase of 3l. per cent. consolidated annuities, the dividends whereof shall be accumulated and invested in like manner for the formation of a fund to be called "the education fund," which shall be applicable to educational purposes for the benefit of the parish of Lee and the adjoining parishes or districts, according to a further scheme to be hereafter established by the order of the Charity Commissioners upon the application of the trustees.

23. The residue (if any) of the yearly income of the Charity shall be reserved and invested by the trustees in like manner as a residuary fund, which shall be applicable in furtherance of the objects of the Foundation, according to the provisions of a similar scheme to be established in like manner by the order of the Commissioners.

24. If any doubt or question shall arise amongst the trustees or any of them, as to the construction or proper application of any of the provisions of the scheme, or the management of the Charity, application shall be made by them to the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales for their opinion and advice, which when given shall be conclusive on all persons interested and claiming under the Charity.

By an Order of the Board dated 26th July 1872, the Company were authorised to purchase a site for the new almshouses, at the price of 2,250l., to be provided out of the accumulated income of the Charity.

A piece of freehold land situate at Lee was duly conveyed to the trustees by an indenture dated 31st July 1872, and by an Order of the Board dated 17th January 1873, the legal estate in the hereditaments comprised therein was vested in the Official Trustee of Charity Lands.

The new almshouses and chapel have been erected and completed at an aggregate cost (including architect's commission and all incidental expenses) of 7,831l. 12s. 2d., which was provided for as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
Proceeds of sale of 1,774l. 11s. 7d.
Consols -	1,639	5	3
Sale of site of old almshouse and buildings, by Order of the Board dated 17th February 1880 -	1,750	0	0
Surplus income -	1,642	6	11
Loan at 4 per cent. advanced out of Company's corporate funds -	2,800	0	0
	£7,831	12	2

This expenditure was authorised by Order of the Board dated 6th May 1879, whereby it was directed that the sum of 2,800l. advanced by the Company should be repaid within 20 years by instalments of 150l. each to be reserved out of the income of the Charity.

parish of Odiham, and 10*l.* a year to the treasurer of St. Bartholomew's Hospital.

COLBORN'S CHARITY.

Henry Colborn, or Colbron, by a codicil to his will of the 1st August 1655, gave to the Company 1,000*l.* to purchase lands for erecting and endowing a free school in Ashwell, Herts; and he gave the Master and Wardens 100*l.* for their pains and the endowment of the schoolmaster.

The Company received only 637*l.* 10*s.* applicable to these purposes, of which they applied 290*l.* in the land and building, and reserved 347*l.* 10*s.* for the endowment. The Company pay 17*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* a year interest in respect of that sum.

The premises at Ashwell consist of a residence for the master, and a school room, built by the Company, and an orchard and garden, or about one and a half acres. On the occasion of an enclosure of a common, an allotment has lately been made to the property.

The Company appoint a schoolmaster at 50*l.* a year, and they have lately allowed to the retiring schoolmaster a pension of 40*l.* a year. The Company insure the school from fire at a premium of 16*s.* 6*d.* a year. The late schoolmaster was allowed a stipend of 63*l.* a year. The whole amount beyond the 17*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* is paid by the Company out of their proper funds. The Rev. H. W. Hodgson, the incumbent, is the visitor, and reports favourably to the Company of the condition of the school, as very beneficial to the agricultural population of the neighbourhood.

CONYERS' CHARITY.

John Conyers, in 1591, gave to the Company 100*l.*, in consideration that they should pay to the churchwardens of St. Botolph, Aldersgate, 5*l.* a year, out of the Company's inn in Aldermanbury.

This, which constitutes a rentcharge of 5*l.* on the property of the Company in Aldermanbury, is paid annually (deducting 1*l.* for land tax) to the churchwardens of St. Botolph, Aldersgate.

COVENTRY'S CHARITY.

Thomas Coventry and Hugh Dashfield, by indenture of the 10th July 1636, granted to the Company a yearly fee farm rent of 10*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* out of the rectory of East Moulsey, Surrey, a fee-farm rent of 14*l.* out of the rectory of Winslowe, Bucks, and a fee-farm rent of 7*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* out of the rectory of Kympton, Herts, upon trust, to pay—

The Company held in their hands at the end of the year 1861, a sum of 179*l.* 0*s.* 7*d.* cash, in respect of accumulations of the apprenticeship fund of the parish of St. Antholin, and 119*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.* accumulations of the like fund for the parish of St. Andrew Undershaft. These sums are not invested.

The payments out of the 25*l.* 10*s.* a year, actually made, are,

The Master, Wardens, and Clerk, 1*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.*, and a sum of 10*l.* a year to a receiver, appointed under an instrument which is annually signed by the incumbent of Hornsey, and other gentlemen described as trustees of the Charity of Thomas Coventry to the poor of Highgate, which is expressed to indemnify the Company against any claim of the overseers of St. Pancras.

The indemnity is thus expressed:—

"And in consideration of the said payment being made to us, or to our order as aforesaid, and notwithstanding any notice having been heretofore given to the said minister and churchwardens on behalf of the overseers of the parish of St. Pancras, Middlesex, as to or touching the payment of the said annual sum of 10*l.*, we do hereby undertake to save harmless and keep indemnified the said Master and Wardens, and their successors and their estate and effects, of, from, and against all such actions, suits, proceedings, costs, expences, claims, and demands whatsoever, at law or in equity, which the said Master and Wardens or their successors shall at any time hereafter suffer, sustain, or be subject or liable to or charged or affected with by reason or on account of the said 10*l.*, which became due by the said Master and Wardens on All Saints' Day 1861, by virtue of the trusts or directions of the said deed of 10th July 1635, or by reason of the said Master and Wardens making or having made such a payment to us or to our order instead of to the overseers of St. Pancras and Hornsey, to be by them applied for the purposes in the said deed mentioned as we the said trustees or the more part of us should appoint."

SIR WILLIAM CRAVEN'S CHARITY.

Sir William Craven, by indenture of the 20th December 1615, granted to the Company all that messuage and shops thereunto belonging in the parishes of St. Mary Woolnoth and St. Michael Cornhill, upon trust, to pay to him, Sir William Craven, for life, 140*l.* a year.

And by his will of the 9th August 1616, he appointed that the Company should pay yearly to 24 poor aged men 96*l.*, part of the said 140*l.*, of which—

* CHARITY OF SIR WILLIAM CRAVEN.

By an Order of the Board, dated 12th November 1867, the premises No. 7, Pope's Head Alley, were let to Mr.

Frederick King for the term of 80 years, from Christmas 1866, at a yearly rent of 500l., a sum of not less than 3,000l. having previously been expended in rebuilding.

CREEK'S CHARITY.

John Creek, by his will of the 22nd November 1418, gave to the Company a messuage in St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, for certain superstitious uses in St. Mary Abchurch, and for providing 13 quarters of coal for the poor of that parish.

The Charity is entitled to no more than the value of the coals, of which the Company deliver four tons and a half to the order of the churchwardens, which cost in the year 1861 the sum of 5l. 10s. 3d.

The Company are entitled to the house in Tower Street under this devise, and became the purchasers of the charge for superstitious uses, under the instrument of 4 Edward VI., confirmed by the statute 4 James I., to which I have elsewhere referred.

DANDY'S CHARITY.

Andrew Dandy, by his will of the 29th March 1673, gave to the Company his house and ground in St. Thomas the Apostle parish, London, upon trust, to pay out of the rents:—

	£	s.	d.
To 12 poor men and women in the Tower Hill almshouses	12	0	0
To 6 poor men and women in the parish of St. Sepulchre	6	0	0
To 6 poor men and women of St. Giles, Cripplegate	6	0	0
To 6 poor men and women of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate	6	0	0

And upon the expiration of the existing lease and improvement of the rent, to pay such improvement to so many poor men and women of the Company as such future improvement would amount to at 20s. per annum, each man and woman to be elected at the discretion of the master, wardens, and court of assistants of the said Company.

The Charity estate, which consisted of a house in Queen Street, was taken by the Corporation of London, under the City Improvement Act, and is now represented by a sum of 2,264l. 3s., 3l. per cent. Consols, standing in the name of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery, and producing an annual dividend of 67l. 18s. 6d.

The Company pay to the almshouses account	12	0	0
To the six poor men and women of the parish of St. Sepulchre, chosen by the Company out of twice the number of nominees presented by the churchwardens of the parish (paid quarterly)	6	0	0
To the six poor men or women of the parish of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate, (chosen in the same manner)	6	0	0
To six poor men or women of the parish of St. Giles, Cripplegate (chosen in the same manner)	6	0	0
To 29 poor widows of freemen of the Company, pensions of 1l. each	29	0	0
To the Company's poor account, out of which sundry pensions and gifts are made by the Company, which are not included under any other head	8	18	6
	£67	18	6

The Company have in their hand a sum of 8l. from arrears of the above payments to the poor of those parishes which have not been applied for.

DONKIN'S CHARITY.

Robert Donkin, by his will of the 1st December 1570, gave to the Company certain lands and tenements in St. Botolph, Bishopsgate, directing them to provide for 12 poor men, and 12 poor women, clothing of the annual value of 21l. 10s., and to pay to the chamberlain and town clerk 10s. each, for their pains in seeing the bequest performed.

The residuary clause of the will is as follows:—

"And so that the whole residue of the said rents and profits of the said lands, tents, and gardens they do mainteigne and geather yearly into one whole stocke, and therewth doo and kepe the repacons of the said tents to them devysed and yf nede be newe buildinge the same, as to there dyscrecons nede shall appeare, as the same stocke will faull oute."

The property consists of a number of houses in Sun Street, Bishopsgate, producing a rental the amount of which has not been returned to this office nor disclosed to me. The construction always adopted by the Company, and which seems to have been acquiesced in by the commissioners of inquiry, is that the residue after keeping the estate in repair is given to the Company for their own use. The words, it will be observed, do not express that the residue is to be taken for the use of the Company, but only that it is to be kept in the Company's stock to repair.

It may be a question for the consideration of the Board whether the actual construction of this gift should be determined by any legal proceeding, and whether the Company should be required to render the account of the estate as of an endowment wholly charitable.

I may add that the amount of the residue, whatever it may be, is represented as not exceeding the sum which the Company annually devote to the support of the Merchant Taylor's School, an institution not otherwise endowed.

The Company stated to the Public School Commissioners (Appendix, Vol. 2, p. 249) that they expended from 2,000l. to 3,000l. a year on the school from their own funds, and had recently laid out about 20,000l. for the purpose of adding to the site and buildings.

The Company purchase annually 72 ells of Irish linen, and 120 yards of cloth, or brown stuff, and 24 pairs of hose. These articles cost in the year 1861 the sums of 7l. 4s., 18l., and 2l. 16s. respectively. The sum of 3l. was paid for making up the cloaks.

The gifts are divided equally between 12 men and 12 women, being either freemen of the Company, or freemen's widows, each receiving three ells of linen and five yards of cloth, and each also having 5s. in money.

A sum of 1l. 1s. is paid to the town clerk when demanded, and in one case, when not demanded was carried to the poor account.

The whole of the above payments amounted in 1861, to 38l. 1s.*

* ROBERT DONKIN'S CHARITY.

The question of the proper construction of the will of the founder was raised in the year 1870 by the Company in proceedings taken by them against the Attorney-General. It was held by the Master of the Rolls, whose decision was confirmed on appeal, that the Merchant

DOWE'S CHARITY.

By deed of the 28th August 1605, between the Company of the one part, and Robert Dowe of the other part, reciting that the said Robert Dowe had paid to the Company at various times 2,158*l.* 10*s.* 8*d.* for the purchase of lands, &c., for decayed brethren, and that the Company had made such purchase for 1,212*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, leaving 945*l.* 17*s.* 4*d.* to be employed on a further purchase; and reciting that the said Robert Dowe had appointed several yearly pensions to be paid out of the rents of the lands purchased and to be purchased;

Taylor's Company were not entitled to the surplus for their own benefit, but were bound to apply it for charitable purposes.—Merchant Taylors' Company v. Attorney-General, Law Reports, 11 Eq. 35, and 6 Ch., Ap. 512.

In 1869 the trust funds of the Charity consisted of the sum of 34,893*l.* 2*s.* 9*d.* consols, arising from the proceeds of the sale, under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, of 21 houses in Sun Street, Bishopsgate, to the Great Eastern Railway Company, and from the sale of 12 houses to the North London Railway Company, and 12,358*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* reduced 3*l.* per cents. purchased from time to time with the amounts received in respect of dividends on the stock and the rents and profits of the real estate.

The Charity was also possessed of certain other freehold messuages situate in Sun Street, Bishopsgate, and No. 145, Bishopsgate Street, producing an annual rent of 572*l.*

By an Order of the Board, dated 25th February 1870, the Company as the trustees of the Charity were authorised to purchase for the sum of 9,500*l.* the freehold property known as Fitzleet House, situate at Bognor, and the grounds belonging thereto, containing 7*a.* 2*r.* 8*p.*, which was duly conveyed to the Company by an indenture dated 25th March, 1870.

By an indenture of 1st June 1870, in consideration of the sum of 100*l.*, a pew in St. John's Church, Bognor, and four other sittings in the Church, were conveyed for the purposes of the Charity.

The trustees further acquired, in consideration of the sum of 100*l.*, a piece of ground adjoining the premises comprised in the above-mentioned deed of 25th March 1870.

By an Order of the Board, dated 26th March 1872, all the land and other hereditaments held in trust for the Charity were vested in "the Official Trustee of Charity Lands" and his successors.

And by the same Order the following SCHEME was established for the Management and Regulation of the CHARITY.

1. Merchant Taylors' Company to have the administration of the Charity as "The Governors" thereof.

2. Clerk.

3. Clear income of Charity after payment of expenses of management applicable to support of the Convalescent Home.

4. To be established at Fitzleet House, Bognor.

5. Design of the Convalescent Home.

The master and wardens of the Merchant Taylors of the fraternity of St. John Baptist in the City of London, usually called "The Merchant Taylors' Company," and their successors (hereinafter called "the Governors"), shall be the trustees or governors of the Charity, and shall have the administration and management thereof, subject to and in conformity with the provisions of this Scheme.

"The Governors" shall be at liberty to employ a clerk or other similar officer for their assistance in the administration of the Charity, and to pay to him a reasonable annual salary out of the income thereof.

The clear annual income of the Charity which shall remain after the payment thereof of the necessary and proper outgoings and expenses of management, and the several annual sums required for providing the specific gifts of clothing and money directed by the founder (so far as there shall be duly qualified applicants for the same), shall be applied by "The Governors" in accordance with the provisions of this Scheme in or towards the maintenance and support of the Convalescent Home or institution herein-after mentioned.

The said Convalescent Home shall be established and carried on in the building known as "Fitzleet House," situate at Bognor in the county of Sussex, which has been recently purchased by the said Company with the sanction of the Charity Commissioners, and which building, with the grounds and appurtenances attached thereto, shall be appropriated and used for the purposes of the said home.

The design of the said home shall be the temporary reception, treatment, and maintenance of deserving poor persons of either sex, who shall have partially recovered from, but shall be still incapacitated to some extent by the effects of, an injury or surgical operation, or any illness not of a contagious or infectious character, with the object of promoting their complete restoration to health.

"The Governors" may from time to time appoint a committee of 12 persons, consisting of the master and wardens for the time being and seven other members of the Court of Assistants of the said Company, to whom shall be committed the immediate supervision and control of the said home, and the inmates, officers, and servants thereof, subject to the superior authority and direction of "the Governors;" and the members of the said committee shall hold office until others shall be appointed in their respective places.

The inmates to be placed in the said home shall be selected by the said committee after due inquiry from persons who have been recently discharged as patients from any hospital in or near London, or from any other duly qualified applicants whom the said committee may consider fit and proper objects for admission according to the provisions of this scheme.

The inmates shall be lodged and boarded, and supplied with all necessary medical attendance in the home gratuitously, except that in special cases the said committee, having regard to the circumstances of any inmate, may, if they so think fit, require a moderate weekly or other payment to be made by such inmate towards the cost of his or her maintenance.

The number of inmates to be admitted to the home shall also be fixed from time to time by the said committee, having regard to the extent of the available accommodation, and the resources of the Charity.

The inmates shall be allowed to continue in the home during such period, not exceeding three calendar months, as shall be fixed from time to time by a resolution of the committee; provided that in cases of sickness, or other necessity, the committee shall have power to make any necessary extension of that period; but every such case shall be specially reported by the said committee to "the Governors" for their approval.

Any inmate having the qualifications required by the will of Robert Donkyn may, if the Governors think fit, be selected as a recipient of a gift of clothing thereunder.

For the effective conduct of the home, the committee may from time to time appoint:—

1st. A duly qualified medical officer, resident in London or its vicinity, whose duty it shall be to examine the applicants for admission to the home, and to report thereon to the committee.

2nd. A duly qualified medical officer, resident in Bognor or its immediate vicinity, whose duty it shall be to visit and give all necessary medical attendance and medicines to the inmates of the home.

3rd. A matron, being a deserving woman of not less than 30 or more than 50 years of age at the time of appointment, who shall either have been trained as a nurse in some public metropolitan hospital, or shall have furnished such other proof of her qualifications as the committee may require, and who shall reside in the said home, and have the general charge of its domestic and internal management, and of the inmates and servants thereof, subject to the directions and authority of the committee.

4th. All such servants and temporary or other nurses and attendants as shall, in the judgment of the committee, be required from time to time for the purposes of the institution.

Every such medical officer, matron, servant, nurse, and attendant, shall be removable at any time, at the discretion of the committee, who, subject to the approval

6. Committee of Management.

7. Qualification and selection of inmates of home.

8. Inmates to be lodged and boarded, &c. in the home.

9. Number of inmates.

10. Period of continuance of inmates in the home.

11. Inmates may be selected as recipients of clothing gifts.

12. Officers of institution.

13. Removal and salaries of officers.

The said Company covenanted with the said R. Dowe to make the several payments as follows:—

	£	s.	d.

To the Company's officers	1	4	0
For tending the lantern at almshouses	0	1	4
For clothing	2	10	0
	£46	16	4

The estate charged with this payment, being the property purchased with the gift, is situated in Threadneedle Street, Martin's Lane, in Cannon Street, Lawrence Pountney Lane, Bow Lane, and Watling Street. The liability of the Company is expressed by the covenant, and amounts to the aggregate of the various charges above mentioned.

The Company give pensions of 6l. 13s. 4d. to 13 aged freemen of the Company.

In 1861 there was a vacancy, and the payments were made to 12 only, amounting to 80l. in the whole. A sum of 14l. 12s. 1d. is carried on, and expended every third year, when it amounts to a sum of 43l. 16s. 3d. or thereabouts.

In 1859 the cloth purchased was as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
Cloth	26	9	3
Baize	7	5	0
Making the gowns and cloaks	5	14	0
Badges	5	4	6
	£44	12	9

Most of the pensioners receive other pensions, in addition to those derived from this Charity.

	£	s.	d.
There is also the six yearly pensions of 2l. 2s. to other poor freemen	12	12	0
To the churchwardens of St. Botolph, Aldgate	20	8	0
To the almshouse account (which is considered as including the coals and candle money)	13	11	4 of "the Governors," may also fix from time to time the amount of the salary or remuneration to be paid to every such person out of the income of the Charity.

14. Rules.

"The Governors" may from time to time make and establish proper rules and regulations (not being inconsistent with the provisions of this scheme) for the conduct of their proceedings, and of the proceedings of the committee in connexion with the administration of the Charity, and for the government and management of the said home and the inmates thereof, and of the said medical officers, matron, attendants, and servants.

15. Scheme. to be printed.

"The Governors" may cause this scheme to be printed at the expense of the Charity, and copies may be given by them to any person interested in the Charity, and may be sold at such reasonable prices as the Governors may put upon them.

16. Questions to be referred to Commissioners.

If any doubt or question shall arise amongst "the Governors," or any of them, as to the construction of proper application of any of the provisions of this scheme, or the management of the Charity, application shall be made by them to the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales for their opinion and advice, which when given shall be conclusive.

By a further Order of the Board, dated 5th July 1872, the Commissioners sanctioned the payment out of the funds of the Charity of the two sums of 100l. each above-mentioned, and the disbursements made by the trustees in respect of repairs, improvements, and alterations of the buildings at Bognor, and the expenses of maintaining the establishment, &c., amounting in the aggregate to 4,250l.

Under an Order of the Court of Chancery, dated 2nd August 1873, certain freehold property known as No. 3, Angel Court, let on lease for a term of 28 years from 24th June 1871, at an annual rent of 800l., was purchased by the Company for a sum of 16,800l., which property was duly conveyed to the company by deed, dated 20th January 1874.

Under another Order of the Court of Chancery of the same date (2nd August 1873), a sum of 11,200l. was invested in the purchase of certain freehold property known as Nos. 66 and 67, Cheapside, let on lease for a term of 99 years from 25th December 1839, at the annual rent of 400l., which property was duly conveyed by deed, dated 10th December 1873, to the company in trust for the purposes of the Charity.

The real estate in the hereditaments comprised in the above-mentioned indentures of 10th December 1873, and of 20th January 1874, was by Orders of the Board respectively, dated 27th July 1875, vested in "The Official Trustees of Charity Lands" in trust for the Charity.

In the result of the foregoing dealings with the property, the sum of stock now belonging to the Charity amounts to 11,589l. 19s. 1d. consols and 2,921l. 17s. 6d. reduced 3l. per cent. annuities; and the real estate belonging to the Charity consists of the premises Nos. 66 and 67, Cheapside, and No. 3, Angel Court, Throgmorton Street, above mentioned; the house No. 145, Bishopsgate Street, and the houses Nos. 83, 85, 87, 89, and 91, Sun Street; and also the premises known as Nos. 93, 95, and 97, Sun Street, producing a gross rental of 1,689l.

The clear annual income, subject to the payment of the several annual sums required for providing the specific gifts of clothing and money directed by the founder, is directed by the scheme above mentioned towards the maintenance and support of the convalescent home at Bognor.

* CHARITY OF ROBERT DOWE.

Under the authority of an Order of the Board, dated 9th April 1872, the messuage and premises No. 73, Watling Street, held by the Company under Robert Dowe's gift, and then known by the name or sign of the Crown Tap, was leased for the term of 70 years from Michaelmas 1871 at the annual rent of 130*l.* to Mr. J. Godwin Smith, the lessee covenanting to rebuild the said messuage at a cost of not less than 1,000*l.*, which is now used as a warehouse.

By an Order of the Board, dated 7th January 1876, the annual sums amounting in the aggregate to 158*l.* 12*s.* 9*d.* for the relief of poor members of the Company, the release of poor prisoners for debt, the provision of bread and beer for the masters and examiners at the Probation of Merchant Taylors' School, and the payment of certain small sums to the officers of the Company, were redeemed by the transfer to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 5,288*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* consols, and the dividends thereof are now applied for the original purposes of the Charity, with the exception that the sum of 20*l.* formerly applied for the relief of poor prisoners is paid towards the support of the convalescent home at Bognor by order of the Court of Chancery dated 8th December 1876.

By an Order of the Board dated 7th January 1876 the annual payment of 20*l.* 9*s.* to the churchwardens of St. Botolph without Aldgate was redeemed by the transfer of the sum of 681*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.* consols into the name of "The Official Trustees of Charitable Funds."

DAME DUCIE'S CHARITY.

Dame Elizabeth Ducie, by her will of the 16th December 1635, gave to the Company 100*l.* towards maintaining the widows of almsmen.

The Company charge themselves with 5*l.* a year, which is paid to the Almshouse Account.

ELWES' CHARITY.

Jeffery Elwes, by his will of the 8th April 1666, gave to the Company 400*l.* for the perpetual relief of the poor. There is no specific investment of this fund; 20*l.* a year is carried to the Company's Poor Account. From this account various payments are made in the shape of pensions, various gifts to poor members of the Company and their widows, and various sums by way of increase of other small pensions. The sum carried to this account in 1861 was about 1,100*l.*

Under the several heads of relief, there was paid in the same year—

As pensions - - -	350	0	0
As casual gifts - - -	513	5	0
As increase or excess in pensions - - -	19	3	4

And a balance of 1,013*l.* 19*s.* was carried on to the next account, 1862.

* CHARITY OF WALTER FISH.

The lease of No. 60, Cannon Street and 17, Nicholas Lane having expired, the premises have been let under the authority of an Order of the Board, dated 16th October 1882, to Mr. C. V. Game for 80 years from Christmas 1864, at an annual rent of 240*l.*

The accumulated fund now (1881) amounts to 2,291*l.* 19*s.* 8*d.* reduced 3*l.* per cents.

SIR WILLIAM FITZWILLIAM'S CHARITY.

By an indenture (date unknown) between the Company of the first part, Sir William Fitzwilliam of the second part, and Thomas Coles of the third part, the said Company, in consideration of 800*l.* paid by the said Sir William Fitzwilliam, granted to the said Thomas Coles an annuity of 20*l.* charged upon premises in Lombard Street and Cornhill, and Thomas Coles, by his will, devised the said annuity of 20*l.* for superstitious uses to the parish of Marham.

The Company pay 20*l.* a year in respect of this gift, of which 7*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* is carried to the credit of Fish's Charity, and 12*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* paid to the churchwardens of Marham, in Northamptonshire, annually.

SIR JAMES GORE'S CHARITY.

Sir James Gore, by his will of the 23rd January 1636, gave to the Company 12*l.* a year issuing out of a tene-FISH'S CHARITY.

Walter Fish, by his will of the 17th September, 22nd Elizabeth (1580), devised to the Company a house in Cannon Street, purchased with 103*l.* 5*s.*, arrears of the annuity mentioned in Sir William Fitzwilliam's Charity, and also the annuity of 7*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, upon trust to pay the rent between five poor scholars of St. John's College, Oxford, and the 7*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* as follows: 6*s.* 8*d.* to the clerk and beadle, and 7*l.* amongst the almsmen of the livery.

The estate of this Charity is as follows:—

	£	s.	d.

ment in Trinity Lane, London, for the relief of three poor old freemen 4*l.* apiece.

The rentcharge (deducting 2*l.* 8*s.* for land tax, is now paid by Mr. Edward White, of 26, Mark Lane, solicitor.

The sum is distributed in pensions to three men, each receiving 3*l.* 4*s.*

GRAY'S CHARITY.

Robert Gray, by his will in the year 1639, gave to the Company 1,500*l.*, and a reversionary interest in 1,000*l.*, for the almswomen of the Company.

The Company charge themselves with interest at 5 per cent. on 2,132*l.*, the amount received by them in respect of these legacies.

The interest, amounting to 106*l.* 12*s.*, is carried to the almshouse account.

GULSTON'S CHARITY.

Helen Gulston, by her will of the 15th July 1637, gave 600*l.* to be laid out in rents answerable for that sum, for the relief of six widows, two of citizens, two of ministers, and two of gentlemen, and she requested that the Company would purchase rents with the said money, and distribute the same among the widows by 5*l.* each, and the overplus of the rents, if they should amount to more, to be divided amongst them. The fund was not laid out in rents or land, but the Company charge themselves with 30*l.* a year. The widows elected are not necessarily widows of freemen of the Company, but persons of the different classes specified apply to the Company on the occasion of vacancies.

A list of all vacant pensions remains posted at the hall door for about a fortnight before the meeting of the Charity Committee, which takes place about four times a year, and applications are made on a form of petition which is given to those who apply first, and which requires the signature of a member of the court, which is never refused, so that all may have a hearing.

SIR JOHN HANBURY'S CHARITY.

Sir John Hanbury, by will of the 27th March 1639, gave to the Company 500*l.* to purchase lands, upon trust, to pay:—

	£	s.	d.
To the poor of Feckenham, Worcester	13	0	0
To the poor of the parish of Hanbury, adjoining	6	10	0

and the overplus to the Company.

The Company charge themselves with 19*l.* 10*s.* a year, which is paid to the churchwardens of the respective parishes in the proportions mentioned above.

J. HARRISON'S CHARITY.

John Harrison, by his will of the 15th May 1618, gave to the Company 500*l.* to erect a grammar school at Great Crosby, parish of Sefton, Lancashire, for educating children and youth in grammar, to be called "The Merchant Taylors' School, founded at the charges of "John Harrison." And he gave to the Company several messuages in St. Augustine and St. Swithin's parishes, London, on trust, to pay:—

	£	s.	d.
To the master of the school	30	0	0
To the usher	20	0	0
To the poor of St. Augustine's	20	0	0
For repairs	5	0	0

and the remainder to the poor brethren of the Company, 20*s.* a quarter apiece.

The property of the Charity now consists of the following particulars:—

	£	s.	d.
The great portion of Messrs. Leaf's premises, Old Change, extending from west to east, 137 feet, and a frontage of 48 feet 5 inches in the Old Change, and extending to about 10 feet greater breadth at a spot commencing about 34 feet farther back, let to William Leaf, for 21 years, from Christmas 1847	700	0	0

A scheme was settled by the Court of Chancery by an order of the 28th July 1849. The substance of the scheme was that there should be a schoolmaster and usher, and that the stipend of the master should be increased to 130*l.* a year, and the stipend of the usher should be increased to 80*l.* a year, the scholars to be limited to 100, 40 on and 60 not on the foundation; the master was to be permitted to take boarders, and that there should be a half-yearly examination.

The fifteenth clause provided that the Master, Wardens, and Court of Assistants for the time being, and their successors, shall continue to be Governors of the said school, and shall have full power from time to time to make such new or other rules, orders, and regulations for the management and conduct of the said school, and the children to be educated therein, and for the master and usher, and generally in reference to the school, and from time to time to alter such rules, orders, and regulations, as the said Master, Wardens, and Court of Assistants and their successors shall think fit, having regard nevertheless to the principles and system of education pointed out by the said John Harrison, the founder, and enlarged in manner herein-before mentioned.

And the sixteenth clause was as follows:—That after setting apart the several sums herein-before mentioned for the purposes of the said school, or such increased sums as aforesaid, the said Master and Wardens and Court of Assistants shall be at liberty to pay out of the said charity funds an increased annual pension or sum not exceeding 8*l.* per annum, to each of the poor brethren of the said company, for the time being, and accumulate the surplus moneys (if any) from time to time to be hereafter applied for the maintenance of the said trust property or otherwise for charitable purposes pursuant to the said will of the said John Harrison, the founder, as occasion may require or opportunity offer.

Under an order of the court of the Company of the 2nd May 1861, made in pursuance of the powers reserved to them by the foregoing fifteenth clause of the scheme, other rules and regulations were framed for the government of the school, in the place of those contained in the foregoing scheme. These rules and regulations I append.

The expenses of the establishment of the school are—

* CHARITY OF JOHN HARRISON.

The lease of No. 6, St. Swithin's Lane having expired, by an Order of the Board, dated 23rd February 1866, these premises were let on lease to Mr. Charles Hendrey for a term of 80 years from Lady Day 1865, at a yearly rent of 200l., the lessee having previously laid out a sum exceeding 1,000l. in the erection of a new building.

The leases of Nos. 33 and 34, Old Change have also expired, and are now (1882) let to Messrs. Leaf, Sons, and Co., at an annual rent of 1,600l.

By an Order of the Board of 30th January 1872, the Company as the trustees of this Charity were authorised to enfranchise a piece of copyhold land containing 17 perches, forming part of the garden of the Old School at Great Crosby, for the sum of 25l. 10s., and by a subsequent Order, dated 17th January 1873, the legal estate was vested in the "Official Trustee of Charity Lands."

With a view to the development of the school at Great Crosby, the Company as the trustees of the Charity were authorised by an Order of the Board, dated 20th March 1874, to purchase 10 acres in the parish of Great Crosby for the sum of 3,500l., to be provided out of the accumulated income of the Charity.

By indenture, dated 25th June 1874, the land was duly conveyed upon trust for the master and wardens of the Company, and by an indenture dated 14th July 1876, indorsed on the above-mentioned indenture of 25th June 1874, it was declared that the said piece of land should be held upon the trusts of the scheme hereafter mentioned for the school branch of the Charity.

By an Order of the Board, dated 4th August 1876, the said piece of land was vested in "The Official Trustee of Charity Lands" in trust for the school.

New school buildings have been erected, and the school is now regulated by the provisions of a scheme of the Endowed School Commissioners, approved by Her Majesty in Council, 6th August 1874, the provisions of which are as follows:—

Part I.—General Scope of Trust.

General object.

- 1.—The object of this Foundation or Trust shall be—
 - (a.) To supply a liberal and practical education for boys and girls by means of schools at Great Crosby;
 - (b.) To relieve certain poor persons.

And from the date of this scheme all the particulars which by the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869 and 1873, are capable of hereby being repealed and abrogated, shall, so far as relates to the management of this endowment, be repealed and abrogated.

Part II.—The School Branch and the Alms Branch.

Governing Body.

2. The governing body of this foundation shall be the same as hitherto, namely, the Master, Wardens, and Court of Assistants of the Merchant Taylors' Company, herein-after called the governors.

Division into School branch and Alms branch. Provision for the School branch.

3. From the date of this scheme this foundation shall consist of two distinct branches, the school branch and the alms branch.

4. From the date of this scheme the school branch of this foundation shall be deemed entitled to the land and buildings hitherto occupied under this trust exclusively for the purposes of the school, and to the piece of land at Great Crosby, lately contracted to be purchased by the Merchant Taylors' Company from Mr. Myers as a site for a school, and to three-fourth parts of the income of the other property belonging to the whole foundation.

5. Subject to the appropriation of any property of the trust for the purposes of school sites and the payment of all costs and expenses of or incident to the provision or adaptation of buildings as herein-after provided, the part of the endowment hereby apportioned to the school branch shall be applied as nearly as may be, three fifths to the education of boys, and two fifths to the education of girls, and there shall be under this trust a school for boys and a school for girls, as herein-after provided, to be called "The Merchant Taylors' School of the Foundation of John Harrison."

6. From the date of this scheme the alms branch of this foundation shall, subject as aforesaid, be deemed entitled to one fourth part of the income of the property belonging to the whole foundation.

7. The part of the endowment hereby apportioned to the alms branch shall be administered on the same trusts for the benefit of the poor brethren of the Company and other poor persons as hitherto in force for such purposes respectively under a scheme of the Court of Chancery and the will of the founder, or as near thereto as the changes effected by this scheme will admit.

8. The capital funds required for the purposes of this scheme shall be raised out of the property or income hereby appropriated to the school branch by mortgage or otherwise, as the Charity Commissioners may approve.

9. From the date of this scheme all rights and powers reserved to, belonging to, or claimed by, or capable of being exercised by, any person or persons other than Her Majesty as visitor or visitors of this trust, shall be transferred to Her Majesty, and all such rights and powers, and also any like rights and powers vested in Her Majesty on the 2nd day of August 1869, shall be exercised only through and by the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales.

10. From the date of this scheme all jurisdiction of the ordinary relating to or arising from the licensing of any teacher under this trust shall be abolished.

11. Religious opinions, or attendance or non-attendance at any particular form of religious worship, shall not in any way affect the qualification of any person for being a member of the governing body or of the local committee under this scheme.

12. A minute book and proper books of account shall be provided by the Governors, and kept in some convenient and secure place of deposit to be provided or appointed by them for that purpose, and minutes of all proceedings of the Governors relating to the school branch shall be entered in such minute book, and duly signed.

13. Full accounts of the receipts and expenditure of the trust shall be kept by the Governors, and such accounts shall be stated for each year, and examined and passed annually at the first meeting in the ensuing year, and signed by the Governors then present.

14. The Governors shall cause sufficient abstracts of the accounts to be published annually in two local newspapers. Such abstracts shall be in accordance with the provisions of the schedule hereto, unless any form is prescribed by the Charity Commissioners, in which case the form so prescribed shall be followed.

Part III.—The Boys' School and its Management.

15. The Governors shall appoint a Local Committee to aid them in the supervision of the school. The Local Committee shall consist of not less than three nor more than five persons living in the parish of Sefton, who shall be appointed to office for three years, and may be re-appointed. Their functions, duties, and CHARITIES OF ROBERT HAWES AND OTHERS.

Robert Hawes, by his will of the 17th January 1595, after reciting that John Robinson, William Offley, Robert Dow, Richard Venables, William Craven, and the testator had subscribed 336*l.*, and purchased messuages in St. Benet Fink parish, which had been conveyed to the testator, gave the same to the Company upon trust to pay to five poor widows of the Company, and one widow of the parish of St. Botolph, Aldgate, 3*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.*, a year each, and the residue of the rents to the Company, the said testator not doubting that should the rents increase to a good balance, the Company would increase the pensions.

The property is situated in Finch Lane, and produces a rent of about 800*l.* a year. The Company have increased the allowances to six almswomen in respect of this gift to 27*l.* a year each, making an annual charge of - - - - - £162 0 0 powers shall be such as may be delegated to them from time to time by the Governors.

The Company also carry another sum to the almshouse account generally of - 238 0 0

16. The school shall be a day school only.

17. As soon as practicable after the date of this scheme the Governors shall provide on the said piece of land lately contracted to be purchased by the Merchant Taylors' Company, school buildings suitable for not less than 200 scholars, with a residence for the head master, and arranged so as to admit of convenient extension. Such buildings shall be according to plans and estimates approved by the Endowed School Commissioners, or after their powers have ceased, by the Charity Commissioners. Until such new buildings are completed the boys' school shall be carried on in the present school buildings. The Governors may make such improvements and alterations as they think desirable in the present school buildings, but having regard to the intended use of these buildings hereafter for a girls' school. For these purposes they may spend a sufficient sum of money to be raised as herein-before provided, but not exceeding 5,000*l.*, unless with the consent of the Charity Commissioners.

18. No person shall be disqualified for being a Master in the school by reason only of his not being, or not intending to be, in holy orders.

19. The Head Master shall be a graduate of some university within the British Empire. The circumstance that he has taken or made, or omitted to take or make, any oath or declaration on obtaining a degree shall not affect his qualification.

20. The Governors shall appoint the Head Master at some meeting to be called for that purpose, as soon as conveniently may be after the occurrence of a vacancy, or after notice of an intended vacancy. In order to obtain the best candidates the Governors shall for a sufficient time before making any appointment, give public notice of the vacancy, and invite competition by advertisements in newspapers or other methods as they may judge best calculated to secure the object.

21. The Governors may dismiss the Head Master without assigning cause, after six calendar months' written notice given to him in pursuance of a resolution passed at two consecutive meetings held at an interval of at least 14 days and duly convened for that express purpose, such resolution being affirmed at each meeting by not less than two thirds of the Governors present.

22. For urgent cause the Governors may by resolution passed at a special meeting duly convened for that express purpose, and affirmed by not less than two thirds of the whole existing number of Governors, declare that the Head Master ought to be dismissed from his office, and in that case they may appoint another special meeting to be held not less than a week after the former one, and may then, by a similar resolution, affirmed by as large a proportion of Governors, wholly and finally dismiss him. And if the Governors assembled at the first of such meetings think fit at once to suspend the Head Master from his office until the next meeting, they may do so by resolution affirmed by as large a proportion of Governors. Full notice and opportunity of defence at both meetings shall be given to the Head Master.

23. Every Head Master previously to entering into office shall be required to sign a declaration, to be entered in the minute book of the Governors in the following form:—

"I, _____ declare that I will always, to the best of my ability, discharge the duties of Head Master of the Merchant Taylors' Boys' School of the foundation of John Harrison, during my tenure of the office, and that if I am removed by the Governors, according to the constitution of the said school, I will acquiesce in such removal, and will thereupon relinquish all claim to the mastership and its future emoluments, and will deliver up to the Governors, or as they direct, possession of all their property then in my possession or occupation."

24. The Head Master shall dwell in the residence assigned for him. He shall have the occupation and use of such residence and of any other property of the trust of which he becomes occupant, in respect of his official character and duties, and not as tenant, and shall, if removed from his office, deliver up possession of such residence and other property to the Governors or as they direct. He shall not, except with the permission of the Governors, permit any person to occupy such residence or any part thereof.

25. The Head Master shall give his personal attention to the duties of the school, and during his tenure of office he shall not accept or hold any benefice having the cure of souls, or any office or appointment which, in the opinion of the Governors, may interfere with the proper performance of his duties as Head Master.

26. Neither the Head Master nor any Assistant Master shall receive or demand from any boy in the school, or from any person whomsoever on behalf of any such boy, any gratuity, fee, or payment, except such payments as are prescribed or authorised by this scheme.

27. Within the limits fixed by this scheme the Governors shall prescribe the general subjects of instruction, the relative prominence and value to be assigned to each group of subjects, the division of the year into term and vacation, the payments of scholars, and the number of holidays to be given in the term. They shall take general supervision of the sanitary condition of the school buildings and arrangements. They shall determine what number of Assistant Masters shall be employed. They shall every year assign the amount which they think proper to be paid out of the income of the trust for the purpose of maintaining Assistant Masters and a proper plant or apparatus for carrying on the instruction given in the school.

28. Before making any regulations under the last foregoing clause, the Governors shall consult the Head Master in such a manner as to give him full opportunity for the expression of his views.

29. Subject to the rules prescribed by or under the authority of this scheme, the Head Master shall have under his control the choice of books, the methods of teaching, the arrangement of classes and school hours, and generally the whole internal organisation, management, and discipline of the school: Provided that no boy shall be expelled from the school, without the opportunity of appeal to the Governors.

30. The Head Master shall have the sole power of appointing and, subject to appeal to the Governors, of dismissing all Assistant Masters, and shall determine, subject to the approval of the Governors, in what proportions the sum assigned by the Governors for the maintenance of Assistant Masters and of plant or apparatus shall be divided among the various persons and objects for which it is assigned in the aggregate. And the Governors shall pay the same accordingly, either through the hands of the Head Master or directly, as they think best.

31. The Head Master may from time to time submit proposals to the Governors for making or altering regulations concerning any matter within their province, and the Governors shall consider such proposals and decide upon them.

32. The Head Master shall receive a fixed stipend of 200*l.* a year. He shall also receive head money calculated on such a scale, uniform or graduated, as may be agreed upon between him and the Governors, being at the rate of not less than 2*l.* nor more than 4*l.* yearly for each boy. These payments shall be made terminally or quarterly as the Governors think fit.

33. All boys, except as herein-after provided, shall pay such entrance and tuition fees as the Governors

HEYDON'S CHARITY.

Mr. Alderman Heydon, by will of the 11th March 1519, gave to the Company 100*l.* to lend the same at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per annum, to be paid to the Mercers' Company.

The Company pay a sum of 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* a year to the Mercers' Company. Nothing now is known of the capital fund.

HEYMAN'S CHARITY.

John Heyman, by will of the 15th October 1646, gave to the wardens of the parish of St. Saviour, Southwark, all his houses at Barnet, Herts, to pay to the Company 40*s.* for two poor citizens tailors, and 4*s.* to the clerk.

The churchwardens of St. Saviour, Southwark, pay 2*l.* 4*s.* a year to the Company, which is given to two poor members of the Company in pensions of 1*l.* each, annually, added to other pensions.

The 4*s.* a year is paid to the clerk of the Company.

shall fix from time to time, provided that no such entrance fee shall exceed 1*l.*, and that no such tuition fee shall be less than 6*l.* or more than 16*l.* a year. No difference in respect of these fees shall be made between any scholars on account of place of birth or residence. No extras of any kind shall be allowed without the sanction of the Governors, and written consent on behalf of the scholar concerned.

34. All payments for entrance or tuition shall be made in advance to the Head Master, or to such other person as the Governors shall from time to time determine, and shall be accounted for by the person receiving them to the Governors, and treated by them as part of the general income of their trust.

35. No boy shall be admitted into the school unless he has attained the age of eight years. No boy shall remain in the school after the end of the term in which he attains the age of 17 years.

36. Subject to the provisions established by or under the authority of this scheme, the school and all advantages of the school shall be open to all boys who are of good character and sufficient health, and who are residing with their parents, guardians, or next friends, or with some person chosen by them and approved by the Governors and the Head Master.

37. Applications for admission to the school shall be made to the Head Master, or to some other person named by the Governors, according to a printed form to be approved of by the Governors, and delivered to all applicants.

38. The Head Master or other person named by the Governors shall keep a register of applications showing the date at which every application is made for the admission of a boy, the date of his admission, withdrawal, or rejection, the cause of rejection, and the age of the boy at the date of the application. Provided that every person requiring an application to be entered shall pay such fee as the Governors may fix, not exceeding five shillings.

39. Every applicant for admission shall be examined by or under the direction of the Head Master, or by such other person as the Governors shall from time to time appoint, who shall appoint convenient times for that purpose, and give reasonable notice to the parents of those whose turn is arriving. No boy shall be admitted to the school except after undergoing such examination and being found fit for admission. Those who are so found fit shall, if there is room for them, be admitted in order according to the dates of their application. If there is not room for all applicants, boys living with their parents, guardians, or next friends in the parish of Sefton shall be preferred. Subject as aforesaid the Governors may direct that the priority of applicants shall be determined by competitive examination.

40. The examination for admission shall be graduated according to the age of the boy, but it shall never fall below the following standard, that is to say:—Reading monosyllabic narrative, writing text hand, easy sums in the first two rules of arithmetic, with the multiplication table.

41. The parent or guardian of or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of any dayscholar may claim, by notice in writing addressed to the Head Master, the exemption of such scholar from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, and such scholar shall be exempted accordingly, and a scholar shall not by reason of any exemption from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, be deprived of any advantage or emolument in this school or out of this trust to which he would otherwise have been entitled. If any teacher in the course of other lessons at which any such scholar is in accordance with the ordinary rules of the school present, teaches systematically and persistently any particular religious doctrine, from the teaching of which any exemption has been claimed, as in this clause before provided, the Governors shall, on complaint made in writing to them by the parent, guardian, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of such scholar, hear the complainant, and inquire into the circumstances, and if the complaint is judged to be reasonable, make all proper provisions for remedying the matter complained of.

42. The Governors and Head Master shall, within their respective departments, as herein-before defined, and subject to the provisions of this scheme, make proper regulations for the religious instruction to be given in the school.

43. No alteration in any regulations made by the Governors respecting the religious instruction to be given in the school shall take effect until the expiration of not less than one year after notice of the making of he alteration is given.

44. The subjects of secular instruction shall be as follows:—Reading, writing, arithmetic, mathematics, geography, history, English grammar, composition and literature, Latin, at least one modern European language other than English, natural science, drawing, and music. The boys shall be instructed in the foregoing subjects according to the classification and arrangements made by the Head Master. Greek may be taught as an extra at an additional fee of not less than 3*l.* a year for each boy. But such additional fee shall not be required from any boy whose name was on the roll of the school on the 2nd day of August 1870, unless the Governors shall otherwise direct.

45. There shall be at least once in every year an examination of the scholars by an Examiner or Examiners appointed for that purpose by the Governors, and paid by them, but otherwise unconnected with the school. The Examiners shall report to the Governors on the proficiency of the scholars, and on the position of the school as regards instruction and discipline, as shown by the results of the examination. The Governors shall communicate the report to the Head Master.

46. The Head Master shall make a report in writing to the Governors, yearly or oftener as the Governors may direct, on the general condition of the school, and on any special occurrences affecting the same. He also may mention the names of any boys who in his judgment are worthy of praise or substantial reward, having regard both to proficiency and conduct.

47. By way of Exhibitions tenable at the School, the Governors shall grant exemptions from the payment of tuition fees for such periods and on such conditions as they think fit, at the rate of one such Exhibitioner for every 10 boys in average attendance at the school. These Exhibitions shall be called Harrison scholarships, and shall be given as the reward of merit only. They shall be assigned, in the case of candidates for admission, on the result of the examination for admission, and in the case of boys already attending the school, on the reports of the Examiners and Head Master, and no such Exhibition shall be granted to any such boy if the Head Master reports that he is rendered undeserving of it by ill-conduct.

48. The Governors may also in cases in which they think it expedient, if the state of the funds admits, grant further Exhibitions tenable at the school, by awarding to Exhibitioners or other deserving scholars on the recommendation of the Head Master gratuities not exceeding in the case of any scholar the amount of 3*l.* in a year, towards the cost of books and stationery and other expenses incident to their attendance at the school.

49. The Governors shall, as soon as circumstances permit, establish scholarships to be awarded one or more in each year, and called the Great Crosby scholarships, tenable at other places of education, or for the purpose of fitting the holder for some profession or calling. Each such scholarship shall be of the yearly value of not less than 40*l.* or more than 50*l.*, and tenable

HILLES' CHARITY.

Richard Hilles, by his will of the 28th June 1586, gave to the Company all his tenements and gardens in St. Botolph, Aldgate, parish, subject to the payment of 5*l.* amongst six of the most impotent poor aged men of the Company.

The Company, out of the rents of these houses, charge themselves with 5*l.* a year, which is carried to the poor account (see Elwes' Charity).

for three years, and shall be awarded by open competition among the boys who have been educated at the school for such time not less than three years immediately previous to the grant thereof, as the Governors may determine.

50. The scholarships and exhibitions established under this scheme shall be tenable only for the purposes of education. If the holder dies, his representatives shall be entitled only to the next instalment whenever payable. If the holder is guilty of gross misconduct or idleness, or wilfully ceases to pursue his education, profession, or calling, the Governors may determine the scholarship or exhibition.

Part IV.—The Girls' School and its Management.

51. To aid them in the supervision of the girls' school the Governors shall appoint a local committee, either being or not being the same persons as the local committee of the boys' school, subject to the like provisions as herein-before contained with regard to the local committee for the boys' school.

52. When and so soon as the new buildings herein-before provided for the boys' school are completed, the Governors shall adapt and use the old school buildings as a school for girls. Until such time they may, if they think fit, make arrangements for procuring temporary accommodation for a school for girls by renting any buildings, or otherwise as they may find practicable.

53. The school shall be a day school only under a Head Mistress, independent of the Head Master of the boys' school.

54. The Head Mistress shall receive a fixed stipend of 120*l.* a year. She shall also receive head money, after the manner and according to the conditions herein-before prescribed for the Head Master of the boys' school, provided that such payment shall be at the rate of not less than 2*l.* and not more than 4*l.* yearly for each girl.

55. Payments for entrance and tuition shall be made by the girls after the manner and according to the conditions herein-before prescribed for the boys' school, provided that no such entrance fee shall be more than 1*l.*, and that no such tuition fee shall be less than 5*l.* or more than 10*l.* a year.

56. If the Governors think fit they may in special cases allow girls to remain in the school after the limit of age prescribed in the case of boys.

57. The subjects of secular instruction shall be the same as for the boys, but with domestic economy and needlework in addition. The Governors shall also arrange for a course of physical training for the girls. The girls shall be instructed in the foregoing subjects according to the classification and arrangement made by the Head Mistress.

58. The Governors shall grant Exhibitions and Scholarships for girls after the manner and under the conditions herein-before prescribed for the boys' school.

59. In the conduct of all examinations of the girls the Governors shall be careful to provide that too great publicity or mental strain shall be avoided.

60. As to every matter relating to the girls' school of the kind mentioned in this part of this scheme, or of the kind mentioned in Part III. of this scheme as relating to the boys' school, the Governors and the Head Mistress respectively shall have the same authorities, rights, and duties as are conferred on the Governors and the Head Master by Part III. of this scheme.

61. Subject to the special provisions of this part of this scheme, the girls' school shall be governed by the same regulations and provisions as in Part III. of this scheme are prescribed for the boys' school, except as regards the provisions of clause 19.

Part V.—Application of Income.

62. The Governors shall, as soon as funds are available for the purpose, place the sum of 2,000*l.* consols to a separate account, entitled "Repairs and Improvements." The income shall be applied by the Governors in ordinary repairs or improvements of property used for the purposes of the schools, if wanted, and if not wanted for that purpose shall be accumulated by them to the same account. The Governors shall draw upon the accumulations at their discretion for the purpose of any such repairs or improvements, but shall not encroach upon the capital, except for the purpose of substantial repairs or renewal, and then not without the consent of the Charity Commissioners, and under such conditions of replacing the capital as that Board may think right.

63. Until the repairs and improvements fund is provided the Governors shall treat the sum of 60*l.* yearly as applicable to the same purposes as the repairs and improvements fund.

64. After defraying the expenses of management and of any ordinary repairs or improvements which the income of the repairs and improvement fund may be insufficient to answer, and any legal claims on the Governors which may be due, the Governors shall employ three fifths of the income of the school branch for the benefit of the boys' school in paying the Head Master as herein-before prescribed, in paying the amount assigned for the Assistant Masters and school plant or apparatus, and paying the Examiner or Examiners, and in providing for such scholarships, exhibitions, and prizes as they may have adjudged.

65. The Governors may also, if they think fit and the funds suffice for the purpose, agree with the Head Master for the formation of a fund in the nature of a pension or superannuation fund, the main principle of such agreement being that the Head Master and the trust fund shall each contribute annually for a period of 20 years such sums as may be fixed on; that these contributions shall accumulate at compound interest; that in case the Head Master serves his office 20 years he shall on his retirement be entitled to the whole fund; that in case he retires earlier on account of permanent disability from illness he shall also be entitled to the whole fund; that in all other cases he shall, on his ceasing to be Master, be entitled to the amount produced by his own contributions.

66. If there is any residue of the income herein-before directed to be employed by the Governors for the benefit of the boys' school, they may so employ it in increasing the stipend of the Head Master, or the funds applicable to the payment of Assistant Masters and school plant or apparatus, in improving the accommodation of the school buildings, in aiding the games of the scholars, or generally in promoting the spirit and efficiency of the school. Whatever they do not think fit to spend in these ways they shall on passing the yearly accounts state as unapplied surplus, and shall deposit it in a bank; and if the sums so deposited rise to 300*l.* they shall invest the same in Government Stock to the general credit of the trust.

67. The other two fifths of the income of the school branch shall be employed by the Governors for the benefit of the girls' school in the like manner and with the like powers and discretion as by the three last foregoing clauses is provided with respect to the income employed for the benefit of the boys' school.

Part VI.—General.

68. If the Governors dismiss Mr. Wilkinson Ritson, the present Second Master of the school, except for such cause as before the passing of this scheme would have justified his dismissal, the Governors shall thenceforth pay to him the sum of 85*l.* yearly for his life.

HOLLAND'S CHARITY.

Ralph Holland, by his will of the 2nd May 1452, gave to the Company certain lands and tenements in St. Alban, Wood Street, and three shops and garden ground in St. Clement's Lane; also a certain tenement in St. Mary Aldermanbury, and a certain inn in St. Andrew Undershaft.

And the testator, by another will of the 3rd May 1452, gave to the Company two tenements in St. Dionis Backchurch, and a tenement in St. Botolph Aldgate, upon trust, for relieving the poor of the Company, and for superstitious uses.

The Commissioners of Inquiry state that the only property known to have been devised under this will is the George Inn, Aldermanbury. This is now let to Francis Brighton for 61 years from Lady-day 1831, at a rent of 165*l.* a year. The Company carry to their own account 13*s.* 4*d.* annually, as given to superstitious uses, and purchased by the Company from the Crown, and carry the residue, 164*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, to the poor account.

HOWDEN'S CHARITY.

John Howden gave to the Company 333*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* and certain plate, they agreeing to pay yearly—

	£18	18	0

69. Nothing in this scheme shall affect any interest which was on or before the second day of August 1870 legally vested in any scholar on this foundation.

70. The Governors may receive any additional donations or endowments for the general purposes of the schools, or either of them. They may also receive donations or endowments for any special objects directed by the donors, provided that such objects are certified by the Charity Commissioners to be for the general benefit of the schools or either of them, and not calculated to give privileges to any scholar on any other ground than that of merit, and not otherwise inconsistent with or calculated to impede the due working of the provisions of this scheme.

71. If any doubt or question arises among the Governors as to the proper construction or application of any of the provisions of this scheme, the Governors may apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon, which opinion and advice when given shall be binding on the Governors.

72. The Charity Commissioners may from time to time in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction frame schemes for the alteration of any provisions of this scheme or otherwise for the government or regulation of the trust, provided that such schemes be not inconsistent with clause 1 (a) of this scheme, or with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869 and 1873.

73. This scheme shall be printed and a copy given to every person who shall become a member of the Governing Body or the Local Committee, and to every Master or Assistant Master, Mistress, or Teacher, appointed to either school, and copies shall be sold at a reasonable price to all persons who may wish to buy.

74. The date of this scheme shall be the day on which Her Majesty by Order in Council declares her approbation of it.

Since the establishment of the scheme the sum of 20,393*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* has been expended in building, drainage, and other works, of which 14,500*l.* has been advanced by the Company, the greater portion without interest.

Further endowments.

Charity Commissioners to make new Schemes.

Scheme to be printed and sold.

Date of Scheme.

The Company carry over the residue of the rents, under the direction of a scheme which is set out under my report on the "Prison Fund Account."

The sum thus carried over in the year 1861 was 428*l.* 4*s.

* CHARITY OF JOHN HYDE.

The premises formerly Nos. 1 and 56, Church Street, and the warehouse in Church Street, and also the "Three Lords" public-house in the Minorities (presumably No. 27, Church Street), have been taken by the Metropolitan Railway Company, and the net money is represented by the sum of 5,895*l.* 9*s.* consols.

The house No. 125, Fleet Street, is now let to Messrs. A. & H. Marshall, at an annual rent of 400*l.*

The fixed payments are still made to the several objects, but the residue formerly applicable for the discharge of poor prisoners for debt in London is carried to the Company's Convalescent Home account under the order of the Court dated 8th December 1876.

[See Note infra, Prisoners' Fund Account.]

JENKINSON'S CHARITY.

Robert Jenkinson, by his will of the 15th April 1616, gave to the Company 120*l.*, on trust to distribute 6*l.* on All Saints' day to 14 poor ancient widows in the Tower Hill almshouses in clothing.

And by a codicil of the 14th October 1617, he gave 20*l.* in augmentation.

The Company charge themselves with 7*l.* a year interest on 140*l.* at 5*l.* per cent., which they carry to the almshouse account.

JUXON'S CHARITY.

John Juxon, by his will of the 17th August 1626, gave to the Company 12*l.* a year issuing out of certain lands at Mortlake, Surrey, for poor scholars at Oxford or Cambridge.

This rent-charge is now paid by General Popham, the owner of a farm said to be called Brickfarm.

The sum of 9*l.* 12*s.* 0*d.* only is received by the Company, who make up the 12*l.* by adding 2*l.* 8*s.* 0*d.* from their funds, and bestow the whole upon a poor scholar at one of the Universities alternately each year.

MASON'S CHARITY.

Peter Mason, by his will of the 6th December 1412, gave to the Company certain tenements and shops in the Poultry, upon trust to pay 7*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* to certain superstitious uses, and the residue for the poor of the Company.

The following table exhibits the present description and income of the property.

No. 1, Poultry, let to Messrs. R. & P. Brooks (the silversmith), on lease for 25½ years from Christmas 1848 at a rent of	200	0	0
No. 4, Poultry, let to the administrators of William Thodey (glover), for 14 years from Christmas 1857	180	0	0
No. 5, Poultry. This was let to Mr. Samuel Hale for 61 years from Midsummer 1803, at a rent of 40 l. per annum. The lease refers to the plan in the margin, which describes the limits of the estate demised as 16 ft. 5 in. frontage in the Poultry, with an eastern boundary extending 14 ft. 9 in. backwards, and a western boundary of 10 ft. 8 in., and abutting on premises at the rear stated to belong to Mr. Samuel Hale. The Company purchased the residue of Mr. Hale's lease about or previously to the year 1851, together with other freehold premises in the rear, and on the 3rd December 1851 the Company demised this portion of the charity estate, together with other premises in the rear of the same breadth and frontage in Bucklesbury, to Eugenius Fenning, for 21 years from Christmas 1850, at a rent of 210*l.* Of this rent the Company credit the charity with the rent reserved on the lease of 1803

The estate is subject to a quit rent of 9*s.* a year to the Dean and Chapter of Westminster, and to an annual payment for superstitious uses of 7*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, which has been purchased by the Company and confirmed by statute before referred to

	£300	0	0

The residue is carried over to the poor account of the Company, the nature of which I have described in my report on Elwes' Charity.*

* CHARITY OF PETER MASON.

The premises No. 1, Poultry, are now occupied by Mr. Charles Tighe, at the rent of 220*l.* a year.

By an order of the Board, dated 2nd August 1870, the premises Nos. 4 and 5, Poultry, were leased to Mr.

Frederick Sawyer, for a term of 80 years from Lady Day 1866. The lease comprises also adjoining property not belonging to the Charity, the rent apportioned to the Charity property being 370*l.* The lessee expended a sum exceeding 700*l.* in the completion of a building agreed to be erected on the site of these two houses.

CHARITY OF PETER BLUNDELL.

See Note infra, Prisoners' Fund Account.

LADY JANE MAYNARD'S CHARITY.

Lady Jane Maynard, by her will of the 14th March 1660, devised two messuages and 73 acres in Leicham, Kent, and divers marsh lands containing 138 acres in Romney Marsh, to certain persons in tail male, and in default of issue to trustees, upon trust to grant to the said Company a rent-charge of 50*l.* a year issuing out of the said lands for honest well-disposed freemen of the Company.

The Company receive 40*l.* a year from the agent of Sir John Bridges, deducting 10*l.* a year for land tax. The sum of 20*l.* annually is given to each of two young men free of the Company, who have served their apprenticeship and are about to set up in trade. Evidence is required by the committee of the Company of these facts before the sum is granted, but no other record is taken than the names and addresses of the parties.

The two last recipients of this gift were—

1. Mr. John Mackintosh New, of No. 24, Tavistock Place, Tavistock Square; and,
2. John White Smith, of No. 3, the Grove, Homerton.

MOORE'S CHARITY.

William Moore, by his will (date unknown), gave to the Company an annuity of 20*s.* issuing out of a house in St. Andrew Undershaft, to be distributed amongst the wardens substitutes in decay.

The churchwardens of St. Andrew Undershaft pay 16*s.* a year, which the Company pay to their poor account.

OSMOTHERLAW'S CHARITY.

Richard Osmotherlaw, by will of the 7 May 1612, gave to the Company all the residue of the rents of his freehold lands and tenements in St. Botolph, Aldersgate, subject to the payments following :—

	£	s.	d.
To his wife, her heirs and assigns, for ever	10	0	0
To the poor of St. Botolph, Aldersgate	4	6	8
For a sermon there 6 s. 8 d. , churchwardens 4 s. , clerk and sexton 2 s. 8 d.	0	13	4
To his cousin John Osmotherlaw and his heirs for ever	5	0	0
To Robert Osmotherlaw and his heirs for ever	2	0	0
To Bromefield School, Cumberland	10	0	0

John Osmotherlaw purchased an annuity of 6*l.* (part of the annuity of 10*l.* to the wife), and the annuity of 2*l.* to Robert, which with his own of 5*l.*, making together 13*l.*, he afterwards by will of the 1st June 1642 devised as follows :—

	£	s.	d.
To the Clothworkers Company	2	10	0
To Christ's Hospital	2	10	0
To St. James's Garlickhithe parish, London	8	0	0
To one Andrews	5	0	0

The Company are in possession of property in Aldersgate Street and Little Britain, which produces a considerable rental, of which they charge themselves a rent-charge with 23*l.* per annum, the amount of the charitable gifts of John Osmotherlaw, the devisee, and of the charitable gifts of Rd. Osmotherlaw, the testator, beyond which there are no claimants.

The 23*l.* a year is thus applied :—

To the churchwardens of St. Botolph, Aldersgate (less 1 l. for land tax, a customary deduction for a long period)	4	0	0
To the minister and churchwardens of the parish of Bromfield, Cumberland, on condition of maintaining a school-master to teach 15 poor men's children of Langridge and Bromfield	10	0	0
To the Clothworkers' Company	2	10	0
Carried forward	£16	10	0

Brought forward	-	-	16 10 0
To Christ's Hospital	-	-	2 10 0
To the churchwardens of St. James, Garlickhithe	-	-	3 0 0
			22 0 0

I wrote to the Rev. C. H. Wyberg, vicar of Bromfield, to inquire as to the existence of this school. He informed me in reply that the money is applied in teaching the number of children mentioned, and that the condition of the school is quite satisfactory.

ROBERT PARKER'S CHARITY.

Robert Parker, by his will of the 10th January 1622, gave to the Company 400*l.* to purchase lands for good uses in Staffordshire, on trust to pay 20*l.* a year to the poor of Walsall.

And he gave 100*l.* to the Company to lay out in land in Walsall to pay to the organ player and his blower in Walsall Church 5*l.*

And he gave 100*l.* to the Company to pay to themselves and their officers 5*l.* a year.

And he gave 100*l.* to the Company to pay 5*l.* to the poor of St. Antholin, London.

There has been no investment of the funds in land. The Company charge themselves with 35*l.* a year, of which sums of 20*l.* and 5*l.* a year are paid to the churchwardens of Walsall, and 5*l.* to the churchwardens of St. Antholin, the remaining 5*l.* is paid to the clerk and beadle of the Company.

WILLIAM PARKER'S CHARITY.

William Parker, by his will in 1616, gave to the Company 2,000*l.*, to pay 80*l.* a year as follows :—

	£	s.	d.
To the parson of St. Antholin	10	0	0
To the clerk and sexton	5	0	0
To the minister of Great Bloxwich	20	0	0
To poor prisoners in the Compter, Wood Street	2	0	0
To poor prisoners in the Compter, Poultry	2	0	0
To poor prisoners in Newgate	2	0	0
To poor prisoners in Ludgate	1	10	0
To poor prisoners in the Fleet	1	10	0
To Bethlehem hospital	1	0	0

* CHARITY OF WILLIAM PARKER.

See note infra, Prisoners' Fund Account.

PARKIN'S CHARITY.

This Charity was founded by the will of John Parkin, of the 17th June 1759, whereby, after stating that he was entitled to several sums of money due on certain securities in his said will particularly mentioned, he out of the annual interest arising from such securities gave 60*l.* per annum to his sister Sarah Parkin, and 16*l.* per annum to his sister Grace Sharpe, and declared that on the death of his said sisters all the said securities should be vested in the Master, Fellows, and scholars of Pembroke College, Cambridge (then commonly called or known as Pembroke Hall), and he thereby gave and granted the same to the said Master, Fellows, and scholars, together with what should remain yearly out of the annual interest of the said securities after payment of the said annual sums of 60*l.* and 16*l.* to his sisters; and he directed that upon the death of either of his said sisters her legacy should cease, and be vested immediately in the said Master, Fellows, and scholars. And he gave all the said securities to the said Master, Fellows, and scholars upon trust for founding five or six Scholarships or Exhibitions in Pembroke College, to be appropriated to and conferred upon five or six scholars educated in Merchant Taylors' School at London, regard being always had to their seniority and station therein, and particularly to those who were head of the school and became superannuated, whom he preferred as emeriti milites; and he directed that one other scholar should be of the free school of Bowes, in the county of York, founded by his late uncle William Hutchinson, Esquire, of Clement's Inn, and of Aldenham, in Hertfordshire. And he declared that it was his intention that those five or six scholars should each have an equal portion or dividend, and be chosen within the space of two months after any avoidance or vacancy by the Master of Pembroke Hall for the time being, and that they should be resident at least nine months in every year, and might enjoy the same till they were of seven years' standing in the University, and no longer; but he directed that until the whole property and interest of the said securities should be in the Master, Fellows, and scholars aforesaid, no more scholarships or exhibitions should be settled than in proportion to the interest money that they were by his will entitled to an should actually receive, and which he left to their judgment and discretion.

The testator died on the 27th August 1765.

By an order of the court of the 9th December 1854, it was ordered that the College of Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, should transfer the sum of 6,700*l.*, bank 3 per cent annuities, into the name of the Accountant-General in trust in the cause, and that the college should sell the sum of 100*l.* new 3 per cents, standing in their names, and pay the produce thereof to the credit of the same cause, and that the same be laid out in the purchase of bank 3 per cent. annuities.

And it was ordered that of the aggregate amount of bank 3 per cent. annuities, which after such transfer and investment should be standing in trust in the cause "Attorney General versus Parkin," including in such aggregate the 5,824*l.* 12*s.* 4*d.* bank 3 per cent. annuities standing in the name of the Accountant-general in trust in the cause, 20 equal 42 parts of the said bank annuities to be carried over to an account to be entitled, "In the matter of Parkin's Charity the account of the master and wardens of the Merchant Taylors of the fraternity of St. John Baptist in the City of London."

And after directing the taxation of costs, and the sale of so much of the said bank annuities as would be sufficient for the payment thereof, it was ordered that the dividends be from time to time paid to the Company, and that such dividends be applied by the Company in providing four exhibitions, to be called the "Parkin Exhibitions," for scholars educated at Merchant Taylors' School and proceeding to the University of Cambridge for four years, and to be subject to such rules, orders, and regulations in regard to residence or otherwise as the Company should from time to time establish.

The college in 1855, in addition to the stock transferred to the account of the cause, paid the sum of cash of 184*l.* 14*s.* 9*d.*

The capital fund which now stands in the name of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery in the cause "Attorney-General v. Parkin," is 5,887*l.* 14*s.* 9*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. consols, producing an annual dividend of 176*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*

The Company provide four exhibitions for scholars of the Merchant Taylors at Pembroke College of 50*l.* a year. The cash paid over by the college has hitherto provided the deficiency between the amount of the dividend and the 200*l.*, and this deficiency, I am informed, it is the design of the Company to make up from their own funds when the cash balance is exhausted.

PARRY'S CHARITY.

Fowlk Parry, by his will in 1658, gave to the Company 50*l.*, and the interest whereof to be distributed to the poor yearly. The Company pay 2*l.* 10*s.* per annum, as the interest of this fund, to the poor account.

(See Elwes' Charity.)

M. PARSON'S CHARITY.

Margaret Parsons, by deed of the 10th December, 5th Elizabeth (1562), granted to the Company an annuity of 4*l.* issuing out of a tenement in St. Christopher, Cornhill, to pay:—

	£	s.	d.
To the Parish of St. Michael 20 s. , and St. Christopher 10 s.	-	1	10 0
To 13 poor Merchant Tailors 12 d. a-piece	-	0	13 0
To 4 poor maidens' marriages, &c., 7 s. 6 d. each	-	1	10 0
To the clerk 5 s. , and to the beadle 2 s.	-	0	7 0

The Company having received the value of this rent-charge from the Bank of England, on the removal of the property for the construction of that edifice, pay 4*l.* a year, as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To the churchwardens of St. Michael, Cornhill	-	1	0 0
To the churchwardens of St. Christopher-le	-	0	10 0
To the poor account of the Company	-	0	13 0
To the officers of the Company	-	0	7 0
	£2	10	0

The remaining 30*s.* a year, to be given to poor maidens' servants, or children of Merchant Tailors, in sums of 7*s.* 6*d.*, has not been distributed for three or four years there is a balance of 6*l.* 10*s.* in hand.

SIR JOHN PERCIVAL'S AND DAME THOMASINE PERCIVAL'S CHARITIES.

Sir John Percival, by his will of the 21st February 1507, gave to the Company certain messuages in Lombard Street and Cornhill, for certain superstitious uses, and to pay 10*s.* yearly to poor householders of St. Mary Woolnoth, 6*s.* to the churchwardens of the said parish, and 30*s.* for coals to the said parish, and the residue for the said Company; and

Dame Thomasine Percival, by her will of the 12th February 1508, gave to the Company certain messuages, to apply the rents in performance of the will of her husband, Sir John Percival, and also to pay—

To the churchwardens of St. Mary Woolnoth 8*s.* 0*d.*
And to five poor householders 5*d.* weekly - 21*s.* 8*d.*

The Company are in possession of the property charged by these wills, and pay a sum of 3*l.* 15*s.* 8*d.* annually to the churchwardens of St. Mary Woolnoth, upon their receipt.

PITT'S CHARITY.

Christopher Pitt, by deed of the 16th August 1683, gave to the Company 300*l.*, the Company covenanting to pay to six poor men or women 10*s.* quarterly each (12*l.*)

There is no specific investment of the 300*l.* The Company pay 12*l.* 12*s.* a year (guineas instead of pounds) for six yearly pensions of 2*l.* 2*s.* each, to poor widows of members of the Company.

WM. PRIESTLY'S CHARITY.

William Priestly, by his will of the 2nd May 1620, gave to the Company 250*l.*, on trust to maintain eight poor men, allowing them 1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* a year each, four of the Company, and four of the parish of Hornsey.

The Company charge themselves with the annual payment of 10*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, being the sum directed by the will, and also with a further sum of 3*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.*, making up together 13*l.* 14*s.* 8*d.* The four pensions to the poor freemen of the Company they have raised to 2*l.* 2*s.* each, and the four pensions to the poor men of Hornsey remain at 1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* each. The poor men at Hornsey are chosen by the parishioners in vestry, and the nomination is accepted by the Company. The Company pay the amount to the churchwarden for his distribution.

PROCTOR'S CHARITY.

Samuel Proctor, by his will of the 1st February 1636, gave to the Company 100*l.* in trust, to pay at Christmas to

Nine poor brethren 10 s. each	-	4	10
To the clerk 6 s. 8 d. , to the beadle 3 s. 4 d.	-	0	10

The Company pay 5*l.* per annum, of which 4*l.* 10*s.* goes to the poor account, and the residue to the officers.

DAME MARY RAMSAY'S CHARITY.

Dame Mary Ramsay, by her will of the 8th July 1601, gave to the Company 200*l.*, to be lent at 5 per cent. to brethren of the Company, and the profit distributed towards the relief of the poor.

This, although supposed to be lost, is introduced in the list of the loan charities.

The Charity is credited with the payment of interest received on the loan fund which belongs to it. Thus, in the year 1861, this Charity was credited with two-eighths of 27*l.*, which had been received from the executrix of one of the sureties of Mr. C. K. Thompson, for two years' interest on 300*l.* lent to him under the scheme, at 4½ per cent.

This amount, being 6*l.* 15*s.*, was carried to the poor account.

RENNECK'S CHARITY.

Edward Renneck, by his will in 1656, gave to the Company 100*l.*, to be lent out to two young men, they paying each 20*s.* a year for interest.

This is one of the loan charities which is credited with the share of the interest received from the borrowers.

In 1861, 3*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* was brought to this account, being one-eighth of the interest received from the sureties of Thompson, which was carried to the poor account of the Company.

SIR ABRAHAM REYNARDSON'S CHARITY.

Sir Abraham Reynardson, by his will of the 10th May 1661, gave to the Company 300*l.*, to pay 16*l.* a year, issuing out of a house in Cornhill, to six poor men and six poor women of the Company.

The Company pay 16*l.* a year, in pensions of 1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* each, to six poor freemen and six poor widows of freemen annually.

RICHARDS' CHARITY.

Henry Richards, by his will of the 29th January 1674, gave to the Company 500*l.*, to be lent to young men of the Company at 4 per cent. interest, to be disposed of amongst the poorest and most impotent widows, children, and other persons. The fund is lent out under the scheme, and the Charity is credited with its share of the actual interest received.

Thus in the year 1861, the Charity received credit for the sum of 16*l.* 17*s.* 6*d.* for two years' interest due on the 300*l.* lent to C. K. Thompson, at 4½ per cent., which was paid by the executors of the surety.

There is a class of 10 pensions of 2*l.* 2*s.* a year each, to poor women, widows, &c., habitually paid as arising from this gift, and the fund is made up when the interest falls short, by the requisite sum paid out of the poor account of the Company.

T. ROBERTS' CHARITY.

Thomas Roberts, by his will of the 14th April 1824, gave to the Company 2,000*l.* consols (or South Sea annuities) upon trust, to distribute the dividends among the poor almswomen on Tower Hill.

The bequest, which was a specific one, was satisfied by the appropriation of 2,000*l.* old South Sea annuities, and has since been paid off. The Company made up the sum received in respect of this stock to 2,000*l.*, which was afterwards invested in 2,108*l.* 0*s.* 9*d.*, 3 per cent. consols, producing annually 63*l.* 4*s.* 9*d.* The Company pay the dividends to the almshouse account.

SIR THOMAS ROWE'S CHARITY.

Sir Thomas Rowe, by his will of the 11th August 1565, gave to the Company all his messuages and hereditaments in London, to distribute 40*l.* a year among 10 poor freemen of the Companies of Clothworkers, Carpenters, Tilers, Plasterers, and Armourers.

And by deed of the 4th June 1569, he gave 100*l.* to be lent to poor housekeepers of the Company.

The Company hold property in Thames Street, under the above devise, and apply 40*l.* a year, in pensions of 4*l.* each, to two members of each of the above Companies. On the occasion of any vacancy two candidates are chosen by the particular Company, who attend before the Charity Committee, with the beadle of the Company, and the committee select one as the new pensioner.

The loan fund of 100*l.* forms part of the fund dealt with, and reported on, under the head of Loan Charities.*

* CHARITY OF THOMAS ROWE.

By an Order of the Board, dated 28th August 1860, a messuage known as No. 32, Great St. Helens, held by the Company under this devise, was let on lease for 80 years from Lady-day, 1860, at 180*l.* a year.

With a view to the widening of Dowgate Hill, a strip of land on the west side belonging to the Company was, by an Order of the Board of 9th May 1865, authorised to be sold to the Charing Cross Railway Company for the sum of 400*l.*, which was invested in the purchase of 451*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.* consols, in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

In 1869 the Company were further authorised to sell for the sum of 2,700*l.* another strip of land on the west side of Dowgate Hill to be dedicated to the public. This sum was invested in the purchase of 2,899 6*s.* 7*d.* consols, in the name of "The Official Trustees of Charitable Funds."

A small piece of land adjoining property belonging to the Company in Dowgate Hill having been conveyed to the Company for a nominal consideration, this piece of land was included in a lease of Nos. 14, 15, and 16, Dowgate Hill, to Mr. John King, for 80 years from Lady-day 1865, at a rent of 700*l.* a year, such lease being confirmed by an Order of the Board, dated 9th January 1872.

By an Order of the Board, dated the 3rd June 1870, the Company were authorised to enter into an agreement with Messrs. Kennard for the grant of a lease of part of the estate held by the Company under this devise, being part of No. 87, Upper Thames Street (consisting of part of wharf and warehouses), for the term of 70 years from Lady-day 1869, at a rent of 738*l.* 5*s.*, a sum of 13,150*l.* to be expended in rebuilding.

In pursuance of the terms of such agreement, and preliminary to the grant of the lease in question, the Company were authorised by a further Order, dated 5th July 1870, to purchase for the sum of 1,100*l.*, in trust for the Charity, a piece of freehold ground, situate on the east side of Bull Wharf Lane, Upper Thames Street, containing 728 square feet or thereabouts, belonging to Messrs. Kennard.

By an Order of the Board, dated 20th July 1870, the Company were authorised to grant the lease of the property above mentioned, and on the terms mentioned, to include the land purchased from Messrs. Kennard.

The sum of 1,100*l.*, and costs attending the purchase, amounting to 41*l.* 8*s.* 10*d.*, was provided by the sale of 1,275*l.* 7*s.* 1*d.* consols in the name of the official trustees.

The amount now (1882) held by the official trustees in trust for the Charity is 2,075*l.* 19*s.* consols.

By an Order of the Board, dated 12th December 1872, a parcel of land situate between land belonging to the Company and Dowgate Hill, comprising 45 square feet or thereabouts, was vested in "The Official Trustees of Charity Lands."

SHEPHAM'S CHARITY.

Richard Shepham, by his will of the 20th July 1604, gave to the Company 100*l.* to be lent to four poor young men.

And by a codicil of the 28th July 1604, he gave to the Company 50*l.*, and the interest laid out in clothing.

The interest on this latter sum, amounting to 2*l.* 10*s.* a year, is carried to the almshouse account. The 100*l.* first mentioned forms part of the loan charities, and is dealt with under that scheme. There is no interest from the loan.

SOLLY'S CHARITY.

Abigail Solly, by her will of the 9th July 1719, gave to the Company all her lands at Godstone, Surrey, to apply the rents in repairing the tombstone of her brothers, and to apply the surplus amongst poor men and women in December yearly.

The devised land consists of about 20 acres of land, without buildings. It is let to Mr. Henry Steer, yearly tenant, at a rent of 13*l.* a year.

The tombstone of the testatrix is situated in Bunhill Fields, and in the year 1861 the sum of 6*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.* was expended in its repair.

There had been no expenditure from 1856 to 1861.

The residue is paid to the poor account of the Company.

SPENCER'S CHARITY.

Nicholas Spencer, by will of the 3rd July 1597, devised to the Company a messuage and shop in Little St. Thomas the Apostle, upon condition to pay 52*s.* a year to Doddington parish, in the Isle of Ely, and 3*l.* 13*s.* 8*d.* to the parish of St. Thomas the Apostle, London.

The property charged with this gift has been sold for City improvements, and the money has been paid into the Court of Chancery. The Company pay 2*l.* 12*s.* a year to the churchwardens of Doddington, and 3*l.* 13*s.* 8*d.* to the churchwardens of St. Thomas the Apostle, upon their several receipts.

CHARITIES OF STINT, RAWTHORNE, LANE, AND LEE.

In the year 1638, — Stint, Jeremy Rawthorne, William Lane, and Walter Lee, gave to the Company 50*l.* a piece, to pay yearly 12*l.* to 24 poor aged brethren.

The Company pay 12*l.* a year, representing the interest of 200*l.*, which they carry to the poor account.

(See Elwes' Charity.)

STUART'S CHARITY.

The Rev. William Stuart, D.D., by his will of the 10th November 1733, gave, — “Unto his wife Mary Stuart, the sum of 2,500*l.* for her to enjoy all the interest of the said sum during her life, and after the decease of his said wife (in case he should die childless), the said sum of 2,500*l.* to be equally divided between his nephew, the Rev. Charles Stuart, and his niece Mary Stuart, and to their or either of their children to be enjoyed by them and the survivor of them, but in case his said nephew and niece should die unmarried, or by their marriage should have or leave no children behind them, then the said testator declared his will was, and he did thereby give unto the Head Master of Merchant Taylor's School, in London, for the time being, and to the President and fellows of St. John Baptist's College in Oxford, for the time being, the sum of 1,250*l.* (being one moiety of the before mentioned sum of 2,500*l.*), and the other moiety of the said sum of 2,500*l.* he gave and bequeathed unto the Head Master of the said school for the time being, and unto the Masters and Fellows of Pembroke Hall (now Pembroke College) in Cambridge for the time being, in trust, nevertheless, that the Head Master of the said school, and the heads and fellows of the said two colleges respectively, should within two years after they were entitled to their respective moieties lay out the same in the best manner they could devise to answer for ever the design for which he gave the same, and which design was set forth in the said will in the following terms (videlicet):—That a boy who has continued in Merchant Taylors' School five years at least, in hopes of being elected out of it, and has come to the nearest to it, and yet lost the election for no fault in morals or defect in learning, but by superannuation only, that the said scholar may have no reason to think his time lost, or himself unhappy upon that account, the interest and profits annually arising out of that 1,250*l.* which I have given to the Head Master of Merchant Taylors' School, and to the President and Fellows of St. John Baptist's College in Oxon, in trust, I have given for the use and encouragement of that one superannuated scholar that shall enter himself in the said College of St. John Baptist's, Oxon, to be enjoyed by him for the space of eight years, and no longer, or for so long only as he shall reside there, and duly perform all the exercises that the statutes of that university and of the said college required of scholars, bachelors, and masters of arts. The other 1,250*l.* which I have given in trust to the Head Master of the Merchant Taylors' School aforesaid, and to the Master and Fellows of Pembroke Hall in Cambridge, I design for the use and encouragement of another scholar of Merchant Taylors' School that shall be superannuated as aforesaid, and shall enter himself of Pembroke Hall in Cambridge, and he shall receive and enjoy all the interest and profits arising from the said 1,250*l.* for the space of seven years from his first entry in that university, or for so long time only as he shall reside there and duly perform all the exercises that the statutes of the college and university require of scholars, bachelors, and master of arts. As soon as the term of eight years shall be fully completed by the said superannuated scholar in St. John Baptist's College in Oxon, and the term of seven years shall be completed by the other superannuated scholar in Cambridge, the payment of the interest of each of the said sums of 1,250*l.* shall be discontinued to them respectively, and as often as it shall happen that there shall be no scholar in Merchant Taylors' school actually superannuated in the manner above required from the expiration of the term allowed as above to each of the said scholars for their enjoyment of the said interest to the time that a scholar in the said school shall be superannuated as above, whatever interest shall become due, the Master of Merchant Taylors' school with the Heads and Fellows of the two colleges above mentioned shall have hereby power to demand and receive, and shall be obliged to add it to that 1,250*l.* from whence the said interest shall arise, for the augmentation of the said sum, and the better support of the said superannuated scholars for the future. But if there shall be in the said school a scholar that shall have actually lost the election by superannuation only within a year after the expiration of either the terms allowed as above to either of the said scholars in Oxford or Cambridge, then and in that case the interest that shall become due for that year shall not be reserved as above mentioned, but it shall be given to and be enjoyed by the boy that shall be superannuated within that year. And the testator gave certain directions as to the investment of the said trust funds during the lives of his wife, nephew, and niece. And he appointed the Head Master of Merchant Taylors' School, and the President and Fellows of Saint John Baptist's College, Oxford, and the Master and Fellows of Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, all for the time being, his executors, in trust for his said donation.”

The said testator departed this life shortly after making his said will, and without having revoked or altered the same, and the same was duly proved in the Prerogative Court of the Archbishop of Canterbury on the 14th day of November 1734.

Upon the petition of the Master, Fellows, and scholars of the College of Valence Mary, commonly called the Pembroke College in the university of Cambridge, and of the Rev. John Power and the Rev. Wm. Haig Brown, two of the fellows of the said college, on the 18th day of June 1855, preferred unto the Master of the Rolls,

It was ordered that the agreement therein mentioned entered into by Pembroke College, Cambridge, and the Merchant Taylors' Company be carried into effect, and it was ordered that the Master, Fellows, and scholars of Pembroke College should, on the 1st day of December 1855, transfer the said sum of 3,036*l.* 17*s.* bank 3 per cent. annuities standing in their names in the books of the governor and company of the Bank of England into the name and with the privy of the Accountant-General of the court, in trust in the cause “Stuart v. Attorney-General,” and the said Accountant-General was to declare the trust thereof accordingly, subject to the further order of the court. And it was ordered that it be referred to the proper taxing master of this court to tax all parties their costs. And it was ordered that so much of the 3,036*l.* 17*s.* bank 3 per cent. annuities, when so transferred as therein-before directed, as would be sufficient to raise the amount of such costs when taxed, be sold with the privy of the said Accountant-General, and out of the moneys to arise by the said sale, it was ordered that the costs be paid as therein directed. And it was ordered that two equal seventh parts of the residue of the said 3,036*l.* 17*s.* bank 3 per cent. annuities which should remain after the sale therein-before directed, and two seventh parts of any dividend on the said bank annuities accrued prior to the sale, be carried over with the privity of the said Accountant-General, in trust in the said cause, to an account to be entitled "The Account of the Master, Fellows, and Scholars of Pembroke College, Cambridge," and the said Accountant-General was to declare the trust thereof accordingly, subject to the further order of this court. And it was ordered that the said two sevenths of the said dividends and the dividends to accrue due on the bank annuities when so carried over be from time to time as the same should become due, paid to Pembroke College Cambridge, to be applied by them in providing a scholarship to be called "The Stuart Scholarship," for such student of the said college as the said Master, Fellows, and scholars should from time to time elect, such scholarships to be subject to such rules and regulations as to the continuance and enjoyment thereof as the said Master, Fellows, and scholars should from time to time direct. And it was ordered that the remaining five equal seventh parts of the said residue, the amount to be verified by affidavit, and five seventh parts of any dividend on the said bank annuities, to accrue prior to the sale therein-before directed, be carried over in trust in the said cause, to an account to be entitled "The Account of the Master and Wardens of the Merchant Taylors of the fraternity of St. John Baptist in the city of London." And it was ordered that the said five seventh parts of the said dividends, and the dividends to accrue due on the said bank annuities when so carried over, and the dividends to accrue due on the said bank annuities to be purchased as herein-after directed, be from time to time, as the same should become due, paid to the Merchant Taylors' Company, to be applied by them in providing one or more exhibition or exhibitions at the university of Cambridge, to be called the Stuart exhibition or exhibitions, for scholars brought up in the Merchant Taylors' School, who should have been four years in the said school, and who should be proceeding to any college in the said university, such exhibition to be enjoyed for such term, not exceeding four years respectively, and to be subject to such rules and regulations in regard to the residence or otherwise as the master, wardens, and court of assistants of the said fraternity should from time to time establish, but no such exhibition should be enjoyed by any scholar who should have previously been elected to a Parkins exhibition. And it was ordered that the elections to such exhibitions be by the said master, warden, and court of assistants, at such times and in such manner as they should from time to time appoint. And it was ordered that any income of such exhibitions be from time to time invested by the said master and wardens in like annuities by way of addition to the existing capital fund.

The sum of 2,052*l.* 7*s.* 5*d.* consols stands in the Court of Chancery to the credit of the cause of Stuart v. The Attorney-General, the dividends amounting to 61*l.* 11*s.* 4*d.* being paid to an exhibitor from the Merchant Taylors' School to some college in the university of Cambridge. There is a balance of 63*l.* 16*s.* 5*d.* cash arising from vacancies, which will be invested in increase of the capital stock.

SUTTON'S CHARITY.

Thomas Sutton, by will of the 26th May 1432, gave to the Company all his lands and tenements, with a wharf in St. James, Garlickhithe, and certain lands in Trinity the Jess, for the relief of the poor in their almshouses near the hall, and for superstitious uses.

The property consists of the following particulars :—

The property is subject to a quit rent of 1*l.* 6*s.* (of which 4*s.* is deducted for land tax and 1*l.* for property tax), payable to the Duke of Bedford.

The whole residue of the income is carried to the almshouse account.

THOMLINSON'S CHARITY.

Thomas Thomlinson, by will of the 6th April 1567, gave to the Company a messuage in St. Mildred, in the ward of Broad Street, at the coldest time of the year to provide two loads of coal at 16*s.* a load, for the most needy of that parish; and to Christ's Hospital 20*s.* a year.

The property devised to the Company is situated in St. Mildred's Court, Poultry, and has been lately sold to the Goldsmith's Company, who were the reversioners of a long lease of 999 years. The Company pay 2*l.* 12*s.*, that is to say, 32*s.* to the churchwardens of St. Mildred and 20*s.* to Christ's Hospital.

CHARITIES OF THOMAS AND SUSANNAH TOWNSEND.

Thomas Townsend, by his will of the 16th May 1789, gave to the Company a leasehold house in Broad Street, to apply the rents (after his wife's decease) in supporting a Thursday evening lecture in St. Michael, Crooked Lane, except in Passion Week, when it might be on Friday evening.

And the testator directed that the rents should be applied as follows :—

To the clergyman	5/10ths.
To the parish clerk for candles, &c.	2/10ths.
To a fund for renewing the lease	1/10th.
To the Master and Wardens, out of which 40 s. to the clerk	1/10th.
Towards defraying the poor's rate of the parishes of St. Michael, Crooked Lane, and St. Benet Fink	1/10th.

And Susannah Townsend, by her will of the 28th July 1810, gave to the Company 200*l.* per annum, long annuities, for the use of the lecturer, instead of the house, which bequest was void.

The sum of 4,525*l.* reduced three per cent. annuities, which stands in the corporate name of the Company, as stated in the last report (Vol. 17, p. 460) as the ultimate fund arising from the sale of the long annuities found upon the Chancery proceedings to be applicable to this Charity, produces a dividend of 135*l.* 15*s.* a year, which is thus disposed of :—

* CHARITY OF JOHN VERNON.

The Commissioners, by an Order of the Board, dated 19th November 1867, authorised the Company to enter into articles of agreement for the grant of a lease to the London and County Land and Building Company of the property held by the Company under this devise, which from improvements in Plough Court is now comprised in part of the premises known as No. 31, Lombard Street, for the term of 80 years from Christmas 1866, at a rent of 2,600l. a year,

As to the amount formerly paid for relief of poor prisoners see Note infra, The Prisoners' Fund Account.

JAMES WILFORD'S CHARITY.

James Wilford, by his will in the year 1514, gave to the Company a rentcharge of 9l. 13s. 4d., out of the "Saracen's Head Inn," Friday Street, upon trust, to pay,—

	£	s.	d.
Towards repairing the highway between Riverhill, Kent, and Northyam, Sussex	7	0	0
To the poor of St. Bartholomew, Royal Exchange	2	0	0
To the parson, for a sermon in Passion Week	0	6	8
To the Wardens, Clerk, and Beadle of the Company	0	6	8

The rentcharge is paid out of the estate charged, which belongs to the Company. The Company pay. To the churchwardens of St. Bartholomew, by the Exchange, deducting land tax, 1l. 12s. To the minister 1l. 1s., clerk 5s., and sexton 2s. 6d.; in the whole 1l. 8s. 6d. To the officers of the Company, 6s. 8d.

The sum of 7l., deducting 1l. 8s. a year therefrom as land tax, is annually paid. The last authority was signed by the churchwardens of Rye and two parishioners and inhabitants of Rye, and the same officers and the same number of inhabitants and parishioners of Northyam.

From the fund saved after the deduction of the land tax, the Company have increased some of the above payments, as appears by the foregoing statement, and carry the residue, amounting to 14s. 2d., to the poor account.

JOHN WILFORD'S CHARITY.

John Wilford, by his will of the 4th February 1550, and subsequent codicils, gave an annuity of 14l. to the Company, 13l. thereof to be bestowed in repairs of the highways next adjoining the parish of Mitcham, Surrey, and the remaining 1l. to the Master, Wardens, and officers of the Company.

After the testator's death, his eldest son, James Wilford, granted an annuity of 4l. 13s. 4d. (one-third of the said annuity of 14l.), to one James White, charged upon freehold property in St. Bartholomew's parish, and which annuity was assigned to Richard Botyll, an agent of the Company. John Wilford, testator's second son, secured the remainder of the 14l. per annum by granting an annuity of 9l. 6s. 8d. to the said Richard Botyll, charged on premises in Mark Lane and Fleet Street, and Richard Botyll bequeathed the two annuities to the Company.

The rentcharges are collected by the Company, and amount, after the deduction of 2l. 16s. land tax, to the sum of 11l. 4s. a year. 10l. 8s. a year is paid alternately to the churchwardens of the several parishes of Mitcham, Streatham, Sutton, and Carshalton, their receipts being accompanied by a certificate of the surveyor of the highways that the amount has been expended in repairs.

The remaining 16s. is paid to the officers of the Company.

JOHN WILLIAMS' CHARITY.

John Williams, by will of the 12th November 1712, gave to the Company 50l., to pay six poor cutting tailors or their widows 3l.

The sum of 3l. a year is paid by the Company to the poor account.

A sum of about 500*l.* a year is administered to poor freemen and their widows, according to the cases laid before the Charity Committee of the Court of Assistants in sums varying from 1*l.* to 10*l.* or thereabouts.

On this account there have been created two classes of yearly pensions not falling under any specific Charity. There are 10 pensioners of 12*l.* a year to poor freemen of the Company, and 12 pensioners of 20*l.* a year to almswomen who are widows of Liverymen, not in the almshouses.

Some other sums are paid out of this fund for the increase of various pensions given under several of the Charities. These amounted together in 1861 to 16*l.* 2*s.*

The total payments in that year amounted to 876*l.* 2*s.*

There was at the end of 1861 a balance of cash to the credit of the poor account of 1,018*l.* 19*s.*

Loan Account.

An information was filed against the Company by the Attorney-General, at the relation of George Everitt, in January 1833, praying that the Company might be charged with the following sums :—

	£	s.	d.
Sir Thomas Rowe	-	-	100 0 0
Dame Mary Ramsay	-	-	200 0 0
Richard Shepham	-	-	100 0 0
Randolph Woolley	-	-	100 0 0
Edward Renneck	-	-	100 0 0
Henry Richards	-	-	500 0 0

and that the same might be applied and made available to the use of the freemen of the Company according to the gifts, and that it might be referred to the Master to settle a scheme for the same. The decree was made by the Master of the Rolls on the 27th November 1834, on the admission by the Company of the receipt of the several sums mentioned, and it was referred to the Master to settle the interest due on the sums therein named, and also to settle a scheme. The Master made his report on the 27th April 1835, approving the following scheme.

1st. That the said sum of 1,300*l.* together with the amount of interest on the said sum of 500*l.*, after deducting thereout 470*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* for the taxed costs of the said relator and defendants, and such further costs as the court may direct, be from time to time lent out by the defendants with the assent of the said Company, in several sums of not less than 50*l.* each, and not exceeding 300*l.* each, for a term not exceeding four years according to their discretion, at such a rate of interest as shall yield an annual income of 32*l.* per annum at least, that being the amount of interest directed by the wills and deeds of Dame Mary Ramsay, Edward Renneck, and Henry Richards, to be reserved and to be applied by the Company annually to certain charitable uses therein mentioned.

2nd. That such portion of the said principal sums which at any time may not be out on loan or not to be required for that purpose, and would otherwise be in the Company's possession, should be invested in Government securities as the defendants with the assent of the assistants should think proper, and the dividends to arise thereon to be applied in the first place in making good any deficiency there may be in the receipt of the 32*l.* per annum so devoted to charity as aforesaid, and in the next place, in case there shall be no such deficiency or a surplus after providing for the same, such dividends or surplus to be distributed annually amongst the poor of the Company at the discretion of the said defendants with such assent as aforesaid.

3rd. That the said defendants shall not be liable to make good any loss that may arise from the failure of the borrowers of any portion of the said principal money or their sureties, unless such loss shall arise from the wilful default or neglect of the said defendants.

4th. That the borrowers shall be respectively required with two sureties each, such sureties to be approved by the said defendants, to enter into a joint and several bond to the same defendants, in a penalty of double the amount, but the condition of such bond to be in form and substance or to the effect following (that is to say), That if the borrower, his heirs, executors, or administrators, shall well and truly pay or cause to be paid unto the said defendants, their certain attorney, successors, or assigns, the sum of money borrowed at the expiration of the time for which such sum may be agreed to be lent, together with interest for the same in the mean time payable quarterly. And if it shall happen that the said borrower shall die, fall to decay, or dwell out of the city of London, or out of the bills of mortality before the day of payment, then that if the heirs, executors, or administrators of the said borrower shall well and truly pay or cause to be paid unto the said defendants, their successors or assigns, the sum borrowed with the interest within 60 days next after such the death of the said borrower, or his decay, departure, or dwelling out of the city of London, or out of the bills of mortality, which of them soever shall first happen, and also that if the sureties named in the bond or either of them shall happen to die, fall to decay, depart or dwell out of that part of Great Britain called England, before the said day of payment, then that if the said borrower or the survivor of the said sureties or either of them within 60 days next after such the dying, decaying, or dwelling out of England of them or any of them, shall find, name, cause, and procure such other able and sufficient person or persons as by the said defendants or their successors shall be thought fit and allowed of to be bound by their obligation to be sealed to the said defendants or their successors in the stead and place of him or them so dead, decayed, departed, or dwelling out of England, in such sum and with such condition and in such sort as he or they which shall be so dead, decayed, departed, or dwelling out of England shall then stand bounden, or else should pay or cause to be paid unto the said defendants, their successors or assigns, the sum of money borrowed, with the interest, within 60 days next after such the dying, decaying, departing, or dwelling out of England of them or any of them, which of them soever should first happen, without fraud or delay, then such bond to be void, otherwise to be in full force and virtue.

5th. That the clerk of the said defendants for the time being shall be at liberty to charge the borrowers respectively the usual and necessary charges for preparing and completing each bond.

6th. That when any portion of the principal money aforesaid shall be in the said defendant's possession to be lent out, advertisements shall be inserted in two or more of the daily newspapers at the discretion of the said defendants offering to lend out the same pursuant to the terms of this scheme, and notice thereof shall be put up in some conspicuous part of the hall or premises of the said Company in Threadneedle Street in the said City.

7th. That a book shall be provided by the defendants and kept by their clerk, in which shall be entered the names and residences of the respective borrowers and their sureties, their respective profession or business, the sums lent, the times of making the loans, and when payable, with the interest thereon, and such other particulars as may be thought material or necessary.

The cause came on to be heard on further directions on the 3rd June 1835, when it was ordered that the scheme be carried into execution, with the following variation in the second clause :—

"That the expenses attending the purchase or sale of any funds belonging to the Charity from time to time be in the first place paid out of the dividends to accrue due on such of the money as may be invested in bank annuities."

The loan fund and interest made together 1,345*l.*, from which the taxed costs of 547*l.* 11*s.* were deducted, leaving 797*l.* 9*s.*, which ultimately forms the capital of the loan fund. The court of the Company, on the 27th October 1835, ordered that the said sum should from time to time be lent out by the Master and Wardens.

Mr. Fisher, the clerk of the Company, has furnished me with an account, showing the state of the fund at the present time, of which the following is a copy :—

PRISONERS' FUND ACCOUNT.

In the year 1850 the Company presented a petition to the Court of Chancery, praying for a new scheme as to the Charities of John Hyde, Robert Dowe, and John Vernon, for the benefit of Poor Prisoners of London, in which it was submitted that the allowance for the relief of prisoners might be increased from 5*l.* to 30*l.* By an order made on the hearing of the petition, it was referred to the Master to inquire and state what alteration should be made in the scheme in the petition mentioned for the appropriation of the dividends and future surplus rents of the trust estates.

The Master by his report of the 18th July 1850, found (amongst other things) that difficulties had arisen in carrying into effect the trusts, and that in the year 1818, on the petition of the said Company, it had been referred to him to approve of a proper scheme for the appropriation of a sum of 405*l*. 11*s*. 0*d*., and of the future surplus rents, and that in pursuance of the said order he had made his report of the 31st May 1820, and thereby, after stating that for a great many years prior to 1815 the said trust funds were wholly applied by the Company in the relief of poor prisoners, debtors, entitled to discharge, but were unable to pay their prison fees, but that since 1815, by reason of the Company having doubts as to the correctness of the application of the funds, the said Company had only partially applied such funds for the relief of poor prisoners debtors, and that there remained unapplied 405*l*. 11*s*., to which was added 262*l*. 16*s*., the amount of the residue of the rents for one year and a half, making together 668*l*. 7*s*. And after stating the particulars of the said devised estates, and of the several other funds belonging or applicable to the said Charity, together with the charges and payments directed to be made out of the rents and profits of the said estates so devised by the said John Hyde, as aforesaid, and that the said Master and Wardens proposed that the said sum of 668*l*. 7*s*. should be laid out and invested in the purchase of 3 per cent., Consolidated Bank Annuities in the names of the said Master and Wardens, and that the said Master and Wardens should yearly and every year divide the clear residue of the rents and profits of the estates so devised by the will of the said John Hyde, into three equal parts or shares, and should also divide the said trust moneys or yearly sums of 20*l*. and 16*l*., so given or directed to be paid by the said Robert Dowe and John Vernon, and also the dividends of the stocks or funds so proposed to be purchased with the sum of 668*l*. 7*s*. as aforesaid, into four equal parts or shares, and should apply the same respectively in manner therein-after mentioned (that is to say) with respect to one equal third part or share of the said clear residue of the rents and profits, and of one-fourth of the said other trust moneys and interest, to pay and apply the same for and towards the discharge of the poor prisoners who for the time being should or might be confined for debt in the new prison in Whitecross Street, London, aforesaid, in the ward called the Giltspur Street Compter Ward, from such debt or debts, or as he, she, or they might be confined upon in such prison, not exceeding 5*l*. in the whole, by equal monthly payments, upon application to be made by any one or two or more poor prisoners in such ward, and requiring assistance to discharge the same, and that such application should be made by petition in manner prescribed by the form of the petition in the said report mentioned; and that the said master and wardens also proposed with respect to one other third part or share of the residue of the said rents and profits, and of one other fourth part of the other trust moneys and interest, that the same should be applied for or towards the discharge of poor persons confined in the said prison for debt, whose debt or debts upon which he, she, or they might be confined upon in the said prison did not exceed 5*l*. in the whole, in the same division, in the ward called the Poultry Compter Ward, and requiring assistance to discharge the same, to be applied for and certified upon petition in the same manner as therein before was mentioned with respect to poor prisoners, and confined in the same prison in the Giltspur Street Compter Ward as aforesaid; and that the said master and wardens proposed with respect to the remaining one-third part or share of the residue of the said rents and profits, and of one other fourth part or share of the other trust moneys and interest, that the same should be applied for or towards the discharge of poor prisoners confined in the said prison for debt, whose debt or debts upon which he, she, or they should or might be confined upon in the said prison did not exceed the sum of 5*l*. in the whole, in the same division, in the ward called the Ludgate Ward, and so requiring assistance to discharge the same, to be applied for and certified upon petition in the same manner as thereinbefore was mentioned with respect to the poor prisoners confined in the same prison in the Giltspur Street Compter Ward, as aforesaid; and that the said master and wardens also proposed with respect to the remaining one-fourth or share of the said other trust moneys and interest, that the same should be applied for or towards the discharge of poor prisoners confined in the said prison for debt in the Middlesex division, in the ward called the Newgate Ward, whose debt or debts upon which he, she, or they should or might be confined upon in the same prison should not exceed in the whole 5*l*., and requiring assistance to discharge the same, to be applied for and certified upon petition in the same manner as thereinbefore mentioned with respect to poor prisoners so as aforesaid confined in the same prison in the Giltspur Street Compter Ward, as aforesaid; and that it was further proposed that in case at any monthly meeting or court of the said Company the sum or sums appropriated in any month under the said proposal towards the discharge of the poor prisoners as aforesaid, or any part thereof, should not be applied for or granted, then that the monthly sum or sums appropriated and applicable as aforesaid, or any part thereof which should not be applied for or granted, should go and be added to the monthly sum appropriated for the ensuing month under the said proposal to and for the several purposes aforesaid, to the particular ward whose monthly sum or any part thereof should not have been applied for or granted as aforesaid, and so from time to time as often as the case should or might happen, and that every petition to be presented to the said Company from time to time by any poor prisoner from either of the said wards or divisions, and requiring assistance to discharge his or her debt or debts, and whose debt or debts upon which he, she, or they should or might be confined did not amount in the whole to the sum of 5*l*., should be presented, signed, and certified in manner thereinbefore and thereafter mentioned, and left with the clerk of the said Company, at his office at the hall of the Company, at least seven days previously to any monthly court or meeting of the said Master and Wardens and Court of Assistants of the said Company; and after stating that a further sum of 175*l*. 4*s*. had been received by the said master and wardens on account of the said rents and profits, and other trust monies as therein mentioned, which said sum of 175*l*. 4*s*. being added to the said several sums of 405*l*. 11*s*. and 175*l*. 4*s*., made together the sum of 755*l*. 19*s*., and that he found that notice had been given to the poor prisoners who were confined for debt in the New Prison in Whitecross Street, of the proceedings before him in pursuance of the aforesaid order, and that they had declined to attend him, the said master, or to lay any scheme before him for the appropriation and application of the said trust moneys, he found by his said report of the 31st day of May 1820 that the nature of the said charities and the several funds belonging thereto were such as were particularly stated in his said report, and he thereby approved of the scheme therein-before stated for the appropriation and application of the balance of the said 405*l*. 11*s*., and of the further sums of 175*l*. 4*s*. and 175*l*. 4*s*. then in the hands of the said Company, and also of the future surplus rents of the trust estates and other trust moneys given by the said deed of Robert Dowe and by the said wills of John Hyde and John Vernon, consistently so far as might be with the charitable intentions of the said donor and the several testators respectively; and he further found by his said report that the yearly rental of the said estates so devised by the said John Hyde as aforesaid then amounted to the sum of 160*l*., and that the specific payments by the said will directed to be made thereout then amounted in the whole to the sum of 20*l*. 16*s*. And he found by an order of the court dated 31st day of July 1820 his said report was confirmed, and it was ordered that the costs of the said petitioners should be taxed and paid out of the said balance or sum of 755*l*. 19*s*., and that the residue of such balance should be invested in the purchase of bank 3 per cent. reduced annuities; and he found that the said costs were duly taxed and paid out of the aforesaid balance, and the residue thereof was invested in the purchase of 835*l*. 10*s*. 9*d*. Bank 3 per cent. reduced annuities, pursuant to the said order of the 31st day of July 1820. And he found by an Act of Parliament passed in the seventh and eighth years of the reign of Her present Majesty, intituled "An Act to amend the "Laws of Insolvency Bankruptcy, and execution," it was (amongst other things), enacted that from and after the passing the said Act no person should be taken or charged in execution upon any judgment obtained in any of Her Majesty's Superior Courts, or in any county Court of Requests or other superior court in any action for the recovery of any debt wherein the sum to be recovered should not exceed the sum of 20*l*. exclusive of the costs recovered by such judgment, and it was also enacted that all persons in execution at the time of the passing of the said Act upon any judgment obtained in any of the courts aforesaid in any action for the recovery of any debt wherein the sum recovered should not exceed 20*l*. exclusive of the costs recovered by such judgment, should and might upon the application of any such person or persons for that purpose made at any time after the passing of the said Act to a judge of one of Her Majesty's superior Courts of Law at Westminster, or to the court in which such judgment should have been obtained to the satisfaction of such judge or court, be forthwith discharged out of custody as to such execution by an order of such judge or court. And he found that after the date of the said order of the 31st day of July 1820, and so far as circumstances would permit, the said Company applied the said trust property for the relief of prisoners for debt, pursuant to the before mentioned scheme, and that since the said Act came into operation there had ceased to be in the aforesaid prison any prisoners to the relief of whom the said trust property could be applied according to the terms of the said funds had been appropriated for the benefit of such prisoners, and that the surplus had from time to time been invested by the said Company in bank 3l. per cent. reduced annuities, and that there is now standing in the names of the said master in the books of the Governor and Company of the Bank of England the sum of 2,291l. 5s. 2d. bank 3l. per cent. reduced annuities, purchased with such surplus unappropriated trust moneys as aforesaid, together with the said 835l. 10s. 9d. bank annuities. And he found that the said trust property consisted of the said hereditaments devised under the said will of the said John Hyde of the 8th day of September 1604, the average net annual rental whereof for the last five years after deducting the aforesaid charges and other expenses therefrom has been 127l. 19s. 2d. or thereabouts, and of the said annual sum of 20l. under the said gift of the said Robert Dowe, and of the said annual sum of 16l. under the said gift of the said John Vernon, and of the said 2,291l. 5s. 2d. Bank 3 per cent. reduced annuities. And it was submitted on the part of the petitioners the Merchant Taylors' Company, that the before-mentioned scheme should be varied by increasing the amount of debt in respect of which prisoners were or might be relieved, from not exceeding 5l. to a sum not exceeding 30l., and in consideration of the several circumstances in the said petition and herein-before mentioned, the Master was of opinion that the aforesaid scheme for the appropriation of the dividends of the said 2,291l. 5s. 2d. reduced annuities as well as the future surplus rents of the said trust estates and other trust moneys should be altered by increasing the amount of debt in respect of which the prisoners before referred to might be relieved according to the said scheme to a sum not exceeding the sum of 30l.

THE CHARITIES OF PETER BLUNDELL, JOHN HYDE, ROBERT DOWE, JOHN VERNON, JOHN WOOLLER, AND WILLIAM PARKER.

The rentcharge of 2l. in respect of Peter Blundell's Charity and the income of John Hyde's Charity (subject to the fixed payments mentioned in Mr. Hare's report), and the fixed payments of 20l. in respect of Robert Dowe's Charity, of 16l. from John Vernon's Charity, of 4l. from John Wooller's Charity, and of 9l. from William Parker's Charity, together with the interest of accumulations of such Charities, represented by the sum of 18,069l. 9s. 9d. reduced 3l. per cent. annuities, have, under the provisions of a scheme established by an Order of the Court of Chancery, dated 8th December 1876, been carried towards the maintenance and support of the Convalescent Home at Bognor.

The provisions of this scheme are as follows:—

1. The sum of 18,069l. 9s. 9d. reduced annuities now standing in the names of the Master and Wardens of the Merchant Taylors of the Fraternity of St. John the Baptist of the City of London, representing accumulations of the said Charities or some of them, shall be forthwith transferred to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the said Charities, to be applied with the income thereof and any accumulations, with the sanction of the High Court of Justice, Chancery Division, or the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales in past or future, and of and for the benefit or improvement of the Convalescent Home herein-after mentioned.

2. It shall be lawful for the said Master and Wardens with the sanction of the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales to compound for the payment of the several annual sums mentioned in the first part of the first schedule hereto, or any of them, in satisfaction of the said Charities, by means of the transfer of an adequate sum of stock to the said Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

3. The said Master and Wardens shall provide books wherein shall be entered accounts of their receipts and

This Report was acted upon up to the period of the New Bankruptcy Law, since which time there are no applications for relief of this nature.

The present state of the Prison Funds is as follows:—

payments on behalf of the Charities. Such accounts shall be audited by them at least annually.

4. The said Master and Wardens and their successors shall be the Trustees or Governors of the said Charities mentioned in the said first part of the said first Schedule hereto, and shall have the administration and management of the same and shall apply the net income thereof in or towards the maintenance and support of the Convalescent Home which has been established by them at Bognor, in the county of Sussex, pursuant to the scheme approved by Order of the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales bearing date the 26th day of March 1873.

The above-mentioned sum of stock was reduced to the sum of 17,027l. 13s. 6d. by the sale of 1,041l. 16s. 3d. stock to provide the proportion of the taxed costs payable out of the funds of these Charities.

By an Order of the Board dated 10th July 1877, the above-mentioned sum of 17,027l. 13s. 6d. reduced 3l. per cent. annuities was transferred into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the Bognor Convalescent Home.

The Company as the trustees of these Charities having advanced out of their corporate funds the sum of 4,603l. 18s., in effecting certain improvements and alterations, and in the maintenance and support of the Convalescent Home, the Board by an Order dated 2nd August 1878, authorised the Company to apply the sum of 1,478l. 15s. 10d. cash in their hands arising from the unexpended surplus income of the Charities in part repayment of the said sum 4,603l. 18s., and for the purpose of providing for the repayment of the balance amounting to 3,125l. 2s. 2d., the sum of 3,289l. 11s. 9d. reduced 3l. per cents. was sold out, leaving the sum of 13,738l. 1s. 9d. reduced 3l. per cent. annuities standing in the name of the Official Trustees in trust for the Convalescent Home at Bognor, which was founded out of the trust funds of Robert Donkin's Charity, and is regulated by the provisions of the scheme established by the Order of the Board, dated 26th March 1872, as mentioned above.

Funds to be vested in the official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

RULES AND REGULATIONS FOR THE FUTURE MANAGEMENT AND CONDUCT OF GREAT CROSBY SCHOOL.

First.

The Master shall be a clergyman of the United Church of England and Ireland. He shall occupy the school-house and premises without paying any rent for the same, but shall keep the said school-house and premises in good and tenantable repair and condition, and shall pay all rates and taxes and other outgoings in respect thereof. His fixed stipend shall be the sum of 120*l.* per annum, payable quarterly, and there shall also be paid to him, at the expiration of each quarter, the further sum of 5*s.* for each boy taught in the school, whose name shall have been upon the school register during the whole of such quarter. He shall be further entitled to share in the quarterages as hereinafter provided. The Court of the Merchant Taylors' Company will expend such sum, not exceeding the sum of 20*l.* per annum, as shall appear to them necessary, in or towards the substantial repair of the school premises and for the insurance of the same against loss or damage by fire. They will also pay to the Master the annual sum of 5*l.* towards the expense of warming and lighting the school-room.

The Master shall be at liberty to perform such ecclesiastical duties as he may think fit on Sundays, but, with this exception, he shall not hold or exercise any cure or other employment whatsoever, either ecclesiastical or civil, without the previous consent in writing of the Court of the Merchant Taylors' Company. The Master shall not be at liberty to take boarders.

Second.

The Usher shall be a member of the United Church of England and Ireland. His fixed stipend shall be the sum of 80*l.* per annum, payable quarterly, and there shall also be paid to him, at the expiration of each quarter, the further sum of 1*s.* 6*d.* for each boy taught in the school, whose name shall have been upon the school register during the whole of such quarter. He shall be further entitled to share in the quarterages as hereinafter provided. The Usher shall not be at liberty to hold or exercise any other office or employment, which, in the opinion of the Court of the Merchant Taylors' Company, may interfere with the proper discharge of his duties in connection with the school. In consideration of the services of Mr. Ritson, as Usher, there shall be paid to him the further sum of 20*l.* per annum.

Third.

The number of boys to be admitted into the school shall, for the present, be limited to 70, of whom not exceeding 28 shall be called "Harrison's Scholars." No boy shall be qualified to be a "Harrison's Scholar" unless his parents or guardians shall be resident within the parish of Sephton, and, if at any time there shall be more applicants than vacancies, a preference shall be shown to those boys whose parents or guardians shall be resident within the township of Great Crosby. As regards other boys, the school shall be open to all whose parents or guardians shall desire to avail themselves of its benefits, but, whenever there shall be more applicants than vacancies, a preference shall be shown, in the first instance, to those whose parents or guardians shall be resident within the township of Great Crosby, and, in the next, to those whose parents or guardians shall be resident within the other portions of the parish of Sephton. No boy shall be admitted into the school either as a "Harrison's Scholar" or otherwise, who shall be under the age of eight years, nor unless he can read and write competently, and no boy shall be permitted to remain in the school after he shall have completed the age of 17 years.

All applications for admission into the school shall be made to the Master, and shall be upon printed forms, which shall be issued by the Master to such persons as shall apply for the same. The applications for admission shall be submitted by the Master to the Visitors, and shall be dealt with by them as hereinafter provided.

All boys admitted into the school shall, during their continuance therein, conform to the rules and regulations for the time being in force, and any boy who shall wilfully act contrary to such rules and regulations shall be liable to expulsion.

A 14546.

Fourth..

The Master shall keep a register of all the boys who for the time being shall be taught in the school; such register shall show the names and residences of the boys, the names and occupations of their parents or guardians, the dates of their admission and their ages at the time of admission.

Fifth.

The ordinary course of education in the school, shall comprise instruction in the Christian religion, in the English, Greek, and Latin languages and literature, and in writing, arithmetic, mathematics, geography, and history. Such education shall be afforded to the "Harrison's Scholars" without fee or reward, but for each of the other boys there shall be paid to the Master, to be accounted for by him to the Court of the Merchant Taylors' Company, the quarterly sum of 2*s.*, payable in advance. Each boy not being a "Harrison's Scholar" shall pay an entrance fee of one guinea, which shall be applied, under the direction of the Court of the Merchant Taylors' Company, in support of the school library.

Sixth.

There shall also be taught to those boys, whose parents and guardians desire the same, but subject to separate charge, the French language and drawing, and such other subjects as the Court of the Merchant Taylors' Company shall from time to time direct. The arrangements as to such further instruction shall be made by the Master, subject to the approval of the Court.

Seventh.

The religious instruction to be afforded in the school shall, as regards all the "Harrison's Scholars," and as regards all such other boys, whose parents or guardians shall not express their conscientious objections thereto in writing, be in accordance with the doctrines and discipline of the United Church of England and Ireland. The "Harrison's Scholars" unless prevented by illness or other reasonable cause, to be judged of by the Master, shall assemble in the school-room every Sunday morning, shortly before the commencement of divine service at Great Crosby Church, and shall proceed thence to Church, and, at the conclusion of the service, shall return to the school-room and shall be there dismissed; in their progress to and return from Church, and during their attendance thereat, they shall be accompanied by the Usher, but the Master shall be responsible for the due observance of this rule.

Eighth.

The Court of the Merchant Taylors' Company will expend such sum, not exceeding the sum of 20*l.* per annum, as shall appear to them necessary, in the purchase of books and stationery for the use of the school.

The Court will also expend such sum, not exceeding the sum of 10*l.* per annum, as shall appear to them necessary, in the purchase of books for prizes and rewards.

Ninth.

The quarterages which shall be received by the Master in respect of the ordinary education in the school, shall be applied as follows, viz., two equal fourth-parts thereof shall be retained by him for his own use, one other fourth-part thereof shall be paid by him to the usher, and the remaining fourth-part thereof shall be applied as the Court of the Merchant Taylors' Company shall, from time to time, direct for the benefit of the school.

Tenth.

The boys shall be examined half-yearly in the months of June and December; the examiners shall be from time to time appointed by the Court of the Merchant Taylors' Company, and shall hold their offices during the pleasure of the Court. Immediately after each examination, the examiner shall report the result thereof to the Court, and shall receive for the same the sum of 5*l.* For the present, the Master shall be the examiner at the December examinations.

Eleventh.

The school vacations shall be at Midsummer and Christmas; the former shall commence on the 21st day of June, and last five weeks, and the latter shall commence on the 21st day of December, and last four weeks; the following days shall also be observed as holidays, viz., the Queen's birthday, Easter Eve and Easter Monday, the 15th of May, (being the birthday of John Harrison, the founder of the school,) the 29th September, and the 9th of November; in the event of any of the aforesaid days being a Sunday the holiday shall be kept on the Monday following.

Twelfth.

There shall be a local visitation of the school by Visitors appointed by the Court of the Merchant Taylors' Company. The Visitors shall decide upon all applications for admission into the school, but, in so deciding, shall have regard to the rules herein-before contained. They shall also have power to expel any boy from the school for misconduct, but any such expulsion may be made the subject of appeal to the Court by the parents or guardians of the boy so expelled.

Thirteenth.

The Master, with the concurrence of the Visitors, may make such rules for the internal regulation of the school as he shall deem necessary or expedient; but such rules shall be of no force until approved by the Court of the Merchant Taylors' Company. The Court will also from time to time make such additions to or alterations in the rules for the internal regulation of the school as they may think fit. Copies of the rules for the time being in force, shall be affixed to the walls of the school-room in conspicuous places, and a copy thereof shall also be given to the parents or guardians of every boy upon his admission into the school.

Fourteenth.

The several rules and regulations herein-before contained are liable to be varied by the Court of the Merchant Taylors' Company as they may think fit.

By Order of Court of the 2nd May, 1861.

SAMUEL FISHER,
Clerk to the Merchant Taylors' Company.

MERCHANT TAYLORS' COMPANY.

MR. HARE'S DRAFT REPORT.

TO THE CHARITY COMMISSIONERS FOR
ENGLAND AND WALES.

In pursuance of a minute of the Board of the 28th day of March 1862, I have inquired into the present state and administration of Boone's Charity in the parish of Lee, in the county of Kent, under the management of the Merchant Taylors' Company, in the City of London, more particularly with reference to the proposed reorganisation of the said Charity.

BOONE'S CHARITY.

The Merchant Taylors' Company having applied to the Board for its sanction to a scheme proposed by the Company for the administration of this Charity, owing to the increase of its income from 74*l.* 1*s.* per annum to 662*l.* 1*s.* In pursuance of the directions of the Board I have inquired into the state of the Charity, more particularly with reference to its proposed reorganisation.

By the deed of foundation of the 22 June 1683, the founders, Christopher Boone and Mary his wife, after conveying the almshouses and chapel to trustees, proceed also, for the maintenance thereof, to convey unto the same trustees and their heirs the Berry Hill estate at Lee, in Kent, in the occupation of Henry Griffiths, at a rent of 15*l.* a year, and a fee farm rent payable by the city of Hereford of 42*l.* a year.

The income thus dedicated to charitable uses was 57*l.* a year at the time of the foundation.

The founders directed its application as follows:—

	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.
To the chaplain for his pains in the service of the chapel	10	0	0
To the clerk of the chapel	2	0	0
				12	0	0
To a schoolmistress to teach poor children to read and work	7	0	0
For wood and coals for the school	2	0	0
Additional materials for school	1	0	0
				10	0	0
For six almspeople, 12 d. a week each	15	12	0
20 s. a piece every two years for gowns, and 10 s. a year a piece for fuel	6	0	0

For a Common Prayer Book for the chapel, Bibles and Testaments for the almspeople, scissors, knitting needles, thread, silk, samplers, and like necessities for the children in the school computed at 40*s.* a year.

In respect of this I have added 1*l.* to the school and 1*l.* to the poor fund.

And the founders say that the residue, which Christopher Boone computes at 11*l.* 13*s.* a year, should be a stock or bank to defray the charge of repairs and other casualties and incidental charges in the premises and in the management. And in the deed it is—

Provided Always and it is nevertheless agreed by and between the said parties to these presents and the true intent and meaning of every of them and of these presents is and is hereby declared to be that if the rents issues and profits of the premises or any part thereof shall happen by any casualty to be soe impaired diminished or lost without the wilfull default of the said Master Wardens and Company their successors or assignes as that the same shall not extend and suffice to pay allow and satisfy the severall allowances sallaries and payments herein before appointed to be allowed and paid out of the same in such case itt shall and may be lawfull to and for the said Master Wardens of the said Company their Successors and Assignes to make ratable and proportionable deductions and defalcations out of the same allowances salleries and payments aforesaid. Provided Alsoe that if the Rents Issues and Profitts of the premises shall hereafter happen to encrease or be any way improved or if the said overplus herein before mentioned shall happen to amount to a considerable sume soe that some part thereof may be spared to augment the weekly allowances for the said Almes People and yett sufficient Stock remaineing as may in all likelihood answer all such repaires casualties and incident charges as aforesaid in such case it shall and may be lawfull to and for the said Master Wardens of the said Company their Successors and Assignes to augment the said allowances for the said Almes people and Schoole Mistresse and alsoe for the said Chaplaine and Clerke as they in their directions and charitable dispositions shall think fitt.

The foundation deed thus disposes of 56*l.* 5*s.* of the 57*l.* a year, the parties having probably calculated that a small deduction in the receipt of the money would be inevitable.

Taking, however, the entire sum of 57*l.* to be substantially dealt with, it appears that $\frac{1}{3}$ ths of the income are devoted to the purpose of sustaining divine worship perpetually, $\frac{1}{3}$ ths to educational purposes, $\frac{1}{3}$ ths to eleemosynary purposes, and $\frac{1}{3}$ ths to casual expenses and repairs.

In computing the proportionate parts of the present income according to the foregoing ratio, it will be sufficiently accurate for the present purpose to reckon the 57th part to amount to 12*l.* It amounts to about 11*l.* 12*s.* in fact.

Taking the even sum of 12*l.* the distribution would be:—

For divine worship	144
Educational purposes	120
Eleemosynary purposes	276
Casual expenses and repairs, 144 l. , or to make the total accurate, say	122
	£662

The Merchant Taylors' Company, after communication with the parochial authorities, have proposed to the Board to appropriate—

For Divine Worship:—
The chaplain	50
The clerk (to officiate also as gardener)	12
	£62
For educational purposes:—
A subscription to the National school	£25
For eleemosynary purposes:—
Twelve almspeople at 30 l. a year and 10 l. additional to one as superintendent	370
A medical attendant with a salary of	30
An annual sum to be set apart for repairs and insurance say	£400

They thus propose to appropriate definitely the sum of 487*l.* a year out of the income, and to establish a sinking fund of 150*l.*, to reimburse the expense of rebuilding the almshouses, making together 637*l.* a year.

It may, I think, be assumed that the sum proposed to be paid to the chaplain and clerk will satisfy that portion of the bequest, the spiritual duties being, in fact, limited to the chapel of the almshouses, and that the duty may therefore, without inconvenience, be performed by the vicar or his curates, and in which event it will be a material aid in the provision for a curate. Withdrawing, therefore, that part of the aliquot apportionment, or assuming that it is satisfied by $\frac{1}{3}$ ths of the present income, the residue or 82*l.*, being divided between the educational and eleemosynary purposes will add about 25*l.* to the former and 57*l.* to the latter, which would respectively stand thus—

Educational endowment	-	-	145 l.
Eleemosynary	„	-	333 l.

The Merchant Taylors' Company and the parish authorities had considered that having regard to the educational institutions already existing, and the support they receive from another Charity (called Hatcliffe's Charity), and from voluntary contributions, the demand for instruction was fully supplied, and that beyond the subscription proposed to be given to the National School of 25*l.*, the educational branch of the endowment might be disregarded, and the development of the institution confined to its eleemosynary part.

The vestry clerk of Lee, at my request, has been good enough to forward to me such statistical facts as he could gather with respect to the present provision for education in the parish, and the number that avail themselves of it. The account he gives me is as follows:—

National School.

Boys, 93; girls, 86.

Funds supplied by voluntary subscriptions amounting to about 165*l.* 6*s.*, and school pence about 48*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.*

Infants' School (Church of England).

Average attendance, 160.

Voluntary subscriptions and children's pence, and a grant of 20*l.* a year from the funds of "Hatcliffe's Charity."

British School for Boys.

Average attendance, 75.

Voluntary subscriptions and children's pence.

British School for Girls.

Average attendance, 80.

All expenses defrayed by private subscriptions.

Adult Evening School (in connexion with "Hatcliffe's Charity").

Average attendance, 25.

Supported by funds of the above charity.

Adult Evening School (in connexion with British School for Boys).

Average attendance, 15.

Supported by voluntary contributions.

Sunday Schools of all Denominations.

Industrial Work.

Needlework taught at the National School, and also at the British School for Girls.

I have also to lay before the Board the following minute of proceedings in the parish which have taken place since my inquiry.

At a Vestry Meeting held at the National School, Church Street, Lee, Kent, on Saturday, the 10th May 1862,—

PRESENT:

Mr. De Zoete, in the Chair,

Mr. Kebbel, Mr. Carr, Mr. Dale, Mr. Hart, Mr. S. Shove, Mr. Gates, Mr. W. Shove, Capt. Gossett, Mr. Couchman, Mr. Wright, Rev. W. F. Sims, Rev. J. B. Honnywill, Mr. Prowse.

The following notice of meeting was read:—

Lee, Kent 5th May, 1862.

Take notice that a meeting of the Vestry elected for this parish under the Metropolis Local Management Act, 18 & 19 Vict. c. 120, will be holden at the National School, Church Street, on Saturday, the 10th day of May instant, at nine o'clock in the forenoon precisely, for the following purpose, viz.:—

"To take into further consideration Mr. Hare's suggestions on the subject of the proposed Scheme re Boone's Charity."

(Signed) F. WICKINGS SMITH,
Vestry Clerk.

The minutes of the meeting of the 2nd May instant were referred to and read.

The Vestry again took into consideration and discussed some suggestions for instituting an establishment of an industrial character.

Moved by Mr. Zoete,
Seconded by Mr. Carr,

That the Vestry, having given most careful consideration to the suggestion of Mr. Hare, particularly with a view to the teaching of plain cooking, washing, housework, &c., are unable to devise any plan which would not involve considerable expense, with but a very limited probability of success, and they are therefore of opinion that, having regard to the proportion of the Charity funds that should be reserved, according to Mr. Hare's opinion, for educational purposes, the sum of 120*l.* should be placed at the disposal of the managers of the national school for the time being, to be applied for the general purposes of the school, but with a special view to such industrial objects as may from time to time appear practicable and desirable; but this Vestry desire to express their strong opinion that upon the whole, having reference to the nature of the population and the existing provision for education, it would be more to the advantage of the labouring population, and in accordance with the wishes of the parishioners if the sum in question were devoted to the erection of almshouses as originally proposed.

Whereupon an amendment was moved by Mr. Kebbel, and seconded by Mr. Sims—

That the words "for the general purposes of the school, but" be omitted.

Against	-	-	11
Majority against the amendment	-	-	9

The original motion was then put, when there appeared—

The Vestry clerk was desired to forward copies of the minutes to the secretary of the Charitable Trust Board and the clerk of the Merchant Taylors' Company.

(Signed) F. WICKINGS SMITH,
Vestry Clerk.

The entire population of the parish was stated to me as 6,056, and it must be admitted that after separating the children of the middle and upper classes, which may be assumed to have other means of education, the number provided for by the public schools would be unusually great compared to the population. It may be added that the situation of much of the parish has made it eligible as residences for an unusual proportion of the wealthier classes compared to that of the poor.

I confess, however, that I feel an extreme reluctance to assent to a departure from the educational character and object of any endowment. Upon a true cy pres application of such a fund it should, I apprehend, be construed, as first, devoted to education in the particular locality; secondly, if education in that locality be not needed, or cannot be given, to education in some other, perhaps neighbouring, locality. But the canon rule is, not to depart from the educational object until, at least, there shall be no more demand for it in the kingdom. This I apprehend to be the principle of the decision of the Court of Chancery and the House of Lords on Betton's Charity.* The testator had devoted a fourth of his estate for the support of schools in London. The dedication of two other fourth parts of his estate failed, and the Court (affirmed by the House of Lords) held that the assistance should be extended to schools in all the dioceses of England. The case was, indeed, stronger, than the present circumstances to which I propose to apply it, for it could not be said that there were not schools in London which still needed assistance, whilst, assuming the parochial authorities of the parish of Lee to correctly represent the condition of the locality, the means of a useful application of the fund for education there are for the present exhausted.

Having regard to the numbers and character of the population and to the existing schools and the support which is and may well be given to them from the voluntary sources which exist here as elsewhere, there does not appear to be any necessity or utility for the subscription of 25*l.* proposed by the Merchant Taylors' Company to be given to the National School. It was probably introduced for the purpose of showing some ostensible regard to education, rather than from any impression that it was needful. Its only effect would probably be to withdraw an equal amount from the subscriptions, or if not to withdraw it, yet to prevent so much of additional subscriptions if needed hereafter. The same observations may be made, with still more force, with reference to the proposal of the vestry to place 120*l.* a year at the disposal of the managers of the National School.

The parish of Lee is bounded by or is nearly adjacent to other parishes which are extremely populous, and are inhabited by large numbers of the labouring classes. The very fact that Lee itself contains a smaller proportion of them, has necessarily the effect of increasing the proportionate number in other neighbouring districts. Into the educational necessities of such neighbouring districts I will not now enter, but I am satisfied they will be found very great. I respectfully suggest that in the scheme to be settled for this Charity it may be provided,—

A. That the Merchant Taylors' Company set apart 145*l.* per annum (or say $\frac{1}{3}$ part of the net income of the Charity) for educational purposes to be applied according to a scheme to be hereafter settled for the instruction of boys and girls within the parish of Lee, or such other adjoining or neighbouring parishes as shall be expressed in such scheme.

On the latter part of the foregoing suggestion, the extension of the area, I would add that if there are fewer cases of the application of the principle of Betton's Charity than might be expected, it has probably arisen from the fact that applications to the court in former times have been in most cases made at the instance of particular parishes, and by persons who were not likely to suggest schemes for the extension of the benefit of a Charity beyond their own district, if they could by some other device of cy pres construction avoid it, an evil which the existence of the Charity Commission, having in view the interest of the public at large, is especially fitted to counteract. I cannot conceive anything much more absurd than to suppose that the regard of the founder for the education of the poor was subordinate to his preference for persons living on one side of a parish boundary, to say nothing of the smaller degree of wisdom which such a fanciful sentiment would imply.

With regard to the eleemosynary portion of the Charity, the almshouses and almspeople, it is material to observe that any increase of such institutions (to the prejudice of other and better objects) when once established cannot afterwards be withdrawn without great difficulty. The Merchant Taylors' Company propose an application of 400*l.* a year to the almspeople. In the proportionate application of the income (after the proposed augmentation for the chapel services) I have estimated the share of the almshouses at about 333*l.* Now, adopting the suggested increase of the number of the inmates to twelve, and fixing the stipend of each at 25*l.* per annum, with the proposed addition of 10*l.* to the superintendent and 30*l.* for a medical attendant, will require 340*l.* The magnitude of the increase of pay may be compared with the present allowances, which are 1*l.* 6*s.* a quarter, with assistance from the parish. I therefore respectfully propose,—

B.—That the number of almspeople be increased to 12, that one of such almspeople be empowered to act as superintendent; that the superintendent be allowed 35*l.* per annum and the other almspeople 25*l.* per annum each, and that a medical attendant be appointed to the almspeople at a yearly salary of 30*l.*

The method of selecting the almspeople was discussed by the members of the vestry on the occasion of my inquiry, and a modification of the scheme laid before the Board was then generally (with few objections) approved of. The parish of Lee is included in the Plumstead district, in Schedule B, in the Metropolis Local Management Act, and under the second section of that Act (18 & 19 Vict. c. 120) it is governed by a vestry composed of a prescribed number of members, to be regulated from time to time by the number of rated householders in the parish. The present number of vestrymen is 18, and that number may be increased, but cannot (according to the present Act) on the largest augmentation of the population exceed 120. I propose that instead of the entire vestry taking part in the nomination the following rule be adopted:—

C.—The candidates for the almshouses who may be single persons, or men and their wives, none being under 57 years of age, may be of the parishes of Lee, Lewisham, or Greenwich, and shall be nominated by the rector and churchwardens of the parish of Lee, the incumbent and churchwardens of the district of Christchurch, in the said parish, and the two overseers of the said parish, together with four persons to be chosen by the vestry, and in the event of any other ecclesiastical district or districts being formed in the said parish, the incumbent and churchwardens of such district or districts to be added to the said nominating body, together with two other persons to be chosen by the said vestry, for every such additional body of ecclesiastical officers. The vestry of Lee to receive notice by their vestry clerk of every vacancy, and to be allowed a period of one month to convene a meeting, and choose such representatives of the vestry, to nominate the said candidates before the time appointed for the election. If the candidate to fill the vacancy be not elected and presented to the Merchant Taylors' Company within three months from such notice the master and wardens of the Merchant Taylors' Company to be at liberty to appoint the person to fill up every such vacancy.

The provisions with regard to the chapel and divine service appear to be framed or suggested by the Company, in a manner to which little (if any) exception can be taken, namely:—

D. That divine service be performed in the chapel by the chaplain [twice] [once] on every Sunday in addition to the weekly services, and that he be paid in respect of such duties the annual stipend of 50*l.*; and that the clerk to the chapel (with the additional duty of keeping the garden of the almshouses in good order), be paid a yearly salary of 12*l.*, and a further sum of 1*l.* 1*s.* a year, for keeping in good order and condition the vault of the late Christopher Boone in the churchyard of the parish church of Lee.

I have visited and inspected the almshouses, school, and chapel. They are the only buildings erected in the lifetime of the founder, and are accurately described in his foundation deed, as standing upon a certaine peece or parcell of land or wast situate lyeing and being in the parish of Leigh in the county of Kent containing in bredth forty foote of assize be it more or lesse, and in length two hundred and tenn foote of assize be it more or lesse abutting upon the highway there towards the South upon the common passage leading over A small Bridge to the Parish Church of Leigh aforesaid towards the West upon a Ditch and Hedge of a Meadow of the said Christopher Boone called Brickfield towards the North and upon a ditch and pale of another meadow of the said Christopher Boone called The Two Acres towards the East.*

The site, as it now appears with the garden afterwards referred to, seems to me somewhat more extensive. In walking carefully round it, I had concluded it to be about 50 feet deep by 270 in length. The Merchant Taylors' Company hold adjoining land, and may possibly have added something to the original space, or the arrangement may have been altered. The buildings are accurately described in the deed as fower dwelling houses conteineing each of them one lower roome boarded more then a foote above the ground being sixteene foote of assize and eight inches long or thereabouts and fourteene foote of assize and eleven inches broad or thereabouts with a cimney therein and one upper roome or chamber of the same dimensions in length and bredth and alsoe one smaller low roome or sheed with a partition for beere wood coales and the like nessessaries fiteene foote of assize long and eight foot of assize broad or thereabouts on the north side of each of the said dwelling houses with a litle backyard to each house.

The garden adjoining is, as described in the same deed, which proceeds to recite that the founder hath layed unto the almes houses to be enjoyed in common by the said Schoole Mistrisse and almes people intended partly for a Garden Platt to plant pott herbes therein and partly for a grasse plat for dryinge of cloathes a peice or parcell of the said ground conteineing in length from East to West one hundred fifty and eight foote of assize or thereabouts and in breadth from North to South one and forty foot of assize or thereabouts.

The buildings are, as may be expected from their age, very decayed, and require constant expenditure to make them habitable. The three almshouses which are at the west have each one room above the other, with the back room (called above the sheed or shed) now styled the kitchen, but the inhabitants of the upper room must pass through the lower room to go in or out, and for access either to the offices. The fourth house is occupied by the school mistress, who teaches 12 children free, and as many other children as she can procure to attend the school. It is in fact a dame school. Her dwelling room is above, and the chapel bell is over it, and is rung from the schoolroom. Adjoining this is the chapel, which is also very much decayed. There is no question that the whole of these buildings should be pulled down and re-constructed.

I therefore propose—

E. The chapel, almshouses, and school house to be pulled down, and the chapel and almshouses for 12 inmates and common washhouses, baths and other offices to be built on such plan and upon such sites respectively as shall be determined upon by the Merchant Taylors' Company, with the sanction of the Charity Commissioners, and the expense of the said works to be raised by loan, on the security of the charity estate.

I am not aware that any plan for rebuilding the chapel or almshouses has been determined upon by the Company. The present site of the almshouses and garden abutting on the high road would no doubt be very valuable as frontage for shops and places of business, and might probably be sold or exchanged for a much more spacious and convenient site elsewhere. A far greater local improvement however would I think be effected if the proposed almshouses were built on opposite sides of the ground belonging partly to the Charity and partly to the Merchant Taylors' Company, and for which purpose an exchange might, I think, be effected, beneficial both to the almshouses and property of the Company and those of the Charity. If six almshouses were built on each side in parallel lines with the two wings of the Merchant Taylors' almshouses, forming in fact prolongation of those wings, although not necessarily adjoining them, the lawn might be brought down to the road, from which the whole range of buildings would then form a very handsome object. If besides this the new chapel were erected in the centre on an elevation at some distance from the road it would very greatly add to the completeness and beauty of the ground, and being made readily accessible from the Merchant Taylors' Almshouses, would be an important addition and benefit to that institution. The chapel ought to be made to contain comfortable seats appropriated for the aged inmates of both establishments, and I think a certain number of seats might also usefully be provided for strangers, the combination of different classes in public worship being I apprehend far more desirable than chapels confined to a pauper or indeed any other special class of persons. I do not see any objection to the construction of a few additional seats which might be let, under the regulations sanctioned by the Merchant Taylors' Company, and the income so derived being applied either to the repairs and maintenance of the chapel and services, or to the increase of the stipend of the chaplain. If the chapel were approached by an avenue and steps from a principal gate-way opening from the high road, and fronting the centre of the entire group of buildings, (open perhaps to the public for access to the chapel at service time), appropriateness and dignity might be given to the general structure.

The founder of the Charity manifested great care for the preservation of cleanliness and for what would now be called the sanitary condition of his establishment. He recites in his deed, that at one end thereof is erected and sett up a pump with plenty of water, and at the other end a convenient wash house sixteene foot of assize and fower inches square or thereabouts with an oven and some brewng vessells and other utensills therein which are likewise to be enjoyed and used in comon by the said Schoole Mistris and almes people togeather alsoe with two easements or howses of office the one for the almes men and the other for the almes women. And in the schedule of ordinances he provides that the almspeople shall keepe their houses cleane sweete and wholesome carefully preserve the walls boards timber glasse windowes and all that belongs to their respective apartments. They shall suffer noe dirt filth foule water or other noysomnesse to be throwne into the water ditch or streeme on the north side of the said almes houses the offenders herein shall incurr such forfeiture as the said master and wardens shall in their discretion think fitt and in case of wilfull persisting in such offence they shall be expelled. They shall not throw any dirt ashes or other filth into the streete nor keep any such noysom or offensive things within their perticular apartments or within the places they are to enjoy in comon there being provided a convenient place for that purpose just without the wall at the west end of the said almes houses with a doore opening thereunto. They shall keepe their houses of office cleane and sweete without throwing any dirt filth or rubbish there into this to be done by weekly turnes. That for the men by the men each his week and that for the woman by the women each her week and they shall give timely notice to the said master and wardens for haveing the said houses of office emptied as need shall require. They shall keepe the whole length of the gutter or water course under the wall on the south side of the said almes houses cleane and every day swept that noe stoppage may happen therein and shall keepe their grasse plott or drying place cleane and greene and their small kitchin garden well planted with pott herbe and sowed from time to time with convenient seeds for that purpose and shall keep it alwayes neat and well weeded and shall keepe their wash house brew house or bake house well swept cleane sweet and wholesome. All which and all other publick places and accommodacons which they are to enjoy in common they shall take care of by weekly turnes both men and women. In remodelling such a foundation I cannot but think that it would be reasonable to improve it with some regard to the present state of sanitary science and economic arrangements. If this might be done there would be an opportunity of adding common washhouses and baths to be used free of expense by the inmates of both the Merchant Taylors' and Boone's almshouses, and perhaps at a small charge by the other inhabitants of Lee. These might be conveniently constructed at the angle of present garden on Boone's Estate.

The foregoing proposals, A, B, C, D, and E, provide for all the objects of the scheme, amended as I have ventured to propose it should be, with the exception of—

F. A competent sum to be annually employed in the insurance of the almshouses and chapel from fire, and so much also as shall be necessary to be applied in current repairs, and the balance of the annual income, after providing for the several objects aforesaid, to be applied as a sinking fund, in reduction and repayment of the loan to be contracted as aforesaid, and the Merchant Taylors' Company and all other parties interested to have liberty to apply from time to time for such additions or modifications of the scheme as may be necessary or expedient.

All which I submit to the Board.

THO. HARE,
Inspector of Charities.

MERCHANT TAYLORS' COMPANY.

MR. SKIRROW'S REPORT.

ROBERT DONKIN'S CHARITY.

Under the management of the Master and Wardens of the Merchant Taylors' Company and the Rector and Churchwardens of St. Michael, Cornhill.

REPORT on INQUIRY held on the 8th day of JANUARY 1875.

MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN,

IN pursuance of a minute of your Board, dated 27th November 1874, I inspected and now report as to the right of the Company, in a matter of a doorway from No. 145, Bishopsgate Street, into Lamb Alley, and submitted for decision by your Board.

The inquiry, which was attended by Mr. F. Boyle, the solicitor, and Mr. Reilly, the surveyor of the Rector and Churchwardens, and Mr. F. Fisher, the solicitor, and Mr. J. Ansen, the surveyor of the Company, took place at the Secretary's office of the Company, in Threadneedle Street, on the 8th January 1875, a view of the premises having been previously had by the above persons and myself. Oral and documentary evidence was received at the inquiry, but not upon oath.

In the great fire of London of 1666 the leases, deeds, and other documents (with the exception of some books of records) relating to the Charities of the parish, are said to have been destroyed.

It appears from these books of records, that on the 10th March 1548, Edward VI. granted (amongst other things) to William Crofton, and Thomas Langton, and their heirs "all those two messuages or tenements and the gate entry and ground under the south part of one of the said messuages lying and being in the parish of St. Buttolph Without, Bishopsgate Street."

These premises, being 144 and 143, Bishopsgate Street Without, were by the above or a similar description, and at different times conveyed to different persons, and having ultimately become vested in the Waterbearers' Company were conveyed by a deed of 7th October 1568, to Robert Donkyn (now called Donkin) and his heirs.

Robert Donkin, by will dated 12th March, 13th Elizabeth 1570 (an office copy of which was produced at the inquiry) devised his messuage or house which he had purchased of the Waterbearers (being 144 and 143, Bishopsgate Street, to the Parson and Churchwardens of St. Michael, Cornhill, and to their successors, &c., the profits to be applied by them and the parishioners to certain charitable purposes. And the testator also devised to the Master and Wardens, &c. of the Merchant Taylors' Company his property in Bell Alley, in the parish of St. Botolph (including No. 145, Bishopsgate Street Without) for certain other charitable purposes.

From time to time the Parson and Churchwardens demised Nos. 144 and 143, and the Company demised No. 145, Bishopsgate, to various persons respectively.

By a lease of December 1780, the Parson and Churchwardens demised Nos. 144 and 143 to Sydney Brooks for 30 years, at a rent of 38*l.* a year, and on this lease a plan is drawn, a tracing of which is to be found annexed to case A. Subsequent leases were granted of the same premises, the last of which bears date in September 1853, and grants the same premises to Thomas Bax for 21 years from the 29th September 1853, at a rent of 155*l.* a year.

In 1871 the Charity Commissioners established a scheme for the Charity, so far as it related to the Parish of St. Michael, Cornhill.

With regard to No. 145, leases have been granted thereof from time to time by the Company.

By a lease of 30th March 1787 the house was let for a term, which expired in 1842, such lease stating the house to have been then lately built (i.e., rebuilt) by the lessee, and describing it as abutting east on Bishopsgate Street, west on other ground of the Company, north on Lamb Alley, and south on Sun Street.

In two subsequent leases the house is similarly described, the last of which was granted to Robert Fowler, M.D. (who occupies the same) for 21 years from Lady Day, 1863.

On these leases there is a plan, and on the plan of the lease of 30th March 1787, the north wall of No. 145 is drawn perfectly straight, the whole of its length thus part of such wall extending beyond the covered passage of Lamb Alley towards the west.

But this is clearly incorrect, as the north wall runs, with a slight curve, the whole length of the covered passage, as may be seen on the tracing of the plan drawn upon the lease of December 1780, of Nos. 144 and 143. This curve, which I pointed out to the surveyors, extended the whole length of the covered passage, and measured four inches at its greatest width, as represented by the dotted line.

The lease to Mr. Bax, of Nos. 144 and 143, expiring at Michaelmas 1873, the trustees for the parish agreed to grant him a new lease of the same premises for 21 years, at a rental of 240*l.*, and the surveyors of the trustees, being instructed to draw a plan of such premises, surveyed the same, and discovered that a doorway had been broken from No. 145 into Lamb Alley, about the middle of the covered passage, by Dr. Fowler, the tenant of No. 145, but with the assent of the Company, for the convenience of his pauper patients, he being the parish doctor.

This state of facts being known to the trustees, a correspondence took place between them and the Company, and Mr. Reilly, the surveyor of the trustees, and Mr. J. Ansen, the surveyor of the Company, having met, the latter contended that the whole of the wall on the north side of 145 from the basement up to the lintel (a.) (see plan on case B) was the exclusive property of the Company, and Mr. Reilly that the trustees were possessed of half of such wall.

On the 8th January 1874, the doorway in question was bricked up by the surveyor of the trustees of the Charity, but such brickwork was thrown down by someone on the afternoon of the same day.

Application was then made at the Guildhall Police Court for a summons against Dr. Fowler, for destroying the wall, which was however refused, on the ground that a question of title was involved.

Ultimately the trustees of the Charity fastened iron plates over the doorway, which were standing at the time of my view.

The opinion of counsel was taken by the trustees, and also by the Company, to be found on cases A. and B., and ultimately the trustees agreed by letter to submit to the arbitration of the Charity Commissioners the matter in dispute as to the doorway.

In the Appendix will be found a photograph of the premises in question, but it is too dark to be of much use.

The colored plan attached to case B., and which was made by the Company's surveyor, represents correctly enough the exterior of No. 145 and No. 144, and the entry and gate between them, but not so correctly the ground plan of the north wall of No. 145, as such wall is designated by a straight instead of a curved line, as already mentioned.

Assuming that originally the "gate entry and ground" under the south part of No. 144 was a private way, it certainly was dedicated to the public very many years ago, but no one can tell the exact time, and consequently, if the whole of the north wall of Lamb Alley (which extends not only the whole width of No. 144, but also forms part of the separate wall of No. 145 farther down the alley) belongs exclusively to No. 145, the Company had a perfect right to make or permit to be made by their tenant a doorway through such wall into the public alley.

There is a gate into the alley, which was erected about 50 years ago, upon which a lock was placed about 24 years ago by Mr. Bax, the then tenant of Nos. 144 and 143. This was done to prevent nuisances being committed in the entry, and Mr. Bax gave one key of the gate to the parish watchman and afterwards, about five years ago, another key to Dr. Fowler, the tenant of No. 145, retaining one himself. The Commissioners of Sewers repair the flags of the alley throughout its entire length, and Mr. Bax, the tenant of Nos. 144 and 143 has, at all events, for upwards of 20 years, painted or whitewashed the whole of the north wall of No. 145, extending his operations, however, beyond the covered passage to the other part of the north wall, which exclusively belongs to No. 145, and faces the back part of the south wall of Nos. 144 and 143, for his own convenience, i.e., by way of increasing the light.

Mr. J. Anson, the Company's surveyor, stated at the inquiry that the Company did not admit the right of Mr. Bax to paint or whitewash the north wall of No. 145, and that Dr. Fowler had a right to a key of the gate, as the alley is a public way, which latter fact is admitted to be true by both sides.

The Company's claim in respect of the north wall of No. 145 is somewhat peculiar, for Mr. J. Anson also stated that the Company also claimed an exclusive right to the north wall of No. 145, so far as it extends along the covered passage, from the basement to the lintel marked (a), admitting that from the lintel (a) up to 18 inches above the roof of No. 144 (No. 145 is higher than No. 144) the wall is a party wall, and above that height that the wall of No. 145 is the exclusive wall of the Company.

Mr. J. Anson also maintained that the description of the premises in the leases granted by the Company "as abutting on Lamb Alley," included the north wall to the lintel (a), so far as it extended along the covered passage, and more particularly as under this passage there is no cellarage but only the solid earth.

Mr. Reilly, the surveyor of the trustees of the parish Charity, stated that he believed the frontage of Nos. 145 and 144, as depicted on the plan in case B, had continued in its present state and aspect for upwards of 200 years, and it will be seen that even from the basement to the lintel (a) (the only part of the north wall in dispute) the stucco or cement covers part of the north wall, though perhaps not quite half thereof, and is shaped and coloured to comport with No. 144, to say nothing of the most important point, that the north wall of No. 145 under the covered passage is not straight as it would probably have been had it been a continuance of the wall extending beyond the covered passage and the exclusive property of the Company, but runs with a curve therefrom extending at the widest point four inches into the entry, as already mentioned. The law of the case is free from doubt, for it is stated by Bayley, J., in Cubitt v. Porter, 8 B. & C. 266, that—

"Evidence of common user by both parties justifies a presumption, either that the wall was originally built on land belonging in individual moieties to the owners of the respective premises and at their joint expense, or that it had been agreed between them that the wall and the land on which it stood should be considered the property of both as tenants in common, so as to insure to each a continuance of the use of the party wall."

It is also decided by Matts v. Hawkins, 5 Taunton, p. 20, that if two persons have a party wall, one half of the thickness of which stands on the land of each, they are not therefore tenants in common of the wall or of the land on which it stands, although the wall was erected at the joint expense of the two proprietors, and see also Bradbee v. Christ's Hospital, 4 M. & G. 761. Weston v. Arnold, 8 Chancery Appeal cases, 1084, merely decides so far as it has reference to the matter in question, that a party wall may be a party wall to such height as it belongs in common to two buildings, and cease to be a party wall for the rest of its height.

Under these circumstances I am of opinion that neither the Company nor Dr. Fowler had any right to make the doorway in question, the trustees of the parish Charity being either entitled to the moiety of the wall adjoining the alley, or the tenants in common thereof with the Company of such wall from the ground up to the full height at all events of No. 144.

At the inquiry the offer made on behalf of the trustees of the parish Charity to grant a right to reopen and use the doorway for a consideration of two guineas a year (in the event of the Commissioners finding against the Company) was accepted by the Company, provided that such doorway did not jeopardise the policy of insurance effected or to be effected upon Nos. 144 and 143, and subject to such proviso I recommend this course to be adopted.

The only remaining point is with regard to costs. Each party has consulted surveyors and taken the opinion of counsel and been professionally represented at the inquiry, but in mitigation at all events to some extent of the general rule that the successful party is entitled to costs, it is to be remembered that the dispute is not between individuals but between two Charities, and that the doorway was made and used for 15 continuous years to the full knowledge of the tenant of Nos. 144 and 143, and without objection and without the trustees of the parish Charity investigating or informing themselves during so long a period of the condition of this particular piece of property, for they admit that their non-interference arose from ignorance of fact.

All which I submit, &c.,

W. SKIRROW.

MR. HARE'S REPORT.

PART I.

TO THE CHARITY COMMISSIONERS FOR
ENGLAND AND WALES.

In pursuance of a Minute of the Board of the 7th day of November 1862, I have inquired into the condition and circumstances of the following charities under the management of the Haberdashers' Company of the City of London, and I have stated in the Report under the head of each specific endowment, the result of my investigation.

The Haberdashers' Company, under the style of "The Master and four Wardens of the Fraternity of the Art or Mystery of Haberdashers in the City of London," consists of the master, four wardens, and court of assistants, and the livery and freemen of the Company.

The master and wardens are chosen by the court of assistants, the court electing each year a master and two senior wardens from the court, according to their standing, and they elect also, two junior wardens, from the livery, not on the court. The senior is the first warden, and the next the second warden, each serving as well as the master, for a year, and succeeding to each other's office in turn. Of the two junior wardens, one serves as third, and the other as fourth warden, and at the end of the year, these two junior wardens are elected on the court.

The number of the court of assistants varies from 30 to about 46. The number of freemen are about 800, of whom 444 are liverymen.

WILLIAM ADAMS' CHARITIES.

By indenture of the 27th November 1656, made by William Adams of the one part, and the Haberdashers' Company of the other part, after reciting that the said William Adams had conveyed to the Haberdashers' Company certain lands and tenements in Staffordshire, it was declared that the said Company should pay the several yearly sums following:—

To a minister at Newport for catechising children, &c.	- 20l.
To a schoolmaster	- 40l.
To an usher	- 20l.
For apprenticing 3 poor boys	- 24l.
To 4 learned ministers and 3 other persons for visiting the school-house, &c.	- 2s.
To a poor boy as bellringer at the school	- 20s.

To a poor boy for cleaning the said school-house	- 20s.
For repair of the said school-house and almshouses	- 5l.
For 4 exhibitions at Oxford or Cambridge	- 20l.
To the 4 poor aged almspeople	- 20l. 16s.
To 20 poor people of the Company	- 20l.
To the clerk and beadles	- 2l.

The institution was further established and regulated by Acts of Parliament passed in the 12th and 13th years of King Charles the 2nd. The deeds and accounts are set forth in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry for the county of Salop. (Vol. 5, p. 416, et seq.)

The property of the charity in Staffordshire seems to have been demised for long terms of years to a person named Justice and his representatives, under the direction in the will of the testator, which appears to have given the lessee a right of renewal. The renewed lease granted under this direction expired in 1784, and no further claim to renewal seems to have been made on the part of the lessee. The estate was then let to several tenants at a great increase of the aggregate rent, and a suit was instituted in the Court of Chancery by the Attorney-General at the relation of Richard Whitworth, Esq., against the Haberdashers' Company, and Randle Tonner, the heir-at-law of W. Adams, the founder of the charity, for the direction of the Court as to the application of the increased income. The surplus rents were claimed in this suit by the heir-at-law of W. Adams.

The Court, however, in this suit, determined that there was no resulting trust in favour of the heir-at-law of the founder, and the usual reference was then made to the master to approve of a scheme, which was settled in the year 1797.

The rents were further increased in or previous to the year 1808, when a further scheme was settled, having regard to the augmented income, and many of the foregoing payments were increased not only beyond the sums fixed by the original trust, but by further additions made to the augmentation of 1797.

The Commissioners of Inquiry set forth the state of the property of the charity, and the condition and administration of the institution at the time of their inquiry in May 1820.

The property consists of the following particulars:—

|--|-----|----|----|
| 1. The estate at Woodseves, in the parish of Drayton, Staffordshire, which was purchased in 1667, under the direction of the founder's will; with the produce of the timber. It consists of a farmhouse and buildings and 92a. 0r. 15p. of land, let to Thos. Thompson, on lease for 21 years from Michaelmas 1861 (determinable by either party at the end of 14 years) at the rent of - | 138 | 0 | 0 |
| (This rent is an increase from 95l., the rental under the preceding lease, improvements having been made in draining on the land and otherwise.) | | | |
| 2. Knighton Mount Farm.—A farmhouse and buildings and 240a. 2r. 2p. of land, let to Wm. Peover for 21 years from Michaelmas 1861 (determinable as above) - | 460 | 0 | 0 |
| (This is an increase from 306l., the rental under the preceding lease.) The new demise includes two plots of land, 10a. 0r. 30p., taken from Palin's farm (see No. 5 infra). | | | |
| 3. Knighton Grange Farm.—A farmhouse and buildings and 238a. 3r. 2p. land, let to Thos. Clark on lease for 21 years from Michaelmas 1861 (determinable as above) - | 389 | 0 | 0 |
| (This is an increase from 243l.) | | | |
| 4. Knighton Hall Farm.—A good farmhouse and buildings and 220a. 1r. 37p. of land, let to Henry Clark on lease for 21 years from Michaelmas 1861 (determinable as above) - | 406 | 0 | 0 |
| (This is an increase from 290l., it includes 2a. 3r. 15p. of land taken from Palin's farm (see No. 5 infra). | | | |
| Part of Palin's farm, let to Thos. Lycett, bought and held by the Haberdashers' Company in trust for this charity and for Jones' (Monmouth) Charity, under the following circumstances:— | | | |
| In the year 1856, the Company presented their petition to the Court for its sanction to the application of 1,938l. 12s. 4d. 3 per cent. consols, the produce of an investment of the purchase money for a strip of land, crossing the Knighton Hall farm, taken by the London and Birmingham Canal Company, together with other funds belonging to the Company as Governors of the Grammar School of William Jones in Monmouth, in the purchase of a farm called Palin's, the lands of which were intermixed with the property of Adams' Charity. The Court approved the purchase, and 1,750l. 15s. 9d. and 18l. 7s. 11d. stock was sold out, and producing cash for payment of 1,689l. 10s. 10d., the purchase money and interest for 31a. 3r. 26p. of land, part of Palin's farm, which is now divided between the tenancies of Peover (No. 2), Henry Clark (No. 4), Lycett (No. 5). The entire farm consisting of a farmhouse and buildings and a. r. p. of land. | | | |

By an order of the Court of Chancery of the 1st April 1856, it was ordered (inter alia) that the messuages and lands and the purchase money for the same be apportioned between the charities of William Adams at Newport, and the charities of William Jones at Monmouth, respectively, in manner following, such parts of the said messuages, &c., as with the timber thereon should be equal in value to the proportion which the produce of the 1,938l. 12s. 4d. Consols, thereafter directed to be sold should bear to the entire purchase money of 7,460l., or as near thereto as circumstances would admit, and as were convenient to be held with other lands belonging to the said charity estate of William Adams; and the remaining parts of the said messuages, &c., be apportioned to the said charity of William Jones of Monmouth. Under this order the apportionment was made and separate conveyances were taken, to the Company as governors of the two several charities. By a deed of the 24th January 1856, settled by the Court, Palin and others the vendors, conveyed to the master and wardens, as governors of the possessions of the free grammar school of Newport, of the foundation of William Adams, all and singular the lands and hereditaments containing in the whole 31a. 3r. 26p. mentioned in the schedule thereunder written, all which said lands were then in the occupation of Maria Hodgkins, and were situated in Knighton, in the parish of Adbaston, Staffordshire, and were formerly known by the description following:—All those several closes of land situate in Knighton aforesaid, called or known as Holly Meadow, containing 1a. 3r. 18p.; Wards Yard or Garden in three parts, and called Near Wards Yard, Far Wards Yard, and Wards Yard Meadow containing by estimation 6a. 0r. 25p., part of the Cliff Field, the entirety of which contained 7a. 3r. 3p.; the upper and lower Millings, containing together 7a. 3r. 7p., or thereabouts; the Solomon, then laid to lower Millings aforesaid, containing by estimation 0a. 2r. 22p.; the Davipott, in two parts, containing together by estimation 10a. 0r. 24p.; the Yard, containing by estimation 1a. 0r. 10p.; and which lands and hereditaments were formerly the estate of Robert Pigott, afterwards of William Waller, afterwards of Thomas Lloyd, afterwards of Thomas Borrow, and since of Sarah Palin,—

| 5. Lycett's tenancy under this charity comprises 18a. 3r. 21p. land, part of Palin's farm (purchased as aforesaid), 3a. 0r. 29p. land, part of the old estate of this charity, formerly let with Knighton Hall farm. The 22a. 0r. 10p. land belonging to Adams' Charity, is demised by a separate lease to Thos. Lycett for 21 years from Michaelmas 1861, at a rent of - | 45 | 0 | 0 |
| 6. A public house called the "Haberdashers' Arms" (formerly a cottage and shop let to Hayward), and a blacksmith's shop, and 9a. 2r. 23p. land, let to Joseph Hayward as a yearly tenant - | 33 | 15 | 0 |
| 7. The woodreve's cottage and 12a. 0r. 6p. land; the woodreve, John Wood, occupies the cottage rent free, and pays as a yearly tenant for the land - | 18 | 15 | 0 |
| The tenant also pays as interest on about 30l., advanced for the purchase of bones as manure for the land - | 1 | 10 | 0 |
| 8. The Woodlands, the total quantity 76a. 3r. 38p. The average produce for seven years from 1854 to 1861 was 283l., and for 14 years up to 1861 the average annual produce was 159l. 11s. 9d. - | 230 | 0 | 0 |
| The estate was managed for many years, and a receiver appointed by the Court of Chancery, up to 1852 - | | | |
| | £1,722 | 0 | 0 |
| 9. The school forecourt and playground and schoolmaster's house, and four almshouses and gardens, containing altogether from about 1½ to 2 acres - | | | In hand. |
| The cottage, stable, and barn formerly let to widow Watkins, was some years ago pulled down, and the land held with it was thrown into the adjacent farm, of which it now forms a part; the cottage and land let to Eleanor Ray, is now included in the Knighton Hall demise. | | | |

In the arrangement for the apportionment of Palin's estate, belonging to the two charities, the freehold called the Cliff Field was divided between them. As a matter of convenience, it was subsequently found expedient to exchange 2s. 3s. 15p. of the land apportioned to Adams' Charity for the same quantity of land belonging to the Monmouth Charity. This was effected under an order of the Enclosure Commissioners of 22nd May 1862.

At the expiration of the last leases in 1861, the farms were let by tender, and in most cases the old tenants, who were not persons of much capital or enterprise, were removed, and new tenants introduced. The rents, it will be observed, were thus generally and considerably increased. The surveyor of the governors makes a half-yearly report of the state of the farm and buildings, and looks after the performance of the covenants of the lessees.

The sum of 12,426l. 0s. 5d., 3 per cent. consols, which at the time of the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, stood to the credit of the cause, on the account of this charity, has been for the most part expended in rebuilding, in a substantial manner, the farmhouses and buildings on the Staffordshire property. This application being approved in Court, was necessarily made under the orders of the Court, and was therefore sanctioned by its authority. The sum now in Court to the credit of the cause, The Attorney-General v. Haberdashers' Company, (—), is 3,993l. 2s. 9d., 3 per cent. consols.

The above sum includes the remainder of the 1,938l. 12s. 4d. 3 per cent. consols, the produce of an investment for land taken by the governors from the London and Birmingham Canal Company (see No. 5 above), which was not expended in the purchase of Palin's farm, and which was transferred to this account by order of the Court of the 24th November 1856. The following statement shows accurately the disposition of this fund:—

The above 141l. 6s. 6d. the residue was transferred to the sum of 3,851l. 16s. 3d., making the above amount of 3,993l. 2s. 9d., 3 per cent. consols.

There has been no general scheme for the administration of the charity since that of 1808.

By an order of the Court of Chancery of the 13th February 1821, made upon the petition of the Company in the suit, the salary of the head master of the school was increased from 150l. a year to 175l. 10s., and the salary of the usher was increased from 75l. to 87l. 10s. These augmentations were ordered to commence from March 1819.

By an order of the 25th July 1835, upon a like application, the salary of the head master was increased to 190l. a year, and 10l. a year was granted to him for his remuneration in acting as secretary to the visitors; and the salary of the usher was increased from 87l. 10s. to 100l.; the writing and arithmetic master's salary was raised from 45l. to 100l. a year, and he was at the same time appointed English master.

The woodreve's salary was raised from 2l. to 30l. Under an order of the Court of Chancery of the 23rd December 1852, a subscription of 5l. was allowed to the Adbaston National Schools.

The suit having been terminated and the receiver discharged in 1853, the Haberdashers' Company thenceforward took upon themselves the duty of making such necessary alterations and arrangements as appeared to be necessary.

At Christmas, 1855, the salary of the clerk of the governors was raised from 6l. to 45l. After the receiver was discharged, the clerk received the rents of the estates, without commission. The former salary had been regarded as covering the minor duties, and all special services had been paid for as costs. The augmented salary the governors fixed to include all business except special law expenses.

In 1856, the Company allowed the head master and the usher, each a further sum of 10l. for teaching French.

Under the order of the Court of Chancery, a surveyor had been appointed in December 1852, at a salary of 10l. a year; his duties being confined to a survey of the buildings on the charity land.

At Midsummer, 1854, the governors raised the salary of the surveyor to 25l., and included in his duties the survey of the land and the making a half-yearly report of the state of the property. At Midsummer, 1856, this was raised to 42l., and the superintendence of the surveyor was extended to the new purchase of Palin's land. At a recent court of the Company, held in the past year, the salary of the surveyor was raised to 65l., having regard to the increased income of the property. The care of the woods is entrusted to him, and he is considered to have exercised a very beneficial superintendence over that part of the property.

The salary of the woodreve has also been raised since March 1856, from 30l. to 40l. by the authority of the company.

At Midsummer, 1854, under the authority of the Charity Commissioners, a retiring pension of 50l. was allowed to the Rev. William Sandford, who has been usher of the school. Mr. Sandford is the incumbent of Newport.

The company have recently appointed an examiner of the school; the gentleman who has been appointed is one of the masters of the City of London School. His allowance is 10l. for each half-yearly examination, and travelling and other expenses for printing and otherwise.

The first examination under this appointment was at Midsummer, 1861, and at that time the number of boys in the school was only 38. Before the appointment of the examiner there had been only 32, subsequently the number of scholars on the foundation had been gradually increased, until in August last, as hereafter stated, they amounted to 63.

The successive modifications of the original scheme are shown on the following table, the objects described in italics, being those for which the founder had made no provision.

In addition to the above charges, there is at this time an additional incumbrance in the pension of 50*l.* per annum to Mr. Sandford.

I am informed that the prospective surplus income is for some time expected to be absorbed by the improvements in the farm buildings and the erection of cattle sheds. The average expenditure of the past seven years for the improvements, erection of buildings, and draining, fences, &c., have been 135*l.* 1*s.* 10*d.*

The Company, by a deputation of its members, visit the school and premises once in every two years, or every alternate year. The deputation on these occasions inspect the farms as well as the institution itself, and require and receive information as to all local matters affecting the charity and its arrangements.

Among other things, they occasionally inquire whether the duties imposed by the founder on the minister of Newport have been performed. A letter from Newport of the 25th October last from the head master, states, that about 60 boys (of whom about five only belong to the school) attend at the national schoolroom on Sunday mornings, and are catechised. The catechising, I am told, is sometimes by the minister or curate, and sometimes by the teachers of the Sunday school. The churchwardens have occasionally been requested to certify that the catechising has been performed. The Rev. William Sandford, the present minister, was formally usher of the school, and in that character has a retiring pension of 50*l.*, which was sanctioned by the Charity Commissioners (Order, 3rd June 1854) in consideration of his yielding up possession of the usher's house, which he had been allowed to occupy since his retirement from the school in 1852). I am told that he claims an addition to the foundation allowance in consequence of the great increase on the rents. It may be material to remark that the gift to him is, not only entirely for catechising, "but for his better encouragement in the "works of the ministry," a declaration which may afford some ground for the claim of the minister to augmentation.

In the course of the enquiry, I was attended by Mr. Heane, who appeared on behalf of the incumbent and the parish, and urged the claims of the living to an augmentation of the minister's allowance, pro rata with the increase of the income of the charity.

He stated that at the time of the endowment the income of the minister was only about 15*l.* a year, and the Easter dues; but that since that time the tithes had been purchased by the Governors of Queen Ann's Bounty, and annexed to the living, which is now worth about 220*l.*, with a parsonage house, let for about 5*l.* or 10*l.* a year to the parish clerk, and not suitable for the dwelling of the minister. He represented the parish as purely agricultural, with a population of about 3,000 and about 600 houses, rated to the poor's rates. I append to this report some communications I have received from Mr. Sandford, both on the subject of the claims of the incumbent and on the improvement of the school.

The visitors of the school are chosen or nominated by the Company, vacancies being generally filled up on the recommendation of the remaining members.

The present visitors are—

The Earl of Bradford.
Sir Thos. F. F. Boughey, Bart.
John Cotes, Esq.
Charles B. Borough, Esq.
Rev. J. D. Piggott.
Rev. F. C. Twemlow.
Rev. H. G. Bunsen.
Rev. Edwd. Meredith Longdon.
Rev. J. K. Charlton.
Rev. G. T. O. Bridgeman.

The school comprises three principal classes or divisions, the upper school, the middle school, and the lower school. Every boy generally enters into the lower school, which is under the superintendence of the English master. The master admits scholars as probationers, but the regular admission takes place at the quarterly meetings of the visitors, and under their order. At these meetings the boys are examined and promoted from the lower to the upper school. There is in the town an English school, having some endowments partly from the same founder, and there is also a national school. The visitors require that every boy should be able to read tolerably well before he is admissible to this school.

The number of boys in the school since the year 1850 were as follows:—

1850	-	-	-	-	65 boys.
1854	-	-	-	-	51 "
1855	-	-	-	-	41 "
1856	-	-	-	-	42 "
1857	-	-	-	-	38 "
1858	-	-	-	-	34 "
1859	-	-	-	-	35 "
1860	-	-	-	-	27 "
1861	-	-	-	-	47 "
1862, February	-	-	-	-	58 "
" August	-	-	-	-	63 "

It is contemplated to appoint a French master specifically for the teaching of that language, which is not considered at present to be efficiently taught, in which case the 10*l.* allowance to the present master and usher will be discontinued.

The present head master is the Rev. Dr. Saxton, who was appointed in 1846. His emoluments consist of the 210*l.* a year, above stated, together with his house rent free. Each boy pays an admission fee of 2*s.* 6*d.*, of which, 1*s.* 6*d.* goes to the head master, and 1*s.* to the usher, and no further payment whatever, either for books or otherwise. This payment by a recent order of the court of the Company has been increased to 10*s.* to be divided in the same proportion, subject to the sanction of the Charity Commissioners.

The Rev. J. R. Heawood is the second master, and Mr. R. Crowther the English master.

The schoolhouse consists of a large room for the school, which affords space for all the classes, and an adjoining room occupied by the library, which is for the most part composed of works bequeathed by the founder. The Company have lately added some modern books of a more popular kind to be lent to the school boys; about 30*l.* has been applied to this purpose.

Both of the masters' houses are of sufficient capacity to enable them to take boarders.

Several suggestions have been made by the head and second masters, as well as by Mr. Sandford, for the improvement of the school. I append their letter to this report. It has also been proposed to enlarge the area from which the boys are to be admitted, and to comprise within it all the parishes in the Newport Union, which include a part of the county of Stafford.

This would seem to be a very desirable measure. It is impossible not to feel that the educational results of this charity are quite disproportioned to the amount of its income, and to the advantages which a better organization would afford. Any scheme for the extension of the benefits of the school should probably be considered in connexion with the other schools for the poor in Newport, and especially embracing also arrangements by which the other endowed school in Newport may be made ancillary to the educational wants of the parish and district.

The four exhibitors are appointed by the visitors in conjunction with the head master.

They receive the 22*l.* 10*s.* per annum, and the allowance is tenable for four years. They are paid by the clerk of the Company on receipt of the certificate of residence. The present exhibitors are Hartshorne, Lindop, and B. and L. Jones.

The school has also jointly with other schools in Shropshire the benefit of a share of the exhibition founded by Mr. Careswell in 1689, in Christ Church College, Oxford. The estate of this foundation has, I am informed, been increased in value, and is now administered under a decree of the Court of Chancery settling a scheme. I have not, however, been able to ascertain the title of the cause. In May 1861, the visitors report that Thos. C. Lindop, one of the scholars of the Newport school was elected to a Careswell exhibition. The name of the same young man is found in the list of the exhibitors under this foundation. I have been furnished by the head master with a return of the Careswell exhibitions elected from the Newport school since 1821. This is contained in a letter containing also some suggestions for the improvement of the institution, to which I have before referred, and which I append.

The apprentices are chosen by the head master, minister, and churchwardens as provided by the statutes. A form of certificate is forwarded to the clerk of the Company, and the payment is made to the vestry clerk of the parish of Newport.

The premium of apprenticeship is 18*l.* apiece, as settled by the Court of Chancery, 1808.

There are four almshouses, each containing a sitting-room and small washhouse below, and a sleeping room above. The furniture belongs to the inmates.

The almspeople receive 7*s.* 6*d.* a week each, under the scheme of 1808; they are all single persons. The two houses on one side are occupied by men, and the two on the other side by women, elected by the parish in vestry; the allowances are paid by an agent of the clerk of the Company who resides in the town.

The payments to the 20 poor of the Haberdashers' Company of 3*l.* 15*s.* each are made according to the scheme of 1808. The same recipients are not chosen two years in succession. The master, wardens, and fifteen oldest members of the court of assistants who may be present make the election, each of these gentlemen nominate one person in turn.

The accounts of the charity are made up by the Company to the 24th November (St. Katherine's Day) in every year. The balance of cash to the credit of the charity on the 24th November 1861, was 290*l.* 14*s.* 9*d.* The accounts are not finally made up until February. It has been usual to invest any balance, but this was not done last year, the Company having received the rents earlier than usual, are now in advance upwards of 200*l.*, a balance which constantly fluctuates, and has been in the course of the year upwards of 400*l.*

The Company have recently received an application from the churchwardens, and guardians, and overseers, and other inhabitants of Adbaston, the parish in which the lands of the charity are situated, requesting some annual allowance for the vicar of that parish. The lands, I am informed, were tithe free under the Local Act of the 12th Car. 2, set out in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 5, p. 422). I should doubt, however, whether this Act would extend to tithes. It provides that all the lands and hereditaments conveyed by Adams to the Company for the purposes of the charity "should be at all times therein-after free, discharged and "acquitted of and from the payment of all, every, or any "manner of taxes, assessments, or charges civil or military "whatsoever thereafter to be laid and imposed by authority "of Parliament or otherwise; and that the said manor, "messuages, and premises, and the owners and occupiers "thereof or any of them should not at any time thereafter "be rated, taxed, or assessed to pay any sum or sums of "money or be otherwise charged in any way whatsoever for "or in respect of the said manor, lands, and hereditaments, "or any of them, for or towards any manner of public tax, "assessment, or charge whatsoever." This most remarkable piece of legislation has thus exempted and been held by the Courts of Law to exempt the estates of the charity from every public burden. It may be observed, however that the exemption of tithes is of no importance to the incumbent as the tithes are in lay hands. The court of the Company have recently, in the present month (Nov. 1862) agreed to an allowance of 20*l.* per annum, if sanctioned by the Charity Commissioners. The tithes of the parish are in the hands of a lay impropiator. The vicar has only a stipend of 90*l.* a year.

I append documents which have been forwarded to me by the incumbent and the head master of the school.*

*WM. ADAMS' CHARITIES.

6th Jan. 1805. By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners of this date governors were authorised to effect certain improvements upon certain farms at Knighton in Adbaston, and to provide cost (estimated at 462*l.*) by sale of stock standing in names of governors arising from accumulation of surplus income. Tenants to pay as additional rent, 6*l.* per cent. on outlay.

3rd Sept. 1867. By opinion of Board of this date governors were advised that apprentices might be placed out either as indoor or outdoor apprentices, and that premium might be paid over to local trustees of the charity to be applied according to their discretion for the benefit of the apprentices.

21st Feb. 1871. By order of Board of this date governors were authorised to grant to Rev. Dr. Saxton on his relinquishing office of head master of school, an annual pension of 95*l.*

12th Jan. 1877. By order of Board of this date governors were authorised to contribute out of surplus income sum not exceeding 70*l.* towards cost of erection of national school in parish of Adbaston.

27th Nov. 1878. By Order in Council of this date Her Majesty declared her approbation of the following scheme under the Endowed Schools Acts for the administration of "Adams' Grammar School Foundation."

In the matter of the foundation for a school and other charitable purposes known as the Free Grammar School of Newport, in the county of Salop, of the foundation of William Adams; and

In the matter of the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, 1873, and 1874.

SCHEME FOR THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE ABOVE-MENTIONED FOUNDATION, AND OF ALL THE ENDOWMENTS THEREOF.

1. The above-mentioned foundation and its endowments shall henceforth be administered in accordance with the provisions of this scheme, under the name of Adams' Grammar School Foundation, herein-after called the foundation.

Future administration of foundation.

2. The corporation of the governors of the possessions and revenues of the free grammar school of Newport, of the foundation of William Adams, herein called the governors, shall be continued; and, subject as herein provided, all rights, powers, and liabilities of the said corporation, and all lands and hereditaments, and all terms, estates, and interests therein respectively belonging to the foundation, and vested in the said corporation, shall remain so vested: Provided that, the members of the said corporation notwithstanding their incorporation shall be chargeable for such property as shall come into their hands, and shall be answerable and accountable for their own acts, receipts, neglects, and defaults in respect of the administration of the foundation, and shall be subject, jointly and severally, to any legal control or authority in the same manner and to the same extent as if they were not incorporated.

Continuance of corporation

3. The estates and property of the foundation, except as otherwise hereby provided, shall continue to be managed by the governors according to the general law applicable to the management of property by trustees of charitable foundations. And the governors shall duly account to the school governing body or managers herein-after mentioned for the rents and proceeds thereof, and shall pay over to the said managers, or as such managers shall direct, the income of such estates and property, after deducting all proper charges for management and necessary outgoings, and subject as provided in clause 9 of this scheme. And in case of dispute as to such deductions or payments, either party may refer the matter to the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, whose decision shall be final. But any land or buildings occupied exclusively for the purposes of either school of the foundation shall be managed exclusively by the managers of such school, and so far as belonging to the foundation shall be vested in the official trustee of charity lands and his successors in trust for such managers.

Religious opinions no disqualification.

4. Religious opinions, or attendance or non-attendance at any particular form of religious worship, shall not in any way affect the qualification of any person for being one of any governing body under this scheme.

Vesting personal property.

5. From and after the date of this scheme all stock in the public funds and other securities belonging to the foundation, and not hereby required or directed to be otherwise applied or disposed of, shall be transferred to the official trustees of charitable funds in trust for the managers.

Timber and minerals.

6. Any money arising from the sale of timber or from any mines or minerals on the estates of the foundation shall be treated as capital, and shall be invested in the name of the official trustees of charitable funds, under the direction of the Charity Commissioners, except in any special cases in which such Commissioners may allow such money or any part thereof to be otherwise dealt with.

Accounts.

7. The accounts of the governors in respect of the foundation shall be made up and balanced to the 31st day of December in every year. The accounts shall be examined by the governors, and signed by them and their clerk, if any, or other officer within 21 days after the day to which they are made up. As soon as practicable after the accounts are so signed they shall be audited in accordance with regulations to be approved by the Charity Commissioners.

Statement of accounts.

8. The governors shall cause a statement showing their receipts and expenditure to be printed in such form and with such particulars as may be from time to time prescribed by the Charity Commissioners, and shall send the same within 30 days after the audit to the managers and to the managers of the girls' school, and to the Charity Commissioners, and publish an abstract thereof in one or more local newspapers.

Trusts for minister, apprentices, and almspeople, and for poor of Haberdashers' Company.

9. The trusts of the foundation for the benefit respectively of the minister, apprentices, and almspeople of the foundation and of 20 poor people of the Haberdashers' Company, shall be administered by the governors according to the regulations in force relating to such minister, apprentices, almspeople, and poor people respectively up to the date of this scheme, except that the payment thereunder to such minister shall henceforth be at the rate of 100*l.* a year, and that the payment thereunder to be divided equally amongst such almspeople shall henceforth be at the rate of 104*l.* a year.

THE SCHOOLS.

Governing body of schools.

10. Subject as herein provided the governing body of the schools, herein-after called the managers, shall, when completely formed and full, consist of 13 persons, of whom two shall be called ex officio managers, and 11 shall be called representative managers.

Ex officio managers.

11. The ex officio managers shall consist of the master and the senior warden respectively for the time being of the Company of Haberdashers of the City of London, if they respectively shall be willing to accept the office of manager.

Representative managers.

12. The representative managers shall be competent persons duly qualified to discharge the duties of the office, and shall be appointed by the following electing bodies respectively in the following proportions, and for the following terms of office, that is to say—

Five for the term of seven years by the court of assistants of the said Company of Haberdashers, not less than four of such five being resident within 10 miles from the parish church of Newport aforesaid;

Two for the term of six years by Her Majesty's justices of the peace acting in and for the petty sessional division in which Newport aforesaid is situate;

Two for the term of five years by the Newport, Salop, local board; and

Two for the term of five years by the ratepayers of the parish of Newport aforesaid, and of such part of the parish of Chetwynd as lies within a mile from the parish church of Newport aforesaid, which part of the parish of Chetwynd is in this scheme referred to as Chetwynd End.

Such appointments shall be made as often as there may be occasion by the body entitled to appoint, at a meeting thereof which shall be convened, held, and conducted as nearly as may be in conformity with the ordinary rules or practice of such body, or failing such rules or practice, then in conformity with regulations to be made or approved by the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales. The term shall be in each case reckoned from the date of the appointment. The first representative managers shall be appointed as soon as conveniently may be after the date of this scheme. The chairman or other presiding officer of each meeting at which the appointment of any representative managers or manager shall be made, shall forthwith cause the names or name of the persons or person so appointed to be notified, in the case of the first such appointment to the governors, and in the case of every subsequent appointment to the chairman of the managers or their clerk, if any, or other acting officer. Any appointment of a representative manager not made as aforesaid within six calendar months from the date of this scheme, or of the notice herein-after prescribed of the occurrence of a vacancy, as the case may be, shall for that turn be made by the then existing managers.

The proper expenses, if any, attending the appointment of every representative manager, unless otherwise provided for, shall on the particulars thereof being submitted to and allowed by the Charity Commissioners be paid by the managers out of the income of the foundation.

Vacancies.

13. Any representative manager who, during his term of office, shall become bankrupt or incapacitated to act, or express in writing his wish to resign, or omit for the space of one year to attend any meeting, or, in the case of any representative manager appointed as being resident within 10 miles from the parish church of Newport aforesaid, shall cease to be so resident, shall thereupon forthwith vacate the office of manager; and the managers shall cause an entry to be made in their minute book of every vacancy occasioned by any of the said causes, or by the death or the expiration of the term of office of any representative manager; and as soon as conveniently may be after the occurrence of any vacancy a new manager shall be appointed by the body entitled as aforesaid to make such appointment. Any manager may be re-appointed. Notice of the occurrence of every vacancy of the office of representative manager shall be given, as soon as conveniently may be, by or under the direction of the managers to the proper electing body or the clerk, if any, or other acting officer of such body.

14. Every manager shall, at or before the first meeting which he attends upon his first or any subsequent appointment, sign a memorandum declaring his acceptance of the office of manager, and his willingness to act in the trusts of this scheme. And until he has signed such a memorandum he shall not be entitled to discharge the functions of a manager.

Declaration by managers on entry into office.

15. The managers shall hold meetings in some convenient place in Newport, or elsewhere, as often as may be found necessary or desirable, on and at convenient days and times to be appointed by themselves, and to be notified to each manager by the clerk, if any, or by some other person acting under the direction of the managers, at least seven days previously to every meeting. Such meetings shall be held at least twice in each year, and one of them in each year shall be on a stated day approved by the governors.

Meetings of managers.

16. A preliminary meeting for the arrangement of the conduct of the business shall be held at Newport upon the summons of the governors upon some day to be fixed by them being within one calendar month from the time at which the full number of managers shall have been completed, or from the expiration of the first three calendar months after the date of this scheme, if the full number of managers shall not then have been completed.

Preliminary meeting.

17. The managers shall, at the said preliminary meeting, and afterwards at their first meeting in each year, elect one of their number to be chairman of their meetings for the current year, and they shall also make regulations for supplying his place in case of his death, resignation, or absence during his term of office. The chairman shall always be re-eligible.

Chairman.

18. A quorum shall be constituted when five managers are present at a meeting. All matters and questions shall be determined by the majority of the managers present at a duly constituted meeting; and in case of equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote. Whenever any decision is carried by the votes of less than a majority of the whole number of managers for the time being any two managers may, within 15 days from the day of the decision, require by a notice addressed to the chairman of the meeting that the decision shall be once reconsidered at a special meeting, to be held not later than one calendar month next after such decision.

Quorum and voting.

Special meetings.

19. The chairman or any two managers may at any time summon a special meeting for any cause that seems to him or them sufficient. All special meetings shall be convened by or under the direction of the person or persons summoning the meeting by notice in writing delivered or sent by post to each manager, specifying the object of the meeting. And it shall be the duty of the clerk, if any, to give such notice when required by the chairman or by any managers having a right to summon such meeting.

Adjournment of meetings.

20. If a sufficient number of managers to form a quorum are not present at any meeting, or if the business at any meeting is not fully completed, those present may adjourn the meeting to a subsequent day and time, of which notice shall be given in manner aforesaid to each manager.

Minutes.

21. A minute book and proper books of account shall be provided by the managers, and kept in some convenient and secure place of deposit to be provided or appointed by them for that purpose, and minutes of the entry into office of every new manager, and of all proceedings of the managers, shall be entered in such minute book.

Accounts.

22. The managers shall cause full accounts to be kept of their receipts and expenditure in respect of the foundation; and such accounts shall be stated for each year, and examined and passed annually by the managers at the first meeting in the ensuing year, unless some other meeting shall be appointed for the purpose with the approval of the Charity Commissioners, and every such account shall be signed by the managers present at the meeting at which it shall be passed.

The managers shall cause sufficient abstracts of their accounts to be published annually for general information. Such abstracts shall be in the form given in the schedule hereto, unless some other form is prescribed by the Charity Commissioners, in which case the form so prescribed shall be followed.

Business arrangements.

23. The managers may from time to time make such arrangements as they may find most fitting for the custody of any deeds and other documents in their charge belonging to the foundation, for deposit of money, for the drawing of cheques, and also for the appointment of a clerk or of any necessary agents or other proper officers for their assistance in the conduct of the business of the foundation, at such reasonable salaries or scale of remuneration as shall be approved by the Charity Commissioners, but no governor acting as such clerk or officer shall be entitled to any salary or remuneration.

Managers may act although body not full.

24. After the full number of managers shall have been completed according to the provisions of this scheme, or after the expiration of the first three calendar months after the date of this scheme, if the full number of managers shall not then have been completed, the managers for the time being, if a quorum is constituted, may act for all the purposes of this scheme, although their body, as hereinbefore constituted, is not full.

Temporary school arrangements.

25. So far as may be practicable and convenient, the school may be carried on as heretofore until the end of the school term, if any, which may be current at the date of this scheme, or until such other time as may be approved by the Charity Commissioners, on proper application made to them for the purpose.

Provision as to present head master.

26. The present head master shall, at or before the time so allowed under the foregoing clause, declare to the managers in writing, whether or not he is willing to take and hold the office of head master of the boys' school under this scheme, and if he shall declare himself to be so willing he shall retain the office without further appointment, subject in all respects to the provisions of this scheme; but, if he shall fail to make such declaration within the time so allowed, or shall declare that he is not so willing, the managers may forthwith remove him from the said office.

Provision as to another master and pension to a former master.

27. Nothing in this scheme shall prejudice any interest within the meaning of the 13th section of the Endowed Schools Act, 1869, which at the passing of the Endowed Schools Act, 1868, was vested in Mr. Richard Crowther as English or third master of the school or in the Reverend Charles Waring Saxton, D.D., formerly the master of the school, in respect of his yearly pension of 95*l*.

Saving of interests of scholars.

28. Any payment, or exemption from payment, scholarship, exhibition, or other benefit to which any boy who was on the foundation on the 1st day of January 1878 is legally entitled thereunder shall be continued to him.

Provisions as to schools to be brought

29. The managers shall take all requisite measures for bringing the provisions of this scheme into active operation for the regulation of the schools to be established or maintained under this scheme as soon as practicable, and they shall have power to make all suitable and proper arrangements for that purpose.

into operation as soon as practicable.

30. A school for boys, and if and so soon as the funds of the foundation will admit a school for girls, to be called the Adams' Grammar Schools, shall be established or maintained under the foundation in or near Newport aforesaid. The boys' school shall be a day and boarding school under a head master, and the girls' school shall be a day school only under a head mistress.

Boys' school and girls' school.

31. The parent or guardian of, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of, any day scholar in either school may claim, by notice in writing addressed to the head master or head mistress, the exemption of such scholar from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, and such scholar shall be exempted accordingly, and a scholar shall not, by reason of any exemption from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, be deprived of any advantage or emolument in either school to which he or she would otherwise have been entitled. If the parent or guardian of, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of, any scholar who is about to attend the boys' school, and who but for this clause could only be admitted as a boarder, desires the exemption of such scholar from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, but the persons in charge of the boarding houses of such school are not willing to allow such exemption, then it shall be the duty of the governing body of such school to make provisions for enabling the scholar to attend such school, and have such exemption as a day scholar, without being deprived of any advantage or emolument to which he would otherwise have been entitled. If any teacher, in the course of other lessons at which any scholar exempted under this clause is in accordance with the ordinary rules of either school present, shall teach systematically and persistently any particular religious doctrine, from the teaching of which any exemption has been claimed, as in this clause before provided, the governing body of such school shall, on complaint made in writing to them by the parent, guardian, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of such scholar, hear the complaint, and inquire into the circumstances, and, if the complaint is judged to be reasonable, make all proper provisions for remedying the matter complained of.

Special exemptions from religious instruction and worship.

32. Subject to the foregoing provision, religious instruction in accordance with the principles of the Christian faith shall be given in each school under such regulations as shall be made from time to time by the governing body of such school. No alteration in any such regulation shall take effect until the expiration of not less than one year after notice of the making of the alteration shall have been given by the governing body of the school concerned in such manner as they shall think best calculated to bring the matter within the knowledge of persons interested in such school.

Instruction.

33. No head or assistant master or teacher of either school shall be a member of a governing body under this scheme.

Teachers not to be members of a governing body.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

34. As soon as conveniently may be the managers, either by altering or adding to the present school buildings, or by acquiring or erecting other buildings upon some convenient site, shall provide for the boys' school proper school buildings suitable for not less than 100 day scholars and 50 boarders, and planned with a view to convenient extension, and may apply for the purpose a sufficient sum to be provided or raised, if needful, by the governors on the application of the managers out of the capital endowment or property of the foundation by sale or otherwise, but for all the purposes of this clause the governors and the managers shall act subject to the consent and approval of the Charity Commissioners.

Boys' school site and buildings.

35. No person shall be disqualified for being a master in the school by reason only of his not being, or not intending to be, in Holy Orders.

Masters not to be required to be in Holy Orders.

36. There shall be a head master of the school. He shall be a graduate of some university in the United Kingdom. Every future head master shall be appointed by the managers at some meeting to be called for that purpose, as soon as conveniently may be after the occurrence of a vacancy, or after notice of an intended vacancy. In order to obtain the best candidates, the managers shall, for a sufficient time before making any appointment, give public notice of the vacancy and invite applicants for the office by advertisements in newspapers, or by such other methods as they may judge best calculated to secure the object.

Head master. Appointment.

Dismissal.

37. The managers may dismiss the head master without assigning cause, after six calendar months' written notice, given to him in pursuance of a resolution passed at two consecutive meetings held at an interval of at least 14 days, and convened for that purpose, such resolution being affirmed at each meeting by not less than two-thirds of the managers present.

The managers, for what in their opinion is urgent cause, may, by resolution passed at a special meeting convened for that purpose, and affirmed by not less than two-thirds of the whole number of managers for the time being, declare that the head master ought to be dismissed from his office without the aforesaid notice, and in that case they may appoint another special meeting to be held not less than a week after the former one, and may then by a similar resolution, affirmed by as large a proportion of managers, absolutely and finally dismiss him. And if the managers assembled at the first of such meetings think fit at once to suspend the head master from his office until the next meeting, they may do so by resolution affirmed by as large a proportion of managers. Full notice and opportunity of defence at both meetings shall be given to the head master.

38. Every future head master, previously to entering into office, shall be required to sign a declaration, to be entered in the minute book of the managers, to the following effect:—

"I, _____, declare that I will always to the best of my ability discharge the duties of head master of the boys' school of Adams' Grammar School Foundation at Newport during my tenure of the office, and that if I am removed by the managers, I will acquiesce in such removal, and will thereupon relinquish all claim to the mastership and its future emoluments, and will deliver up to the managers, or as they direct, possession of all the property of the school then in my possession or occupation."

39. The head master shall dwell in the residence assigned for him. He shall have the occupation and use of such residence and of any other property of the school of which he becomes the occupant as such head master, in respect of his official character and duties, and not as tenant, and shall, if removed from his office, deliver up possession of such residence and other property to the managers, or as they direct. He shall not, except with the permission of the governors, permit any person not being a member of his family to occupy such residence or any part thereof.

40. The head master shall give his personal attention to the duties of the school, and during his tenure of office he shall not accept or hold any benefice having the cure of souls, or any office or appointment which, in the opinion of the managers, may interfere with the proper performance of his duties as head master.

41. Neither the head master nor any assistant master shall receive or demand from any boy in the school, or from any person whomsoever on behalf of any such boy, any gratuity, fee, or payment, except such as are prescribed or authorised by this scheme.

42. Within the limits fixed by this scheme, the managers shall prescribe the general subjects of instruction, the relative prominence and value to be assigned to each group of subjects, the arrangements respecting the school terms, vacations, and holidays, and the payments of day scholars, and the number and payments of boarders. They shall take general supervision of the sanitary condition of the school buildings and arrangements. They shall determine what number of assistant masters shall be employed. They shall every year assign the amount which they think proper to be contributed out of the income of the foundation for the purpose of maintaining assistant masters and providing and maintaining a proper school plant or apparatus, and otherwise furthering the current objects and efficiency of the school.

43. Before making any regulations under the last foregoing clause, the managers shall consult the head master in such a manner as to give him full opportunity for the expression of his views. The head master may also from time to time submit proposals to the managers for making or altering regulations concerning any matter within the province of the managers. The managers shall fully consider any such expression of views or proposals, and shall decide upon them.

44. Subject to the rules prescribed by or under the authority of this scheme, the head master shall have under his control the choice of books, the method of teaching, the arrangement of classes and school hours, and generally the whole internal organisation, management, and discipline of the school, including the power of expelling boys from the school or suspending them from attendance thereat for any adequate cause to be judged of by him: Provided that, upon expelling or suspending any boy he shall forthwith report the case to the managers.

45. The head master shall have the sole power of appointing and dismissing all assistant masters, and shall determine, subject to the approval of the managers, in what proportions the sum assigned by the managers for the maintenance of assistant masters, or the other current objects of the school, shall be divided among the various persons and objects for which it is assigned in the aggregate. And the managers shall pay the same accordingly, either through the hands of the head master or directly as they think best.

46. The head master shall receive a fixed yearly stipend of 150*l*. He shall also be entitled to receive a further or capitation payment calculated on such a scale, uniform or graduated, as may be fixed from time to time by the managers, at the rate of not less than 2*l*. nor more than 5*l*. a year for each boy attending the school. The amount of this further or capitation payment shall be ascertained and paid to the head master by the managers, together with the proper proportion of his fixed stipend, at such convenient intervals or times as the managers may think fit.

47. The managers may make such regulations and arrangements as they may think right for the reception of boarders either in the house of any master, or in a hostel or hostels conducted under the management of the managers, or, if they think fit, in both of those ways.

48. All boys, including boarders, except as herein-after provided, shall pay tuition fees to be fixed from time to time by the managers, at the rate of not less than 6*l*. nor more than 12*l*. a year for any boy; except that for any boy living within any of the following areas with his parents or guardians, that is to say, the area of the parish of Newport aforesaid and Chetwynd End, the area within three miles from the parish church of Newport aforesaid, and the area within five miles from the parish church of Newport aforesaid, the tuition fee shall be at the rate of 3*l*. yearly, but so that the number of boys paying under this clause at such last-mentioned rate is never more than 80 at any one time, and that the preference under this clause is always given according to the order in which the said three areas are named above. Except as aforesaid no difference in respect of these fees shall be made between any scholars on account of place of birth or residence or of their being or not being boarders. The payments to be required from boarders exclusive of the tuition fees shall not exceed the annual rate of 35*l*. in a hostel, or 50*l*. in a master's house, for any boy. No extra or additional payment of any kind shall be allowed without the sanction of the managers and the written consent of the parent, or person occupying the place of parent, of the scholar concerned.

All payments for tuition fees shall be made in advance to the head master, or to such other person as the managers shall from time to time determine, and shall be accounted for by the person receiving them to the managers, and treated by them as part of the general income of the foundation.

49. No boy shall be admitted into the school under the age of eight years. No boy shall remain in the school after the age of 17 years, or if he attains that age during a school term then after the end of such term, except with the permission of the managers, which in special cases may be given upon the recommendation of the head master.

50. Subject to the provisions established by or under the authority of this scheme, the school and all its advantages shall be open to all boys of good character and sufficient health who are residing with their parents, guardians, or near relations within degrees to be determined by the managers, or in some boarding house conducted under regulations made by the managers. No boy not so residing shall be admitted to the school without the special permission of the managers.

51. Applications for admission to the school shall be made to the head master, or to some other person appointed by the managers, according to a form to be approved of by them, and delivered to all applicants.

52. The head master or some other person appointed by the managers shall keep a register of applications for admission, showing the date of every application and of the admission, withdrawal, or rejection of the applicant, and the cause of any rejection, and the age of each applicant.

53. Every applicant for admission shall be examined by or under the direction of the head master, who shall appoint convenient times for that purpose, and give reasonable notice to the parents or next friends of the boy to be so examined. No boy shall be admitted to the school except after undergoing such examination and being found fit for admission. Subject as herein provided those who are found fit shall, if there is room for them, be admitted in order according to the dates of their application.

54. The examination for admission shall be graduated according to the age of the boy, and shall be regulated in other particulars from time to time by or under the direction of the managers, but it shall never for any boy fall below the following standard, that is to say :—

Reading.

Writing from dictation.

Sums in the first four simple rules of arithmetic, with the multiplication table.

Instruction. 55. Besides religious instruction as herein-before provided, instruction shall also be given in the school in the following subjects :—

Reading, writing, and arithmetic.

Geography and history.

English grammar, composition, and literature.

Mathematics.

Latin.

At least one foreign European language.

Natural science.

Drawing and vocal music.

Greek may be taught at an additional tuition fee of not less than 3*l.* a year for each boy.

Subject to the above provisions, the course of instruction shall proceed according to the classification and arrangements made by the head master.

Annual examination.

56. There shall be once in every year an examination of the scholars by an examiner or examiners appointed for that purpose by the managers, and paid by them, but otherwise unconnected with the school. The day of examination shall be fixed by the managers after consulting with the head master. The examiner or examiners shall report to the managers on the proficiency of the scholars and on the condition of the school, as regards instruction and discipline, as shown by the result of the examination. The managers shall communicate the report to the head master.

Head master's annual report.

57. The head master shall make a report in writing to the managers annually at such time as they shall direct on the general condition and progress of the school, and on any special occurrences during the year. He may also mention the names of any boys who, in his judgment, are worthy of reward or distinction, having regard both to proficiency and conduct. The managers may award prizes of books or other suitable rewards or marks of distinction to any such boys.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

Girls' school.

58. The girls' school, when established, shall be carried on in any suitable buildings hired or otherwise available for the purpose, and for its maintenance shall be entitled to so much of the income of the foundation as herein-after provided.

Managers of girls' school.

59. The girls' school shall be managed by a governing body consisting of the managers and two women, each appointed by the managers for the term of five years, but subject to vacating office earlier in the same way as the representative managers. The managers with such two women shall be called the managers of the girls' school. The managers of the girls' school shall act as one body in all matters within their jurisdiction, and shall conduct their business in the mode provided for the conduct of the business of the managers.

Income of head mistress.

60. The head mistress of the girls' school shall receive a fixed stipend of 80*l.* a year, and until a residence is provided for her a yearly allowance of not more than 30*l.* in place of such residence. She shall also receive a further or capitation payment being not less than 2*l.* nor more than 4*l.* for each girl attending the school, but calculated and paid in other respects according to the conditions herein-before prescribed for the boys' school.

Instruction.

61. The subjects of instruction for girls besides religious instruction, as herein-before provided, shall be :—

Reading, writing, and arithmetic.

Geography and history.

English grammar, composition, and literature.

Latin or some foreign European language or both.

One or more branches of natural science.

Domestic economy and the laws of health.

Drawing and vocal music.

Needlework, and such other subjects as the managers of the girls' school may from time to time prescribe.

62. All girls, wherever living, except as herein-after provided, shall pay tuition fees to be fixed from time to time by the managers of the girls' school, at the rate of not less than 4*l.* nor more than 8*l.* a year for any girl.

Fees.

63. The girls' school shall be subject to the like provisions as are contained in the foregoing clauses relating to the boys' school, except so far as the same require that certain school buildings shall be provided, or that the head master shall be a graduate or shall dwell in a particular residence or as is otherwise herein provided. For the purposes of this clause, such foregoing clauses shall be read as if the following modifications were made therein, namely, "managers of the girls' school" for "managers," "mistress" for "master," and "girl" for "boy," with any consequent modifications.

Other provisions as for boys' school.

SCHOLARSHIPS AND EXHIBITIONS.

64. Scholarships shall be maintained in each school in the form of exemptions from the payment of all tuition fees and shall be granted for such periods and, subject to the provisions of this scheme, on such conditions as the managers or the managers of the girls' school, as the case may be, think fit. Boys or girls to whom such scholarships shall be granted shall be called foundation scholars. Subject as herein-after provided, one such scholarship in the boys' school shall be awarded to every applicant for admission who, being examined and found fit for admission as aforesaid, has for three years been educated at any of the public elementary schools in the school district of Newport aforesaid or in Chetwynd End, and has passed an examination in the highest standard for the time being recognised by the regulations of the Education Department in each of the ordinary, as distinguished from the specific, subjects of secular instruction, and brings from his last school a written report of conduct and character satisfactory to the managers. Subject as aforesaid the scholarships under this clause may be awarded in favour of candidates for admission to either school, on the result of the examination for admission, and in favour of scholars already attending either school upon the reports of the examiners made on the result of the annual examination, but no scholarship under this clause shall be granted to any such last-mentioned scholar unless the head master or head mistress, as the case may be, shall report that such scholar is deserving of it by reason of character and good conduct. No scholarship shall be granted under this clause in either school so as to extend the number of such scholarships to more than 10 per cent. of the scholars actually attending such school.

Foundation scholarships.

65. The managers shall apply not less than the sum of 60*l.* yearly in maintaining in the boys' school other scholarships each of the yearly value of not more than 15*l.* These scholarships shall be competed for by boys, whether being or not being in the school, who have been educated for at least three years at any of the public elementary schools in the school district of Newport aforesaid, or in Chetwynd End. No scholarship under this clause shall be granted for which there shall be no candidate so qualified as aforesaid who on examination shall be adjudged worthy to take it. Any money so left to be disposed of shall be applied in the manner herein-after directed concerning unapplied surplus of income of the foundation.

Other scholarships.

66. Subject to such reasonable regulations, not inconsistent with the provisions of this scheme, as the managers may from time to time prescribe, the managers may, if the income is sufficient, establish in the boys' school four exhibitions tenable for four years at any place of higher education approved by them, to be called Adams' exhibitions, and be awarded to boys who are being and have for not less than three years been educated at the school.

Exhibitions in boys' school.

67. The managers of the girls' school may establish four like exhibitions in the girls' school.

In girls' school.

68. Every scholarship and exhibition established under this scheme shall be given as the reward of merit, and shall, except as herein provided, be freely and openly competed for, and shall be tenable only for the purposes of education. If the holder shall, in the judgment of the governing body by whom the scholarship or exhibition was granted, be guilty of serious misconduct or idleness, or fail to maintain a reasonable standard of proficiency, or wilfully cease to pursue his or her education, such governing body may at once determine the scholarship or exhibition, and for this purpose, in the case of an exhibition held away from the school, may act on the report of the proper authorities of the school or place of education at which the exhibition is held, or on such other evidence as such governing body think sufficient. For the purposes of this clause the decision of such governing body shall be final in every case.

Conditions as to scholarships and exhibitions.

APPLICATION OF INCOME.

Repairs and improvements fund.

69. As soon as the funds of the foundation will admit, the managers shall transfer the sum of 1,666*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* Government Stock into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, and shall place the same in their books to a separate account, entitled "Repairs and Improvements Fund." The income of such fund shall be paid to the managers, and applied by them in ordinary repairs or improvements of property used for the purposes of the schools respectively, and if not wanted for that purpose shall be accumulated by them for the like purpose in any future year or years. Until the repairs and improvements fund is provided, the managers shall treat the sum of 50*l.* a year as applicable to the same purposes as the income of the repairs and improvements fund.

penses.

70. After defraying the expenses of management, and of any ordinary repairs or improvements of property used for the purposes of the schools which the income of the repairs and improvements fund, or the yearly sum payable in lieu thereof, may be insufficient to answer, and providing for any legal claims on the income of the foundation which may be due, and subject after the establishment of the girls' school to the provisions herein contained relating to the income applicable for the purposes of the girls' school, and after providing for any payment towards the cost of examinations under the Oxford or Cambridge University local examinations, as herein-after provided, the managers shall employ the income of the foundation applicable for the purposes of the boys' school in paying the head master, and in making the several payments herein-before directed or authorised for the purposes of the boys' school.

Pensions.

71. The managers may, if they think fit, and the income at their disposal suffice for the purpose, agree with the head master of the boys' school for the formation of a fund in the nature of a pension or superannuation fund, the main principles of such agreement being that the head master and the managers respectively shall contribute annually for a period of 20 years such sums as may be fixed on; that these contributions shall accumulate at compound interest; that in case the head master serves his office for 20 years he shall on his retirement be entitled to the whole accumulated fund; that in case he retires earlier on account of permanent disability from illness he shall also be entitled to the whole of the same fund; that in all other cases he shall, on his ceasing to be master, be entitled to the amount produced by his own contributions. If any question shall arise upon the construction or working of this provision, the same shall be referred by the managers to the Charity Commissioners, whose decision thereon shall be final and conclusive.

to girls'
school.

72. All sums received as income in respect of the girls' school shall be treated as part of the income of the foundation applicable for the purposes of the girls' school, and after the establishment of the girls' school the managers shall, at their first meeting in each year, determine what further sum out of the income of the foundation, not being less than 200*l.*, shall for the current year be applicable in like manner, and shall place all such sums at the disposal of the managers of the girls' school accordingly, and the same shall be applied by the managers of the girls' school for the purposes of the girls' school, with the like powers as to pensions and otherwise as herein provided with respect to the income applicable by the managers for the purposes of the boys' school.

Residue.

73. If after providing for the ordinary expenses of the schools, and for the payments herein-before directed or authorised, there shall be any residue of income belonging to the account of either school, the governing body of such school may employ it for the purposes of such school in improving the accommodation or convenience of the school buildings or premises, or generally in extending or otherwise in promoting the objects and efficiency of such school. Whatever shall not be so employed shall, on passing the yearly accounts, be treated as unapplied surplus, and shall be deposited in a bank for the account of the managers, to the intent that the same, so soon as it shall amount to a suitable sum, shall be invested in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the schools of the foundation in augmentation of its general endowment.

Unapplied surplus.Payments for Oxford and Cambridge local examinations.

74. The managers may pay not more than 30*l.* yearly towards the cost of procuring for the schools of the foundation the benefits of the local examinations of the University of Oxford or the University of Cambridge.

GENERAL.

Further endowments.

75. The managers may receive any additional donations or endowments for the general purposes of the schools. They may also receive donations or endowments for any special objects connected with the schools which shall not be inconsistent with or calculated to impede the due working of the provisions of this scheme. Any question arising upon this last point shall be referred to the Charity Commissioners for decision.

76. Within the limits prescribed by this scheme the managers, and the managers of the girls' school respectively, shall have full power from time to time to make regulations for the conduct of their business and for the management of the schools respectively, and such regulations shall be binding on all persons affected thereby.

77. Any question affecting the regularity or the validity of any proceeding under this scheme shall be determined conclusively by the Charity Commissioners upon such application made to them for the purpose as they think sufficient.

78. If any doubt or question arises among the governing body under this scheme as to the proper construction or application of any of the provisions of this scheme, such governing body shall apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon, which opinion and advice when given shall be binding on such governing body, and all persons claiming under the trust who shall be affected by the question so decided.

79. From the date of this scheme all jurisdiction of the ordinary relating to or arising from the licensing of any master under the foundation shall be abolished.

80. From the date of this scheme all rights and powers reserved to, belonging to, claimed by, or capable of being exercised by Her Majesty, as visitor of this foundation, and vested in her on the 2nd day of August 1869, shall be exercised only through and by the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales.

81. The Charity Commissioners may from time to time, in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction, frame schemes for the alteration of any portions of this scheme, provided that such schemes be not inconsistent with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, 1873, and 1874.

82. From and after the date of this scheme the foundation shall for every purpose, except as herein provided, be administered and governed wholly and exclusively in accordance with the provisions of the same scheme, notwithstanding any former or other scheme, Act of Parliament, charter or letters patent, statute, or instrument relating to the subject matter of this scheme, but without prejudice to any exemption of the endowment or any part of it under any Act of Parliament from any tax, assessment, or charge.

83. The managers shall cause this scheme to be printed, and a copy to be given to every manager, manager of the girls' school, master, assistant master, mistress, and teacher, upon their respective appointments, and copies may be sold at a reasonable price to all persons applying for the same.

84. The date of this scheme shall be the day on which Her Majesty by Order in Council declares her approbation of it.

ALDERSEY'S CHARITY.

By letters patent of Queen Elizabeth of the 2nd January 1594 reciting the intention of Thomas Aldersey to establish a free grammar school in Bunbury, Cheshire, and for maintaining a preacher and curate, and for the relief of the poor of Bunbury. It was ordained that there should be for ever there a free grammar school to be called "The Free Grammar School of Thomas Aldersey in "Bunbury," to consist of one schoolmaster, and one usher, and that there should be for ever a preacher, and a vicar or curate assisting the said preacher for the care of souls, the master and wardens and the preacher and schoolmaster to be governors by the name of "The governors of the possessions and revenues purchased and assigned by "Thomas Aldersey for the maintenance of the free grammar school, and preacher of the Divine Word, and "the relief of the poor in the parish of Bunbury."

By a lease of the 20th October 1593, Thos. Aldersey demised to John Aldersey for 500 years at 122*l.* a year, the rectory of Bunbury, the tithes within the parishes and hamlets of Bunbury, Alpeckham, Beston, Tarnton, Calvely, Wardell, Tirlleston, Haughton, Spurstall, Petfertou, and Bowesley in Cheshire.

By a subsequent lease of the 12th November, 1594, the said Thomas Aldersey demised to Ralph Egerton for 2,000 years at the yearly rental of 8*l.*, all his tithes within the township of Ridley, in the parish of Bunbury.

And by deed poll of the 28th February 1594, Thomas Aldersey granted to the governors of the school, the said rectory of Bunbury and the tithes, etc., adding thereto Ridley. To hold to the use of the said governors for the purposes of the said letters patent.

And by a further lease of the 31st March 1595, Thomas Aldersey demised to the governors for 2,000 years at the rent of a red rose, all that messuage called the Chantry House, in Bunbury, and parcels of land containing 7 rods in length and 4 rods in breadth and all that tenement late of Thomas Bunbury and the orchard meadow and all that parcel of land called Barncroft and the fourth part of Gorston's Croft to be for the better maintenance of the preacher, schoolmaster, and usher of Bunbury school that they might be provided with competent dwelling-houses, and for the better applying themselves to their several offices. Under these instruments the governors take the two reserved rents of 122*l.* and 8*l.* yearly, making 130*l.* a year, both of which arise out of the rectory and tithes comprised in the gift, and which are now vested in the representatives and descendant of the leasees.

The governors also take under the instrument of 1595:—

- 1.—A house, buildings, and lands 23*a.* 2*r.* 3*p.* (subject to a quit rent of 8*s.* yearly), occupied by the preacher.
- 2.—The school house and playground. The house has been repaired and improved by the aid of a recent grant from the Committee of Council on Education.
- 3.—The Chantry house, orchard, garden, and croft which was directed to be appropriated to the schoolmaster. The schoolmaster, Mr. Baily, appointed in 1861, has now a cottage and 3*a.* 0*r.* 20*p.* land. It does not appear whether this is the same house and land originally appropriated to the schoolmaster.

The present lettings of this property are set forth in Appendix F to this report.

The master and wardens appointed the preacher or chief incumbent of Bunbury and also the perpetual curate. The present preacher is the Rev. W. B. Garnett; who was appointed or presented in 1853, and the present perpetual curate is the Rev. Wm. Lowe, who was appointed or presented November 1861. On the occasion of the last appointment an estimate was made by the order of the master and wardens of the income of the vicar and curate. This estimate I append, marked G, by which it appears that the total income is about 169*l.* a year, and that there is a new vicarage built in 1847, with contributions chiefly from the governors of Queen Anne's bounty. It appears that no residence or land was originally assigned for the vicar, the statutes as to him saying, "that being sole and unmarried "he is to have one room in the preacher's house."

The entire payments out of the funds provided for the original foundation are:—

	£	s.	d.
Preacher - - - -	66	13	4
Vicar - - - - -	20	0	0
Schoolmaster - - -	20	0	0
Usher - - - - -	10	0	0
Poor of Bunbury - -	10	0	0
Poor of Haberdashers' Company	3	6	8

The Haberdashers' Company receive annually from Mr. Aldersey 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, deducting 15*s.* 6*d.* for land tax, and leaving 2*l.* 11*s.* 2*d.*, which is given by the master and wardens to the poor of the Company together with 4*l.* 8*s.* 10*d.* supposed to be the dividend on 148*l.* 1*s.* 1*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. annuities represented as standing in their corporate name.

It appears to have been the habit of the Company to distribute 7*l.* a year, in sums of 20*s.* each, to seven poor persons of the Company, and this 7*l.* they ostensibly derive from the 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, part of the Bunbury tithe rentcharge, and the dividends of a nominal sum of 148*l.* 1*s.* 1*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. consols, being part of a larger sum of stock standing in the name of the Company. The sum of 7*l.* and 1*l.* to the clerk should, however, be the produce of a separate investment, and not mixed up with the 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* It appeared primd facie that the annual payments for the poor of the Company from this gift had in fact fallen short of the obligation of the Company by the amount of the 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* a year brought in aid of the attributed dividends. The Commissioners of Inquiry do not seem to have been aware of the gift of 300*l.*; they allude to the 7*l.* a year being made up of the 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, and other moneys. Upon an examination of the instruments, it appeared, however, that the 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* is in fact given to the Company, and not to the poor of the Company, as is stated in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 10, p. 194). That Report, in describing the statutes made by the founder, concludes (line 9 from the bottom), "and "3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* among the poor of the Haberdashers' Company." On referring to the statutes, copies of which are preserved in the books of the Company, it appears that the same (lt. 20), after providing for the application of the 122*l.*, and 8*l.* for the preacher, curate, usher, schoolmaster, and poor people, concludes:—"The remainder thereof, "being 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* yearly, to be paid to the master and "wardens of the Haberdashers' Company for the time "being to the use of the said Company."

Then follows:—

"Item:—It is ordained by the said T. Aldersey that the aforesaid 300*l.* given by him to the Company shall be either bestowed in lands to the use of the Company, or otherwise; the same 300*l.* to be from time to time employed for the benefit of the brethren of the Company and at their discretion. And of the profit thereby arising, or by the revenues of such lands as shall be purchased, that the said master and wardens in the month of November shall give and dispose as follows:—Unto seven poor men of the Company, or unto poor widows of deceased brethren, 20*s.* a piece, and the other 20*s.* to the clerk of the Company for his pains."

The question upon this is, whether the Company ought not actually to invest 300*l.* and apply the interest or dividends, so far as it will go, in payment of 20*s.* a year to as many poor men of the Company as it will extend to pay, or divide the income equally amongst seven; or whether, as the Company insist, it is sufficient for them to pay 20*s.* each to seven poor men; such being the limit of their liability. The question is one of little importance. In the future accounts the supposititious sum of 148*l.* 1*s.* 1*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. consols, will be expunged, and the Company propose to insert in its place a nominal investment of enough to produce 7*l.* a year.

The master and wardens have recently abolished or suspended the office of usher, and appointed Mr. Baily, the master of the school, with the joint salary of master and usher, he providing, at his own expense, a proper qualified teacher. It would appear that a portion of the land apportioned to the master and usher is now let, and the income carried into the school accounts, and forms a portion of the school income. These changes have been gradual since 1855. It had been recommended to them in October 1855 to apply for a grant from the Committee of Council, and submit the school to the Government inspector, a course, however, of which they did not then approve. Later, in December 1855, the master and wardens accepted the recommendation of Mr. Garnett to appoint an usher, who was a certificated master, and at the same time sanctioned a rule that weekly and quarterly payments should be taken from boys of a better class, the amount to be left to the preacher. In July 1856, Mr. Garnett, the preacher, as visitor of the school, reported that the school, which in February 1856 contained only 36 pupils, had increased in June of the same year to 95, of whom about 12 were sons of farmers, tradesmen, and a professional man paying the full quarterly charge of 10*s.*, the rest being of the labouring class paying 2*d.* a week, and a few free boys. In September 1856 the court overcame its reluctance to admit the interference of the Council and to apply for a grant, which, to the amount of 50*l.*, together with a small capitation grant, was subsequently obtained. The school is an example of the advantage of introducing reasonable capitation charges into a free school.

The state of the school subsequently in 1856, and its improvement, and the income or value of the vicarage, will appear from the documents appended hereto, viz. :—

To the MASTER, WARDENS, &c., of the HABERDASHERS' COMPANY.

Bunbury Rectory,
October 19th, 1861.

GENTLEMEN,

I beg respectfully to present my report upon this school up to the present time, and the accounts of the school up to 1st January 1861. I could not finish the latter sooner, as I waited for the payments of the late Rev. J. Martin, which I did not receive, as he was in difficulties, so that the amount due from him is not entered.

The school is in a most flourishing condition, and I am sure the court will read with pleasure the statement of its finances, and the tables numbered I. and II. sent herewith, showing the grades of the parents who send boys to the school, and also the attendance and age of the boys.

I may also call the attention of the court to the reports of H.M.'s inspectors for five years, commencing with 1856, where it is called a "degenerate grammar school," and ending with that for 1860, our last inspection, where it is styled this "excellent school." I should feel gratified if the court will permit these reports to be read before them, and I feel sure they will then take into favourable consideration my suggestion that the present master, who now only holds the appointment of usher (though he has had the entire work of the school, the late head master giving up his money stipend and retaining a house and land in accordance with a permission from the court when the school came under my management), that the present usher, Mr. Wm. Bailey, be appointed head master, and that the office of usher be not filled up, that office being now most efficiently filled by two pupil teachers paid by Government, and two monitors paid out of the school funds. The school was intended by the founder to be a free school, but the original endowment being quite inadequate, your Worshipful Company sanctioned my making a scale of payments from the boys. The highest sum is 10s. a quarter, the lowest 2d. a week. Every boy is admitted by myself, and I always tell the poorer people that if they really cannot afford to pay, that their children shall be taught free, and I am proud to say that I have not a single boy who avails himself of the privilege. All books, except copy books, are provided by the school, though I encourage as much as possible the pupils to purchase books, which, being their own, they take care of and have for study when they leave school. By the means that I have adopted, added to voluntary subscriptions from three of the principal landowners, I am enabled to give the master a salary of 110l., to provide pupil teachers, defray all expenses, and have a balance in the bank of 71l. 15s. 7½d. I may also mention that we have a drawing master from the Chester School of Art, who gives a lesson each week of one hour's duration; he is paid by voluntary contribution from some of the boys themselves, but the whole school gets the advantage; and I may mention, as a striking instance of the attention the lads pay to their work, that out of 26 boys who competed for prizes last year, given by the Government School of Science and Art, 24 were successful.

If the new minute of the Privy Council comes into operation, the master, Mr. Bailey, will lose 33l. per annum, his guaranteed augmentation by the Government. I shall then have to consider whether I can make this sum up to him out of the funds of the school, and I trust that I may be able to retain him, for his conduct of the school has been worthy of the highest praise.

I trust that the court will approve of what I have done as visitor of this school, and I have great pleasure in again being able to make a favourable report.

I remain, &c.

W. B. GARNETT,
Preacher of Bunbury and Visitor of the Aldersey School.

B.

Bunbury Rectory, Tarporley,
December 1st, 1862.

SIR,

IN reply to your letter, I beg to furnish you with the following statement, and shall be glad to afford more detailed information if necessary.

Thos. Aldersey, haberdasher, of London, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, by letters patent made the following arrangements with regard to the church and schools in Bunbury.

It was ordained that there should be "one preacher of God's word," with a salary of 100 marks, a house, and about 28 acres of land.

"One vicar or curate assistant to the same," with a salary of 20l., and if not objected to by the preacher, a lodging in the preacher's house.

One schoolmaster, who was to have for his salary 20l. and the chauntry house.

And one usher, who was to have 10l. and a house.

These money payments are now paid by Thos. Aldersey, Esq., of Aldersey, high sheriff of the county, to those holding the respective offices. Mr. Aldersey is lessee for 500 years.

A sum of ten pounds to poor of the parish, at discretion of preacher, schoolmaster, and wardens -	10	0	0

The full value of the tithes was at that time 127l., which the founder distributed amongst the officers as stated above. The balance of 1l., or thereabouts, he gave to the poor of the Haberdashers' Company.

The tithes now are worth some 1,000l. a year, but the payments of those who do the work, alas, continues as in the time of Elizabeth.

However, the payments are all duly made. The ten pounds to the poor of the parish has been, I believe, added to other parish monies, and distributed on St. Thomas' Day; but I have written to the agent to pay it to me and the master, so that we may be able to give an accurate account of its distribution according to the founder's direction "that it be distributed by the preacher, schoolmaster, &c."

For an account of the houses and land under the endowment, see Note (A.) F.

I come now more especially to the grammar school, which when I came to Bunbury I found in a useless condition, see Note B., a. b., where it is described by Her Majesty's Inspector, Rev. J. P. Norris, as "a degenerate grammar school of very little use indeed." I obtained permission from the Haberdashers' Company to re-organise the school, I being, by virtue of my office of preacher, the visitor of the school.

I prepared a scheme, which I submitted to the parishioners and to the Haberdashers' Company, which is stated in Note C.

The school was intended by the founder to be free, but owing to the poverty of the endowment it was quite impossible to obtain masters for the stipends allotted. It became necessary then to organise a scale of payments which was proposed to and approved by a parish. Indeed for years, when the Rev. Mr. Martin was head master 1l. 1s. a year was charged.

I, accordingly, taking into consideration the amount of the endowments, endeavoured so to arrange the scale of payments, that all in the parish might receive a share of the benefit. In this, I think I have been most successful; though had I again to make the arrangement, I should raise the payments of the better classes of the people to one guinea.

At this rate the school would be actually self supporting. At present, we receive 30*l.* per annum from voluntary contributions, and the voluntary payments are requisite in order that we may obtain Government grants.

As to the efficiency of the school, I will merely refer you to the seven reports, Note B., of Her Majesty's Inspectors for the seven years during which the school has existed in its improved form. But when I say that it furnishes an excellent education to the children of the farmers and professional men, including my own (for I have three sons there), and at the same time affords the same advantages to the boys of the poorest person in the parish, I think that its present state will be appreciated.

I would observe further, in reference to the payments of the pupils, that I myself admit each applicant, and in doing so I ask every poor person whether they can afford to pay the sum charged (2*d.* a week), at the same time telling them that if they can honestly state that they cannot really pay that sum we will take their children free. I am pleased to say that we have not, at present, one free boy on the books.

I may also state, in confirmation of the reports of Her Majesty's Inspectors, and of myself, that we this week received an application from a Commission under the French Government to afford them statistics of the working of this school.

You make inquiry as to a sum of 18*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.* under the head of endowment. When I re-organised the school, I found that the then head master, the Reverend John Martin, late vicar, held his office of master as a sinecure, paying to the usher his share of the endowment paid by Mr. Aldersey, and retaining in his own hands the house and land attached to the head master's post.

This arrangement I did not alter. Mr. Martin continued to pay to the funds of the school the 20*l.* (less income tax, which I suppose accounts for the 18*l.* 14*s.* 2*d.*) and to retain the premises.

At his death, in September 1861, I recommended the Haberdashers' Company to unite the two offices of head master and usher, which they decided to do during their pleasure. But that the school may not suffer from want of an usher, we have two pupil teachers and two paid monitors, so more than supplying his place.

Out of the endowment and general funds, I pay Mr. Bailey, the head master, salary 100*l.*, in lieu of house 10*l.*, head master's stipend 20*l.* = 130*l.* The remainder is spent on the general expenses of the school, and the balance reserved for a fund for rebuilding it when it shall have arrived at a sum sufficient to warrant our making the attempt.

In addition to the reports of Her Majesty's Inspectors on the condition of the school, I append also their endorsements of the master's certificate.

I also send a list from which you will at once see the numbers out of each rank attending the school, and their respective payments; also the average attendance of those who pay the highest fees, and also of those paying the lowest.

I trust that this statement may be satisfactory; if it is not sufficiently complete I shall be happy to supply any omissions. If the Charity Commissioners come to any decision upon the matter, I would suggest that there should be a provision by which the scale of fees might be raised as circumstances required.

The alteration in the Educational Code, which is about to come into operation may injuriously affect our means.

I believe that the school now is fulfilling to the utmost the intention of the founder.

Before I conclude, I will draw your attention to the fact that in the statutes allusion is made to the education of "women children" in the school. For this purpose we have a separate national school for girls and young boys, at which about 100 children are taught.

In the hopes that what has been done will meet with approbation.

I remain,
Yours faithfully,
W. B. GARNETT.

I see there is an enquiry to be carried on at Haberdashers' Hall, on Saturday next. May I ask that this statement may be given to the Commissioner for his perusal there.

Note C.

REPORTS ON THE ALDERSEY GRAMMAR SCHOOL by HER MAJESTY'S INSPECTORS.

Rev. J. P. Norris, 22nd November 1855.

Schoolroom, a spacious room; floor, tiled. Playground unenclosed. Residence, two cottages belonging to trust. Desks loose, of a clumsy heavy form, placed against the wall. The clergyman is the master, the school being conducted by his usher. It is about to be re-organised as soon as the consent of the Haberdashers' Company shall have been obtained. It is proposed to make it a model school for farmers' and labourers' children combined.

P.S. 1856.—This has been done very successfully. The school is now under a certificated master.

b.

Rev. J. P. Norris, 25th November 1856.

Last year I visited this school under the old regime, a degenerate grammar school of very little use indeed. This year I find it re-organised, under a most promising certificated master, trained at Welshpool and Battersea (Mr. Bailey), who is carrying it on after the most approved methods as a model school for farmers' children, combined with those of labourers. He is prepared to teach Latin to any whose parents may desire it. The school appears to be already very popular, and the results are strikingly good, considering the short time the master has been here.

Rev. J. P. Norris, 11th November 1857.

My examination of this school was most satisfactory. Instead of the decrepit grammar school of former years, the parish has now a prosperous and efficient school of elementary education, in the higher classes of which the farmers' sons are receiving an excellent commercial training. The first class not having been grounded by Mr. Bailey, are unequally advanced in some respects, but they have caught the hearty spirit with which their master does his work, and are making good progress. The singing and drill are excellent. I wish the building was more worthy of the school.

Rev. J. P. Norris, 4th November 1858.

This school has passed an excellent examination. It is rapidly winning for itself a place among the best schools of my district. Twenty of the boys are farmers' sons, paying 10*s.* a quarter, and twenty of them were over 14 years of age. The sum arising from pence last year was 80*l.* Thus it may be instanced as a very successful as the King's Somborne type of school. It is highly to be desired that the girls' school in the same village would be similarly re-organised.

Rev. S. J. G. Fraser, 20th October 1859.

The admirable order of this school is highly creditable to Mr. Bailey's skill and power of command. The children render a cheerful and willing obedience, and show great interest in the subjects of instruction. Mr. Bailey has succeeded in obtaining a high level of attainments, and in inducing habits of thoughtfulness and industry. I was well pleased with the results of my examination, especially with the command of thought and expression shown by the first class.

Rev. J. P. Norris, 7th November 1860.

This excellent school is going on most satisfactorily. I only wish the building were more worthy of the teacher and his work. The first class consists chiefly of farmers' and tradesmen's sons. They learn Latin or algebra and book-keeping, besides the usual subjects. Both this class and the second passed a very good examination in religious knowledge, English grammar, and arithmetic. The order and discipline are excellent. Mr. Bailey conducts the school with energy and ability. That the parents appreciate his work is shown by the fact that the school fees last year reached the sum of 97*l.*

More than half the school are labourers' children, paying twopence a week and under.

Rev. S. J. G. Fraser, 4th December 1861.

This school is still as cleverly conducted as ever, and the results are most satisfactory. The attainments are of a high average, and the boys use their knowledge with considerable facility and intelligence. The order is very good. The average attendance is 88 per cent. of the number who have attended, and the number of boys who have attended at least 176 days is 68. These good results are very creditable to the school.

REPORTS ON MR. BAILEY'S CERTIFICATE.

N.B.—A schoolmaster on leaving the training college is classed, but does not receive his parchment certificate until he has been two years in charge of a school. Mr. Bailey, at the end of two years, received the highest certificate which is granted to any teacher until he has been seven years principal teacher of a school, viz., First Division of Class II. The following was the report on Mr. Bailey by the Rev. J. P. Norris, Her Majesty's Inspector of Schools :—"Mr. Bailey has shown already that he possesses more than ordinary qualifications for the work of a teacher."

Report by Rev. J. P. Norris, 4th November 1858.

"Mr. Bailey's school is steadily advancing. He has interested his boys in their work, and given them habits of application."

Report by Rev. S. J. G. Fraser, 20th October 1859.

"The instruction is soundly given, and the attainments of the scholars are well advanced. The general tone of the school is good, and the order excellent."

Report by Rev. J. P. Norris, 7th November 1860.

"The school has passed an excellent examination throughout, and the general order is most satisfactory."

Report by Rev. S. J. G. F e , 4th December 1861.

"The attainments of the boys are of a high average, and the general order excellent."

Report by Rev. A. T. Bonner, 27th November 1862.

"The condition is excellen in respect of both order and attainments, and reflects much credit on Mr. Bailey's ability and industry."

BUNBURY ALDERSEY GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

This school will open on Monday, the 4th of February, under the superintendence of Mr. W. Bailey, certificated master, of Battersea Training College, London.

The school was intended by the founder to afford a free education for the children of the parish and neighbourhood, but the salary arising from the old endowment being insufficient to secure the services of a competent master, it was agreed at a public meeting of the parishioners that payments should be received from the children attending the school.

The visitor, the Rev. W. B. Garnett, has received permission from the governors, the Haberdashers' Company, to re-organise the school in such a manner as to meet the requirements of the present time, provided the master selected bears a Certificate of Merit. It has, therefore, been his object to place the school in such a position as to afford the best possible education at a reasonable charge.

The course of instruction will embrace the following subjects:—Scripture, reading, writing, grammar, history, geography, Latin, music, agricultural chemistry, book-keeping, arithmetic, mensuration, land-surveying, algebra, mechanics, and geometry.

The visitor confidently hopes from the position held by Mr. Bailey on the list of Queen's Scholars, from his Certificate of Merit (1st Class) in his first year, and from the high testimonials he has received of him, that he will be able to impart instruction in the foregoing subjects, so as to give satisfaction to the parishioners.

School hours will be from 9 o'clock till 12 in the morning, and from 2 o'clock till 5 in the afternoon. In the winter months the school in the afternoon will open at half-past 1 o'clock, the time of leaving being at the discretion of the master.

Every Saturday will be a whole holiday.

Terms of Admission.

1. A few boys, the children of poor widows, or of parents whose circumstances render them quite unable to pay the the lowest fee, will be admitted free at the discretion of the visitor; and it is earnestly requested that none who can afford to pay will apply for a free admission.
2. Children of labourers will be admitted at 2d. a week.
3. Children of farmers renting less than 40 acres of land and of small tradesmen, will be received upon payment of six shillings a quarter.
4. Children of farmers and tradesmen, not included in No. 3, will be admitted at ten shillings a quarter.

In cases where two or more children of the same family attend the school, the first only will be charged the full price, every additional child being admitted at half-price.

All payments must be made in advance; the quarterly payments at the commencement of each quarter, and the weekly payments on each Monday.

The above charges include slates, pencils, pens, all books (except writing books), &c.

It is hoped that these charges will meet the approbation of the parishioners; but should any cases present themselves to which the foregoing rates do not strictly apply, the visitor will be happy to make a special arrangement.

1. All scholars must be kept clean and tidy, and attend school with regularity. It is particularly requested, should any child through sickness or any urgent cause be unable to attend the school, that notice to that effect be given to the master, either by a note from the parent, or a message by a grown-up person. Absence without leave from the master, cannot on any account be permitted.
2. The scholars must attend regularly, on Sundays, the place of worship selected by their parents.
3. Those parents who wish their children to be admitted to the school are requested to call at the Rectory, on any morning between the hours of nine and ten.

VICARAGE OR CURACY OF BUNBURY, NEAR TARPORLEY, CHESHIRE.

The vicar or curate of the parish of Bunbury is appointed by the Worshipful Company of Haberdashers, under a charter granted by Queen Elizabeth on the request of Thomas Aldersey, Esq., by which it is ordained that there shall be for ever appointed "a preacher of the Divine word, "and also a vicar or curate to the same preacher, assistant, "for the observation of the cure of souls and divine "ministration within the parish."

The present preacher is the Rev. W. B. Garnett. The estimated annual value of the vicarage or curacy is as follows :

Founder's endowment	20	0	0
Rentcharge on land	14	0	0
Land, now let for	24	0	0
Dividends on 942l. 10s. 1d., Reduced 3l. per Cent. Annuities, from Queen Anne's Bounty	28	5	6
Fees, about	23	0	0
	109	5	6
Estimated value of house, garden, and paddock	60	0	0
Total estimated gross income	£169	5	6

The vicarage house is a good one. It was built in 1847. There is a district church and a chapel within the parish, and the care of other portions of the parish is also provided for, whereby the population under the charge of the vicar or curate numbers about 1,800 only, but it is widely scattered.

Under the charter, the vicar is removable by the Haberdashers' Company for absence from his duties for 30 days in the year, and for other misconduct, also for undertaking any other charge.

Applications from candidates, with original testimonials, must be sent in, addressed to the clerk, on or before Monday, the 11th of November instant.

JNO. CURTIS, Clerk.

Rev. W. Lowe.

* These have arisen from investments made by the Governors of Queen Anne's Bounty, the land being annexed by deed to the vicarage.

ARNOLD'S CHARITY.

Thomas Arnold, prior to 1669, gave to the Company a rentcharge of 26*l.* out of lands at Islington for them to distribute to 20 poor men at St. Katherine's tide, for ever, as Sir Nicholas Rainton directed by his will. The charge is payable out of the lands mentioned in the decree of the court referred to by the Commissioners of Inquiry, comprising the "Angel" Inn at Islington. It is paid by Messrs. Child, the bankers, on account of Mr. George Thornhill, or his representatives. The whole sum of 26*l.* is now paid without deduction of land tax, and is distributed in donations of 1*l.* 6*s.* to 20 poor persons of the Company, in the month of October of every year.*

ASKE'S HOSPITAL.

Robert Aske, by will of the 18th January 1688, gave to the Haberdashers' Company 20,000*l.* to be laid out in the purchase of land within one mile of London, to build an almshouse for 20 poor single men free of the Company, and to buy so much land as thereout might be paid to each poor man 20*l.* per annum; and the remainder of the money which should not be disbursed at the finishing of the houses and the purchase of the said land, was to be laid out in land for the maintenance of so many poor boys as the remainder of the said money would produce at 20*l.* each for meat, drink, clothing, and schooling. And the testator gave the residue of his estate to the Company for the maintenance of the said charity.

And by a codicil of the 20th January 1688, the testator appointed the master wardens and assistants of the Company to be governors of the said hospital, and directed that the 20 poor boys should be freemen's sons of the Company, and if it happened thereafter that any of the revenues should fall short the same should be deducted out of the income for the poor boys.

By an Act of Parliament passed the 20th December 1690, the master and wardens of the Company were made a corporate body by the style of "Governors of the possessions and revenues of the hospital at Hoxton, of the foundation of Robert Aske."

By the evidence taken before the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 2, p. 127, and Appendix, p. 286), it was represented that the governors under the will and under certain ancillary bequests, became possessed of the sum of 31,505*l.* 1*s.*, of which nearly 4,000*l.* was absorbed by legacies, debts, and charges, and that out of the residue there was laid out—

	£	s.	d.

In the purchase of land at Hoxton, in the parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch	2,000	0	0
In the purchase of the Kent estates	13,211	6	0

It is difficult to reconcile this account with the tables then laid before the Commissioners, but it would be vain at this distance of time to re-open the inquiry.

With reference to the hospital and the estates, and their present condition, it may be stated, broadly, that the hospital including the chapel, school, officers' residences, and almshouses have been rebuilt, since the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, at an expense which would seem not to fall greatly short of 18,000*l.* that the Hoxton estate has been entirely let on building leases (except the portion occupied by the hospital), and that the property is now covered with upwards of 500 houses, the leases of many of which are about to expire, and all of which will have fallen into hand in little more than 20 years from this time, that the Kentish estates consist of somewhat less than 2,000 acres of which nearly one-fourth is leasehold of the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury, and the lease will expire in about 13 years, the Chapter having declined to accept a fine for renewal as heretofore, and the governors of the charity having resolved not to adopt the alternative of enfranchisement, but to let the lease run out.

	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.
1. Butterland farm in the parish of Kings North, a good farm house and new barn built in 1855 at a cost of 640 l. , and other farm buildings, and the old farm-

In the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 2, Appendix, p. 289) the farm is stated to be 448*a.* 2*r.* 34*p.* In 1849; 41*a.* 3*r.* 5*p.* of land adjoining was purchased at the price of 2,150*l.* out of the purchase money for 16*a.* 3*r.* 11*p.* taken by the Hastings and Ashford Railway Company (London and South Eastern) for 2,200*l.*

2. Park Farm in the parish of Kings North, a farmhouse and buildings and 294*a.* 1*r.* 14*p.* of land, let to Wm. Hart for 21 years from Michaelmas 1850
3. Lime Kiln Farm in the same parish, and a farmhouse and farm buildings and 90*a.* 2*r.* 22*p.* of land, let to Horace Wills for 12 years from Michaelmas 1856
4. Singleton Farm in the parish of Great Chart, and a good farmhouse with a moat and buildings and 246*a.* 1*r.* 16*p.* of land, let to Clarke Wills for 14 years from Michaelmas 1854
5. Beveden Farm in the same parish, a new house and buildings and cottages made of the old farmhouse and a brick granary and 143*a.* 1*r.* 35*p.* land let to Henry Buss for 21 years from Michaelmas 1844
6. The woods in the parishes of Kings North, Great Chart, and Buckinge, 182*a.* 2*r.* 5*p.*, average receipts for timber and underwood for 14 years

The leasehold property held under the Dean and Chapter of Canterbury, of which the last renewal was obtained in Michaelmas 1854 at a fine of 968*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*, is as follows:—

7. Chart Court Lodge and Court Reed Farm in the parish of Great Chart. The Old Manor House and the Court Reed Farmhouse and buildings and 373*a.* 2*r.* 14*p.* of land, let to Henry Andrews for 14 years from Michaelmas 1855
8. Worting Mill in the same parish, a water corn mill and dwelling house and farm buildings and 38*a.* 0*r.* 24*p.* of land, let to Henry Andrews for 14 years from Michaelmas 1848
9. Prior's Mead in the same parish, a meadow containing 1*a.* 3*r.* 1*p.*, let to the Dean of Norwich, the Rector of Great Chart, tenant from year to year

* THOMAS ARNOLD'S CHARITY.

By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners, dated the 21st December 1877, the redemption and extin-guishment of the above rentcharge was effected in consideration of the transfer previously made into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 866*l.* 19*s.* 4*d.* Consolidated 3*l.* per cent. annuities.

10. Rowfrith and Hele Wood containing 27a. 2r. 33p. wood land. The Company having the underwood but not the timber. The underwood is cut about every 12 years, and used chiefly for hop poles. This is included in the average of the produce of the woods.

2,149 16 5

The total acreage of the Kent estate, according to the latest leases and reports is, freehold land, including the woods, 1,542a. Or. 11p., and of the leasehold, including the woods, 441a. Or. 12p., making together 1,983a. Or. 23p. The property includes the manor of King's North, but there are no manorial rights or receipts.

In the year 1861 the expenses of draining on the four farms, exclusive of the 15l. allowed to the tenant of Butterland, was 92l. 8s. 3d.
In the same year, the cost of a new cart shed at Norton Mill was 43l. 4s. 6d., and other repairs 3l. 3s. 11d., which should of course be considered as annual charges (expenses on other estates in 1861, 18l.) say yearly	140	0	0

It thus appears that the wood lands, considerable as is the quantity of land which they comprise, really produce to the charity no more than about 10l. a year.

The surveyor receives a commission, say annually of 5l. per cent. on the amount of rents and the produce of the underwood. The present surveyor is Mr. Dickson, he surveys and superintends the farms, and reports to the Company twice every year, and he also makes occasional visits as circumstances require 66 1 7

£535 2 0

Taking, therefore, the gross produce of the Kent estate to be 2,149l., and outgoings specially chargeable on that estate to be 535l. the net income of the Kentish property under the management of the Company would be 1,614l.

HOXTON ESTATE.

The Hoxton estate is described in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, Appendix (p. 287), as about 21 acres of land. It is situated within the parish of St. Leonard's, Shoreditch, and it is now entirely covered with buildings. The property is bounded on the north by Beveden Street, and Aske Terrace, and Pimlico Walk; on the west by a road called East Road, which leads to the City Road; on the south by property behind or lying south of Park Street, belonging to , by a section of Great Chart Street and property abutting at the back of Great Chart Street and the (closed) burial ground of the Company, thence eastward by a line drawn towards the north along Pittfield Street and Haberdashers' Walk, and again on the south by property behind and abutting at the back of Ashford Street, and thence again eastward by Fountain's Soap Manufactory, and again southward by property abutting at the back of East Street, and again eastward to a line drawn irregularly from a point about 20 ft. from High Street, Hoxton, to a place called Pound's Buildings, and thence joining the northern boundary in Pimlico Walk near the Britannia Theatre.

The chapel, schoolhouse, and houses for the chaplain, schoolmaster, and matron, with the open ground in the front and the rear occupying a space of about 230ft. frontage in Haberdashers' Walk, and about 283ft. in depth. The present buildings do not stand exactly on the site of the former buildings. The almshouse and other buildings originally formed one long line covering a space which now forms the east end of Buttesland Street, and a part of the north-east corner of the buildings from that Street. The old buildings were pulled down in 1822, and the new buildings were completed in 1827. The old materials were sold for 3,185l.

The estimated expense of repairing the building, was to have been 6,860l., and the removal of the old buildings was supposed to afford a better opportunity of laying out the estate.

The Commissioners of Inquiry report that the Company had accumulated a fund of 4,500l. to meet repairs and fines (Vol. 2, p. 129).

The entire cost of the new buildings including sewers, extra walls, architect, etc., is stated to have been 15,699l.—thus considerably exceeding the estimate. The expense was met by a sale of the accumulated consols then belonging to the charity which had increased to—

and - 688
making - 7,188 3 per cent. consols.

These sums of stock were sold and produced 6,454l. 14s. 6d. cash.

The governors borrowed of the Company at various times sums of stock, on account of the charity, making together 12,669l. 15s. 5d. 3 per cent. consols, which is stated to have produced 10,482l. 6s. 3d. cash, and adding that sum to the 6,454l. 14s. 6d. cash, and the fund arising from the sale of the materials, the total expenditure would seem to be about 20,000l., the accuracy of which at this distance of time it is not easy to test.

The actual cost of the new hospital and works connected with it, as it appears in the account books was :—

Extra works, etc.	317	0	0
Boundary walls to the back of the hospital and burial ground	814	0	0
Sewer in front	356	0	0
Levelling and laying out ground, clerk of the works, etc.	630	0	0
Fittings up and furniture, clock and statue	2,894	0	0

The sum produced by the stock, which is not thus accounted for went into the general balance.

It must be stated that the governors undertook the rebuilding and laying out of the land and charging the charity estate, upon their own authority, without any application to the Court of Chancery or other sanction.

The Hoxton estate was let upon building leases, for various terms varying from about 50 to 65 years, under which 529 houses were built; whereon an aggregate ground rental was reserved of 1,432l. 11s.

I subjoin a table of the leases, and of the holdings under them, as they lately appeared upon an account forwarded to this office

The Haberdashers' Company have lately issued advertisements for tender with a view to re-letting the property, the leases of which are near the time of their expiration.

The proposals for letting are for terms of 21 years. I append a printed copy of these proposals.

The income of the Hoxton estate at present is, 1,450*l*. 17*s*.

This is somewhat more than the reserved rental, owing to the Company having entered upon one of the tenements, in default of performance of the covenants by the lessee, and the same is now let at the rack-rent.

The outgoings on the Hoxton estate are scarcely separable from the general expenses of the hospital, except perhaps the salary of Mr. W. Snooke, the surveyor, whose business is to superintend the Hoxton estate, 50*l*.

As the times of the expiration of the leases approach, the surveyor makes a special survey of the premises with a view to dilapidation. A survey of the property now about to be re-let was made in 1849 when a charge of 21*l*. was allowed.

If this be considered as a special charge of management on the Hoxton property, it reduces the net-rent to 1,400*l*.

The net produce from the two great sources of the charity income is, therefore, as follows :—

Kent estate (as above stated) - - -	1,614
Hoxton estate (as above stated) - - -	1,400
	£3,014

But this is subject to an incumbrance in respect of the stock borrowed from the Company by the governors for the rebuilding the hospital. Of this there was repaid at different times previously to 1844, 2,753*l*. 3*s*. 3*d*., 3 per cent. stock, leaving in that year 9,916*l*. 12*s*. 2*d*., 3 per cent. stock, due to the Company.

From 1844 to 1861 nothing was paid in reduction of this debt.

In 1861 the governors repaid a sum of 1,169*l*. 15*s*. 5*d*., 3 per cent. stock, which was purchased with 1,077*l*. 13*s*. 1*d*. cash, leaving a debt of 8,746*l*. 16*s*. 9*d*., 3 per cent. consols.

The interest payable upon this remaining debt is, therefore, 262*l*. a year, or thereabouts, which being deducted from the clear income of 3,014*l*., leaves 2,752*l*. applicable to the purposes of the endowment.

This sum which would appear to be the clear income of the charity, after full allowance for every charge on the property is, however, subject to further deduction before it becomes applicable to charitable purposes, in respect of what are called the general expenses.

These are the salaries of—

Mr. Curtis (clerk) - - -	105
Mr. Fisk, accountant - - -	55
Mr. Hooper, beadle - - -	30
	£190

The available income is, therefore, further reduced to the sum of 2,562*l*.

The average disbursements of the charity for nine years (1853–1861), exclusive of the general expenses above, viz., clerk, accountant, and beadle, are stated to have been 2,104*l*. a year.

An average of the total income of the estate for 14 years, from 1848 to 1861 inclusive, is stated to be 3,512*l*., and the total expenditure on all accounts, including interest for the same period was 3,427*l*.

A detailed account of the present disbursements on the existing charitable establishments will afford a more accurate representation of the proportion of the general income actually applied to charitable purposes.

THE SCHOOL.

Up to 1853, the chaplain the Rev. John L. Turner, received 800*l*. a year for the board and education of 20 boys, with an additional allowance of 54*l*. 5*s*. 6*d*. for nurses, &c. In the year 1852, Mr. Turner was not re-elected, and the Company gave him a retiring pension 50*l*. a year, an application was made to the Commissioners for their sanction, but no decision was come to, and the Company has still continued to pay the pension.

The chaplain has since that time been paid a distinct salary, and the maintenance of the boys has been placed under the direction of a matron.

The condition of the endowment of the Charity may in round numbers be thus summed up:—

Gross Income .—		£
Kent - - - -	-	2,150
Middlesex - - - -	-	1,450
		£3,600
Disbursements .—		£
Kent - - - -	536
Middlesex - - - -	50
	586
Interest of mortgage debt - -	262
Governors' general expenses -	190
	1,038
	£2,562
Board, lodging, and education of 20 boys - - - -	912
Pensions and allowances to aged men, varying in number from 13 to 20 - -	628
	1,540
Chaplain, chapel clerk, and surgeon - - - -	191
Repairs, insurances, &c. -	305
	496
	2,036
Annual surplus income about -	£526

The future variations in this surplus, supposing the establishments to continue as they are, will be principally caused, first, by the increase of the Middlesex rental, by the proximate falling in of the leases, and secondly, by the diminution of the Kentish rental, about 13 years hence by the termination of the Chapter leases; to which may be added the payment of the mortgage debt by the application of the existing surplus.

The hospital consists of 20 houses, each containing a sitting-room and wash-house on the ground floor, and a bed-room over, all of which have a separate outer-door; covered portico extending the length of the building on each side. The almsmen are limited to single men or widowers, and above 50 years of age, freemen of the Company. At the present time, only 13 houses are occupied, a sufficient number of qualified applicants not being found. The chapel forms the centre building at the bottom of the quadrangle, and the chaplain's house and the schoolmaster's are on each side of the chapel. The matron's house is between the chaplain's and the school, and over the committee room. The schoolroom consists of a single room, under the boys' dormitory, having access from the master's house, one part of the lower floor of which latter house forms the boys' dining-room.

The chaplain is a married man, but the schoolmaster is unmarried. The matron is a widow.

The boys are appointed by the court of assistants as a body. The applications are referred to the Charities Committee, who return to the court three names for one vacancy, four names to two vacancies, and so on, selecting always two names beyond the number of vacancies. I do not find any rule adopted as a principle of selection, but generally speaking, preference is given to liverymen's sons over those of freemen. The court are generally, but not universally, bound themselves by the decision of the Committee having before it the number of votes for each candidate. The Committee of Charities consists of master and wardens (5), and about 12 more. They are elected by the court of assistants for two years, half going out every year, but the election generally proceeds by rotation. The boys are admitted between 8 and 10, and they leave the school at the age of 15. No record is taken of the subsequent career of the boys, but I am informed that the present master and two members of the court were brought up in the school.

KING'S GIFT.

Joseph King, by will of the 20th May 1717, gave to the hospital 500l. as an encouragement to taking boys into the hospital. It is probable that this sum forms part of the stock mentioned in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (see p. 225), and before referred to.

SMITH'S GIFT.

Sir John Smith, by will of the 15th January 1733, gave 100l. to the hospital. This formed part, as it would appear, of the stock mentioned before, which existed at the time of the last inquiry.

TURGIS' GIFT.

Mrs. Mary Turgis, by will of the 12th September 1704, gave 50*l.* for the poor of the hospital. This forms part of the general funds of the charity.

POPE'S GIFT.

Peter Pope, by will of the 28th of November 1807, gave to the hospital 500*l.* consols, for the use of that institution. This formed part, it is assumed, of the stock of the Company, sold out under the circumstances before stated.*

- 9 Aug. 1873. By an Order in Council of this date Her Majesty declared her approbation of the following scheme under the Endowed Schools Acts for the administration of the hospital at Hoxton of the foundation of Robt. Aske.

As approved by Her Majesty in Council.

240.

ENDOWED SCHOOLS COMMISSION.

County of Middlesex.

Parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch.

SCHEME for the MANAGEMENT of the HOSPITAL at HOXTON, of the FOUNDATION of ROBERT ASKE.

PART I.—GENERAL.

- Object. 1. The general object of the above-named charity, herein-after referred to as the Trust, shall be :—
 (a.) To supply sound practical and liberal education for boys and girls by means of schools in or near London ; and (b.) To provide for poor people, who are free of the Company of Haberdashers in the City of London.
- Repeal. 2. From the date of this Scheme all the particulars which by the Endowed Schools Act, 1869, sec. 46, are capable of being hereby repealed and abrogated shall, so far as they relate to the management of the Trust, be repealed and abrogated, except as is herein-after otherwise expressly provided.
- Corporation. 3. Subject to the provisions of this Scheme the Corporation bearing the name or style of "Governors of the "possessions and revenues of the Hospital at Hoxton " of the Foundation of Robert Aske, Esquire," shall be continued in accordance with the regulations hitherto in force, and shall be the Governing Body of the Trust ; and all rights, powers, and liabilities of the said Corporation, and all lands and hereditaments, not being copyhold, belonging to the Trust, and all terms, estates, and interests therein, and all stock in the public funds and other securities belonging to the Trust, shall remain vested in the said Corporation : Provided that, notwithstanding the incorporation of the Governing Body of the Trust, the constitution of such Governing Body may from time to time, on application made under the Charitable Trusts Act, be altered by the same authority and in the same manner as if such Governing Body were not incorporated ; and the members of the said Governing Body shall be chargeable respectively for such property as shall come into their respective hands, and shall be answerable respectively for their own acts, receipts, neglects, and defaults, but not for the acts, receipts, neglects, or defaults of any others or other of them, and for the administration of the Trust, and shall be subject, jointly and severally, to legal control and authority in the same manner and to the same extent as if they were not incorporated.

4. The hitherto existing School of the Trust shall be carried on, and the hitherto existing trusts for the benefit of scholars attending such School shall be administered as heretofore, by the Governing Body of the Trust, herein-after referred to as the Governors, for the benefit of such scholars as on the 1st January 1873 were scholars on the foundation of the Trust, for the period of one year from the quarter day next preceding the date of this Scheme, and shall then be closed.

5. From and after the closing of the existing School of the Trust, every scholar, who was on the 1st January 1873 a scholar on the foundation, shall be entitled, during the period for which, except for this Scheme, he would have been entitled to remain on the foundation, to have his School fees paid for him out of the income of the Trust at any School of like character approved of by the Governors which the parent or guardian, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of such scholar, may select, and to receive such other advantages, or the equivalent thereof by way of maintenance or otherwise, to be provided out of the said income, as he would have been entitled to receive if this Scheme had not been made. If any difference occurs between any such scholar, or such parent, guardian, or person as aforesaid, and the Governors, the matter shall be referred to the Charity Commissioners, whose decision shall be final.

6. In the event of suitable employment under the Trust not being offered to the Rev. Alfred Jones, hitherto Chaplain and Head Master of the School of the Trust, Thomas Kimber, hitherto Master, and Ruth Batten, hitherto Matron, under the Trust respectively, such employment being in each case equal in point of emolument to the office hitherto held by the person to whom it is offered, then from and after the closing of the existing School of the Trust, the said Rev. Alfred Jones shall be entitled to receive a pension or annual allowance of 120*l.* out of the income of the Trust, the said Thomas Kimber an annual allowance of 50*l.*, and the said Ruth Batten, an annual allowance of 20*l.* during their respective lives. Any doubt or question which may arise as to the suitability or value of any employment so offered shall be referred by the said Governing Body to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion thereon, which opinion when given shall be final and binding on the said Governing Body and on the said Rev. Alfred Jones, Thomas Kimber, and Ruth Batten, respectively.

7. From the date of this Scheme all rights and powers (if any) reserved or belonging to, or claimed or capable of being exercised by, any body corporate, persons or person, as visitors or visitor of the Trust, shall be transferred to Her Majesty, and all such rights and powers, and also any like rights and powers vested in Her Majesty on the 2nd day of August 1869, shall be exercised only through and by the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales.

8. From the date of this Scheme all jurisdiction of the Ordinary relating to or arising from the licensing of any Master under the Trust shall be abolished.

Existing school.

Rights of scholars.

Provision in favour of certain officers.

Jurisdiction of visitors.

Jurisdiction of Ordinary.

BANK'S CHARITY.

John Banks, by will of the 21st March 1716, gave to the Company his leasehold estate in St. James's, Westminster, to pay thereout 220*l.* a year, as he should by deed appoint; and further, out of the residue, to discharge a mortgage debt of 10,000*l.*, and to make some other payments.

Savings of interests.

9. Notwithstanding anything herein contained, this Scheme shall not affect any of the following vested interests:—

- (1.) The tenure by any person of any Exhibition or Apprenticeship fee payable out of the endowments of the Trust, which was held by him, or had been awarded to him at the date of the publication of this Scheme;
- (2.) Such interest as any person may have in any pension or compensation allowance payable out of the endowments of the Trust to which such person was entitled on the 25th June 1868.

PART II.—MANAGEMENT OF PROPERTY.

Estate.

10. All the estates and property of the Trust, not required to be occupied for the purposes thereof, shall be let or otherwise managed by the Governors or by their officers acting under their orders according to the general law applicable to the management of property by Trustees of Charitable Foundations.

Any money arising from the sale of timber, or from any mines or minerals belonging to the Trust, shall be treated as capital and invested, except in any special cases in which the Governors may be authorised by the Charity Commissioners to apply such money or any part thereof as income or otherwise.

Raising money.

11. All capital sums which, under the provisions of this Scheme, the Governors may be required to raise shall be raised by them by sale or mortgage of the real or personal property of the Trust, or by both those means, or otherwise, on such terms and subject to such conditions as may be sanctioned or prescribed by the Charity Commissioners in each case.

Clerk and agents.

12. The Governors shall make such arrangements as they may find most fitting for the custody of all muniments, title deeds, and other documents belonging to the Trust, for deposit of money, for drawing cheques, and for the appointment of a Clerk and of agents for the conduct of their business. If any such Clerk or agent is himself a Governor he shall not receive a salary.

Accounts.

13. The accounts of the Trust shall be made up and balanced to the 31st day of December in every year. The accounts shall be examined by the Governors, and signed by the Master of the Company of Haberdashers and the Clerk of the Trust within 21 days after the day to which they are made up. As soon as practicable after the accounts are so signed they shall be audited.

Audit.

14. With respect to the audit of accounts of the Trust the following provisions shall have effect:—

- (1.) The Auditor in each year shall be appointed by the Lord Mayor. The Auditor shall receive such remuneration as the Lord Mayor directs, subject to the sanction of the Charity Commissioners, if at any time such sanction shall be required by the Governors; and such remuneration, together with the expenses of or incident to the audit, shall be paid by the Governors out of the income of the Trust;
- (2.) The audit shall be held at the office of the Governors or some other convenient place to be fixed by them, and at a time to be fixed by the Auditor, but to be as soon as possible after the accounts are signed as herein-before provided;
- (3.) The Auditor, at least 14 days before holding the audit, shall serve on the Governors and on the School Managers constituted under this Scheme notice of the time and place of holding the audit;
- (4.) The Clerk of the Governors or some person authorised by them shall attend the audit and produce to the Auditor all books, bills, vouchers, and documents relating to the accounts;
- (5.) Any Governor or School Manager entitled to act under the Trust may be present at the audit and object to the accounts;
- (6.) The Auditor shall, as nearly as may be, have the like powers and be under the like obligation to allow and disallow items in the accounts, as in the case of an audit of the accounts of the School Board for London, and the Governors or any person aggrieved by the decision of the Auditor shall have a right of appeal to the Charity Commissioners, whose decision shall be final;
- (7.) Subject to the provisions of this section the Charity Commissioners may from time to time make such regulations as may be necessary respecting the form of keeping the accounts and the audit thereof.

When the Auditor has completed the audit he shall sign the balance sheet.

15. The Governors shall cause a statement showing their receipts and expenditure to be printed in such form and with such particulars as may be from time to time prescribed by the Charity Commissioners, and shall send the same within 30 days after the balance sheet is signed by the Auditor to the School Managers, and to the Charity Commissioners, and publish an abstract thereof in one London daily newspaper.

Statement of accounts.

16. The Governors shall employ the income of the Trust, as follows:—

Application of income.

- (1.) They shall pay the interest on loans raised by them under the provisions of this Scheme, and make such provision for the repayment of the loans as may be required by the conditions on which such loans may have been raised;
- (2.) They shall pay what may be due to any person in respect of any interest hereby saved or of any right hereby commuted;
- (3.) They shall defray the expenses of management of the property incurred under the provisions of this part of this Scheme;
- (4.) They shall carry to a separate account the annual sum of 1,500*l.* in trust for eleemosynary purposes, as herein-after provided;
- (5.) They shall pay to the Masters and Wardens of the Company of Haberdashers in the City of London the annual sum of 150*l.* in augmentation of the endowment founded by Throckmorton Trotman for aiding education in the parish of St. Luke, the whole of such endowment so augmented to be hereafter made subject to a Scheme to be prepared by the Endowed Schools Commissioners, or by the Charity Commissioners, with the object of providing education, not being merely elementary education, for children, at a cost to such children of 30*s.* a year each or thereabout;
- (6.) They shall pay the residue to the School Managers constituted under this Scheme at such times and intervals, and in such manner as may be authorised or prescribed from time to time by the Charity Commissioners.

PART III.—TRUSTS FOR ALMSPEOPLE.

17. Except as is herein-after otherwise provided, the above-mentioned annual sum of 1,500*l.* shall be administered by the Governors for the benefit of poor men that are free of the Company of Haberdashers, subject to such regulations as the Governors, with the sanction of the Charity Commissioners, shall from time to time prescribe.

Eleemosynary Trust.

18. The Governors may, with the sanction of the Charity Commissioners, commute the right of any Almsman elected before the 1st October 1872 to reside in the Alms-houses, and any other right of any such Almsman, upon such terms as may be agreed upon between them and any such Almsman, or as may be fixed by the Charity Commissioners as a fair compensation for the rights of such Almsman, in case the parties differ. Each Almsman elected since the 1st October 1872 shall be entitled to such annual sum or pension not exceeding 75*l.*, as the Governors may from time to time determine, and to no other benefit under the Trust.

Commutation of rights of Almsmen.

19. The pension or other privileges (if any) of any Almsman, who shall be or become a habitual drunkard, or be otherwise guilty of such improper conduct as in the opinion of the Governors may render him undeserving of such pension and privileges (of which they shall be the sole judges), may be suspended or reduced in amount, or altogether withdrawn by them.

Disqualification of pensioners.

20. If any part of the said sum of 1,500*l.* shall not be expended in any year, the surplus may be applied in the following year for similar purposes.

Balance of trust fund.

PART IV.—THE SCHOOL MANAGERS.

21. The School Managers, herein-after referred to as the Managers, shall have the sole management of the Schools of the Trust and of the money payable to such Managers under and subject to the provisions of this Scheme. They shall, when their number is complete, consist of 15 members, who shall be appointed as follows :—

- (1.) Nine, of whom two shall be women, shall be appointed by the Governors :
- (2.) One shall be appointed by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of the City of London :
- (3.) One shall be appointed by the Common Council of the City of London :
- (4.) Two shall be appointed by the Members of the School Board for London representing the Hackney division :
- (5.) Two shall be appointed by the Members of the School Board for London representing the Greenwich division.

Each body entitled to appoint a Manager or Managers may appoint a member or members of their own body.

22. Each Manager appointed by the Governors shall be appointed to hold office for seven years, and then retire. Each of the other Managers shall be appointed to hold office for five years, and then retire.

23. If during his term of office any Manager shall become bankrupt or incapacitated to act, or shall intimate to the Managers in writing his wish to retire, or shall fail for the space of one year to attend any meeting, the Managers shall, after due notice to such Manager, cause a record of the fact to be entered in their books, and notify the same to the body by whom he was appointed; and upon such record being entered the Manager to whom it applies shall forthwith cease to be a Manager, and thereupon or upon the death of a Manager the proper body shall proceed to appoint a successor to the vacant place. A Manager vacating office by retirement, or non-attendance only, shall not be thereby disqualified for re-appointment.

24. Women may be managers.

25. No Master or Mistress of any School of the Trust may be a Manager.

26. Religious opinions, or attendance or non-attendance at any particular form of religious worship, shall not in any way affect the qualification of any person for being a Manager under this Scheme.

27. Every Manager shall, at or before the first meeting he or she attends in that character, sign a memorandum declaring his or her acceptance of the office of Manager and willingness to do his or her duty as such, in accordance with the provisions of this Scheme; and until he or she has signed such a declaration he or she shall not be entitled to act as a Manager.

28. The Managers shall hold meetings in some convenient place to be fixed by themselves, as often as may be found necessary for the management of the Trust, and at least four times in each year, on some convenient days to be appointed by themselves.

29. The Managers shall, at their first meeting in each year, elect one of their number to be Chairman of their meetings for that year, and make regulations for supplying his place whenever he is absent.

30. A quorum shall be constituted whenever five Managers are present, and any such quorum may act notwithstanding any vacancy or vacancies in the full number of Managers. Whenever any decision is made in favour of which less than a majority of the Managers for the time being entitled to act have voted, the Clerk shall forthwith send a copy of the minutes of the business on which such decision was made to each Manager, and it shall be competent to any three Managers, within seven days from the day of the decision, to demand that the decision shall be once reconsidered at a special meeting, to be held at an interval of not less than 14 and not more than 21 days after the meeting at which such decision was made.

31. The Chairman or any three Managers may at any time summon a special meeting for any cause that seems to him or them sufficient.

32. All special meetings shall be convened by notice in writing to the Managers, specifying the object of the meeting. And it shall be the duty of the Clerk to the Managers to give such notice when required by the Chairman or any Managers having a right to summon such a meeting.

33. Save as is herein otherwise expressly provided, all matters and questions shall be determined by the votes of the majority of the Managers present at any meeting; and in case of equality of votes, the Chairman of the meeting shall have a second or casting vote.

34. If at any meeting there is not a sufficient number of Managers present to constitute a quorum, or if the business at any meeting is not fully completed, the Managers present may adjourn the meeting to a subsequent day, of which notice shall be given to all the Managers.

35. A minute book and proper books of account shall be provided by the managers, and kept in some convenient and secure place of deposit to be provided or appointed by them for the purpose.

36. Minutes of all proceedings of the Managers shall be entered in the minute book and duly signed. In the same book shall be recorded the entry into office of every new Manager and the names of all the Managers present at each meeting.

37. Full accounts shall be kept of the receipts and expenditure of the Managers; and such accounts shall be stated for each year, and examined and passed annually at the first meeting in the ensuing year and signed by the Managers then present.

38. The Managers shall cause sufficient abstracts of the accounts to be published annually in one London daily newspaper, circulating in the neighbourhood of the several Schools of the Trust. Such abstracts shall be in the form appended to this Scheme, subject to such alterations or abridgments thereof as may be prescribed or authorised by the Charity Commissioners.

39. The Managers shall make such arrangements as they may find most fitting for the custody of all documents belonging to their Trust, for deposit of money, for drawing cheques, and for the appointment of a Clerk and of agents for the conduct of their business. No such Clerk or agent shall be a Manager.

40. In order to raise any capital sum which the Managers may from time to time be authorised to expend under the provisions of this Scheme, the Managers may serve their precept on the Governors requiring them to raise the same in manner herein-before provided, and the Governors shall forthwith proceed to raise and pay the same to the Managers accordingly. If any doubt arises as to the validity or propriety of any precept, the Governors or the Managers may refer the question to the Charity Commissioners, whose decision shall be final.

PART V.—THE SCHOOLS.

41. There shall be two establishments of Schools of the Trust, to be called the Schools of the Company of Haberdashers. One establishment shall be at Hoxton, and shall be called the Haberdashers' Hoxton Schools, and the other establishment shall be at Hatcham, and shall be called Aske's Hatcham Schools.

It appears by the recitals in an Order of the Master of the Rolls of the 6th May 1824, made on the petition of the Haberdashers' Company in a cause of Elizabeth Mitchell and others against Sarah Holloway and others, that for several years prior to the determination of the lease, which expired on the 26th February 1822, the trustees, in pur-buildings.

42. The site and buildings of the existing Hospital at Hoxton, or such part thereof as may be required for the purpose, subject nevertheless to the rights of any present Almsman occupying any part thereof, whose right of occupation shall not have been commuted by the Governors, or some other site in Hoxton which may be approved by the Endowed Schools Commissioners, if acting, or, if not, by the Charity Commissioners, shall be appropriated to the Haberdashers' Hoxton Schools, and shall at the expiration of twelve months from the date of this Scheme (unless the time be enlarged by the Endowed Schools Commissioners or Charity Commissioners), and thenceforth, subject as aforesaid, be occupied by the Managers for the purposes of such Schools, free from any interruption by or on behalf of the Governors. In enlarging and improving the said buildings, or in the erection of new buildings, and in adapting and fitting up the same for the purposes of Schools, the Managers may expend a capital sum of 5,000*l.*; but they shall not exceed that amount of expenditure unless with the sanction of the Endowed Schools Commissioners or Charity Commissioners.

of site at Hatcham.

43. The Governors shall, within twelve months from the date of this Scheme, unless the time be enlarged by the Endowed Schools Commissioners, if then acting, or, if not, by the Charity Commissioners, provide a site for Aske's Hatcham Schools. For this purpose they may obtain land by purchase or exchange on such terms as may be sanctioned by the Endowed Schools Commissioners or Charity Commissioners. The said site when provided shall be appropriated to Aske's Hatcham Schools, and shall be occupied by the Managers for the purposes thereof free from any interruption by or on behalf of the Governors. The Managers shall erect on such site buildings suitable for the said Schools, the plans whereof shall be subject to the approval of the Endowed Schools Commissioners, if then acting, and, if not, of the Charity Commissioners, and in erecting such buildings the Managers may expend a capital sum of 12,000*l.*, but shall not exceed that amount of expenditure unless with the sanction of the Endowed Schools Commissioners or Charity Commissioners.

Day Schools.
Holy Orders.

44. All the Schools shall be Day Schools.
45. No person shall be disqualified from being a Master in any of the Schools by reason only of his not being, or not intending to be, in Holy Orders.

Religious instruction.

46. The parent or guardian of, or person liable to maintain, or having the actual custody of any scholar attending any school of the Trust as a day scholar may claim, by notice in writing addressed to the Head Master or Head Mistress of such School, the exemption of such scholar from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, and such scholar shall be exempted accordingly; and a scholar shall not, by reason of any exemption from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, be deprived of any advantage or emolument on the School or out of the Endowments of the Trust to which he or she would otherwise have been entitled. If any teacher in the course of other lessons at which any such scholar is, in accordance with the ordinary rules of the School, present, teaches systematically and persistently any particular religious doctrine, from the teaching of which any exemption has been claimed as provided by this clause, the Managers shall, on complaint made in writing to them by the parent, guardian, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of such scholar, hear the complainant, and inquire into the circumstances, and if the complaint is judged to be reasonable make all proper provisions for remedying the matter complained of.

Appointment of head masters and head
mistresses.

47. Subject to the provisions herein contained the Managers and the Head Master and Head Mistress of each School of the Trust shall, within their respective departments as herein defined, make proper provisions for the religious instruction to be given in such School.

48. Save as is herein-after otherwise prescribed, every Head Master and every Head Mistress shall be appointed by the Managers. Every such appointment shall be made at a meeting to be called for the purpose. In order to obtain the best candidates the Managers shall, for a sufficient time before making any appointment, give public notice of the vacancy, and invite competition by advertisements in newspapers, and by such other methods as they may judge best calculated to secure the object.

49. The Managers may dismiss any Head Master or Head Mistress without assigning cause, after six calendar months' written notice, given in pursuance of a resolution passed at two consecutive meetings held at an interval of not less than 14 days, and duly convened for the express purpose of considering the matter, such resolution being affirmed at each meeting by not less than two-thirds of the Managers present.

without assigning cause.

50. For urgent cause the Managers may by a resolution passed at a meeting duly convened for the express purpose of considering the matter, and affirmed by not less than two-thirds of the whole number of Managers for the time being entitled to act, suspend any Head Master or Head Mistress from office; and in that case they shall appoint another special meeting to be held at an interval of not less than a week after the former one, and may then by a similar resolution affirmed by as large a proportion of Managers, wholly and finally dismiss him or her. Full notice and opportunity of defence at both meetings shall be given to the Head Master or Head Mistress concerned.

Dismissal
for urgent
cause.

51. Every Head Master or Head Mistress, previously to entering into office, shall be required to sign a declaration, to be entered in the Minute Book of the Managers, in the following form:—

Declaration
by Head Masters or Head Mis-
tresses.

"I, _____, declare that I will always, to the best of my ability, discharge the duties of Head _____ School during my tenure of office; and that if I am removed by the Managers, according to the constitution of the said School, I will acquiesce in such removal, and will thereupon relinquish all claim to the office and its future emoluments, and deliver up to the Managers, or as they direct, possession of all their property then in my possession or occupation."

52. Every Head Master and Head Mistress to whom a residence shall be assigned by the Managers shall dwell in such residence. Every Head Master and Head Mistress shall have the occupation and use of his or her residence (if any), and of any other property of the Trust of which he or she may become occupant, in respect of his or her official character and duties, and not as tenant; and shall, if removed from office, thereupon deliver up possession of such residence and other property to the Managers, or as they may direct. No Head Master or Head Mistress shall, except with permission of the Managers, allow any person to occupy his or her official residence or any part thereof.

Occupation of Trust property by Head Masters and Head Mis-
tresses.

53. Every Head Master and Head Mistress shall give personal attention to the duties of the School in his or her charge, and shall confine himself and herself to the prescribed course of instruction. During tenure of office no Head Master or Head Mistress shall accept or hold any office or appointment which, in the opinion of the Managers, may interfere with the proper performance of his or her duties under the Trust; and no Head Master shall hold any benefice having the cure of souls.

Personal attention of Head Masters and Head Mis-
tresses.

54. Within the limits fixed by this Scheme the Managers shall in each School prescribe the general subjects of instruction, the relative prominence and value to be assigned to each group of subjects, the division of the year into term and vacation, the payments of the scholars, and the number of School hours in each week and of holidays to be given in each term. They shall take general supervision of the sanitary condition of all the School buildings and arrangements. They shall from time to time determine what number of Assistant Teachers shall be employed in each School. They shall every year assign to each School the amount to be paid out of the income of the Trust for the salaries of Assistant Teachers, and shall provide a proper plant or apparatus for carrying on the instruction given in each School.

Jurisdiction of Managers over scholastic arrangements.

55. Before acting under the last preceding clause the Managers shall in all cases consult the Head Master or Head Mistress of any School concerned, in such a manner as to give him or her a full opportunity for the expression of his or her views.

56. Subject to the rules prescribed by or under the authority of this scheme, the Head Master or Head Mistress of each School shall have under his or her control the choice of books, the methods of teaching, the arrangement of classes and school hours, and generally the whole internal organisation, management, and discipline of his or her School. Provided that if any Head Master or Head Mistress expels a scholar from his or her School, he or she shall forthwith make a full report of the case in writing to the managers.

Jurisdiction of Head Masters and Head Mis-
tresses.

57. The Head Master or Head Mistress of each School may from time to time submit proposals to the Managers suance of John Bank's directions, applied for a further grant of the said trust estates, but the terms proposed by His Majesty's Commissioners for a further grant of the said premises were, in the opinion of the trustees and surveyors with whom they advised, so high, both with respect to the fine and rent required, that the trustees did for making or altering regulations as to any matter within their province, and the managers shall consider such proposals and decide upon them.

58. No Master or Mistress of any rank in the Schools shall receive or demand from any scholar being educated at any School of the Trust, or from any person on behalf of any such scholar, any gratuity, fee, or payment, other than such payments as are prescribed or authorised by this Scheme.

59. Subject to such regulations as may be in force from time to time under the authority of this Scheme, the Schools for boys and girls shall be open to all boys and girls respectively who are of good character and of sufficient bodily health, and who are residing with their parents, guardians, next friends, or near relations within such degrees as may be fixed by the Managers by regulations to be made by them from time to time. No boy or girl not so residing shall be admitted to any School unless he or she has previously obtained the express permission of the Managers.

60. Applications for admission to any School shall be made to some person appointed by the Managers according to a printed form to be by them approved and delivered to all applicants.

61. A register shall be kept of all applications, showing the date at which every application is made for the admission of a scholar, the date of admission, withdrawal, or rejection, the cause of rejection, and the age of the candidate for admission at the date of the application: Provided that every person requiring an application to be registered shall pay such fee as the Managers may fix in accordance with the provisions of this Scheme.

62. Every candidate for admission to any School shall be examined by or under the direction of the Head Master or Head Mistress of such School, who shall appoint convenient times for that purpose, and give reasonable notice to the parents or guardians of those whose turn is approaching. No candidate shall be admitted to any School except on the terms of passing such examination. Those who are found fit shall, if there is room for them, be admitted in order according to the dates of their application. If there is not room for all, priority shall be given to children and grandchildren of freemen of the Company of Haberdashers. Subject to such priority it shall be competent to the Managers to direct that if there is not room for all the candidates their priority shall be determined by competitive examination.

63. Save as is herein otherwise expressly provided, each scholar shall pay such entrance and tuition fees as may be required of him or her under this Scheme. And all such payments shall be made in advance to such person as the Managers shall from time to time appoint for the purpose, and shall be accounted for by the person receiving them to the Managers, and treated by them as income applicable to the purposes of the School in respect of which they are received. No preference shall be given in respect of such fees to any scholar on account of his or her parentage or place of birth or residence. No extras of any kind shall be allowed without the sanction of the Managers, and all extras so allowed shall be optional on the part of the scholar concerned.

64. There shall be once in every year an examination of the scholars in each School by an Examiner or Examiners appointed for that purpose by the Managers, and paid by them, but otherwise unconnected with such School. The Examiners shall make a report in writing to the Managers on the proficiency of the scholars in each School, and on the position of the several Schools as regards instruction and discipline, as shown by the results of the examinations. The Managers shall communicate to the Head Master or Head Mistress of each School the report relating to such School.

65. The Head Master or Head Mistress of each School shall make an annual report in writing to the Managers on the general condition of such School, and on any special occurrences during the year. He or she may also mention the names of any scholars who in his or her judgment are worthy of praise or substantial reward, having regard both to proficiency and conduct.

66. In the case of any scholar attending any School, who evinces special promise and aptitude for teaching, the Managers shall be at liberty to make arrangements whereby he or she shall receive instruction in the art of teaching, and shall give such assistance in the ordinary work of instruction in the School as may be deemed desirable, and for these purposes they may prolong the time during which such scholar may remain at School. They may also award any reasonable sum, to be assigned partly to any scholar so retained as a Teacher, by way of remuneration for services rendered to the School, and partly to the Head Master or Head Mistress of such School by way of remuneration for instruction in the art of teaching given by him or her.

HABERDASHERS' HOXTON SCHOOLS.

67. The Haberdashers' Hoxton Schools, herein-after referred to as the Hoxton Schools, are intended to consist of a Day School for about 300 boys, and a Day School for about 300 girls, each to be capable of enlargement at any future time.

68. The Head Master of the Hoxton School for boys shall receive a fixed stipend of 100*l.* a year. The Head Mistress of the Hoxton School for girls shall receive a fixed stipend of 75*l.* a year. Such Head Master and Head Mistress shall also receive payment according to the number of scholars in his or her School, that is to say, such sum calculated upon such a scale uniform or graduated, as may be fixed by the Managers, being at the rate of not less than 10*s.* nor more than 30*s.* yearly for each scholar. Payments under this clause shall be made terminally or quarterly, as the Managers shall think fit.

69. The Managers shall appoint and dismiss at their discretion all Assistant Teachers in the Hoxton Schools, and shall fix and pay their respective salaries.

70. The fee, if any, payable on the registration of applications for admission to the Hoxton Schools shall be fixed from time to time by the Managers, but shall not exceed the sum of 2*s.* 6*d.*

71. The entrance and tuition fees payable for each scholar in the Hoxton Schools shall be settled by regulations to be made by the Managers from time to time, provided that no such entrance fee shall exceed 5*s.*, and that no such tuition fee shall be less than 2*l.* or more than 4*l.* a year.

72. The Managers shall make regulations from time to time for fixing the age of admission to the Hoxton Schools. No boy shall be allowed to remain in the Schools beyond the end of the School term in which he attains the age of 15 years, and no girl beyond the end of the School term in which she attains the age of 16 years.

73. The examination for admission to the Hoxton Schools shall be graduated according to the age of the candidate, but it shall never fall below the following standard, that is to say:—

Reading easy narrative and writing text hand;

Easy sums in the first two rules of arithmetic, with the multiplication table.

The Managers may raise the minimum standard from time to time if they deem it advantageous for either School to do so.

74. The subjects of secular instruction in the Hoxton Schools shall be as follows:—

In both the Boys' School and Girls' School:—

Reading and Spelling;

Writing;

Arithmetic and Elementary Mathematics;

English grammar, composition, and literature;

The outlines of History;

Geography, political and physical;

Natural Science;

Latin or French, or both;

Drawing;

Music.

And in the Girls' School:—

Household Management and Needlework.

The Head Master or Head Mistress in each School shall settle the arrangements and classification of instruction in the prescribed subjects.

75. The Managers shall assign an annual sum of 400*l.* for Exhibitions, not exceeding 12*l.* a year each in value, and tenable at the Hoxton Schools, and in conferring such Exhibitions the Managers shall distribute them in a fair proportion among boys and girls, having regard to the number of the scholars in each School. By way of additional Exhibitions tenable at the Schools the Managers shall grant exemption, total or partial, from the payment of tuition fees. Provided that the number of scholars holding Exhibitions at either School shall never exceed one-fifth of the whole number of scholars in such School.

One half of each class of Exhibitions established under this clause shall be conferred preferentially upon children who have been educated at some Public Elementary School not feel themselves justified in acceding to them, conceiving that it would have been prejudicial to the interests of the said charities to have accepted such terms; and His Majesty's Commissioners having refused the terms proposed by the trustees, the said trust estate was delivered up to them on the 26th February 1822, when all the rents of the or Schools for a space of at least three years, and have passed the Government Inspector's Examination in the standard suitable to their age and standing. And in conferring such Exhibitions the Managers shall make such arrangements as seem to them best adapted to secure the combined objects of attracting good scholars to the Hoxton Schools, and of advancing elementary education. If in the opinion of the Managers fit candidates do not present themselves for all the Exhibitions at any time offered to such children, such of the said Exhibitions as are not awarded to such children, and in all cases the remaining one-half of the said Exhibitions shall be open to all candidates to whom the Schools are open.

76. The Managers shall assign an annual sum of 600*l.* for Exhibitions of such value as they may think fit, tenable by scholars of the Hoxton Schools at any places of higher education or to enable them to gain a start in some profession or skilled trade. The said annual sum of 600*l.* shall be divided between the Boys' School and the Girls' School in proportion as nearly as may be to the numbers of scholars attending such schools respectively.

ASKE'S HATCHAM SCHOOLS

77. Aske's Hatcham Schools, herein-after referred to as the Hatcham Schools, are intended to consist of a Day School for about 300 boys, and a Day School for about 200 girls.

78. The Head Master of the Hatcham School for boys shall receive a fixed stipend of 150*l.* a year. The Head Mistress of the Hatcham School for girls shall receive a fixed stipend of 100*l.* a year. Such Head Master and Head Mistress shall also receive payment according to the number of scholars in his or her School, that is to say, such sum, calculated upon such a scale, uniform or graduated as may be fixed by the Managers, being at the rate of not less than 2*l.* nor more than 4*l.* yearly for each scholar. Payments under this clause shall be made terminally or quarterly as the Managers shall think fit.

79. The Head Master or Head Mistress of each Hatcham School shall appoint and dismiss all Assistant Teachers in such School, subject only to an appeal to the Managers, and shall determine in what proportions the sum assigned by the Managers to such School for Assistant Teachers, and plant or apparatus shall be distributed, and the Managers shall arrange for the payment of the sum assigned accordingly. The Head Master and Head Mistress shall report in writing to the Managers every appointment of an Assistant Teacher made by him or her, and on the dismissal of any Assistant Teacher shall make a full report in writing of the case to the Managers. The Head Master and Head Mistress shall also make a report in writing to the Managers in each year of the manner in which the sum assigned for Assistant Teachers, and plant or apparatus has been distributed in the School under his or her control.

80. The fee, if any, payable on the registration of applications for admissions to the Hatcham Schools shall be fixed from time to time by the Managers, but shall not exceed the sum of 5*s.*

81. The entrance and tuition fees payable for each scholar shall be settled by regulations to be made by the Managers from time to time, provided that no such entrance fee shall exceed 1*l.*, and that no such tuition fee shall be less than 4*l.* or more than 8*l.* a year.

82. No scholar shall be admitted into the Hatcham Schools until he or she has attained the age of 8 years; and no scholar shall be allowed to remain in the Schools beyond the end of the School term in which he or she attains the age of 17 years, or beyond the age of 16 years, unless with the express permission of the Head Master or Head Mistress. And the Managers, upon the recommendation of the Head Master or Head Mistress, shall make regulations for the withdrawal of scholars in cases where from idleness or incapacity to profit by the instruction given they are materially below the standard of position and attainment proper for their age.

83. No scholar shall be allowed to remain in the Hatcham Schools beyond the end of the term in which he or she attains the age of 13 years, unless he or she has within the previous year passed a satisfactory examination in reading, writing, arithmetic, English grammar, and dictation, and the elements of geography; and the Managers shall make regulations for testing the attainments of the scholars for this purpose by some Examiner to be appointed by them.

84. The examination for admission shall be graduated according to the age of the candidate, but it shall never fall below the following standard, that is to say,—

Reading, Writing from Dictation, the first four rules of Arithmetic, and the outlines of English Grammar, and of the Geography of England.

The Managers may raise the minimum standard from time to time if they deem it advantageous for either School to do so.

85. The subjects of secular instruction shall be as follows:—

The English language and literature;
French and German;
Latin;
Arithmetic and mathematics;
History and Geography;
Natural Science;
Drawing;
Music;

And in the Girls' School:—

Household Management and Needlework.

The Head Master or Head Mistress in each School shall settle the arrangements and classification of instruction in the prescribed subjects. Greek shall not be part of the prescribed course of instruction, but may be taught in the Boys' School as an extra at an additional fee of not less than 4*l.* yearly for each boy taught.

86. By way of Exhibitions tenable at the Hatcham Schools, the Managers shall grant exemptions from the payment of tuition fees, provided that the number of such exemptions shall not exceed 10 per cent. of the number of Scholars attending the School.

87. The Managers may also assign an annual sum of 1,200*l.* for exhibitions not exceeding 40*l.* a year each in value, and tenable at the Hatcham School, or at any other Schools approved by the Managers and the Governors. These Exhibitions are mainly intended for the maintenance and education of children and grandchildren of Freemen of the Company of Haberdashers, and shall be offered in the first instance for competition among boys and girls, in equal shares, who are children or grandchildren of such Freemen. No such Exhibition shall be awarded to any candidate whose attainments fall below the standard of the examination for admission to the Hatcham Schools suited to his or her age. In default of a sufficient number of fit candidates of either sex from among children of such Freemen as aforesaid, on the occasion of any such Exhibitions being offered, such of the Exhibitions as are not awarded to such children shall be thrown open to general competition among all the scholars of the Schools. No such Exhibition shall be tenable by any scholar concurrently with an exemption granted under the last foregoing clause. The Managers may from time to time make such regulations as they think fit for the boarding of any holders of these Exhibitions who may not be resident with their parents, guardians, next friends, or near relations within a convenient distance of the Hatcham Schools.

88. The Managers shall assign an annual sum of 600*l.* for Exhibitions, tenable by scholars of the Hatcham Schools at any places of higher education or of professional training or study. The said annual sum of 600*l.* shall be divided between the Boys' School and the Girls' School, in proportion as nearly as may be to the number of scholars attending such schools respectively.

AWARD AND TENURE OF EXHIBITIONS.

89. All Exhibitions provided under this Scheme shall be given as the reward of merit only, to be ascertained, subject to the provisions of this Scheme, in such manner as the Managers shall by regulations to be made by them from time to time prescribe. They shall be tenable only for the purposes of education, general or professional. They shall be payable by instalments at such intervals as the Managers shall direct. If the holder dies, his representatives shall be entitled only to the next ensuing payment of an instalment whenever payable.

90. No Exhibition shall be granted to any scholar already attending any School of the Trust if the Head Master or Head Mistress reports that such scholar is rendered undeserving of it by misconduct. Every Exhibition tenable at School shall be liable to forfeiture on the order of the Managers in case the Head Master or Head Mistress reports that the holder is guilty of misconduct, irregular in attendance, or fails to maintain a reasonable standard of proficiency. said leasehold estate ceased, and a sum of 1,152*l.* 10*s.* was on the 9th May 1822 paid by the said clerk to the said Commissioners of the balance then remaining in his hands, and was accepted in full satisfaction of all claims and demands on the trustees in respect of dilapidations or otherwise. That the trustees, on examining and auditing the account of receipts and payments by their said clerk up to Midsummer 1823, found a balance of 564*l.* 4*s.* 11*d.* in his hands, which it was necessary for him to retain for the purpose of making the annual payments directed by the said John Banks up to Midsummer 1820. That there was then standing in the name of the Accountant-General, in trust in the cause at the bank, the sum of 58,580*l.* 12*s.* 10*d.* consols, which had arisen from the investment of the said receiver's and clerk's balances and of the dividends of stock purchased therewith. That great part of the dividends which would in future become due on the same stock would be applicable to the payment of the several annuities and charges directed to be paid by the said John Banks, inasmuch as there was no other source from which the after leaving School is guilty of gross misconduct or idleness, or wilfully ceases to pursue his or her education, it shall be competent to the Managers to determine the Exhibition as from the last preceding payment of an instalment.

91. Subject to the provisions of this Scheme the Managers shall from time to time make regulations for determining the number, value, period, and conditions of tenure of all Exhibitions established under this Scheme, and all other matters relating to such Exhibitions, but they shall give reasonable notice of all such regulations to the Head Master or Head Mistress of each School of the Trust.

SCIENCE CLASSES.

92. In the event of the establishment of any classes for instruction in science in the neighbourhood of Hoxton or Hatcham by any Local Committee or otherwise, the Managers may, instead of providing instruction in Science in the Schools of the Trust at Hoxton or Hatcham, as the case may be, make arrangements for the admission to such classes of any scholars attending such Schools, subject to the following conditions:—

- (a.) The classes shall be in connexion with the Science and Art Department of the Committee of Council on Education, and shall be managed in accordance with regulations approved by that Department;
- (b.) The course of instruction shall be that laid down in the Minute of the Lords of the Committee of Council on Education, dated the 24th November 1871, with such modifications as may from time to time be introduced therein by the proper authority;
- (c.) The classes shall be regularly examined and inspected, and the teacher or teachers shall be duly qualified in accordance with the regulations of the said Science and Art Department.

Subject to the foregoing conditions, the Managers may pay for each scholar admitted to the classes such fees (not exceeding the ordinary fees charged for other students) as may from time to time be agreed upon between them and the managers of such classes.

93. If by reason of any provision in this Scheme a difficulty is found in conforming to any regulations which the said Science and Art Department may approve, or if for any reason that Department think fit to modify any condition in the last foregoing clause contained, the Managers may, notwithstanding this Scheme, comply with and accept any such regulations or modifications not being inconsistent with the first clause of this Scheme, or with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Act, 1869.

PART VI.—APPLICATION OF INCOME.

94. The Managers shall charge the income payable to them under the provisions of this Scheme with the payment of an annual sum of 300*l.* to be placed to a separate account, entitled Repairs and Improvements, and to be applied to ordinary repairs or improvements, if wanted, of the property used for the educational purposes of the Trust, and if not wanted for that purpose to be accumulated and paid to the credit of such separate account for repairs and improvements. The Managers, at their discretion, may draw upon the accumulations, if any, for the purposes of repairs or improvements, ordinary or extraordinary.

95. After defraying the expenses of management and after defraying the cost of any ordinary repairs or improvements which the income of the Repairs and Improvements Fund may be insufficient to answer, the Managers shall employ the income payable to them for the purposes of the Schools of the Trust in accordance with the provisions of this Scheme.

96. The Managers may, if they think fit and the income payable to them is sufficient for the purpose, agree with the Head Master or Head Mistress of any School of the Trust for the formation of a fund in the nature of a pension or superannuation fund, the main principles of such agreement being that such Head Master or Head Mistress and the Trust shall each contribute annually such sums and for such term, not less than 15 years, as may be mutually agreed upon; that these contributions shall accumulate at compound interest; that in case any such Head Master or Head Mistress serves for such term he or she shall on retirement be entitled to the whole fund; that in case he or she retires earlier on account of permanent disability from illness he or she shall also be entitled to the whole fund; that in all other cases he or she on ceasing to be Head Master or Head Mistress, or his or her representatives in case of his or her death, shall be entitled to the amount produced by his or her own contributions.

97. If there is any residue of income the Managers may, subject to the provisions of this Scheme, employ it in increasing the stipend of the Head Master or Head Mistress of any School of the Trust, or in improving the accommodation of the School buildings, or in aiding the games of the scholars, or generally in promoting the spirit and efficiency of the Schools. Whatever they do not think fit to spend in these ways they shall on passing the yearly accounts state as Unapplied Surplus, and deposit in a bank; and if the sum so deposited rise to 300*l.* they shall invest the same in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds to the general credit of the Trust.

PART VII.—GENERAL.

98. The Governors may receive any additional donations or endowments for the general purposes of the Trust. They may also receive donations or endowments for any special objects directed by the donors, provided that such objects are certified by the Charity Commissioners to be for the general benefit of the Trust, or of any School of the Trust, and not calculated to give privileges to any scholar without regard to merit, and not otherwise inconsistent with or calculated to impede the due working of the provisions of this Scheme. The Managers may receive donations or endowments for educational purposes only on like terms.

99. If at any time any doubt or question arises between the Governors and the Managers as to the proper construction or application of any of the provisions of this Scheme, either party may, after notice to the other, apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon. If at any time any such doubt or question arises among the Governors or Managers, such Governors or Managers shall apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon. The opinion and advice when given shall be binding.

100. The Charity Commissioners may from time to time in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction frame Schemes for the alteration of any provisions of this Scheme, or otherwise for the government or regulation of the Trust, provided that such Schemes be not inconsistent with the general object of the Trust as defined in this Scheme, or with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Act, 1869. Provided also that the Charity Commissioners shall have the same power of acting upon application made to them by the Managers with respect to the endowments and income of the Trust hereby made payable to them as they would have if such application had been made by the Governors, and the Governors shall conform to any order made or directions given by the Charity Commissioners upon any such application.

101. In the year 1888, or at any earlier time when the gross income of the Trust, apart from payments of scholars, during a single year shall have exceeded the sum of 10,000*l.*, the Governors and the Managers shall apply to the Charity Commissioners or to the proper authority for a new Scheme for the management of the Trust.

102. The Governors shall cause this Scheme to be printed and a copy to be given to every person who shall become a Governor or Manager under the provisions of this scheme, and to every Master and Mistress appointed to any School of the Trust, and copies shall be sold at a reasonable price to all persons who may wish to buy.

- 6 Nov. 1874. By order of the said Board of this date the trustees were authorised to purchase from Jones' Monmouth Charity, in consideration of the transfer in the books of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 3,431*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.*, consols to such Charity by Aske's Hospital, four acres of land at Hatcham, New Cross.
- 11 May 1875. By a certificate of this date, made under the provisions of clause 98 of the scheme, the said Board approved a declaration of trust of scholarship intended to be founded by John Curtis.
- 15 June 1875. By order of the said Board of this date the trustees were authorised to apply the proceeds of the sale of 1,432*l.* 10*s.* 1*d.*, consols held by the Official Trustees, towards payment of the cost of the erection of new school buildings at Hatcham and Hoxton.
- 30 July 1875. By two orders of the said Board of this date the governors were authorised (1) to expend 813*l.* and incidental costs in improvements on Buttesland Farm, Ashford (Kent), and to provide the same (subject to its replacement in 10 years out of income) by the realisation of a sufficient portion of the sum of 5,954*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.*, reduced 3*l.* per cent. annuities, belonging to the foundation, and (2) to apply

- the balance of the proceeds of such stock in further expenditure on above school buildings.
- By order of the said Board of this date the governors were authorised to expend the sum of 267*l.* 10*s.* on new buildings on Singleton Farm, Great Chart, and to provide the amount out of surplus income. (The lessee to pay 10*l.* per annum increased rent.)
- By order of the said Board of this date the governors were authorised to effect a compromise and adjustment of the question between themselves and the trustees of Dr. D. William's Charity with respect to the ownership of property in Hoxton.
- By order of the said Board of this date the governors were authorised to grant a building lease of property on the north side of Fanshawe Street, Hoxton, to Mr. Henry Doubleday for 81 years, at an annual rent of 50*l.*
- By order of the said Board of this date the governors were authorised to effect certain alterations of existing buildings belonging to the Haberdashers' Hoxton schools at a cost of 1,495*l.*, and approved expenses, and to raise the necessary amount by a loan from the Haberdashers' Company at 4 per cent. interest, to be repaid in eight years.

The present endowment, therefore, consists of:—

Additions are made to the pedigree as parties apply claiming to be descendants and producing statutory declarations and proper certificates.

The descendants reside in various parts of England and Wales, many being in the Principality. They apply first for apprenticeship fees, and, secondly, for setting up in business, or for portions.

The trustees meet on these occasions, yearly, in May for distribution, when applications are made in writing, on printed forms (copies of which I append). Those who live near the town attend the meeting, and the cases being then considered, the sums are awarded.

The minister and deacons of the testator's congregation near the "Three Cranes" (Jewry Street, Minories). An information was instituted by the Attorney-General at the relation of John Thomas Halret v. Rev. Henry Heap, to establish the right of certain persons to the annual sum of 12*l.*, and by a supplemental information which was afterwards filed at the relation of Thomas Palmer, and others, against the Company, and under the two informations a decree was made on further directions, dated 20th December 1839, whereby the relators in the said cause were declared entitled as the minister and the deacons of the congregation assembling in Jewry Street Chapel, to the future payments of the annuity as well as to the arrears which had accrued pending the proceedings, after deducting the Company's costs.

The testator, by his will, gave certain annuities of 10*l.* and 20*l.* per annum to his sisters and nephews and nieces, named in his will, amounting in the whole to 130*l.* a year, and to their respective children, and if any failure of issue in one branch the annuity to be added to the other branch, and the issue of the other families at the discretion of his trustees, or the major part of them, and upon the discharge of the debt and interest and charges on his estate in Westminster, the said annuity should be doubled and made 260*l.* a year.

The Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 10, p. 229) reported that 157*l.* 10*s.* per annum of these annuities had been purchased by the Company. I have not entered into the question of this purchase, but it would appear that there were difficulties in the way. If the estate was construed as a charity, no person would take more than a life interest, and it would, perhaps, be difficult to construe it as an estate tail. As a gift in perpetuity it would be void. The general gift over being to the use of the Company, the matter is probably not important, as in that case the Company would be alone benefited by the failure of the preceding objects.

The annuities paid to the representatives of the persons whose annuities have not been disposed of, are—

The expenses of the trust :—

The dinner to the relations, or any allowance in respect of it has been discontinued, the Company (as above stated) having purchased many of the annuities.

The dinner to the trustees, for which 12*l.* is provided, is now commuted and forms a part of the charge of the expenses of the trust, as a guinea each to the trustees on each of the three attendances in the year. Refreshments on such occasions, and two dinners in 1861

The surplus of the income is paid over to the general account of the Company. There was in 1861, 820*l.* 7*s.* 7*d.*

SIR GEORGE BARNES' CHARITY.

Sir George Barnes, by his will of the 15th February 1557, gave to the Company his interest in the lease of a windmill in Finsbury for the poor of the Company in the almshouses in Staining Lane. The property devised by this will seems by the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 10, p. 190), to have been alienated so far back as 1678. It was sold for a sum of 100*l.* and the Company in respect of this sum pay annually 4*l.* to four poor freemen of the Company. The Company hold more than sufficient stock in their corporate name to pay this and the other charges on their funds in respect of interest.

In July at the quarterly court of the Company the following charities, including this of Sir George Barnes, are distributed :—Raynton's, White, French, Barnes, Thos. Barnes, Aldersey, Monox, Gourney, Trotman, Bowcher, Johnson, Hall, and Cleave. Four persons received 1*l.* each on account of Barnes' Gift, in 1861. Occasionally the gift is larger, but the rule is that no person receive more than 2*l.* 6*s.* at any quarterly distribution.

BARNES' CHARITY.

Thomas Barnes, by will of the 20th August 1663, gave to the Company a house in Lombard Street to dispose of the rent as follows :—

To four poor old freemen	-	32
To four poor old freemen's widows	-	10
To 12 poor old men or widows	-	12
and the residue for the Company.

The devised estate consists of the house, No. 50, Lombard Street, let to Mr. Fisher, a stationer, for 21 years from 1852, at the rent of 130*l.* a year.

The Company pay pensions to four freemen of the Company of 8*l.* a year each, and 2*l.* 10*s.* each to four poor freemen's widows. The sum of 1*l.* is also given to each of 12 poor freemen or freemen's widows at the July distribution (see Sir George Barnes' Charity).

The residue is carried to the account of the Company.

BARRETT'S CHARITY.

Martha Barrett, by her will dated between 1580 and 1590, gave to the Company 200*l.*, to be lent to four young men for four years, two of them to pay 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* for the poor of Isleworth and Totteridge, and the other two to pay 5*l.* for a scholar at Magdalen College, Cambridge.

Of the capital fund there is no present trace; but the Company charge themselves with 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* a year, nominally attributing 11*l.* 2*s.* 3*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. consols, part of the stock belonging to them, as representing the capital of one sum of 100*l.* Two sums of 1*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* yearly are paid, one to the churchwardens of Isleworth, and the other to the churchwardens of Totteridge. The exhibition to Magdalen College has not been paid for a century and a half.

BENSKYN'S CHARITY.

Ralph Benskyn, by will of the 14th September 1603 gave 50*l.* to the Company to be lent to a young man paying yearly 20*s.* to St. Martin Orgar parish. The 20*l.* which formed the whole sum received by the Company in respect of this legacy, is stated to have been lent out and lost in 1662; but the Company pay 8*s.* to the churchwardens of the parish of St. Martin Orgar, and attribute of their 3*l.* per cent. consols a sum of 13*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* stock as the capital.

BLUNDELL'S CHARITY.

Peter Blundell, by will of the 9th June 1599, gave to the Company 150*l.* to purchase lands, and thereout pay 40*s.* for poor prisoners in Newgate. The fund was invested in the purchase of a house, now No. 8, Poultry, which is let to Robert Burchall for 21 years from Christmas 1851 at the rent of 110*l.* The Company pay 2*l.* a year to Mr. Temple, at the Guildhall, for the prisoners. The residue is given to the Company.

BODDINGTON AND BOULTER'S CHARITY.

Robert Boddington, by will of the 4th February 1700, gave to the Company 400*l.* to pay 20 poor people 20*s.* a year apiece; and Edmund Boulter, in 1702, gave 100*l.*, to be laid out with the said 400*l.* The Company laid out, it appears, a sum of 480*l.* 3*s.* 6*d.* of these bequests in the purchase of the ground rent of 20*l.* a year, upon the reversion of an estate now Nos. 92, 93, 94, 95, and 96, Bishopsgate Street, and four houses in Montague Court (which is entered by a passage between Nos. 94 and 95), three of which, Nos. 9, 10, and 11, are at the east end, and one at the north side of the court. The ground rent is payable during the continuance of a lease which was for 200 years, and expires in 1897.

The Company have since 1831 ceased to allow the land tax on the rent, and have received the clear sum of 20*l.*, which after allowing 2*l.* 2*s.* as a salary to the surveyor is distributed in April, yearly, in sums of 17*s.* 6*d.* each to 20 poor of the Company, men and women. The April gifts include these and Adams', Carpenter's, and Offley's Charities. The surveyor in his report on this estate made in June 1862, states, "that the boundary marks in Bishopsgate Street are so placed as to define the extent of the property in the simplest manner possible." In the Report of 1861 the surveyor says, "that No. 95 requires some internal painting in consequence of the re-erection of the house in the rear, and the tenement on the left-hand side of Montague Court, and Nos. 10

"and 11 in the south-east corner, require repair and painting. Marks were ordered to be placed on the back walls of Nos. 92, 93, and 94, Bishopsgate Street."

BOND'S CHARITY.

William Bond, by will of the 3rd August 1671, gave to the Company a rentcharge of 50*l.* a year, payable out of messuages in Allhallows, Bread Street, viz., 24*l.* to six poor single aged freemen, and 26*l.* for the relief of the poor of the Company in general.

An ex officio information was filed by the Attorney-General against the Company to obtain a declaration that the surplus rents of a house in Bread Street in possession of the Company might be declared to belong to William Bond's Charity; it appearing, as stated in the Reports of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 10, p. 223), that the Company had assumed possession of the premises in virtue of their title to the rentcharge. The Court declared that the surplus rents belonged to the Charity and the amount was settled by the master, and a sum of 2,185*l.* 19*s.* 9*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. consols, was transferred by the Company to the credit of the cause, Attorney-General v. Haberdashers' Company, where the same now remains, the dividends being payable to the clerk of the Company for the time being under the order of the Court of 29th July 1829.

The property and income of the Charity, therefore, now consists of the following particulars:—

	£	s.	d.
House, No. 52, Bread Street, let to Peter Poland for 21 years from Midsummer 1851, at	200	0	0
Dividends on 2,185 l. 19 s. 9 d. , 3 l. per cent. consols, in Court	65	11	8
	265	11	8

The scheme settled and approved by the Court in the suit for the administration of the Charity is as follows:—

That instead of the six poor single aged men free of the said Company receiving the 4*l.* yearly apiece, as directed by William Bond, they should yearly receive 10*l.* apiece, at such times and by such proportions as the master, wardens, and assistants should think fit, and that the residue of the dividends of the said bank annuities, and the rents and profits of the said estate after payment for the insurance of the premises from fire, the surveyor's annual charge, and any other incidental expenses regarding the management of the Charity or Charity property, should be yearly laid out in purchasing good warm woollen coats and cloaks and other articles of wearing apparel or bedding, or fuel to be distributed by the said master, wardens, and assistants among the poor in general of the said Company, at such times and by such proportions as to the said Company should seem expedient. But, nevertheless, the said master, wardens, and assistants were to be at liberty in cases of emergency, and where it should appear that a small pecuniary assistance would be usefully bestowed by any written order or orders to make donations in money at their discretion, such donation not at any one time to exceed 20*s.*

That in the distribution of the charities thereby directed preference should in all cases be given to the most deserving of such persons as had never received parochial relief, or had been the longest without having received such relief, and in no case was any part of the said Charity to be given to any that at the time should be in the receipt of parochial relief or who should have been in such receipt, and should for the purpose of enabling themselves to receive the benefit of the said charities colourably or for a short time only have ceased to receive such parochial relief.

That distinct accounts should be kept of the receipt and expenditure on account of the said Charity, and such accounts should be audited once a year, and when so audited signed by the master and wardens.

That the estate and premises belonging to the said Charity should be duly and properly managed, and let to the best advantage at an annual rent under the superintendence of the said Company and their officers.

The insurance of the premises is repaid by the tenant.

The Company under the scheme pay pensions of 10*l.* a year to six poor single men of the Company who generally retain their pensions during their lives, unless their circumstances materially change.

The Company have always confined the distribution of the clothing to eight poor freemen and eight poor freemen's widows, although their discretion as to the increase of this distribution was unlimited, whilst they have disposed of the whole of the residue in gifts of 20*s.* each to the poor of the Company although their power as to this distribution in money appears to be intended by the Court to be restricted. In the clothing gifts every man has a complete suit of blue cloth, with underclothing and shoes. Each woman has also a complete outfit of clothing. The sum allowed for the men's clothing is about 5*l.*, and about 3*l.* for the women. The men's clothing is obtained from the tradesmen of the Company, and the materials of the women's clothing are purchased and given to them with 25*s.* for making it up.

Both sets of recipients are required to appear annually before the court in their new apparel. The same persons generally continue to receive the clothing year by year.

After paying the pensions and the expenses of the clothing, the balance has of late years considerably exceeded 100*l.* a year. The whole of this, except a small balance kept in hand (in 1861 a balance of 21*l.* 13*s.* 3*d.*) is given away in sums of 1*l.* each to poor freemen or widows of freemen of the Company, the numbers of the recipients ranging from 110 and upwards. This distribution is made at the December court with Buckland's and Paradine's Gifts. In 1855 the number of recipients were increased from 90 to 110. In 1857, in addition to the 110, a further number of 110 gifts of 1*l.* was made, to dispose of the balance. In 1859 the extra distribution beyond the 110 was 55. In 1860 the extra distribution was 10, and in 1861, 25 additional gifts were made.*

* WILLIAM BOND'S CHARITY.

By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners, dated the 30th June 1874, made upon the application of the Haberdashers' Company, the following scheme was established for the regulation of the Charity:—

SCHEME for the MANAGEMENT and REGULATION of the above-mentioned CHARITY.

1. The master and four wardens of the Haberdashers' Company shall continue to be the trustees of the Charity, and shall administer the same and its endowments subject to and in conformity with the provisions of this scheme.

2. The trustees shall from time to time cause the trust premises to be insured against loss or damage by fire in some insurance office of established character, and shall make such provision as may be requisite for the payment of the charges for such insurance, and for the repair of the trust premises, and for all other necessary and proper expenses of management.

3. The clear amount of the annual rents, profits, and income of the Charity, after providing for the purposes aforesaid, shall be applied by the trustees to the relief of poor freemen or poor liverymen of the said Company or their widows, either in occasional gifts or pensions not exceeding 50*l.* in any one year to any one person, such gifts and pensions to be paid to the recipients in such proportions and subject to such rules and regulations as the trustees may from time to time think proper; or partly in such gifts or pensions, or partly in grants (subject in like manner to the rules and regulations of the trustees), for one or both of the following objects, viz.:—(1) Subscriptions to sick or convalescent hospitals or sea bathing infirmaries for the use and relief of poor freemen or liverymen of the said Company; and (2) the repayment of school fees of children of freemen or liverymen of the said Company at any public elementary school or other suitable and efficient school upon sufficient certificates being furnished to the trustees that such children have satisfactorily passed the examination at such school.

4. Full accounts shall be kept of the receipt and expenditure of the trustees in respect of the Charity in the books to be provided for that purpose, and such accounts shall be stated for each year, and examined and passed by the trustees annually.

5. The unappropriated residue or surplus of the income (if any) shall be from time to time accumulated by the Accounts.

Surplus income to be accumulated.

BOWCHER'S GIFT.

A loan charity created by the gift of 100*l.* by Thomas Bowcher. This capital is in the same situation as Gournay's, and the other loan fund to be lent at interest. Notwithstanding the scheme, no sums are lent at interest, and 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, 3 per cent. stock, is nominally appropriated to meet the 40*s.* a year. That sum is given to the poor of the Company in two sums of 20*s.* each, at the July distribution.

BRAMLEY'S CHARITY.

Thomas Bramley, by deed of the 20th August 1602, assigned to the Company several leasehold premises in St. Bartholomew Exchange of the yearly value of 61*l.* 5*s.*, to be distributed as follows:—

And he directed that the wardens should deduct 20*l.* a year out of the rents to be lent out to young men of the Company. The premises conveyed by this deed were burnt at the Great Fire, and the Company having, it is stated, no funds to rebuild, surrendered the site to the Clothworkers' Company (the lessors of the premises) for 150*l.*, for which sum they charge themselves with interest at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent., making 5*l.* annually, appropriating 166*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* consols, which dividend is equally divided between the two parishes of St. Margaret, Lothbury and St. Bartholomew, Royal Exchange, and paid on the receipt of the respective churchwardens.

BUCKLAND'S CHARITY.

Richard Buckland, by will of the 22nd August 1573, gave to the Company three messuages in the parish of St. Michael le Quern, London, to pay—

To four poor householders of the Company	- 4
To the poor of St. Michael le Quern	- 1
To the poor of Shepperton	- 1

The Company appropriate 200*l.*, 3 per cent. consols, as representing the fund produced by the sale of these messuages not long after the Great Fire. The sum of 6*l.* a year is disposed of—as to 4*l.*—in sums of 20*s.* each to four poor freemen of the Company, at the December distribution, and 1*l.* to each of the parishes of St. Michael le Quern (on the receipt of the churchwardens) and the parish of Shepperton on the receipt of the rector.

LADY BURGHLEY'S CHARITY.

Lady Mildred Burghley on the 11th September 1583, gave to the Company 200*l.*, in consideration of which they granted to the dean of St. Paul's and the dean of Westminster 10*l.* a year, to be distributed as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To four sermons, yearly, at Cheshunt,
each 13 s. 4 d.	-	2	13
For 20 poor householders or widows	-	4	6
To setting the poor at work	-	3	0

And she further gave 200*l.* to the Company; 120*l.* to be lent to six inhabitants of Romford, and 80*l.* to be lent to the inhabitants of Hoddesdon, Cheshunt, and Waltham Abbey.

The Company charge themselves only with the sum of 10*l.* a year, under the circumstances mentioned in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 10, p. 192), and in respect of which they nominally appropriate 333*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, 3 per cents.

The sum of 10*l.* a year is still paid to the churchwardens of Cheshunt.

The sum of 100*l.* for loans to poor tradesmen of Romford, without interest, is still occasionally lent on these terms. It appears by memorandum in the books of the Company, and the letter of the vestry clerk of Romford of the 27th December 1831, that a sum of 20*l.*, lent to Wm. Sarel on the 24th February 1825, was lost by the failure of the principal and the sureties. The vestry clerk of Romford prepares the bonds, which are sometimes deposited with the Company. There is at present one bond of 20*l.* in the strong box of the Company, and the remaining sum is supposed not to be lent, but to be in the hands of the vestry clerk.

CALDWALL'S CHARITY.

Florence Caldwell, who died in 1614, by her will gave to the Company a messuage on Ludgate Hill of 20*l.* a year, to pay—

	£	s.
To St. Martin, Ludgate, for bread	-	2
To the parish of Rolleston, Staffordshire	-	7
For gowns, &c. for six poor men of the Company	-	6

And the residue for the Company.

This Charity appears to have been one which suffered at the Great Fire. The ground on which it stood was sold to the City for widening Ludgate Hill, in 1667, for a sum of 92*l.* 10*s.* In respect of this the Company appropriate 99*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.*, 3 per cent. consols, sufficient to produce 2*l.* 19*s.* 8*d.* a year, of which the Company pay 16*s.* 4*d.* a year to the parish of St. Martin, Ludgate, and 2*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.* a year to the parish of Rolleston, Staffordshire.

CARPENTER'S CHARITY.

Thomas Carpenter, by will of the 29th April 1731, gave to the Company 400*l.*, and the produce disposed of to 20 poor people.

The Company appropriate 400*l.*, 3 per cents. consols, as representing this Gift. The dividends on that sum amounting to 12*l.* a year, are distributed to 20 poor freemen of the Company at the April court in sums of 12*s.* each.

FRANCES CLARKE'S CHARITY.

Mrs. Frances Clarke, by indenture of the 20th January 1608, gave 200*l.* to the Company, they covenanting to pay yearly to two poor scholars 5*l.* each. The Company doubled the amount of these exhibitions under the circumstances mentioned in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 10, p. 198), and they appropriate nominally a sum of 666*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, 3 per cent. consols, as the capital fund. The dividends or interest of 20*l.* a year are paid to two exhibitioners, one at Christ Church, Oxford, and one at any college at Cambridge. The present exhibitioners are George Plumtree Howse, of Pembroke College, and Sidney Richard Maynard Walker, of Christ Church, Oxford.

CLEAVE'S CHARITY.

Thomas Cleave, by his will (date unknown), gave to the Company 54*l.*, on consideration to pay 10 poor widows 40*s.* a year. The Company appropriate nominally 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, 3 per cent. consols, as the capital of this Gift, and they distribute 2*l.* a year, in sums of 20*s.* each, to two widows of freemen, as part of their July distribution, amongst the poor of the Company.

WM. CLEAVES'S CHARITY.

William Cleave, by will of the 11th of May, 1665, gave to the Company two messuages in St. Swithin's parish for the poor of the Company.

And by a codicil of the 16th April, 1667, he gave to the Company 300*l.*,—200*l.* for the relief of the poor of the Company, and 100*l.* towards rebuilding the Company's hall trustees in a bank of established character, until it shall amount to a suitable sum, when the same shall be invested by them in the name of "The Official Trustees of Charitable Funds" in Government funds; no such accumulated sum exceeding 100*l.* shall be allowed to remain in any bank uninvested.

6. A copy of this scheme, and of any rules or regulations which may be made by the trustees in pursuance of the third clause thereof, shall be kept with the books of account and other documents belonging to the Charity, and every person interested in the Charity shall be at liberty to take copies of the scheme, or any part thereof, upon making application for that purpose to the trustees, at such reasonable times and subject to such reasonable conditions as may be fixed and prescribed by them.

The trustees may cause this scheme to be printed at the expense of the Charity, and copies may be sold at such reasonable prices as the trustees may put upon them.

8. If any doubt or question shall arise among the trustees, or any of them, as to the construction or proper application of any of the provisions of this scheme, or the management of the Charity, application shall be made by them to the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales for their opinion and advice, which, when given, shall be conclusive.

Copies of scheme, &c. may be taken.

Scheme to be printed.

CHARITY COMMISSION.

In the matter of CLEAVE'S CHARITY, created by the Will of WILLIAM CLEAVE, dated the 11th day of May 1665, and by a Codicil to the said Will dated the 16th day of April 1667.

THE Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, having considered an application in writing made to them on the 21st day of October 1874, in the matter of the above-mentioned Charity, by

The Master and Wardens of the Fraternity of the Art or Mystery of Haberdashers, in the City of London, being the Trustees of the said Charity; acting by John Curtis, Esquire, their Clerk, duly authorised in that behalf by resolutions passed at duly constituted meetings of the said Trustees, held on the 7th and 12th days of the same month :

And it appearing to the said Board, that the gross annual income of the said Charity exceeds 50*l.* :

And that it is desirable that a scheme should be established for the future regulation of the said Charity in manner herein-after mentioned :

And upon notice of the intention of the said Board to make an Order for that purpose having been given, according to the direction of the said Board, more than one calendar month previously to the date hereof, by advertisement in the "Times" newspaper, on the 20th and 27th days of November, and the 4th day of December 1875 respectively, and in the "Guardian" newspaper, on the 24th day of November, and the 1st and 8th days of December 1875 respectively :

Do hereby Order, that the scheme set forth in the Schedule hereto be approved and established as the Scheme for the future regulation and management of the said Charity.

SCHEDULE.

Scheme for the Regulation and Management of the above-mentioned Charity.

Trustees.

1. The master and four wardens of the fraternity of the art or mystery of Haberdashers in the city of London, usually called the „ Haberdashers' Company " and who are herein-after referred to as the Trustees, shall continue to be the Trustees of the Charity, and shall manage and administer the same, and its endowments, in conformity with the provisions of this scheme.

Clerk.

2. The Trustees may, out of the yearly income of the Charity, pay to their clerk an annual salary not exceeding 10*l.* as a remuneration for his services in connexion with the administration of the Charity, which shall consist in attending the meetings of the Trustees, keeping the accounts of the Charity, and the Minute Book of the Trustees, and the register of the recipients, and a list of the applicants for the benefit of the Charity, and inquiring into and examining their respective characters and circumstances.

and carrying on all necessary correspondence relating to the Charity. The Trustees may also pay to their surveyor an annual salary not exceeding 5*l.* as a remuneration for his services in inspecting and superintending the management of the estates of the Charity.

Surveyor.

3. The clear yearly income of the Charity, which shall remain after the payment thereof of the said salaries and all other necessary and proper outgoings and expenses of management (for which purpose an annual sum to be calculated at a rate not exceeding 5*l.* per centum per annum upon the gross annual income of the Charity may be allowed) shall be applied by the Trustees, (subject to such reasonable regulations as they shall from time to time prescribe) in some or one of the following modes, that is to say :—

Application of income.

I. In the grants of annual pensions or sums to be calculated at a rate not exceeding 40*l.* per annum each to pensioners who shall be selected and appointed from time to time by the Trustees assembled at a meeting and shall be deserving poor persons, being liverymen or freemen of the said Company who from age, ill-health, accident, or infirmity shall be unable to maintain themselves by their own exertion or the widows of such persons, with a preference for such widows, and in all cases for those who being otherwise qualified as aforesaid shall have become reduced by misfortune from better circumstances.

II. In or towards assisting deserving poor persons, being liverymen or freemen of the said Company, but not being a master or warden or a member of the court of assistants of the said Company, to provide for the education of their children at any efficiently conducted schools by paying either wholly or in part the school fees of such children, or in awarding and paying gifts of not more than 5*l.* in each case to such children as aforesaid as rewards for meritorious conduct or proficiency in learning upon their leaving school and entering upon the duties of life.

III. In or towards placing or assisting to place any deserving poor persons having the qualifications mentioned in the last preceding clause, or the widows or children of such persons, at any well managed convalescent or other hospital or other similar institution, and in making any payment which may be necessary or proper for the accomplishment of those objects or either of them.

4. The particular schools or hospitals or institutions to be selected for the purposes aforesaid, and (within the limits aforesaid) the amount of the pensions, assistance, gifts, and payments to be granted, afforded, awarded, or made as aforesaid, shall be fixed and determined from time to time by the Trustees or a majority of them assembled at a duly constituted meeting.

5. The residue or surplus income of the Charity (if any) may, if the Trustees shall so think fit and determine, be applied and expended by them, subject to such reasonable rules and regulations as they may from time to time prescribe, in and towards the promotion of any one or more of the objects aforesaid in favour and for the benefit of any deserving poor persons not connected with the said Company being resident inhabitants within the city of London.

Residue.

6. If any doubt or question shall arise as to the construction or proper application of any of the provisions of this Scheme, or the management of the Charity, application may be made by the Trustees to the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales for their opinion or advice, which when given shall be conclusive upon all persons claiming under the trust who shall be affected thereby.

Questions to be referred to Commissioners.

Scaled by order of the Board this 7th day of January 1876.

CULVERWELL'S CHARITY.

Nicholas Culverwell, by will of the 22nd October 1569, gave 300*l.* to the Company, whereof 100*l.* to be lent to five of the poorest young men of the Company, and for the remaining 200*l.* the Company to pay 10*l.* a year to two of the poorest preachers, one at Christ's College, Cambridge, and one at Magdalen College, Oxford.

The Company appropriate 33*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, 3 per cent. consols, the interest or dividends on which, amounting to 10*l.* a year, is paid to two preachers at the universities, nominated by the Bishop of London. The present preachers are the Rev. W. D. Macray, at Magdalen College, Oxford, and the Rev. I. P. Sandberg, of Christ's College, Cambridge.

As to the 100*l.* to be lent out, I refer to my report upon the loan charities without interest.

MRS. ELIZABETH FREEMAN'S CHARITY.

Elizabeth Freeman, by Indenture of the 3rd December 1630, gave to the Company 100*l.*, they covenanting to pay 5*l.* a year for putting forth poor children, apprentices, in the parish of Aspeden, Herts.

The Company appropriate 166*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, 3 per cent. consols as representing this gift, and they pay the dividends or interest, amounting to 5*l.* a year, to Sir Henry Lushington, the present lord of the manor of Aspeden, to whom the selection of the objects is entrusted.

FRENCH'S CHARITY.

George French, by will of the 10th May 1699, directed his executor to pay 20 poor aged freemen of the Company or their widows 2*s.* 6*d.* each.

The Company having received 40*l.* in respect of this bequest, appropriate 83*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, 3 per cent. consols as nominally the capital fund, and pay 25*s.* each to two of the poor of the Company at the July distribution.

GALE'S CHARITY.

Thomas Gale, by will of the 27th August 1540, gave 50*l.* for the payment annually of 1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* to St. George, Botolph Lane, for the churchwardens to distribute,—

	s.	d.
To the clerk and beadle of the Company	-	2 0
To six poor housekeepers of the parish	-	4 0
To six poor haberdashers	-	4 0
And for an obit	-	16 8

Under a Covenant of the 1st September 1589 this gift was settled at an annual sum of 20*s.*, to be paid to the parson and churchwardens, which the latter were to distribute in certain portions amongst the poor of that parish, and the parson and churchwardens, the poor householders of the Company, and the clerk and beadle; but the practice at the last inquiry was, and still is, to pay the 20*s.* a year to the churchwardens, leaving the entire distribution to them; nothing is paid to the clerk or beadle of the Company, nor is there any evening service in the church at which the recipients could attend.

A nominal sum of 33*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* consols is appropriated as the capital of the Charity.

GARRETT OR GERRARD'S CHARITY.

The will of Henry Garrett, alias Gerrard, purported to devise to the Company, a house in Holborn, but it is stated that the devise was declared void, but that the Company purchased and again sold the house, reserving a quitrent of 1*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.* It is still paid to the Company as charged on two houses lately occupied by — Tregham, a confectioner, on the north side of Holborn, west of Hatton Garden. The Company pay 15*s.* a year to the Churchwardens of St. Sepulchre, and 6*s.* 8*d.* a year to the Churchwardens of St. James Clerkenwell.

GOURNAY'S CHARITY.

This is one of the loan charities, arising from the gift of 300*l.* by Richard Gournay, to be lent out at 5 per cent. and the interest to be given—

	£	s.	d.
To the poor of the Company	-	5	0 0
To Christ's Hospital	-	5	0 0
To a poor scholar studying Divinity at Oxford or Cambridge	-	5	0 0

There is no fund lent by the Company at interest, and therefore, notwithstanding the scheme, the sum is not appropriated as a loan charity. The Company charge themselves with a nominal sum of 500*l.*, 3 per cent. consols to produce 15*l.* a year, out of which they pay to an exhibitor at the University 5*l.* (the present exhibitor is Mr. N. G. Wilkins, of St. John's College, Cambridge); a further sum of 5*l.* to Christ's Hospital, and the remaining 5*l.* to the poor of the Company, in sums of 20*s.* each at the July distribution.

CATHARINE HALL'S CHARITY.

A loan charity, founded by the gift of 50*l.* by Catharine Hall, for which she directed that the young man of the Company receiving it should distribute a load of coals yearly to the poor. Like the other funds for which interest was to be paid (see Bowcher's, Gournay's, &c.), it is not lent, and the Company appropriate 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, 3 per cent. consols to meet an annual charge of 40*s.* settled as equivalent to a load of coals, which is given to two poor persons of the Company at the January court.

HABERDASHERS' COMPANY.

PART II.

HAMOND'S CHARITY.

Edmond Hamond, by will of the 25th February 1638, gave 400*l.* to the Company to purchase ground for building almshouses for six poor old men.

And he gave a rentcharge of 80*l.* issuing out of houses in Tower Street and Mincing Lane, in trust, as to 60*l.* a year for the almsmen and the remaining 20*l.* for 20 poor men or women of the Company on St. Katherine's day.

And he also gave 1,000*l.* to the Company to purchase so many rectory or rectories, parsonage or parsonages impropriate, as might be therewith purchased in fee simple, in the names of 12 or more persons of the said fraternity, and that to and for every one of the said rectories and parsonages, the said master and wardens and their successors should provide a learned and godly minister, there to be resident, to expound the word of God, and to preach there twice or once at the least every Sabbath day and there to celebrate divine service, and to perform christian duties, and that the yearly profits of the same parsonages or rectories should be given to such minister as should so continue there. And his will was that the said master and wardens, and their successors, should for ever have the nominating and appointing of the ministers to the said rectories and parsonages, and that they should provide such only as should have no spiritual living out of that parish for which he should be so provided, nor any cause of non-residency there, nor that shall absent himself above 40 days in any one year during the time that he should enjoy such rectory or parsonage impropriate, without the license or consent in writing of the master and wardens for the time being.

And he also gave to the Company 500*l.*, to be lent gratis to five young men of the Company, 100*l.* apiece for five years, silkmen, if any, to be preferred.

The almshouses which were erected on Snow Hill, and existed at the time of the last inquiry were pulled down in the year 1830. They were situated at the back of the stables in Cuck Lane, and were approached through a narrow court leading out of King Street, Snow Hill. The site occupying about 65 feet in length, and 33 feet in breadth, was demised to R. A. Smith, under an agreement for a lease for 61 years from Lady Day 1830, at a rent of 18*l.*, with a covenant to build a house and a carpenter's shed. The lessee built upon the site five tenements or cottages having a small garden in the front; and the lease which had previously been taken up was granted to the lessee of the Company on the 30th September 1846, whereby the tenements described as situated and numbered 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5, in Smith's Place, Snow Hill, in the parish of St. Sepulchre, in the city of London, were demised to Roddam Alethen Smith for 45 years from Lady Day 1846, at the said rent of 18*l.*, with covenants by the lessee for insurance and repairs. The inmates of the almshouses at the time of their removal were allowed 2*s.* a week each for lodgings. No appointments of Hamond's almsmen have been made since the almshouses were pulled down, but six poor freemen who must be single men are now elected as Hamond's pensioners. They each receive 10*l.* a year in quarterly payments, and in addition in lieu of lodgings five of them receive 1*l.* 9*s.* per annum, and the oldest pensioner receives 5*l.* 4*s.* a year in quarterly payments making together 12*l.* 9*s.*

Twenty poor of the Company also receive 20*s.* a year at the October court. The pensions and gifts exhaust the rentcharge of 80*l.* a year, which is received from the trustees of Capt. Briscoe, the proprietors of 15 houses forming the angle of Mincing Lane and Tower Street, and surrounding Hamond's Court.

The income and expenditure of the Charity appears, therefore, to be as follows:—

Income.		£	s.	d.
The rentcharge	-	80	0	0
The rents of the houses in Smith's Place	-	18	0	0
		£98	0	0

Disbursements.

Six pensioners	-	60	0	0
Twenty poor of the Company	-	20	0	0
				80	0	0
Allowances for the lodgings of pensioners	-			12	9	0
				£92	9	0

The remainder of the fund is exhausted by—

A quitrent of the Snow Hill property payable to the Dean and Chapter of Westminster	-	0	13	0
The charges of management at 5 per cent. taken by the Company	-	4	18	0
	-	£98	0	0

The gift for the purchase of impropriate rectories and the appointment thereto by the Company of godly ministers, was laid out in the purchase of the advowsons of the rectory of Awre and the chapelry of Blakeney, both in the county of Gloucester on the banks of the Severn.

The Company reserve to themselves the rectory and present to the vicarage.

	£	s.	d.
The vicarage of Awre was, previously to the year 1854, estimated at the annual value of	-	560	0 3
The perpetual curacy of Blakeney at the same time was estimated at	-	290	6 11
Making together	-	£850	7 2

This includes all the rectorial and vicarial tithes. The habit was formerly on the presentation to these livings, for the Company to demise the rectorial tithes to the incumbent reserving a rent to themselves. This rent was in 1826 a sum of 400*l.* This reservation was not continued after the presentation of Mr. Jordan to the curacy in 1831.

In 1854 a new ecclesiastical arrangement was made with the sanction of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners by which a portion of the vicarial tithes of Awre was annexed to the district chapelry of All Saints. By a lease of the 29th March 1854 the Company demised the tithe rentcharge in lieu of great tithes of Awre and Bledesloe and of part of the fishing of Haytor in the parish of Awre, to the present vicar, the Rev. Joseph Henry Malpas, until March 1863 at a pepper-corn rent. By a deed of the same date, made between the vicar of the first part, the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol of the second part, the Haberdashers' Company of the third part, and the Rev. Charles Brooksbank, described as the late chaplain, and now perpetual curate of the district chapelry of Blakeney, of the fourth part, reciting an Order in Council of the 8th August 1853, whereby a particular district was assigned to the church or chapel of All Saints in Blakeney. It was witnessed that the vicar in pursuance of his agreement therein mentioned and the Act of Parliament, thereby assigned to the Rev. Charles Brooksbank the tithes and glebe therein mentioned, to hold the same as perpetual curate of the district chapelry. Mr. Malpas was presented in 1826, and Mr. Brooksbank in 1843. The vicarage, however, has been rebuilt and enlarged during the incumbency of Mr. Malpas.

The presentations are made in cases of vacancy by the majority of the total number of members of the court present.

The vicar enters into a bond in the penal sum of 2,000*l.* to reside in the parish, to repair the house and chancel of the church and chapelry of Blakeney, and not to have any spiritual living out of the parish, nor absent himself above 40 days without the consent of the master and wardens, according to the terms of the will. I do not find that any bond has been entered into by the chaplain (and perpetual curate). There is no house belonging to the incumbent of the chapelry.

The sum of 500*l.* forms part of the loan fund which is lent without interest, under the scheme of the Court of Chancery mentioned in my Report on "Loans without Interest."*

W. AND M. HARRISON'S CHARITY.

William Harrison, by will of the 4th March 1619, gave to the Company 150*l.* for bread and clothing for poor aged or impotent persons of Allhallows Staining, London.

And Mrs. Mary Harrison, by her will of the 15th October 1656, gave 150*l.* to the Company for coals for poor aged women of Allhallows Staining.

The Company appropriate 391*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* 3*l.* per cent. consols, as producing an annual dividend of 11*l.* 15*s.*, which is paid annually at Michaelmas to the clerk of the parish of Allhallows Staining.

HAZELFOOT'S CHARITY.

Henry Hazlefoot, by indenture of the 22nd August 1646, conveyed to the use of the Company an estate called Pitley Farm of the yearly value of 70*l.*, to be distributed as follows:—

To the parish of St. Nicholas Cole Abbey, London	8
To the Company's poor	20
To buy corn	8
To St. Thomas's Hospital	8
To Christ's Hospital	5
To Bridewell Hospital	3
To St. Bartholomew's Hospital	4
To release prisoners	10
To the wardens 2 l. , clerk and beadles 2 l.	4

* EDMOND HAMOND'S CHARITY.

File 25445.

By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners, dated the 7th January 1876, a scheme was established for the regulation and management of the Charity of which the following is a copy.

HABERDASHERS' COMPANY.

General Charity.—EDMOND HAMMONDS.

CHARITY COMMISSION.

In the Matter of HAMMOND'S CHARITY, created by the will of EDMOND HAMMOND, dated the 25th day of February 1638.

THE Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, having considered an application in writing made to them on the 31st day of December 1874, in the matter of the above-mentioned Charity, by

The Master and Wardens of the Fraternity of the Art or Mystery of Haberdashers, in the city of London, being the Trustees of the said Charity acting by John Curtis, Esquire, their Clerk, duly authorised in that behalf.

And it appearing to the said Board, That it is desirable that a Scheme should be established for the future regulation of the said Charity, in manner herein-after mentioned:

And upon notice of the intention of the said Board to make an Order for that purpose, having been given, according to the direction of the said Board, more than one calendar month previously to the date hereof, by advertisement in the "Times" newspaper, on the 20th and 27th days of November and the 4th day of December 1875 respectively, and in the "Guardian" newspaper on the 24th day of November, and the 1st and 8th days of December respectively:

Do hereby order, That the Scheme set forth in the Schedule hereto be approved and established as the Scheme for the future regulation and management of the said Charity.

SCHEDULE.

Scheme for the Regulation and Management of the above-mentioned Charity.

Trustees.

1. The master and four wardens of the Fraternity of the Art or Mystery of Haberdashers, in the city of London, usually called "The Haberdashers' Company," shall continue to be the Trustees of the Charity, and shall and the rest and residue for the further increase of the Company's stock of corn.

The Commissioners of Inquiry suggested a question whether the surplus income of the estates devised by the donor were devised to Charity, or whether the charitable gifts were no more than a charge to that extent. On the 3rd June 1831 an information was filed by the Attorney-General at the relation of George Shoebridge, against the master and wardens of the fraternity of the art or mystery of Haberdashers within the city of London, stating, that the rents and profits of the said estate and premises had become of great yearly value and much more than sufficient for the purposes in the said indenture of release mentioned, and that in consequence of the increased and increasing revenues derived from the said estate and premises, it had become expedient that the said several and respective charities should be increased in proportion to the increased rents and profits of the said estates, and that a scheme or schemes should be approved of by one of the Masters of the Court for such purpose.

And praying that an account might be taken of the estates and premises belonging to the said Charity, and of all the particulars whereof the same consist, and also an account of the rents and profits, and the accumulations thereof from such time as the Court should think fit, and of their application, and that the same might be administered according to the intentions of the said H. Hazlefoot, or as near thereto as circumstances would admit. And that it might be referred to one of the Masters of the Court to approve of a scheme for the future application of the increased and increasing rents and profits of the said Charity estates, and if necessary that the said estates and premises might be conveyed and vested in trustees for the benefit of the said Charity.

The Court, by its decree of the 12th November 1832 dismissed the information, with costs. From this decree, manage and administer the same, and its endowments, in conformity with the provisions of this Scheme.

2. The Trustees may pay to their clerk, out of the yearly income of the Charity, an annual salary not exceeding 5*l.*, as a remuneration for his services in connection with the administration of the Charity, which shall consist in attending the meetings of the Trustees, keeping the accounts of the Charity, and the minute book of the Trustees and the register of the recipients, receiving the rents and income and making the several payments thereout, keeping a list of the applicants for the benefit of the Charity, and inquiring into and examining their respective characters, and circumstances and carrying on all necessary correspondence relating to the Charity.

Clerk,

3. The clear yearly income of the Charity, which shall remain after the payment thereof of the clerk's salary and all other necessary and proper outgoings and expenses of management, shall be applied by the Trustees (subject to such reasonable regulations as they shall from time to time prescribe) in the payment of annual pensions or sums of not more than 20*l.* each to the pensioners herein-after mentioned.

Application of income.

Annual pensions or sums not more than 20*l.*

4. The pensioners respectively shall be selected and appointed from time to time by the Trustees assembled at a meeting, and shall be deserving poor persons, liverymen or freemen of the said Company, who from age, ill health, accident, or infirmity shall be unable to maintain themselves by their own exertions, or the widows of such persons with a preference for those who being otherwise qualified as aforesaid shall have become reduced by misfortune from better circumstances.

Appoint-ments and qualifications of pensioners.

5. The Trustees shall, however, be at liberty to grant and pay out of the said income unto any person having the qualifications aforesaid, or unto the widow of such person, under circumstances of peculiar misfortune or distress a special donation of not more than 5*l.*, provided that no pensioner shall be eligible as a recipient of any such donation, and that every such recipient shall be selected and appointed by the Trustees assembled at a meeting.

Special donations.

8. If any doubt or question shall arise as to the construction or proper application of any of the provisions of this Scheme, or the management of the Charity, application may be made by the Trustees to the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales for their opinion or advice, which when given shall be conclusive upon all persons claiming under the trust who shall be affected thereby.

Questions to be referred to Commissioners.

Sealed by order of the Board this 7th day of January 1876.

L.S.

HENRY M. VANE,
Secretary

the relator appealed to the Lord Chancellor, who by his judgment of the 12th March 1834 (order drawn up 9th April 1834), affirmed the decree of the 12th November 1832.

I have perused the shorthand notes of the Lord Chancellor's judgment, and the decision appears to be placed on the ground that the direct object of the gift of 8*l.* and the residue, was merely to assist the Company in providing stacks of corn for sale, which it appeared the great companies had been formerly required by the Corporation of London to do at periods of apprehended scarcity.

The Company are still in possession of the estates in Essex, which produce an annual income considerably exceeding the charge.

In the administration of the Charity the 8*l.* given to buy corn, and the 20*l.* given to the poor of the Company, are added together and given away in gifts of 20*s.* each to 28 poor of the Company at the January court.

The respective sums are paid to the several hospitals, and to the parish of St. Nicholas. The 10*l.* for the release of prisoners has been hitherto paid over to the account of a "Fund for the Relief of Prisoners," which comprises, however, only this Charity. The application has been made by prisoners for debt in the London prisons, and sums varying from 20*l.* to 25*l.* have been given in late years; formerly not more than 10*l.* was given. One prisoner was released in 1854, another in 1856, another in 1858, and the last in 1860. There is, at present, a balance of 75*l.* to the credit of this division of the Charity.

HEWES' CHARITY.

A loan gift by John Hewes of 100*l.*, of which 75*l.* was lost at the time of the last inquiry. The borrowers were to be four, who were to pay 10*s.* a year each to the poor of the Company.

The Company in respect of the remaining 25*l.* set apart 16*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. consols, producing one sum of 10*s.* a year, which is given to a poor person of the Company at the January court.

HEYDON'S CHARITY.

John Heydon, by will of the 6th March 1579, gave 100*l.* to the Company to be lent to two young men at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per cent., to be paid to the Mercers' Company.

The Company reserve 11*l.* 2*s.* 3*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. stock as the supposed capital of this gift, which has not been lent for more than a century, and they pay 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* annually to the Mercers' Company.

HOBBY'S CHARITY.

John Hobby, by will of the 12th March 1674, gave 3,000*l.* to purchase lands of 170*l.* a year, of which 60*l.* a year was to be applied annually in clothing for 30 poor aged persons, of whom 12 were to be free of the Haberdashers' Company.

The settlement of the scheme for the administration of this Charity will be found in my Report on the Charities under the management of the Clothworkers' Company.

The Company is entitled to twelve-thirtieths of six-seventeenths of the income of the Charity for the clothing of 12 poor Haberdashers.

The portion of rents received by the Company has on the average of nine years been 67*l.* 7*s.* In the year 1861 it was 82*l.* 15*s.* 1*d.*

The Company in 1855 increased the number of recipients of clothing from 12 to 14, who receive clothing in the same manner, and nearly to the same value, as the clothing mentioned in Bond's Charity. There was a balance in favour of the Charity of undistributed funds of 169*l.* 0*s.* 6*d.* In reply to the question whether the Company would be allowed to increase the number of recipients, I have said that I had no doubt of the competency of the Company to do so, or of the propriety of doing it.

HOLDEN'S CHARITY.

Josh. Holden, in November 1680, gave to the Company 110*l.* to pay on the 5th November 10*s.* each to 10 poor people free of the Company.

This is represented by 166*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, 3 per cent. consols, part of the stock standing to the account of the Company.

The gift is made to five poor persons in sums of 1*l.* each at the October court, with Arnold's, Hazlefoot's, Hamond's, Kelke's, Hewes's, Somers's, and Peacock's Charities.

HUNTLOWE'S CHARITY.

Thomas Huntlowe, by indenture of the 28th January 1543, gave to the Company 50*l.* to pay 1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* amongst 10 almspeople in the almshouses in Staining Lane, and in 1547 he gave 200*l.* for the 10 poor almshouses. The almshouses in Staining Lane have not existed since the Fire of London. The Company had commuted all these payments by an increased payment to 10 poor freemen's widows of 3*l.* a year each.

Since the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 10, pp. 189, 190), the Company have revised the account of this Charity and charged themselves with as much or somewhat more than the sum of 250*l.* would produce if invested at 5 per cent., and nominally secured it by appropriating 422*l.* 4*s.* 5*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. consols, the dividends of which, amounting to 12*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, they distribute in pensions of 3*l.* a year each to four widows of freemen, paid quarterly; the same persons also participating frequently in other gifts. The 10 pensioners mentioned by the Commissioners of Inquiry were reduced by request of the court of assistants of 14th January 1833 to four persons, as vacancies occurred.

The sum of 13*s.* 4*d.* is paid to the clerk and beadle.

HUTCHINSON'S CHARITY.

A loan gift by John Hutchinson, in respect of which the Company received 68*l.* and for which they charge themselves with 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. consols, and pay 2*l.* a year to Christ's Hospital.

JESTON'S CHARITY.

Roger Jeston, by will of the 2nd April 1622, gave his messuages and lands in St. Giles', Cripplegate, to the Company, charged with the yearly sum of 102*l.* 12*s.*, as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To 6 poor old men of the Company	-	15	12 0
„ clerk of the Company	-	2	0 0
„ beadles and porter	-	2	0 0
„ his sister-in-law, and remainder to her three daughters and their heirs	-	20	0 0
„ the parish officers of Lambeth for the poor	-	3	0 0
„ the parish officers of Kinver, Staffordshire, for the poor	-	5	0 0
„ three poor scholars of Trinity College, Cambridge	-	20	0 0
„ Christ's Hospital	-	8	0 0
„ St. Thomas and St. Bartholomew (4 l. each)	-	8	0 0
„ wardens of the Company	-	4	0 0
„ Bridewell Hospital	-	4	0 0
„ preachers at St. Paul's Cross	-	5	0 0
„ lecturer at Lambeth	-	6	0 0

The will then contained directions for the application of the surplus, and also on certain contingencies of a portion of the above payments in maintenance of the buildings on the charity estate, with directions for an intermediate application of the same surplus in loans without interest to trimmers of hats and caps free of the Company:—

	£	s.	d.
The estate of this Charity consists of—
Nos. 1 to 6, Milton Street (Cripplegate), let to John Nesham on a building lease for 60 years from Lady Day 1830, at 50 l. a year	-	50	0 0
Nos. 1 to 18, Haberdashers' Square, at the back of the last-mentioned houses, let to Mr. G. A. Smith on a repairing lease for 30 years from Lady Day 1860, under the order of the Board, of the 3rd July 1860	-	120	0 0
3,031 l. 1 s. , 3 l. per cent. Reduced annuities, the accumulations of the surplus income of the estate	-	90	18 6
		260	18 6

There is out of this a charge of 4*l.* 4*s.* for the surveyor and 8*l.* 10*s.* to the account of the comptroller as charges of management at 5*l.* per cent. on the rental (not on the stock)

The fund is thus administered:—

	£	s.	d.
To six freemen of the Company, pensions of 2l. 12s. a year each in quarterly payments	15	12	0
The sum given annually by the master of the Company at the January court to some clergyman of the Church of England of his selection, in place of the gift to the preachers at St. Paul's Cross	5	0	0
The sum of 6l. 13s. 4d. each to three scholars of Trinity College, Cambridge, at the selection of the Bursar of the College, who inserts their names on his receipt	20	0	0
The churchwardens of Lambeth	3	0	0
The rector of Lambeth, in respect of the gift to the lecturer	6	0	0
The hospital of Bridewell	4	0	0
The St. Thomas' Hospital, by their Treasurer	4	0	0
The Bartholomew's Hospital, by their Treasurer	4	0	0
The churchwardens of Kinfare or Kinver, Staffordshire	5	0	0
The Company appears to have purchased of Christ's Hospital the annuity of 8l. a year payable to that institution, and it is now carried to the account of the Company	8	0	0
The gift of 20l. a year to the sister-in-law of the testator, with remainder to the three daughters and their heirs has been purchased by the Company	20	0	0
	94	12	0
The wardens, clerk, beadles, and porter of the Company receive	8	0	0
	£102	12	0

The residue is annually invested. The present amount of accumulations is above stated.

There is no probability that any occasion for the literal application of the fund will ever arise. There are not any persons of the class referred to likely to require the loans, and unless some useful application of the fund be devised, there is nothing to prevent the accumulation from continuing indefinitely.*

JOHNSON'S CHARITY.

Thomas Johnson, by will of the 3rd September 1563, gave to the Company 50l. to distribute quarterly to the neediest of the Company, 20s. in bread, &c. The Company appropriate 133l. 6s. 8d., 3l. per cent. consols to meet a disbursement of 4l. a year, which they divide equally amongst four poor persons free of the Company at the Midsummer quarter's distribution.

1. JONES' CHARITY.

William Jones, by his will of the 26th December 1614 (proved 6th October 1615), gave to the Company 9,000l. to ordain a preacher, a free school, and almshouses for 20 poor old diseased people of the town of Monmouth. The charity was established by letters patent of King James the First, of the 16th March 1614-5, whereby the Company was specially incorporated as "Governors of the possessions, revenues, and goods of the almshouses and free grammar school of William Jones, in Monmouth, in the county of Monmouth."

The buildings necessary for the preacher or lecturer, the school, the schoolmaster, and under master, and almshouses for 10 men and 10 women, were erected on land in Monmouth, purchased at the time of or soon after the foundation, and occupy the angle of Bridge Street and Almshouse Street, in the town of Monmouth.

The fund appropriated for the endowment was laid out in the purchase of the manor and estate of Hatcham Barnes, in the parish of St. Paul, Deptford, which I have in this report shortly distinguished from the other property of the Charity by the name of the Metropolitan Estate. This property has now become of great value, and having regard to its increasing magnitude, as the site of railway stations and vast building operations, its future importance must be enormous, and at present beyond the reach of calculation.

It comprises a large portion of the district on the London side of Deptford, where the London and Greenwich, London and Croydon, and the London and Brighton Railways, the South Eastern Railway, and the Thames Junction Railway, approach and intersect each other; and portions of the purchase money, which the several railway companies have paid for the land which they have taken, have been invested in the purchase of estates in Kent and Staffordshire. The acreage of the metropolitan estate north of the Kent Road, was 218a. 2r. 33p., and south of the Kent Road, 104a. 1r. 26p., making altogether 323a. 0r. 19p. This has, however, been reduced to about 300 acres by the quantities taken by the railways.

The condition and rental of the property of the Charity, as it is now held and let, will appear in the following table:—

Metropolitan Estate.

	£	s.	d.
Land, 90a. 2r. 2p., on the south side of the Kent Road, held under the lease to C. J. Holcombe, mentioned in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 10, pp. 203, 204)	120	3	0
Fine of 36l. every 7 years, average	5	2	10
Garden ground, 23a. 1r. 25p., next to Drake's land, on the west of the Brighton Railway, and 0a. 2r. 36p. land of the angle cut by the intersection of the Bricklayers' Arms Branch Railway and the Grand Surrey Canal, let to John Avann, yearly tenant	95	0	0
The lease to the executors of John Vanham (Rep., Vol. 10, p. 203), became vested in — Isaac, who after an agreement of the Company, which became the subject of a suit for specific performance, ultimately compromised the question between him and the governors of the Charity, by the order of the Board of the 19th January 1858	3	10	0
The same land is let in three portions, as follows:—
The house and garden.
The Warehousemen and Clerks' School, on agreement, March 1863	105	0	0

A scheme for the entire reconstruction of the Charity was settled by the Court of Chancery on the 26th July 1854, and is recorded in this office.

The disbursements on account of the Charity, under the new scheme now are :—

Lecturer.

£ s. d.

The Rev. J. D. Watherston, the lecturer, was appointed by the governors in 1859 (he was previously the head master of the school) - 175 0 0

He is provided with a good dwelling house.

The lecturer has the general superintendence of the Charity at Monmouth. He examines and reports to the governors the state of the school twice a year, and he has immediate superintendence of the almspeople, visiting them weekly, and keeping a report book. He has to perform a full service twice on Sundays, and on Ash Wednesday, Good Friday, and Ascension Day, and administer the Sacrament four times a year, with spiritual attendance on other occasions. (See clause 6 of the Statutes appended to this Report.)

The services are to be performed in the church, if it can be had for that purpose, and if not, it is to be performed in the schoolrooms, where the almspeople attend. The services are open to the public, and it is proposed to build a chapel, to contain not less than 250 persons.

School.

On the 13th July 1832 the salary of the lecturer was raised from 140*l.* to 150*l.*, and 10th May 1841 from 150*l.* to 175*l.* These advances were under orders of the Court of Chancery of those dates.

The Rev. C. M. Roberts, the head master of the school, was appointed in 1859. He is provided with a good dwelling-house.

The salary of the master was raised by the order of July 1832 from 120*l.* to 170*l.*, and by the order of the 10th May 1841 to 230*l.* - 230 0 0

The masters are elected by the governors on probation, and remain on trial for six months, at the expiration of which period the visitors are to report to the governors their opinions upon the character and abilities of the masters. (See Clause 36, p. 9, of the Statutes, which I append). The Statutes were settled by the Court of Chancery in 1854, and Clause 37 precludes the masters from taking boarders.

Mr. W. Pitt, the usher, or second master, was appointed in 1853 third master, and in 1857 second master.

The salary of the usher was by the order of the Court of Chancery of the 13th July 1832 raised from 60*l.* to 80*l.*, and by order of 10th May 1841 from 80*l.* to 130*l.* - 130 0 0

He is also provided with a dwelling-house.

Mr. W. Rogeveal, is the third master; he was appointed in 1858. This office was constituted by the Court of Chancery by its order of the 26th July 1854, at a salary of 100*l.* The governors in consideration of the third master having no house, have increased the salary to 120*l.* - 120 0 0

The writing master.—This office was constituted by the order of the Court of Chancery of the 5th August 1828, at a salary of 60*l.*, which was increased on the 10th May 1841 to 90*l.* - 90 0 0

The present writing master is Mr. Robert Earle, who was appointed in July 1862.

He has no dwelling-house allowed him by the Charity.

The examiner.—This office was constituted by the order of the 13th January 1852, and confirmed by the scheme of the 26th July 1854. Under the scheme of 26th July 1854 he is to be allowed 10*l.* for each half-yearly examination, besides his travelling and other expenses. His qualifications are defined by Clause 34 of the Rules appended hereto. The last Report of the examiner on the school is appended - 41 0 0

Books and stationery, average of nine years - 49 0 0

Coals, clock, and sundries - 40 0 0

The exhibitions.—The sum applicable to this purpose is uncertain, inasmuch as the class of youth attending the school is not such as can afford a maintenance at the University, with the small assistance which the exhibition affords - 30 0 0

At present there is only one exhibitor. In 1858 there were two.

The surplus of the income of the Charity will, therefore, amount to upwards of 1,000*l.* a year.

It is expected that there will be a disbursement of about 100*l.* in repairs on the farm buildings on Lycett's farm, in the Staffordshire estate, in the present year.

The directions of the scheme of 26th July 1854 for the application of the income of the Charity and the surplus are as follows:—

The governors shall pay out of the income of the Charity the necessary repairs and outgoings in respect of the Charity estates and buildings, and the costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred by themselves, and the visitors, in and about the performance of their duties as governors and visitors; and also the following stipends; that is to say,—

To the lecturer, 175*l.* per annum.

„ head master, 230*l.* per annum.

„ second master, 130*l.* „

„ third master, 100*l.* „

„ writing master, 90*l.* „

„ examiner, 20*l.* per annum, and his travelling and other expenses not exceeding 21*l.* per annum.

To the two exhibitors, 30*l.* per annum.

To the clerk of the Haberdashers' Company for receiving the rents and dividends and transacting the ordinary business of the Charity, including attendance on all committees, both ordinary and special, a salary not less than 90*l.* nor more than 135*l.* per annum, at the discretion of the governors.

To the surveyor of the Company, for surveying the Charity estates and buildings and reporting thereon, including attendance on the courts and committees when required by the governors, a salary of not less than 50*l.* nor more than 75*l.*, at the discretion of the governors.

Provided, that it shall be lawful for the governors, if they shall think fit and the funds shall be sufficient for that purpose, to increase the salaries of the lecturer and masters, including the writing master, or any of them, by any amount not exceeding 25*l.* per cent. on the stipend herein-after directed to be paid to them respectively, and to increase the number of exhibitors to any number not exceeding four, and the stipend of each exhibitor to any sum not exceeding 50*l.* per annum.

After making the payments mentioned in the last clause, and paying the allowances to the almspeople, and paying to a nurse for the almspeople 10*s.* a week, and to an apothecary for the almspeople 15*l.* a year, and providing cloaks for the almspeople, and applying such sum not exceeding 30*l.* in any one year as the governors shall think fit in purchasing books for the school library, and such sum not exceeding 20*l.* per annum as they shall think fit, for prizes, not exceeding 5*l.* for each prize, the remainder of the income shall be invested by the governors in Government stock by way of addition to the property of the Charity, and the dividends of the stock so purchased shall be considered and dealt with as income of the Charity property.

The present visitors are:—

Archdeacon Crawley, Bryngwin.

Rev. J. L. Dighton, The Garth, near Monmouth.

Rev. E. F. Arney, Monmouth.

Rev. J. Burdon, English Bicknor, Gloucestershire.

Rev. Edwd. Machen, Staunton, near Coleford.

J. E. W. Rolls, Esq., The Hendre.

J. F. Brickdale, Esq., Newland.

S. R. Bosanquet, Esq., Dingeston Court.

H. M. Clifford, Esq., M.P., Llantillio.

Owen Jones, Esq., Newnham.

Captain James Davis Garth.

George Griffin Tyler, Esq.

It has been suggested on behalf of the town council, that the mayor, ex officio, should be a visitor; but on this point, I am informed that the inhabitants are not unanimous. The Rev. E. F. Arney is the vicar of Monmouth, but is not ex officio visitor. The admission of both, the vicar and the mayor, as visitors, ex officio, would be a proper regulation.

Under the scheme of 1854, the school is limited to 100 boys, who are to be of the borough of Monmouth, and the counties of Monmouth, Hereford, and Gloucester (clause 12). The 100 boys are to be educated entirely free of expense.

The school is divided into the classical and the commercial divisions, the respective courses of instruction in which are settled by the clauses 27, 28, and 29 of the rules, appended to this Report. I am informed that the number of boys in the classical school is 19, of the average age of 13 years; and the number in the commercial school 81, of the average age of 11. The boys, however, are kept altogether in one schoolroom. The schoolroom, as far as I can ascertain by a scale on the map, is about 62 feet by 38 feet.

There are constantly more applicants for admission to the school, than there are vacancies. At the last election there were 22 candidates, and only six vacancies. There is no payment whatever made by the boys, who are admitted by the visitors at their quarterly meetings, the Company exercising no control over their nomination. The last scheme in increasing the exhibitions to four, extended them to the University of Durham and St. David's College, Lampeter, as well as to the English Universities. I append a letter of the head master in reply to my inquiry on the condition of the school, together with the last report of Mr. Seeley, the examiner.

The governors have intimated their intention, at the instance of the visitors, to hire a field on the estate of the Duke of Beaufort on the other side of the Wye, as an exercise and cricket ground for the boys. It has also been proposed to build a chapel on the land belonging to the Charity for the use of the lecturer, capable of containing not less than 250 persons.

A deputation of inhabitants of Monmouth who attended my inquiry, stated that the people of the town were anxious that these plans of improvement should be greatly extended, that instead of the chapel being built in a confined situation, restricting also thereby the space which they required as desirable to form a site for the extension of the school buildings, they wish the chapel to be a building of much greater capacity, and to be erected on the opposite side of St. Mary Street, where it would in their opinion form a great public improvement in the town. It is stated that what is now the site of an old malthouse might be procured on easy terms, and would be a good position for the new building.

The municipal council of Monmouth nominate three candidates for any vacancy in the almshouses, returning the number of votes for each candidate. The almspeople consist of 10 men and 10 women, and a vacancy when it occurs is reported to the Company by the lecturer. On the receipt of the three names the court of the Company elect one.

It is customary, I am informed, although I do not see anything in the rules on the subject, to exclude any applicants to the almshouses who have received parish relief during the preceding two years. It might, I should think, be desirable if the governors approved of it, to release them from this restriction, and also from the clause which confines the almspeople to those who are sole and unmarried.

There is a national school at Monmouth, supported by voluntary contributions, and other donations, the number of scholars in which is much diminished by their being drafted off to this school, to avoid the payment of three-pence per week, and the consequence is, that the class of boys attending the endowed school in the largest numbers is so low, that the school is rendered of comparatively small value to the classes of the inhabitants who are in better condition. I am told that there were formerly 110 boys in the national school, and they are now reduced to 60.

The girls' school, which is not thus interfered with, maintains its number of upwards of 100.

The master of the endowed school has often had excuses for non-attendance of the boys on the ground that they had not shoes to wear.

The professional men in the town, I am informed, habitually send their sons to other places of education. It is greatly desired that the school should be raised and made one of the highest class, and the respectable inhabitants are perfectly willing that capitation fees of two or four guineas a year should be imposed for instruction of the best and most comprehensive character.

The funds arising from this endowment even at the present time, and the income which may hereafter be expected, are so large that I forbear any consideration of what might be done for the improvement of schools of the limited character of those which have been already established in Monmouth. There are ample means of establishing educational institutions in the town of Monmouth to render it a great collegiate centre for the adjacent English and Welsh counties. Not only school buildings, halls for instruction of large numbers of all classes, and in all subjects and kinds of study and exercise may be established, but houses might be erected for the habitation of boarders, from a distance, which may be let to fitting persons, retaining the control in the heads of the college, to secure the moral and physical welfare of the scholars. The inhabitants of every class may at the same time obtain the best teaching that the kingdom can offer at the most moderate rates of payment, which will be far more beneficial to them than the establishment of schools free of payment. It is sufficient, at present, to point out the opportunity which this endowment affords of adopting at Monmouth the most comprehensive scheme of public education which has ever yet been devised; and one which may lead the way to national improvement.

After all has been done that can be effected by means of the best institution that can be established in Monmouth at no distant time, the funds of the endowment will probably far exceed all that needs to be or can be properly expended in its maintenance. It will then be for the Legislature to consider the principles which should be applied to the government of endowments. A cypres system might of course cover the whole of South Wales with free schools and almshouses, but it may be hoped that no such pernicious waste will be permitted. The whole of this Charity might form an experiment and an example for the future. It contains most of the elements which are offered for consideration in such cases, an estate originally devoted to limited purposes, becoming disproportionately large in comparison with its objects, the establishment of a free school at a period when nothing was done by the State for the general education of the people, and provision for a certain number of the aged poor of a small country town, before the Poor Law had come into general operation.

The estate dedicated to these purposes lies in what is in modern times the centre of a vast population, standing as much in need of aid as any in the kingdom, whilst the locality for which the benefit was designed does not greatly differ, or not more than the average of other places, from its original condition. The question to be decided is, whether the exceptional law which sets apart this portion of the soil and property of the kingdom for perpetual uses for youth and age requiring special assistance, shall be administered in a literal and servile compliance with the dictates of a testator who lived two centuries and a half ago, or according to the wants and the judgment of the generation in which we live.

2. JONES' CHARITY.

William Jones also by Will gave to the parish of Newland, Gloucestershire, for the poor and for the preacher 5,000*l.* to be paid into the hands of the Company.

The parish of Newland is about six miles from Monmouth, where the other great portion of the founder's Charity is situated.

The decree of the Court of Chancery of the 13th December 1701, adjust the claims of this Charity as against the other investment of the Company, and the Company was thereby charged with 200*l.* per annum in respect of this gift, and it was thereby further ordered that the Company should set out of their own lands of inheritance, or else purchase as much lands of inheritance as would effectually answer to the said Charity 200*l.* per annum, and that were not subject to any other charities or incumbrances.

No lands have been purchased, but the Company appropriate 6,666*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. consols, part of the stock belonging to them producing 200*l.* per annum to meet this charge.

There are 10 almshouses in the parish of Newland with a small garden, together with a house for the lecturer. The buildings are old, having been erected not long after the foundation upon two acres of land purchased in 1617. The Charity was incorporated by the Charter 17 Jas. 1st, and the Haberdashers' Company were thereby appointed "governors of the possessions, revenues, and goods of the "almshouse of William Jones, in the parish of Newland, "in the county of Gloucester."

The governors appoint a lecturer, who is at present the Rev. George Ridout, and who has filled the office more than 50 years. He is also the vicar of the parish. He receives annually a stipend of 69*l.* 2*s.* 10*d.*

There are 16 almshouses consisting of an equal number of men and women. Some of the 10 houses are double, and are inhabited by two men or two women. The almshouses receive 3*s.* a week each, making altogether 124*l.* 16*s.* To this the governors have lately added a donation of five tons of coals, at an expense of about 2*l.* 15*s.*

Once in two years the Company give them cloaks and gowns. In 1860, the Company expended in this way 18*l.* 2*s.* 4*d.*, and on the visits of the deputation they generally receive 2*s.* 6*d.* apiece.

A nurse is occasionally employed for attendance on the people. The expense of this varies from 4*l.* to 10*l.*, according to circumstances.

The repairs of the almshouses vary from 3*l.* to 6*l.* The governors also pay 3*l.* 15*s.* a year for insurance.

These charges constantly exceed the liability of 200*l.* a year. In 1861, when there were no cloaks and gowns, and no deputation, the payments amounted to 209*l.* 12*s.* 10*d.

* JONES' MONMOUTH CHARITY.

23 July 1861. By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners of this date, the Company were authorised to construct certain new roads through a portion of the Trust estate at Hatcham, at a cost not exceeding 530*l.* to be provided out of surplus income of the Charity.

10 May 1864. By an order of the said Board of this date, the Company were empowered to erect and fit up new schoolroom, chapel, and other buildings for the purposes of the Charity at a cost not exceeding 4,800*l.*, to be provided out of funds arising from accumulations of surplus income.

29 July 1864. By an order of the said Board of this date, an Agreement was sanctioned for the grant by the Company to Mr. Robert Wallbutton of building leases of 4*a.* 0*r.* 4*p.* of land in Kent Road, Hatcham, for 81 years, at the ultimate annual rent of 200*l.*

Several orders authorising the grant of leases under the foregoing Agreement were subsequently made by the Board.

20 June 1865. By an order of the said Board of this date, an Agreement was sanctioned for the grant to Mr. Thomas Letts of building leases of 0*a.* 1*r.* 12*p.* of land in Hatcham, for 51 years, at the ultimate annual rent of 32*l.*, and orders authorising leases thereunder were subsequently made.

25 June 1867. By four certificates of the said Board of this date, the Company were authorised to take proceedings against (1) the East London Railway Company for enforcing the completion of the purchase at the sum of 20,500*l.* of 22*a.* 3*r.* 20*p.* of land, at Hatcham; (2) the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway Company for enforcing the completion of the purchase at the sum of 850*l.* of 3*a.* 0*r.* 26*p.* of land, at Hatcham; (3) the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway Company for enforcing the payment of 6,500*l.* assessed as the amount of purchase and compensation money for land taken by them at Hatcham, and for recovering possession of certain additional pieces of land which had been taken by them at the price of 250*l.*; and (4) the Crystal Palace and South London Junction Railway Company for enforcing the payment of the sum of 4,006*l.*, being the assessed amount of the purchase and compensation money for 11*a.* 1*r.* 7*p.* of land taken by them at Hatcham aforesaid.

7 Apr. 1868. By an order of the said Board of this date, the Company were authorised to effect the purchase of the leasehold interest of Mr. Joseph Alfred Hardcastle, in premises at Hatcham aforesaid, at the sum of 4,000*l.* with such moneys as should be placed at the disposal of the Company for that purpose by the Court of Chancery.

26 June 1868. By an order of the said Board of this date, the following scheme was established for the future regulation of the Charity:—

SCHEME FOR THE REGULATION AND MANAGEMENT OF THE ABOVE-MENTIONED CHARITY.

Governors.

Governors. 1. The Haberdashers' Company, in the City of London, and their successors (herein-after called "The Governors"), shall be the Trustees or Governors of the Charity, subject to and in conformity with the provisions of this scheme.

Clerk and Surveyor.

Clerk and Surveyor. 2. The Governors may appoint and employ a Clerk and Surveyor to the Charity, at reasonable annual salaries to be fixed by them, and to be paid out of the income of the Charity, and may prescribe the duties to be performed by such Clerk and Surveyor respectively.

Buildings.

Insurance, repairs, and expenses of administration. 3. All rates and taxes chargeable upon the Almshouse, School buildings, and Chapel, and the Lecturer's and Masters's residences shall be paid by the Governors out of the income of the Endowment; and the same premises, together with all other houses and buildings belonging to the Charity which the lessees or tenants shall not be bound to insure and repair, shall be insured against fire and maintained and kept in substantial repair by the Governors, and the cost of such insurance and repairs, and the proper expenses attending the management and administration of the Charity and its property, shall be defrayed by the Governors, in the first instance, out of the income.

Visitors.

4. There shall be a body of Visitors who shall have the local superintendence and direction of the affairs of the Charity, subject to and in conformity with the provisions of this scheme. The full number of Visitors shall be twelve. The Vicar of Monmouth and his successors for the time being shall be a Visitor ex officio, and shall be entitled to act in that capacity during his tenure of the Vicarage, upon his signing a memorandum, to be entered in the minute book of the Visitors, signifying his wish to accept the office of Visitor. The other eleven Visitors shall be fit and competent persons, two being resident in the Borough of Monmouth, and the remaining nine within the distance of twenty-five miles from the school-house in Monmouth belonging to the Charity, measured in a straight line upon the Ordnance map, and shall be nominated and appointed from time to time by "The Governors." The present Visitors shall continue to hold the office, subject to the provisions of this scheme.

5. If any Visitor (other than the Vicar of Monmouth) shall become bankrupt or incapacitated to act, or shall cease to be resident as aforesaid, or shall not attend any meeting of the Visitors during a consecutive period of two years, a memorandum or minute to that effect shall in any of such cases be entered in the Minute Book of the Visitors, in pursuance of a resolution of their body, and signed by their Chairman, and such Visitor shall thereupon immediately vacate and cease to hold his office; and thereupon, or upon the death or resignation of any Visitor, a new Visitor, qualified as aforesaid, shall be appointed, by a resolution of the Governors, as soon as conveniently may be after the occurrence of such vacancy.

6. The Visitors shall hold meetings in a room to be provided and appropriated for that purpose in the buildings belonging to the Charity, or in some other convenient place in Monmouth, as often as may be found necessary, and at least in each year, upon some convenient day to be appointed by them from time to time, in the months of March, June, September, and December respectively. One of the Visitors, to be appointed by the Governors as soon as conveniently may be after the establishment of this scheme, shall be the Chairman, and when present shall preside at every meeting of the Visitors. In the absence of the regular Chairman from any meeting, one of the Visitors to be elected by those present, shall act as the Chairman at such meeting; and in the event of the death, resignation, or incapacity of the first or any subsequent Chairman, or upon his ceasing to be a Visitor, another Chairman shall be appointed, in like manner, by the Governors. Four Visitors shall form a quorum at any meeting. Any two Visitors, or their Secretary, at their request, may summon a special meeting, giving ten days' previous notice in writing to each of the other Visitors, and specifying in such notice the object of such meeting.

All matters and questions shall be determined by the majority of the Visitors present at any meeting; and in case of equality of votes, the Chairman shall have a double or casting vote.

The Visitors shall cause proper minutes of their proceedings to be prepared and kept in suitable books to be provided for the purpose. They shall send an authenticated copy thereof half-yearly to the Governors.

7. The Visitors shall be at liberty, from time to time, to appoint a Secretary for their assistance in the performance of their duties, at a yearly salary, to be fixed by them with the approval of the Governors. The Secretary's salary, and all other reasonable and proper charges and expenses of the Visitors incidental to the discharge of their duties, shall be paid by the Governors out of the income of the Charity. The Lecturer may, if the Visitors so think fit, be appointed to the office of Secretary. The Secretary may be removed at any time by the Visitors; who may also fix and pre-

Secretary and expenses of Visitors.

3. JONES' CHARITY.

William Jones also by his will gave to the Company 1,440*l.* for the maintenance of nine poor of the Company, at 8*l.* a year each.

scribe, from time to time, the duties to be performed by him.

The Almshouses.

8. The Almshouse buildings belonging to the Charity shall be appropriated and used for the occupation of twenty almspeople, ten of whom shall be men and ten women, being respectively poor single persons of good character, widows, or never having been married, who shall have resided in the town or borough of Monmouth, without having received any parochial relief during the period of not less than two years next preceding the time of their appointment, and who from age, ill-health, accident, or infirmity, shall be unable to maintain themselves by their own exertions, with a preference for those persons who, being otherwise qualified as aforesaid, shall have become reduced by misfortune from better circumstances. For want of a sufficient number of duly qualified candidates resident in the town or borough of Monmouth, residents (having the like qualifications) in the county of Monmouth, shall be eligible for appointment.

9. There shall be paid to each alms-person out of the income of the Charity such a weekly sum being not less than 8*s.*, and not more than 12*s.*, as shall be fixed and determined from time to time by the Governors; and each alms-person, in addition to such weekly stipend, shall be provided by the Governors with two tons of coal annually, and with a cloth cloak and escutcheon or badge (such as has been heretofore worn) at Christmas in every alternate year. The cloak of each alms-person, with the escutcheon or badge worn thereon, shall however remain the property of the Governors, and shall be delivered to the successor of such alms-person upon his or her appointment.

10. Within the period of three calendar months from the occurrence of every vacancy in the Almshouses, the Visitors shall elect a duly qualified person to fill such vacancy, at a special meeting to be held for the purpose; and shall cause every such election to be forthwith notified to the Governors for approval and confirmation, without which the same shall not be complete. In default of such election being so made and notified by the Visitors to the Governors before the expiration of three calendar months after the occurrence of a vacancy in the Almshouses, the appointment shall, for that occasion, be made by the Governors.

11. No election shall be made by the Visitors to fill a vacancy in the Almshouses until a notice of such vacancy, specifying the qualification required from candidates, shall have been affixed to or near the principal outer door or entrance-gate of the Chapel, and of the Parish Church of Monmouth respectively, for the period of fifteen days at the least, which notice shall be given in every case before the expiration of one calendar month from the occurrence of the vacancy.

12. A book shall be provided and kept under the direction of the Visitors, in which shall be entered the names, ages, and descriptions of all persons appointed to the Almshouses, together with the dates of their respective appointments, and the date and occasion of every vacancy.

13. Applications for admission to the Almshouse, shall be made to the Visitors or to their Secretary, in writing; and every applicant must be prepared with sufficient testimonials and other evidence of his or her qualification for the appointment.

14. The Visitors may, if they so think fit, provide a nurse or nurses for the almspeople or any of them, in case of illness or infirmity, and they may also appoint a Medical Officer to attend upon the almspeople and to supply them with medicines and such medical appliances as may be necessary, at a yearly salary not exceeding 30*l.*; such salary to include the cost of such medicines and appliances, and such salary and the remuneration to be assigned by the Visitors to any nurses shall be provided and paid by the Governors out of the income of the Charity. In case of emergency the appointment of a nurse may be made temporarily by the Lecturer until a meeting of the Visitors shall be held, at which such appointment may be confirmed or otherwise.

15. No alms-person shall be absent from the Almshouse for a period exceeding 24 hours, without the consent in writing of the Lecturer, or of some one of the Visitors, but in special cases such consent may for any sufficient reason be given retrospectively after the absence has occurred.

The Company nominally appropriate 2,400*l.*, 3*l.* per cent. consols, producing 72*l.* a year for the payment of nine pensioners, freemen of the Company.

16. The Almspeople shall attend Divine Service together in the Chapel of the establishment, once at least on every Sunday, and on every Good Friday and Christmas Day, unless prevented by illness or infirmity, or some other sufficient cause to be approved by the Lecturer.

17. If any alms-person shall be guilty of insobriety, insubordination, breach of rules, or immoral or unbecoming conduct, or shall in the opinion of the Visitors, from any cause become disqualified from retaining his or her appointment, or if in any case it should appear that any alms-person has been appointed without having the required qualifications, the Visitors, upon proof thereof to their satisfaction, may remove such alms-person, and take possession of the house or tenement occupied by him or her, and may proceed to elect another alms-person in his or her place; or in any such case (except that of disqualification) the Visitors may, if they so think fit, direct that the payment of the stipend of such alms-person shall be suspended, either wholly or in part, during such time as they shall think fit and expedient.

18. No alms-person shall be permitted to let or part with the possession of the room or rooms allotted to him or her, or to suffer any stranger to occupy the same, or any part thereof.

The Lecturer.

19. There shall be a Lecturer for the purposes of the Charity, who shall be appointed as often as there may be occasion by the Governors, and who shall be a graduate of Oxford or Cambridge, and a clergyman in priest's orders of the established Church.

20. Every future Lecturer, previous to entering into Office, shall be required to sign a declaration to be entered in the Minute Book of the Visitors in the following terms, viz. :—

"I, A.B., declare that I will always discharge to the best of my abilities the duties of Lecturer of Jones' Monmouth Charity, and that in case I am removed by the Governors I will thereupon relinquish all claim to the office and its future emolument, and will deliver up possession of the Chapel of the Official Residence to the Governors as they shall direct; and also that it shall be lawful for them to take possession of the Chapel and my Official Residence and of all property of the Charity held by me, without ejectment or process of law."

21. The duty of the Lecturer shall be to perform Divine Service in the Chapel of the establishment twice on Sunday, Good Friday, and Christmas Day, and once at least on every Ash Wednesday and Ascension Day, and to administer the sacrament of the Lord's Supper in the Chapel to the alms-people and others, six times at least in each year; to afford religious consolation to the alms-people upon all fitting occasions; to visit and inspect the rooms and domestic arrangements of the alms-people weekly, or at such intervals or times as may be directed by the Visitors; and to report in writing to the Visitors all matters connected with the Almshouses or alms-people which may require correction or notice, which Report shall be entered upon their Minutes.

22. A yearly stipend of 200*l.* shall be paid to the Lecturer by equal half-yearly payments out of the income of the Charity, and he shall also have the use and enjoyment, rent-free, of the Official Residence to be provided for him by the Governors, which shall be maintained in substantial repair at the cost of the Charity. The Lecturer shall continually reside in and occupy his Official Residence, and shall not let or permit any other person, not being a member of his own family, to reside in or occupy the same or any part thereof, and he shall not accept or hold any other office or appointment (except that of Secretary to the Visitors), or absent himself from his residence for more than six weeks, continuously or incontinuously, during any one year, except with the express permission of the Governors.

23. The Lecturer may be removed at any time from his Office by the Governors, either upon representation made to them by the Visitors or otherwise, for neglect or breach of duty, legal incapacity or unbecoming conduct, or any other sufficient cause, of which the Governors shall be the sole and final Judges.

4. JONES' CHARITY.

William Jones, by his will, gave to the Company a house in Size Lane, which cost 1,000*l.*, and a sum of 600*l.* to some learned and faithful preacher, to be appointed by the Company.

The endowment of this lectureship, which is called the "Golden Lecture," and is delivered now at the church of

The Schools.

Upper and Lower Schools.

24. The School belonging to the Charity shall be separated into two branches or divisions consisting of "The Upper or Classical School," and "The Lower or Commercial School."

Head Master.

25. There shall be a Head Master, who, subject to the superior authority of the Governors and Visitors, shall have the general superintendence and control of both branches of the School, and the Masters and Teachers thereof, and shall be responsible for the conduct of the entire School.

Lower Master.

26. There shall also be a "Lower Master," who shall have the immediate conduct of the Lower or Commercial School, subject to the superintendence of the Head Master, and to the authority of the Governors and Visitors, Qualification of Head and Lower Masters.

27. The "Head Master" and the "Lower Master" shall be members of the Church of England, and competent to discharge the duties required of them respectively by this scheme. The Head Master shall be a graduate of one of the English Universities, or of the University of Dublin. The Lower Master shall either be such a graduate, or shall hold a certificate of competency from the Committee of Council on education.

Declaration to be signed by Masters on appointment.

28. Every future Head Master and Lower Master, previously to entering into office, shall be required to sign a declaration to be entered in the Minute Book of the Visitors, in the following terms:—

"I, A.B., declare that I will always discharge to the best of my ability the duties of Head Master (or Lower Master) of Jones's endowed School at Monmouth, and that in case I shall be removed by the Governors, I will thereupon relinquish all claim to the Office and its future emolument, and will deliver up possession of the School and Official Residence (if any) to the Governors as they shall direct; and also that it shall be lawful for them, if occasion shall be, to take possession of the School building and my Official Residence (if any), and of all property of the Charity held by me, without ejectment or process of law."

Appointment and removal of Head and Lower Masters.

29. The appointment of the Head Master and the Lower Master respectively shall rest with the Governors, who, in every case, shall give reasonable public notice by advertisement in the local and University newspapers, or by other sufficient means, before making the appointment, inviting all persons who may wish to be Candidates to apply and send testimonials of their qualification. The Head Master and Lower Master respectively shall be removed by the Governors, upon any representation addressed to them by the Visitors, in pursuance of a resolution adopted at a meeting of the Visitors by not less than two-thirds of the entire number of Visitors for the time being, stating that in the judgment of the Visitors the removal of such Master has become necessary or desirable in the interest of the Schools. The Visitors shall, however, in every such case, cause a copy of such resolution, authenticated by the signature of their Secretary or of the Chairman of the meeting, to be delivered or sent to the Master affected thereby; and no Master shall be removed under the aforesaid provisions (except for some specific misconduct inquired into and established to the satisfaction of the Visitors), until after the expiration of six calendar months after the delivery or transmission to him of the said copy of the said resolution. The Governors shall also have the power of removing any Master if they shall so think fit, without any such representation from the Visitors, for any reasonable cause to be judged of and determined by the Governors.

Residence &c. of Masters.

30. The Head Master and Lower Master respectively shall be required to reside constantly in their respective Official School residences, except during the vacations; and they shall not be at liberty to let or part with the possession of their said residences; and they shall personally instruct the Scholars free of any charge, except as herein-after mentioned; and shall devote their whole time and attention to the duties of their respective offices (except as after mentioned).

Neither the Head Master nor the Lower Master shall be at liberty to hold any ecclesiastical benefice with cure of souls, or, except with the permission of the Governors, any other office of emolument during their respective tenure of office.

Assistant Masters.

31. The Head Master, with the consent and approval of the Visitors, may, from time to time, appoint any Assistant Masters or Teachers, as may be found necessary for the conduct of either branch of the School, but the scale of salaries to be paid to such Assistant Masters and Teachers respectively out of the income of the Charity shall, in the first instance, be submitted to and approved by the Governors. Every such Assistant Master and Teacher may be at any time removed by the Head Master, with the consent of the Visitors.

Admission to School.

32. So far as the extent of accommodation will admit, and subject to the control of the Visitors, and to such regulations as they shall from time to time prescribe for testing the proficiency of candidates for admission in subjects of primary or elementary knowledge, the School shall be open, as to each of its branches, for the reception and instruction of boys between the ages of 8 and 16 years applying for admission, and not suffering from any infectious disorder; but no boy shall be entitled to remain at the School after he shall have completed the age of 18 years, without the permission of the Visitors, to be given after consulting the Head Master.

33. The Upper or Classical School shall be open to applicants from any part of England or Wales, preference being given between Candidates, in other respects equally eligible, to those born or whose parents or guardians reside within the Town or Borough of Monmouth.

The Lower or Commercial School shall be open to applicants born, or whose parents or guardians reside within the Town or Borough of Monmouth, or one of the Counties of Monmouth, Hereford, and Gloucester, preference being given between candidates, in other respects equally eligible, to those of the said Town or Borough.

34. All applications for admission to either branch of the School shall be made to the Head Master, who shall cause a Register to be kept of such applications and also of the Scholars in each branch of the School, specifying their respective names and ages and the places of residence and descriptions of their Parents, and the dates of their admissions.

Suspension or expulsion of Scholars.

35. Any Scholar guilty of insubordination or other misconduct, whether in or out of School hours, may be suspended by the Head Master, but every such suspension shall be forthwith reported by the Head Master, together with a statement or explanation of the circumstances attending the same, to the visitors, who may thereupon expel or continue the suspension of such Scholar.

Instruction.

36. The subjects to be taught in the Upper or Classical School, shall comprise the Greek and Latin languages, mathematics, algebra, arithmetic, practical geometry and surveying, English grammar and literature, history, geography, and writing, the French and German languages, and drawing.

The subjects to be taught in the Lower or Commercial School shall comprise reading, writing, spelling, English grammar, arithmetic, elementary mathematics, book-keeping, land mensuration, general history and geography, French, and the elements of Latin; and in both Schools the Elements of Natural Philosophy and the Physical Sciences. Instruction may also be given in each branch of the School in such other subjects as the Visitors after due consultation with the Head Master shall from time to time determine and direct. In addition to the foregoing subjects, religious instruction shall likewise be given to the Scholars in each branch of the School, according to the principles and doctrines of the Church of England; and they shall be required to attend Divine Service in the chapel attached to the Schools, accompanied by the Masters, regularly on Sundays, and on such other days as the Visitors may direct or approve, except such of them as shall reside in another parish than Monmouth who may be allowed by the Head Master to attend their Parish Church with their parents or friends. But no Scholar shall be compelled to receive instruction in the peculiar doctrines or principles of the Church of England, or to attend Divine Service in the Chapel, whose Parents and next friends shall declare in writing that they entertain conscientious objections thereto.

Capitation Fees.

37. Every boy admitted to the School after the establishment of this scheme (including those boarding with the Masters) shall be required to pay capitation fees, to be fixed from time to time by the Visitors, according to the following scale, namely,—

In the Upper or Classical School, a sum of not less than 25*s.* or more than 40*s.* per quarter.

In the Lower or Commercial School, a sum of not less than 5*s.* or more than 20*s.* per quarter.

The Visitors shall, however, be at liberty to remit the same capitation payments, either wholly or in part, in special cases, upon the ground of the poverty of any boy or his parents, or as a reward for merit, or for any other sufficient cause; but the Governors shall cause the amounts payable to the Head and Lower Masters out of any fees so to be remitted to be made good to such Masters out of the income of the endowment.

38. The capitation fees shall be paid in advance quarterly by each Scholar or his parents or friends, as the Visitors shall direct; and the Visitors shall cause an exact account to be kept of the same payments, distinguishing those received from the Scholars in each branch of the School, and they shall cause one-half of the amount of all such capitation payments received from Scholars in the Upper School to be paid to the Head Master, and one-half of the amount of all such payments received from Scholars in the Lower School to be paid to the Lower Master, in augmentation of their respective salaries, and the remainder of such payments shall be appropriated as part of the general income of the Charity.

39. The Head Master and Lower Master, and the Assistant Masters and Teachers, may, with the approval of the Visitors, and subject to such regulations as may be prescribed by them, receive boys in their respective residences as boarders, who may be placed for instruction in either branch of the School in common with the other boys in all respects.

Arrangements may also be made by the Head and Lower Masters, respectively, or by any Assistant Master or Teacher, subject to the approval of the Visitors, for receiving boys attending the School as day boarders.

40. Subject to the control and regulation of the Visitors, and with their license, which may be at any time suspended or revoked by them, houses may also be established and opened in Monmouth, or the immediate vicinity, in which boys attending either branch of the School may be placed and received as boarders upon such terms as shall be sanctioned or approved by the Visitors. Provided that every such boarding house shall be open to the visitation and inspection, at all reasonable times, of every Visitor, and of the Head Master of the School. Every boy attending the School who shall not reside with his parents, or persons standing in loco parentis, or who shall not be a boarder in the residence of the Head or Lower Master, or one of the Assistant Masters or Teachers, shall be placed in a boarding house to be licensed as aforesaid, and shall not be at liberty to reside elsewhere.

41. The Governors shall cause the following annual salaries and sums to be paid to the Head Master and the Lower Master respectively, by equal half-yearly payments, out of the income of the Charity, viz. :—

To the Head Master, a fixed annual salary of 200*l.*, and a further half-yearly sum of 2*l.* 10*s.* for every boy (not being a boarder in his own house) exceeding the number of 40, and not exceeding the number of 100, who shall have bona fide attended the Upper School for a period of not less than three calendar months during the then preceding half-year; and

To the Lower Master, a fixed annual salary of 100*l.*, and a further half-yearly sum of 1*l.* for every boy (not being a boarder in his own house) exceeding the number of 50, and not exceeding the number of 100, who shall have bona fide attended the Lower School for a like period.

42. The periods and length of the vacations shall be determined and fixed from time to time by the Visitors, but the course of instruction, the hours of attendance, and occasional holidays, and all other matters of internal arrangement and discipline shall be under the direction of the Head Master,—subject nevertheless to the superior authority and control of the Visitors, in the event of their seeing occasion to exercise the same.

43. An annual examination of the Scholars in each branch of the School shall take place on some day or days in the months of June or July, to be appointed by the Visitors, and communicated by them to the Governors. Such examination shall be conducted by some duly qualified person or persons, being a graduate or graduates of one of the English Universities, to be appointed by the Governors, and to be remunerated out of the income of the Charity; and upon the occasion of every such examination suitable prizes may be provided, which shall be distributed by the Chairman of the Visitors amongst the Scholars who shall be adjudged to be the most deserving thereof, according to the report of the Examiner and of the Head Master, who shall certify to their respective merits in point of conduct and character.

The salaries paid to the Head and Lower Masters before the establishment of this scheme shall, however, continue to be paid to them for three years afterwards, in lieu of the above-named fixed annual salaries of 200*l.* and 100*l.* respectively.

Exhibitions.

44. The Governors, whenever the income and other circumstances of the School shall in their judgment render it proper or expedient, may establish and pay out of the income of the Charity, any number of Exhibitions not exceeding four at any one time, and not exceeding the annual amount of 60*l.* each, which, when vacant, shall be open to the competition of all boys in the Upper School at the annual examination, and shall be awarded to the boys who shall be adjudged by the Examiner and certified by the Head Master to be the most deserving candidates, having regard to the result of the said examination and to their general character and conduct; but no boy shall be eligible for any such Exhibition who shall not have bona fide attended the Upper School for a period of two years at least immediately preceding the election. Every Exhibition shall be tenable for four years, or for any less period to be determined from time to time by the Governors, after consultation with the Visitors, provided that the holder shall continue to be resident for the purposes of instruction at one of the English Universities, or at St. David's College, Lampeter, or to be a bona fide student of some learned or scientific profession, or of the fine arts, with a view to the professional practice thereof, and shall continue to conduct himself with propriety, and to the satisfaction of the Governors, who shall be at liberty to suspend or wholly withdraw the payment of any Exhibition, for any cause which shall in their judgment be reasonable and sufficient. No Exhibition shall be awarded, unless there shall be a Candidate sufficiently qualified, according to the Report of the Examiner and the Head Master, to receive the same.

Scholarships.

45. The Governors may also, if they so think fit, establish and pay four Scholarships—two in the Upper School of the annual amount of 15*l.* each, and two in the Lower School of the annual amount of 10*l.* each—which, when vacant, shall be open to the competition at the annual examination of all boys attending the said Schools respectively, subject to such regulations as to the age and standing in the School of the Candidates as shall be prescribed from time to time by the Visitors after consultation with the Head Master, and shall be awarded to the most deserving Candidates accordingly, in the same manner as is herein-before provided with reference to the Exhibitions aforesaid; and that every such Scholarship shall be tenable for a period not exceeding three years, if the holder shall so long continue at the School, and shall conduct himself to the satisfaction of the Head Master, but not otherwise.

46. There may also be eight Foundation Scholars in the Upper School, who shall be elected at the annual examination from boys in the Lower School offering themselves for such election, who shall be adjudged by the Examiner to be deserving thereof: Provided that not more than two such Scholars shall be so elected at any one time. The Foundation Scholars to be so elected shall be admitted to the Upper School, and shall be entitled to receive all instruction therein, and to enjoy the other benefits thereof, without being liable to any capitation fee or other payment; but the amount of the capitation fee which would be otherwise payable to the Head Master under the foregoing provisions for each such Scholar shall be made good to the Head Master by the Governors out of the income.

47. The number and amounts of the said Exhibitions and Scholarships, and the number of the said Foundation Scholars, may be increased by the Governors, with the approval and sanction of the Charity Commissioners.

48. The Visitors may, from time to time, prescribe such reasonable regulations as they may consider expedient for the conduct and management of the Almshouses and the Inmates and Officers thereof, and also of the School, the Scholars, and the Masters; provided that no such regulation be at variance or inconsistent with any of the provisions of this scheme, and that all such regulations be previously submitted to the Governors for approval and confirmation, without which the same shall not be complete or binding.

49. All books and stationery required for the use of the boys in the School shall be provided by or at the expense of their parents or friends, except that the Governors may, if they so think fit, cause the costs of such books and stationery required for the Foundation Scholars to be paid out of the income of the Charity.

50. The Governors shall be at liberty to pay out of the income of the Charity any annual sums not exceeding 10l. for the establishment and maintenance of a School Library which shall be under the control and regulation of the Head Master.

51. This scheme shall be printed, and a copy thereof shall be given to every Visitor and Master upon his appointment.

* WM. JONES' LECTURESHIP.

The funds of the Charity having very considerably increased by reason of the sale of house property in the city of London, application was in the year 1870 made to the Board of Charity Commissioners for the transfer of the stock belonging to the Charity to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, and the establishment of a suitable scheme.

On the 13th January 1871 the sum of 32,236*l.* 2*s.* 2*d.* Consolidated 3*l.* per cent. annuities was, pursuant to an order of the Board, dated the 16th December 1870, transferred into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, in trust for the Charity:—

By a further order of the said Board, dated the 1st August 1871, the following scheme was established for the future regulation and management of the Charity:—

SCHEME FOR THE FUTURE REGULATION AND MANAGEMENT OF THE ABOVE-MENTIONED CHARITY.

1. The Charity shall be managed and administered by the master and wardens and court of assistants of the Haberdashers' Company, in the city of London, as the trustees thereof, subject to and in accordance with the provisions of the scheme.

Trustees.

2. The trustees shall pay to the Rev. Daniel Moor, the present lecturer, out of the yearly income of the Charity, the annual stipend or sum of 400*l.* so long as he shall continue to hold the office of lecturer and to perform the duties thereof as heretofore.

Stipend of 40*l.* per annum to present lecturer.

3. Subject to and after making sufficient provision for the last-mentioned annual payment, the trustees shall be at liberty to appropriate and apply out of the funds and income of the Charity to and for the purposes herein-after mentioned such sums of money not exceeding the respective amounts herein-after mentioned, as shall be approved and sanctioned by the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, that is to say,—

Payments out of Charity Funds and Income.

To and for the erection of a church and parsonage house at Hatcham, New Cross, in the county of Surrey, a sum of not more than 9,000*l.*

For erection of new church and parsonage at Hatcham.

To and for the endowment of the minister or incumbent of the same church, a yearly sum of not more than 150*l.*

For endowment of incumbent of same church.

To and for the completion of All Saints' Church at Hatcham, a sum of not more than 1,500*l.*

For completion of All Saints Church, Hatcham.

To and for the purchase of a site and the erection of a new church in the Ecclesiastical District of St. Peter, Hoxton, in the county of Middlesex, a sum of not more than 4,000*l.*

For erection of new church at St. Peter's, Hatcham.

4. The residue of the clear yearly income of the said Charity, after payment thereof of all necessary and proper outgoings and expenses of management, shall be applied and expended by the trustees in paying the several sums herein-after mentioned to the "Jones' Lecturer," and "Jones' Preachers," herein-after also respectively mentioned.

Residue for stipends "Jones' lecturer and Jones' preachers."

5. The "Jones' Lecturer" and "Jones' Preachers," respectively shall be appointed by the trustees, and shall respectively be clergymen in priests' orders of the Church of England, having the respective qualifications herein-after mentioned.

Lecturer and preachers to be appointed by the trustees.

6. Every person to be appointed to the office of "Jones' Lecturer" shall be the incumbent with the cure of souls of a parish or parochial district, the church whereof shall be situated within the distance of 10 miles from the hall of the Haberdashers' Company, in the city of London, measured in a straight line on the Ordnance map.

Qualification of Jones' lecturer.

7. The Jones' Lecturer shall be bound to preach a sermon or lecture once in every month at some church in or near the city of London, to be fixed from time to time by the trustees, with the assent of the incumbent of such church, and upon such days, and with such interval or intervals of recess, as shall from time to time be determined and appointed by the said trustees.

Duties.

8. The trustees shall pay to the "Jones' Lecturer" during his tenure of office the annual stipend or sum of 150*l.*, by equal half-yearly payments, out of the income of the Charity.

Stipend.

The first appointment to the office of "Jones' Lecturer" shall be made by the trustees as soon as conveniently may be after the avoidance by the said Rev. Daniel Moore of his present office of lecturer under the Charity.

First appointment of Jones' lecturer.

Loans with Interest.

An information was filed by the Attorney-General, at the relation of George Shoobridge, a freeman, against the Haberdashers' Company, which came on to be heard on the 8th June 1835, when the Defendants submitted to be charged with the following sums (i.e.):—

John Hutchinson -	68	0	0
John Whyte -	50	0	0
Thomas Bowcher -	66	0	0
Richard Gourney -	300	0	0
William Bower -	200	0	0
Mary Monox -	150	0	0
Giles Crowch -	40	0	0
Catherine Hall -	50	0	0
John Hewes -	37	10	0
Clement Kelke -	50	0	0
	£1,161	10	0

And the other sums (mentioned in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, Vol. 10, page 231) being stated to be lost, the Court charged the Company with the sums so admitted accordingly, and ordered the costs to be taxed, and it was referred to the master to settle a scheme for the future application of so much of the said sum of 1,161*l.* 10*s.* as should remain after the payment of the costs.

The Court made an order on further directions of the 27th February 1836, confirming the scheme of the 21st December 1835, which scheme was as follows:—

Scheme.

1. That so much of 1,161*l.* 10*s.* mentioned in the decree as shall remain after payment of costs be set apart as a fund to be called the "Loan Fund bearing Interest," and that the management of the said fund, and all matters incidental thereto, be vested in the court of assistants.

2. That 500*l.*, part of said fund, be lent by way of loans to young freemen of the Company in sums of 100*l.* and upwards, but not exceeding 200*l.*, to each freeman for five years, bearing interest at 5*l.* per cent. upon bond, with two or three good securities for the repayment, to be approved of by the court of assistants.

3. That the residue of the said fund be lent in sums of 100*l.* to 200*l.* to young freemen for five years at interest at 3*l.* per cent. on bond, with two or three good sureties.

4. That each applicant for the loans shall at the respective times of the same being made give a bond, with two or three sureties, as may be required, whereby they shall become jointly or severally bound to the Company in a penalty of double the amount of the sum borrowed, conditioned for the repayment of the said principal sum within three calendar months from the lending thereof; but the calling in of the said loan is not to be made, nor the said bond put in force, until the expiration of five years from the date thereof, unless it shall be manifest to the Company upon good grounds that any of the obligors or sureties are not responsible or are unable to satisfy the same, in which case it shall be lawful for the said Company to call in the money, and in case of non-payment to put the said bond in force unless the borrower being or continuing solvent can procure another surety or other sureties of substance as the case may require, and the Company shall judge necessary; and in the event of the borrower becoming insolvent, or in distressed circumstances, or in the opinion of the court of assistants unable to discharge the said loan, that then it should be lawful for the Company immediately thenceforth to put the said bond in force against the said borrower and his sureties, or such of them as the said Company shall think fit.

5. That on the death of any borrower before the said five years shall expire the said Company shall call in the money, and in case of non-payment put the said bond in force against his representatives and sureties, and all persons liable thereon.

6. That the respective borrowers shall bear and pay all proper and necessary charges and expenses of and attending the making and executing the bonds and other matters relative thereto.

7. That a book shall be provided and kept by the clerk of the said Company, in which shall be entered the names and residences of the respective borrowers and their sureties, their profession or business, the sums lent, the time for making the loans and when payable, and any other particulars which may be thought necessary.

8. That at the expiration of each and every year of making the said loans, or within 21 days afterwards, the respective borrowers do, if thereunto required by the Company, attend at the common hall of the Company, in order to give an account of the state and circumstances of themselves and of their sureties.

9. That from and immediately after any of the moneys called in shall be received, notice shall be posted up in the common hall of the Company and advertised in two or more of the London daily newspapers of the greatest circulation, that such moneys are ready to be advanced on loans to young freemen of the said Company.

10. That notice of the said funds or such part thereof as are or is now in hand shall be immediately in like manner posted and advertised as ready to be advanced on loan to young freemen of the said Company at such rates of interest as aforesaid.

Qualification of Jones'
preachers.

10. Every person to be appointed to the office of "Jones' Preacher" shall be the incumbent with cure of souls of a parish or parochial district, the church whereof shall be situated within the distance of five miles from the said hall of the Haberdashers' Company, measured as aforesaid, and the population whereof, according to the last census taken before the appointment, shall number not less than 7,000, but no person shall be eligible for appointment as a "Jones' Preacher" whose annual stipend or emoluments arising from endowment or other certain and fixed sources attached to his incumbency, shall exceed 300*l.*

First appointment of Jones'
preacher.

11. The first appointment to the office of "Jones' Preacher" shall be made by the trustees as soon as conveniently may be after the establishment of this scheme, and the number of such preachers to be appointed shall be determined by the trustees, according to the amount of the available income which shall then be at their disposal for the purpose.

Stipends
and number of Jones'
preachers.

12. The trustees shall be at liberty to assign and pay to each Jones' preacher, by equal half-yearly payments, out of the annual income of the Charity, a yearly stipend or sum of not less than 60*l.* or more than 80*l.*, as may from time to time be determined by the trustees, who shall also be at liberty to fix, from time to time, the number of the "Jones' Preachers," according to the amount of income which shall for the time being be available for their remuneration.

Removal and fresh appointment of lecturer and preacher.

13. The trustees shall have full power to deprive any "Jones' Lecturer" or "Jones' Preacher" of his office and the future stipend and emoluments attached to it, or to suspend such lecturer or preacher from the receipt of such stipend or emoluments for omission or neglect of duty, or other good and sufficient cause, to be judged of and determined conclusively by the trustees after a sufficient hearing by them of the case, and upon any such deprivation or upon death or resignation of any such lecturer or preacher, or his ceasing to have the qualifications aforesaid, or becoming incapable to perform the duties of the office (each of which last-mentioned circumstances shall operate to avoid the appointment), to appoint another duly qualified person to fill the vacancy so to be created.

14. The trustees shall be at liberty, with the sanction of the Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, to vary from time to time the amount of the annual stipends hereby assigned to the "Jones' Lecturer" and "Jones' Preachers" respectively.

Power to vary
stipends.

15. The offices of "Jones' Lecturer" and Jones' Preacher" shall not be held together by the same person.

16. The residue or surplus (if any) of the annual income of the said Charity shall be from time to time invested by the trustees in the Government funds in augmentation of the endowment of the said Charity.

Offices of lecturer and preacher not to be held by same person.
Residuary income to be invested.

17. If any doubt or question shall arise amongst the trustees as to the construction or proper application of any of the provisions of this scheme or the management of the Charity, application shall be made by them to the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales for their opinion and advice, which when given shall be conclusive.

REPORT OF MR. GOOD.

JONES' LECTURESHIP CHARITY AND JONES' MONMOUTH CHARITY.—Proposed Church and Parsonage House at HATCHAM.

SIR, 9th November 1878.

IN submitting my Report to the Board hereon, I wish to mention, with reference to the Chief Commissioner's special instructions which accompanied the order for the inquiry, that I have ascertained from the clerk that neither the Haberdashers' Company, nor any member of it, has any property within or near the proposed district.

11. That all reasonable and necessary expenses incidental to the carrying out this scheme (except such as shall be properly chargeable to the borrowers) shall be borne and paid out of the Trust fund, or out of any interest to be made therefrom while in hand, until the same shall be so lent out as aforesaid.

12. That the articles of this scheme shall be printed and put up in the hall of the Company.

13. That the said book shall be open to the inspection of all or any of the members of the said Company at all reasonable times without expense.

The order then proceeded to direct that the interest to be received in respect of such loans should be appropriated to the purposes directed by the several donors.

After the taxation of the costs the sum was reduced to 945*l.* 10*s.* 11*d.* cash, which was invested to the purchase of 944*l.* 7*s.* 3*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. consols. In obedience to

I wish also to mention that, at my interview with the master and wardens, I raised the question whether any assistance might be expected to be obtained from other proprietors in the district, or from the inhabitants, now or at some future time, and also whether assistance might not be obtainable from the Ecclesiastical Commissioners in aid of the endowment fund and the parsonage house. I also suggested whether, in the event of any difficulty as to the funds, part only of the church—probably the nave—should for the present be proceeded with. It appeared, however, to be the desire of the master and wardens to act independently, and without having recourse to extraneous assistance, at least for the present. It was also their desire that the building should be proceeded with at once in its entirety.

A wish was also expressed by the master that he might be enabled to make arrangements for laying the first stone of the building before going out of office, towards the end of the present month.

Yours faithfully,

Henry M. Vane, Esq.,
Secretary, &c.

WM. GOOD,
Inspector.

CHARITY COMMISSION.

In the matter of WILLIAM JONES'S LECTURESHIP CHARITY, THE ALMSHOUSE AND FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL OF WILLIAM JONES at MONMOUTH, and the proposed CHURCH and PARSONAGE HOUSE at HATCHAM. HABERDASHERS' COMPANY, Trustees.

Pursuant to the Order of the Board in this matter, dated 9th August 1878, I have inspected the site of the church and parsonage house, intended to be erected at Hatcham by means of funds proposed to be provided by the above-mentioned charities, and I have conferred with the Master and Wardens of the Haberdashers' Company, the trustees of the charities, and with their clerk and architect, upon the subject, and as to the necessity for the erection of a church upon the large scale contemplated; and also with reference to other points which have occurred to me as proper to be brought before the Board in the consideration of this matter.

It will be remembered that the scheme by which William Jones's Lectureship Charity is governed, dated 1st August 1871, provides for the following payments, viz.:—

1. To the present lecturer, an annual stipend of 400*l.*
2. For the erection of a church and parsonage house at Hatcham, New Cross, a sum of not more than 9,000*l.*
3. For the endowment of the minister of such church a yearly sum of 150*l.*
4. For the completion of All Saints' Church, Hatcham, a sum of 1,500*l.*
5. For the purchase of a site and the erection of a church in the district of St. Peter, Hoxton, a sum of 4,000*l.*
6. The scheme further provides that the residue of the income of the charity shall be applied to the payment to the Jones's Lecturer (whose stipend is to be reduced to 150*l.* a year on the next avoidance), and Jones's preachers to be thereafter appointed, as therein directed, and that any surplus shall be invested in augmentation of the endowment of the charity.

The following payments have since been made, out of the funds of the charity, pursuant to the scheme, viz.:—

1. Towards the completion of All Saints' Church, Hatcham Park - - - - - 1,500
2. Towards the purchase of a site and the erection thereon of a church for the district of St. Peter, Hoxton - - - - - 4,000

And two "Jones's preachers" have been appointed with stipends of 60*l.* a year each.

Arrangements have also been made for the formation of a new ecclesiastical district to consist of part of the existing new parish of All Saints, Hatcham Park, in the neighbourhood of a large and increasing population, including part of the locality called "New Cross," mentioned in the scheme, and having Deptford and Greenwich on the north and north-east, Peckham on the west, and Lewisham, Sydenham, and Dulwich on the south-east, south, and south-west.

A large portion of the valuable estate at Hatcham, belonging to Jones' Monmouth Charity, is situated within the proposed district, and is considered to be well suited for building purposes on account of the dryness and healthiness of the locality, the short distance from the City, the convenience of the four railway stations at or near the four corners of the district, and the educational advantages to be obtained from the large schools for boys and girls, connected with Aske's Foundation, which have been recently erected in the district.

The property has been laid out for streets and roads, and numerous applications have been made for portions of the land for building. It contains also a large quantity of excellent brick earth, which is now being worked out.

The district is approved by the Bishop of the diocese, and the boundaries have been settled by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, who will be prepared to submit a scheme for its constitution, for ratification by an Order of the Queen in Council, upon payment of the intended endowment fund.

The population of the district at present is comparatively small, and does not probably exceed 1,500, but it is the deliberate opinion of the trustees' surveyor (Mr. Snooke), who is also the district surveyor, under the Metropolitan Board of Works, that, within a few (about 10) years, the contemplated building operations will have been completed, and the population will be increased to not less than 17,000.

A piece of land has been chosen for the site of the intended church and parsonage house, in a central and elevated part of the district, and nearly adjoining Aske's Schools. It is charity land, and it is intended to be conveyed freely to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for the purpose of the church and parsonage, under the Church Buildings Acts.

The plans of the church, which is intended for the accommodation of 800 persons, have been prepared and approved by the master and wardens, and excavations have already been made for the foundations, and have been filled in with concrete, but the further progress of the works has been suspended for the present.

A tender has been accepted by the trustees for the building of the church according to the approved plans for - - -	16,000
The estimated cost of the parsonage house is - - -	2,500
Architect's commission and expenses, about - - -	1,500
(It is probable, I think, that these estimates will be considerably exceeded.)

Total estimated cost - - - £19,000

It has been proposed to postpone for the present the building of part of the tower and spire of the church, and thus to reduce the cost by - - -	2,500
	£16,500

To provide for the requisite expenditure it is now desired by the trustees to appropriate to these objects, in addition to the sum of 9,000*l.* authorised by the scheme, the whole residue of Jones's Lectureship Charity Fund, amounting at present to 4,958*l.*, and a sum of 5,250*l.*, belonging to Jones's Monmouth Charities, arising from the sale of about three acres of the charity land at Hatcham to the London and Brighton Railway Company, making together 19,208*l.*, or so much of that sum as may be needed.

A map of the proposed district, showing the charity property within it—and how it is intended to be laid out with streets and roads—and showing also the parts of the land which have been built upon and which have been let or are in course of being let for building purposes—and also the site of the intended church and parsonage house—is submitted herewith; and subjoined are statements showing this scheme, the Company, when they had lent the whole of the funds without interest in 1838, published advertisements of the fact that the funds were to be lent at interest, but no application for it on these terms has ever been made, and there has therefore been no occasion to repeat the advertisement.

The benefactions to which the interest was to be applied are, however, provided for by the Company as stated under the head of several donations.

Loans without Interest.

These were the subject of an information by the Attorney-General of the relation of Wm. Shoobridge, a member of the Company against the Haberdashers' Company, and were the subjects of an inquiry before the Master; and a report of the 3rd August 1833, in which the sums given in such trusts were found, and the loss of various portions of them were also found. And by a decree of the Vice-Chancellor of England of the 29th April 1834, it was declared that the defendants were chargeable with the sum of 1,546l. 13s. 4d., being the amount of gifts received by them after deducting certain losses amounting to 703l. 6s. 8d. And it was ordered that it be referred back to the Master to tax the costs of the suit to be paid out of the said 1,546l. 13s. 4d. And it was ordered that the Master should settle and approve of a proper scheme for the future regulation of the funds.

The Master approved and certified a scheme by his report of 23rd December 1834, and having taxed the costs of the parties, the said fund was reduced to 1,105l. 10s. 10d., and when the subsequent costs were taxed the ultimate residue was 1,028l. 10s. 3d.

The scheme settled as aforesaid for the administration of the residue was as follows:—

Scheme.

1st.—That so much of the said 1,546l. 13s. 4d. mentioned in the said decree as shall remain after payment of the costs of the suit be set apart as a fund to be called the "Loan Fund," and the management of the said fund and all matters incidental thereto be vested in the court of assistants of the said Company for the time being.

2nd.—That the said fund be lent by way of loans to poor freemen of the Company in sums of 100l. and upwards, but not exceeding 300l., for five years without

To meet extraordinary building expenses at Monmouth the trustees have a balance of 11,000l. obtained from the Court of Chancery.

There is also the sum of 5,250l., the proceeds of the sale to the London and Brighton Railway Company, proposed to be applied towards the erection of the intended church and parsonage.

Estimated future amount of the annual rents of the charity property in the district by letting the land for building purposes and likely to be realised within the year, 11,000l.

After full consideration of all the circumstances of the case—and assuming that the projected building operations will be carried out—I am inclined to think that the site of the church and parsonage has been judiciously chosen, and, assuming also that a large population (17,000) will, by reason of such operations, be brought within the district at no distant period, I am further inclined to think that the approved plans are not on too large a scale.

The erection of the church and parsonage house may, I think, be fairly regarded as an essential part of a great and comprehensive building and improvement scheme for the development of the value of the charity property within the district, to the ultimate advantage of the trust, and, looking to the present and probable future financial position of the charities affected by the arrangements, I am disposed to think that the surplus funds of these charities now proposed to be dealt with might properly be applied towards the promotion of such scheme.

The case appears to me to come within the provisions of the Charitable Trusts Act, 16 & 17 Vict. c. 137. sec. 21, and is, I think, deserving of the favourable consideration of the Board.

All which I submit, &c.

Wm. Good,
Inspector.

9th November 1878.

By an order, dated the 9th September 1879, the Board of Charity Commissioners declared their approval of a sum of not more than 1,000l. being appropriated by the Company out of the funds of the Charity towards the cost of certain works which had been commenced in connexion with the erection of a new church for the contemplated new district of St. Catherine, Hatcham.

The sum of 1,000l. was subsequently realised by sale of stock and remitted for the credit of the Company.

interest upon bond, with two or three good securities for any sum to be approved of by the court of assistants.

3rd.—That each applicant for such loans shall at the respective times of the same being made give a bond with two or three sureties as may be required, whereby they shall become jointly and severally bound to the said Company in a penalty of double the amount of the sum borrowed, conditioned for the repayment of the said principal sum within three calendar months from the lending thereof, but the calling in of the said loan is not to be made, nor the said bond put in force, until the expiration of five years from the date thereof, unless it shall be manifest to the said Company upon good grounds that any of the obligors or sureties are not responsible or are unable to satisfy the same, in which case it shall be lawful for the said Company to call in the money, and in case of non-payment to put the said bond in force unless the borrower can procure another surety or other sureties of substance, as the case may require, and the Company shall judge necessary; and in the event of the borrower becoming insolvent or in distressed circumstances, or in the opinion of the court of assistants unable to discharge the said loan, that then it shall be lawful for the said Company immediately thenceforth to put the said bond in force against the said borrower and his sureties, or such of them as the said Company shall think fit.

4th.—That on the death of any borrower before the said five years shall expire, the said Company shall call in the money, and in case of non-payment, put the bond in force against his representatives and sureties and all persons liable thereon.

5th.—That the respective borrowers shall bear and pay all proper and necessary charges and expenses attending the making and executing the bonds, and all other matters relative thereto.

6th.—That a book shall be provided and kept by the clerk of the Company, in which shall be entered the names and residences of the respective borrowers and their sureties, their profession or business, the sums lent, the times of making the loans and when payable, and any other particulars which may be thought material or necessary.

7th.—That at the expiration of each and every year of making the said loans, or within 21 days afterwards, the respective borrowers do attend at the common hall of the Company in order to give an account of the state and circumstances of themselves and of their sureties.

8th.—That from and immediately after any of the money called in shall be received, notice shall be posted up in the common hall of the said Company and advertised in two or more of the London daily newspapers of the greatest circulation, that such moneys are ready to be advanced on loans to freemen of the said Company.

9th.—That such part of the said fund as is now in hand, shall be immediately in like manner posted up and advertised as ready to be advanced on loans to freemen of the said Company.

10th.—That all expenses incidental to the carrying this scheme into effect (except as shall be properly charged to the borrowers) shall be borne and paid out of the said trust funds.

11th.—That the articles of this scheme shall be printed and put up in the hall of the Company.

12th.—That the said books shall be open to inspection of all or any of the members of the said Company at all reasonable times without expense.

The Company advertise the loans according to the scheme, and the money now lent is as follows:—

A. Osmond - - -	300	0	0
J. K. King - - -	300	0	0
George Childs - - -	150	0	0

At the end of 1861 there was a balance of 277l. 11s. 5d. The sum had been reduced in the expense of advertising, which of course must ultimately exhaust the fund.

MONOX'S CHARITY.

The gift was of a sum of 200l. to be lent out, of which 50l. was lost, and the Company were therefore charged by the Court of Chancery with 150l. (see "Loan Charities") in respect of which they appropriate 150l., 3 per cent. consols, to pay 4l. 10s. a year to four poor widows of freemen at 1l. each, and one widow at 10s. annually at Midsummer.

MORGAN'S CHARITY.

Owen Morgan, by will of the 31st March 1604, gave his lands and tenements (subject to certain life estates) to the Company to pay 20l. a year for the relief of the poor of Oswestry.

The Company have still a tenement in White Lion Court, Fleet Street, let at 200l. a year to Messrs. Bohn, on which the rentcharge of 20l. per annum to the poor of Oswestry is charged.

The sum is annually paid without deduction to the churchwardens of that town.

OFFLEY'S CHARITY.

Robert Offley, by will of the 9th April 1596, gave to the Company 200l. to be lent to four young men.

And he also gave 200l. to the Company to pay 10s. each to 20 poor people.

And also 200l. to the Company for founding two scholarships at Oxford and Cambridge of 5l. each.

In respect of the first 200l., the Company are charged with a part of the 1,546l. 13s. 4d. to be lent without interest.

The 200l. the interest of which was to be distributed to the poor (of which 150l. only remained as a loan fund), is administered by the distribution of 10s. each to 20 poor freemen or widows annually at Lady Day; and the interest on the other 200l. having fallen into arrear for a long period previous to the last inquiry, the Company now nominate one exhibitor of 10l. a year, and the corporation of Chester appoint another exhibitor of 10l. a year, who is paid by the Company. They are both full, the present exhibitors are E. D. Whitmarsh and W. H. Parry.

The 30l. a year thus paid is nominally attributed as the produce of 1,000l., 3 per cent. consols.

PARADYNE'S CHARITY.

Mary Paradyne, by indenture of the 4th September 1629, gave 300l. to the Company, they covenanting to pay 16l. a year as follows:—

To four poor preachers - - -	£
To the poor of St. Andrew Wardrobe, London - - -	10
To poor freemen of the Company - - -	3

The Company appropriate 533l. 6s. 8d., 3l. per cent. consols, as the source of this 16l. a year, and apply 10l. a year equally amongst four poor preachers, clergymen of the Church of England, chosen annually in January by the four wardens. Three pounds are divided in sums of 15s. each among four poor freemen on St. Thomas' Day, and 3l. paid to the churchwardens of St. Andrew's by the Wardrobe annually.

PEACOCK'S CHARITY.

Sir Stephen Peacock, by will of the 3rd November 1535, gave to the master and four wardens of the Company, and their successors for ever, lands in St. Sepulchre, Newgate, for the performance of certain obits, with a devise over, in case the same should not be held, to the parish of St. Martin, Ludgate, upon the like conditions.

The charitable gifts, apart from the superstitious uses, amount as follows:—

	s.	d.
To 12 poor men of the Company - - -	12	0
„ poor of St. Martin's, Ludgate - - -	13	4
„ clerk and beadle of Company - - -	3	4
„ poor prisoners of Newgate and Ludgate two loads of charcoal at 12s. a load - - -	-	-
„ master and wardens - - -	16	8

The property which under certain sales and re-investments now consists of a house, No. 24, Crutched Friars, with stables in French Horn Yard, let to Mrs. Blackett, and others, at a rent exceeding 100l. a year, has been since the Reformation held absolutely by the Company, subject only to the charitable uses. It is probable that, as between the Crown and the Company, the latter became the purchaser of so much of the property as was subject to the superstitious use under the instruments and Act of Parliament of James 1st, which I have mentioned in my other Reports on the Charities of the City Companies.

SIR NICHOLAS RAINTON'S CHARITY.

Sir Nicholas Rainton, by his will of the 2nd May 1646, bequeathed to the Company two messuages and premises, in the parish of St. Edmond the King, Lombard Street, to pay out of the rents as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To 25 poor men and widows, 26s. at St. Catherine's tide -	-	32	10 0
To the master and wardens -	-	5	0 0

DAME MARY RAMSAY'S CHARITY.

This was a gift of 200l. for loans, of which 50l. appears to have been lost, and for the residue no application is now made under the scheme. The Company, however, nominally appropriate 250l., 3l. per cent. annuities as the capital of the Charity, and pay the dividends, amounting to 7l. 10s. a year, annually to a poor liveryman of the Company. (See "Loan Charities" with interest.)

LADY ROMNEY'S CHARITY.

Dame Rebecca Romney, by indenture of the 4th September 1629, gave 1,200l. to the Company on condition that they should lend out 200l., part thereof, to four young men, and also pay 48l. a year as follows:—

To four poor scholars of Cambridge -	24
To two poor men (6l. apiece) -	12
To four poor women (3l. apiece) -	12

* SIR STEPHEN PEACOCK'S CHARITY.

By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners, dated the 18th May 1866, the Haberdashers' Company were authorised in consideration of the sum of 309l. 5s. (which had been previously transferred into the name of

In the proceedings before the court on the loan charities to be made gratis, the Company admitted 50l. to be remaining in their hands on account of the 200l. given by Lady Romney on that account, and were charged with such sum of 50l. accordingly as will appear by reference to my statement of the proceedings in that case. The Company adopted the recommendation of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 10, p. 216), and in consideration of the arrears not applied in respect of exhibitions, have since doubled the amount, and pay annually four exhibitions of 12l. each to students at the Universities, two at Emmanuel College and two at Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge.

The exhibitioners are elected by the court of the Company, and hold their exhibitions until they take their degree, but not for a period exceeding four years.

The present exhibitioners are Messrs. Marsh, Crosswell, Williams, and Harper.

The Company also pay two pensions to freemen of the Company of 6l. a year each, and four pensions to freemen's widows of 3l. a year each.

The whole distribution amounts therefore to 72l. a year, for which the Company appropriate nominally 2,400l., 3l. per cent. stock, a part of the fund belonging to them.

SEABROOK AND HARRISON'S GIFTS.

William Seabrook, by a codicil to his will of the 12th June 1747, gave to the Company 100l. to be invested and to be reserved as a fund to supply the deficiency upon the charities which the Company paid beyond their income.

Sir Thomas Harrison in 1753, gave 50l. for a similar purpose.

The sum of 150l., 3l. per cent. consols, part of the Company's own funds, is attributed to these gifts, and the Company credit themselves with 4l. 10s. "for assisting deficient charities." I do not apprehend that this can be properly regarded as a charity or as anything else than gifts to the Company.

SHINGLER'S CHARITY.

Thomas Shingler by indenture of the 22nd March 1616, gave the Company 100l., they covenanting to pay 5l. a year as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To the town of Rugby for bread to the poor and a sermon -	-	4	15 0
To the Company's officers -	-	0	5 0

The Company appropriate nominally 158l. 6s. 8d. stock 3l. per cent. consols, the dividends of which amounting to 4l. 15s., which is paid annually to the rector and churchwardens of Rugby.

SOMER'S CHARITY.

Henry Somer, in the 16th century, gave to the Company a tenement in St. Dunstan's-in-the-East, of the yearly value of 3l., for a yearly obit of 30s., for 12s. to 12 poor men of the Company and 2s. to the clerk and beadle.

Nothing is known of the property charged. The Company have appropriated 23l. 6s. 8d., 3l. per cent. consols, of which they give in respect of the dividends, 12s. to one poor freeman at their Michaelmas distribution, and the remaining 2s. to their officers.

TAYLOR'S CHARITY.

John Taylor, by will of the 13th November 1600, gave to the Company 200l. to be lent to four young men, 50l. each, and each young man should give every Sunday 6d. in bread at the church of St. Stephen, Coleman Street, for the poor of that parish.

The loan fund does not form any part of that with which the Company was charged in the proceedings before the Court of Chancery in the loans with interest.

The Company have, however, continued to charge themselves with the gifts to be made at the church of St. Stephen, Coleman Street. These were increased in 1836 to 5l. 4s. a year, which is paid annually to the churchwardens of the parish. The Company attribute 173l. 6s. 8d. of the 3l. per cent. stock as nominally producing this dividend.

the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the Charity) to effect the sale of the three above-mentioned yearly sums of 12s., 13s. 4d., and 8l., formerly charged upon the aforesaid property known as 24, Crutched Friars and French Horn Yard.

TROTMAN'S CHARITIES.

Throckmorton Trotman, by will of the 30th October 1663, gave to the Company 2,000*l.* to purchase a 100*l.* a year to be disposed of as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
For a lecture at Dursley, Gloucestershire	15	0	0
For a school in Cripplegate, London	80	0	0
For the poor of the Company	5	0	0

And he gave a further sum of 400*l.* towards the accomplishing thereof.

It appears that the schoolhouse and master's house, No. 103, Bunhill Row, Cripplegate, and the site, was provided by the Company, at an expense of 923*l.*

The testator also gave to the Company other 2,000*l.* to purchase lands of 100*l.* a year, for the uses following:—

	£	s.	d.
To a Sunday lecturer at St. Giles', Cripplegate	20	0	0
To a lecturer on Thursday afternoon, or some other day, at St. Giles', Cripplegate	20	0	0
To the clerk and sexton (2 l. each)	4	0	0
To the Company, to give to those who take pains	6	0	0
To find candles at the time of preaching the lectures	4	0	0
To the poor of Cripplegate	16	0	0
To the poor of Cam, Gloucestershire	30	0	0

The Company executed their mortgage of property, including the hall of the Company and other estates belonging to them, formerly called Flying-horse Court, and Staining Lane, and now Gresham Street West (together singularly enough with the premises they had purchased in Bunhill Row for the purposes of the Charity).

The Company, however, nominally appropriate 5,795*l.*, 3 per cent. consols, sufficient to produce annually a dividend of 173*l.* 17*s.* for the purposes of this Charity. The sum thus appropriated is thus arrived at—

	£	s.	d.
The original gift of Trotman was	4,400	0	0
The expenses of building and establishing the school	923	0	0

which being deducted, leaves - £3,477 0 0

and that at 5 per cent. would be 173*l.* 17*s.*, as represented by the amount of capital stock referred to. The Company submit, that in this appropriation they have exceeded the charge they are legally subject to, inasmuch as about 700*l.* was expended in 1769 in rebuilding the school. This, however, would no doubt be a voluntary payment.

The income of the Charity is—

	£	s.	d.
The dividends of the supposed stock	173	17	0
A house in Twister's Alley, Bunhill Row, let to Wm. Lyons on a building lease for 61 years from Christmas 1824 (including 5 s. a year for an easement)	10	15	0
	£184	12	0

The disbursements of the Company on account of this Charity are—

	£	s.	d.
Salary to the master, Mr. J. Bradlaugh	60	0	0
Gifts of pence to the scholars, 3 d. at each half yearly examination, say	1	2	6
Stationery and books for the school (1861)	15	13	8
Coals	3	15	0
Insurance	2	0	6
Repairs of school and master's house, average for 9 years, say	30	0	0
Rates and taxes, say	13	0	0
Total annual disbursement in respect of the school	125	11	8

I append a copy of the last report made by the schoolmaster of the state of the school, and a copy of the form of application made to the Company for admission to it.

I may also here refer to my report on Trotman's Free School, when it came under my notice in my inquiry into the charities of St. Luke's parish, Middlesex, and which forms part of my report on that occasion.

The Company pay in respect of the gifts of the second branch of the Charity—

	£	s.	d.
Rev. J. L. Turner, lecturer at St. Giles', Cripplegate, appointed by the Company. Under an arrangement with the rector, the lecture is delivered in the church on Sunday afternoon and Thursday evening	50	0	0
The churchwardens of the parish of St. Giles	16	0	0
Clerk and sexton do.	8	0	0
The churchwardens of the parish of Cam, Gloucestershire	30	0	0
To the curate of the parish of Dursley for a lecture	15	0	0
(This has been the subject of a correspondence with the Board, see file, No. 6,045.)
The poor of the Haberdashers' Company in gifts to five poor freemen or widows of 1 l. each at the Midsummer distribution	5	0	0
	£124	0	0

The Company also pay in respect of the gift to those of the Company who take pains in the business, a sum of 6*l.* to their clerk, and they also give to the surveyor a salary of 5*l.*

The average expenditure on the entire charities founded by Trotman, beyond the annual payment with which the Company can properly be charged, have in the nine years 1852-61 amounted on an average to about 88*l.* a year. This annual deficiency will in future be somewhat greater, inasmuch as the Company in 1860 increased the salary of the schoolmaster from 50*l.* to 60*l.* a year.*

LADY WELD'S BENEFACTION.

Dame Mary Weld, by will of the 12th of February 1623, gave to the Merchant Taylors' Company 2,000*l.* (if the Merchant Taylors would take the same, or otherwise to such Company as her executors should think fit) to purchase one or so many rectory or rectories, parsonage or parsonages, inappropriate, as might therewith be purchased in fee simple; and her will was that to and for every one of the said rectories and parsonages so purchased, the Company should provide a learned and godly minister to preach twice every Sabbath day, and to celebrate Divine service and perform Christian duties and administer the sacrament, and that out of the profits of the said rectories and parsonages, they should pay to every such minister a yearly stipend as they should think fit, not exceeding two-thirds of the whole yearly profits of the said rectory or parsonage; and concerning the residue of the said profits, that they should increase and keep the same until they should have made up thereby and by the increase thereof, together with the residue of the said 2,000*l.*, and the increase thereof remaining in their hands, the full sum of 2,000*l.*; and the said sum being so made up, the whole clear yearly tithes and profits of such rectories or parsonages should be bestowed upon such minister, to be provided as aforesaid, who should be resident in the parish where such parsonage or rectory should be; and as concerning the said 2,000*l.* which should be raised as aforesaid, her will was that the Company should, with convenient speed, employ the same in like manner as the first 2,000*l.*, and the same course for buying impropriations and the continual raising of a stock to 2,000*l.* should for ever be observed unto the world's end.

And the testatrix directed the Company to pay 5 marks yearly to Christ's Hospital, in consideration of their requiring and taking a yearly account of the administration of the fund.

The Merchant Taylors refused to accept the trust, and the Haberdashers' Company obtained it by a decree of the Court of Chancery.

Under a decree of the Commissioners of Charitable Uses, in 1702, the Company was charged with 4,000*l.* as then required to be delivered respectively upon Sunday morning or upon the afternoon of Thursday or some other week day in the parish church of St. Giles' Cripplegate, there should be in future one lecture only every Sunday evening.

*THROCKMORTON TROTMAN'S CHARITY.

26 May 1865.

By an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners of this date, made upon the application of the master and four wardens of the Company, a scheme was established directing that in lieu of the two lectures theretofore unapplied under this gift. Under a decree of the Court of Chancery of the 3rd May 1708, made at the suit of Christ's Hospital, the Company were discharged from all claims in respect of this trust on the terms therein mentioned, and it was proposed and agreed and ordered that the Governors should, out of the children educated at Christ's Hospital, nominate alternately to the impropriations already purchased, and the Company submitted to be charged with 2l. 10s. per cent. per annum for the interest of the floating balance in their hands, towards the accumulating fund.

The Charity still proceeds under this agreement and decree.

The ecclesiastical property acquired at several times under this endowment, is set forth in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 10, pp. 214, 215).

1. The Wigston Tithes, and the advowson and right of patronage of the vicarage of Wigston, Leicestershire.

The vicar is the Rev. W. Trollope, who was nominated by Christ's Hospital, and is now absent from his rectory, which is under sequestration. It is valued at 200l., but is considered worth more. There is a residence occupied by the curate, and 90 acres of glebe.

2. Leiston Rectory, a perpetual curacy, Suffolk.—The incumbent is the Rev. C. C. Blathwayt; he was presented by the Company. The living is valued at 435l. without a residence.

3. The Bitteswell Rectory, Leicestershire.—The incumbent is the Rev. G. Monnington; he was presented by the Company. The living is valued at 400l. with a house.

4. The Rectory of Albrighton, Shropshire.—The Rev. W. Woodhouse; was presented by the Company in 1836; valued at 600l. with a house and 36 acres of glebe.

5. The vicarage and tithes of Diseworth, Leicestershire, the Rev. C. F. Cook is the vicar, Mr. Nash was presented by the Hospital, and exchanged with Mr. Cook with the consent of both bodies; valued at 190l. and a house.

6. The Vicarage of Chertsey.—The Rev. Lawrence W. Till; he was presented in 1857 by the Company; valued at 273l. and a house. The house has lately been re-built by the aid of Queen Ann's bounty. It is not supposed now to be worth more than 200l., the surplus fees having gone to district churches.

The great tithes of Chertsey are received by the Company. They are let at 14l. 0s. 6d. since the tithe commutation. This sum is received by the Company and forms what is the accumulating fund under the direction of the will. At the end of the year 1852, there was an accumulating fund amounting to 120l. 15s. 9d., the Company having for several years charged themselves with 2l. 10s. a year in respect of interest, which charge was continued until 1858. Continuing that account up to the end of 1861, the Company charging annually for the disbursements for the chancel, and the annual payment of 3l. 6s. 8d. to Christ's Hospital, and 5l. a year to the clerk, and 5l. incidental expenses, there was a balance of 62l. 13s. 8d. to the credit of the accumulating fund. The fund had been reduced at this time owing to the Company having in 1859 as rectors of Chertsey been called upon to repair the chancel, which involved putting in a new window, which was effected at an expense of 59l. 14s. 6d. In the same year, the Company paid a sum of 10l. 10s. surveyor's charge, for valuing part of the Wigston Glebe, which the Leicester and Hitchin Railway Company had given notice to take. The land was taken, and the purchase money paid into the Court of Chancery. The Company have no knowledge of the amount which has been paid, or the sum it produces. It is probably received by the sequestrators of the living. This does not agree with the accounts for 1861 as rendered to the Charity Commissioners, which erroneously represent a balance of 49l. 1s. against the Charity. This is explained by the Company as having arisen from the omission in the account of the balance on the accumulating fund, when the returns were first made to the Board.

It is obvious that if the whole accumulating fund be made to arise from the 14l. 0s. 6d. a year rectorial tithes of Chertsey, and that this sum is subject to the annual charges of 13l. 6s. 8d., together with the repair of the chancel, the idea of accumulation is delusive.

I have perused the deed of conveyance of the 22nd March 1819, of the tithes and advowson of Chertsey, from Sir John Gibbons and others to the Company, and by that deed, the vendor, Sir John Gibbons, reserves to himself the vault of Sir Joseph Mawby in the chancel of the parish church of Chertsey, but makes the purchasers covenant that notwithstanding this reservation the vendors shall not be liable to repair the chancel, but shall indemnify them therefrom. I apprehend that this is not an absolute indemnity, and at the utmost goes no farther than against the possible effect of the reservation of the vault.

MRS. WHITMORE'S CHARITY.

Mrs. Ann Whitmore, by a codicil to her will of the 21st January 1613, gave to the Company certain messuages in Bishopsgate Street, to pay thereout—

	£	s.	d.
To the poor of St. Edmund the King, for coals	-	-	5 0 0
For gowns, etc., for 10 poor widows	-	-	14 0 0
To the wardens	-	-	2 0 0

and the residue for the Company.

The Company are still in the possession of the property, No. 18. Bishopsgate Street, on which the Charity is charged.

They pay annually 5l. to the churchwardens of St. Edmund the King, and they apply about 30l. a year (in 1861, 32l. 3s. 4d.) for entire garments for 10 widows of freemen of the Company, together with 2l. to the wardens of the Company.

WHYTE'S CHARITY.

This sum of fifty pounds was given by this donor as a Loan Charity, the interest to be given away in charcoal.

The Company admit the possession of the fund in the proceedings before the Court of Chancery, it not being now lent out, as before stated; they attribute 50l., 3 per cent. consols, as representing the gift, and give 1l. 10s. a year to one poor member of the Company, annually in the month of July.

WYNNE'S CHARITY.

Richard Wynne, gave to the Company 200l., to pay 5l. a year to the poor of St. Chad's, Shrewsbury, and 5l. a year for apprenticing a freeman's son of the Company. The Company attribute 333l. 6s. 8d., 3 per cent. consols to this Charity, and pay 5l. to the churchwardens of St. Chad, Shrewsbury, annually, and carry 5l. a year over to the apprenticeship fund. There is now a sum of 40l. on this account. It is applied in premiums of 10l. when proper applications occur.

All which I submit to the Board,

THOS. HARE,
Inspector of Charities.

APPENDIX.

NEWPORT SCHOOL.

EQUITABLE ADAPTATION, OR IMPROVEMENT without SPOILIATION.

Shall we the Founder's competence disown?
For his will shall we substitute our own?

THE points mainly at issue with respect to the charitable benefactions of Mr. Adams are, in the first place, What was his original intention? Secondly, How far that intention ought to be departed from or adhered to in the circumstances of the present period? We have to look at once to the equity and to the expediency of the case, that we may ascertain whether these are necessarily conflicting, or are capable of reasonable, comprehensive, and beneficial adjustment. It is now very reasonably and rightly desired and proposed that French, German, and Drawing should be added to the branches of education already existing in the school. The application for this addition has my sincere and cordial concurrence. My persuasion is that it is both desirable and requisite, and that it may be afforded in a manner highly conducive to the prosperity of the school, and without any unfair infringement of the claims of the other parts of the charitable foundation or of the just rights of any class of the community. Long acquaintance with the working of the school, long experience also of it, and much consideration of all the circumstances connected with it, have led me to the no less deliberate than confident conclusion that the only principle on which the school can attain to respectability, prosperity, and efficiency, is that of everything the founder made free of charge being continued free of charge; but that for the additions of writing and arithmetic, French, German, and drawing, there should be such a moderate charge to those who wish for them that the children of the less wealthy of the middle classes should not, as now, be driven from the school by the very large proportion of the boys who come to it from no other motive than its cheapness, without any desire of their parents that they should learn either Greek or Latin, and who, going to servile labour soon after they come to their teens, will make no useful progress in French or German.

We are not to suppose that Mr. Adams had never heard of writing and arithmetic, or that it was a mere casual omission on his part that it was not included in his very considerably worded Will. The so probable as to be an almost certain conclusion is that it was from deliberate forethought that he stopped short of making writing and arithmetic free of charge, being aware that to make this free of charge would be to impair the character of the school as a classical establishment, and frustrate the chief ends of its endowment by filling it with a class of boys to whom the ancient languages would be of little comparative benefit. Reference to the Foundation Deed plainly shows that the intention of Mr. Adams was not to found a pauper infant school, which is in a very considerable degree its present character, but an establishment to prepare scholars for the Universities. If his principal object had been to provide for the education of the labouring classes, he would not have assigned an express preference to the Justices, of Hinstock, one of the oldest and most respectable families in the county; nor would he have augmented the endowment of the English school of this town to the extent of one half of its income. What also is the advantage of this English school with a teacher of such very superior abilities and attainments as its present excellent ill-remunerated master, Mr. Lees, is known to possess, if it is to be nearly emptied, as it now is, by the mass of the boys being drawn from it to the Latin school by the inducement held out to them in the opportunity of being there taught writing and arithmetic free of charge?

I am aware that the argument, that since the fine end of the wedge has been introduced the broad end has a right to follow, and that, a precedent having been once set, and the principle of transferring the funds of the charity to other objects than those contemplated by the founder established, this precedent and principle may be carried out to its utmost length, will be appreciated according to its worth. But while it is open on the one side to consider how much further this principle is to be carried, it is open on the other side to consider whether this principle has been rightly established; whether its practical working has been beneficial or hurtful; and whether, therefore, it would not be wiser and better to restore the original character of the charity, as indicated by the letter and spirit of the foundation deed.

The truth is that the teaching of writing and arithmetic without charge was added for the greater advantage of the boys who came for the sake of the Latin and Greek. The practical result has been that the large proportion of the boys, who come to the school for the sake of having their writing and arithmetic free of cost, has driven away the boys who would have come for the sake of the Latin and Greek.

The first and most necessary step towards raising the school from its present resemblance to a pauper infant school is to have such a charge for writing and arithmetic as will not, from its cheapness in this particular, draw to it a large proportion of those who will care no more for French and German than for Latin and Greek.

By a scale of charges, not at all onerous to parents whose sons would be likely to receive real benefit from learning French and German, there might probably be obtained a sufficient sum to pay 100*l.* a year to a new master, to teach French, German, and drawing. The school would thus have again a fair chance of flourishing, by attracting to it such scholars as those for whom it was originally intended,—to whom it could impart substantial benefits, and who, it might be hoped, would reflect credit upon it by their attainments in literature and science.

Gentlemen of superior scholastic qualifications would have much greater inducement to accept and retain the masterships if the constitution of the school were now to afford them the same favourable prospect and opening for combining the profit of boarders with their present very moderate salaries, as was afforded them by the scheme settled by the founder.

That youths of superior talent and promise may be better enabled to become competitors for the many valuable appointments now thrown open to the candidates who pass the best public examinations, the augmentation of the exhibitions, founded towards their maintenance at the University, is of material importance; but the amount of such augmentation cannot but be lessened by that impoverishment of the funds of the foundation which would be the inevitable result of the diversion of those funds to the teaching of writing and arithmetic, French, German, and drawing without charge.

The apparent surplus in the funds of the charity is not necessarily a real equitable surplus. Common reason and common justice plainly require such a scheme of distribution as shall make the payments to parties entitled to a definite share in the benefaction of Mr. Adams not inferior in substantial value to what they were at the time of their allotment by the founder. It is but frugal honesty to take advantage of the change in the value of money to give a merely nominal instead of a really virtual equivalent. Were I much more indifferent to my own personal interests than I profess to be, I should not consider myself justified in being either an assisting or a consenting party to such transference of the funds of the charity to new objects as should tend to prejudice the fair claims and just rights of my successors in the living of Newport, and to debar them from obtaining redress of the great injustice which the living has sustained from the unfair arrangements which have been made in schemes obtained without notice to parties interested, or opportunity afforded them of setting forth their several claims. That which Mr. Adams allotted to the Minister, the first-named in the order of his benefactions, was more than a ninth of the income of the charitable foundation; that which is now paid to the minister is about a twentieth,—less than one half of the original proportion.

The principle of keeping free of charge all that the founder made free of charge, but of a moderate payment being required for the additions necessary to afford a complete system of education, has been adopted, and is acted upon in most if not all similar foundations in Shropshire. It would not be a novel experiment, but one that has been tried with success. Consistent with honesty and with policy, equitable, expedient, and benevolent, it is further recommended by the satisfactory character of its results. It is that which is at once the most probably attainable and the most really desirable.

If a guinea a year each were charged for writing and arithmetic, French, German, and drawing, and if each boy under fifteen years of age were every day to read in class to one of the masters selections from English standard writers, the school could hardly fail to become what the benevolent founder intended it to be, a real benefit and blessing to the town and its vicinity, and to still more distant parts.

In the hope that these few pages may in some degree contribute to "a consummation so devoutly to be wished," I venture to submit them to the consideration of the governors, visitors, and masters of the school, and of such other persons as feel interested in the restoration of its respectability, and the increase of its usefulness, by its adaptation to the requirements of the present state of society.

W. SANDFORD, Minister.

SIR,

November 8th, 1862.

BEING in my seventieth year and in precarious health, I avail myself of the notice issued by you concerning the Newport School Charity to address to you a communication on that head, not being able to attend personally, having not left the house this last five weeks, and not knowing when, if ever, my medical adviser will allow me to do so. My statement will, I hope, be considered entitled to attention, both from my position as the incumbent of the living of Newport and from my having been the second master of Newport School, and from my having had a thorough insight into the working of a public school from having been three years in the head class, and second boy in it under Dr. Butler, one of the most successful and eminent, if not the most illustrious, of ancient or modern instructors.

I have long held and still firmly hold the persuasion that a very important step toward the greater efficiency and usefulness of Newport School and of many similar schools is to further the doing away of the requirement that the second master should have taken an university degree. It is very seldom that a very superior scholar will accept a second mastership, but a second master, if he, as such, has conducted himself well for a few years, will on a vacancy of the headmastership have established a claim to the succession, whether he be or be not a superior classical scholar. This leads to a much less satisfactory election of headmasters.

That which would most conduce to the beneficial and satisfactory working of Newport School would be this, viz., for the headmaster to be of superior attainments and qualifications as a classical instructor; that the second master should be well qualified to be a commercial master, and as teacher of the sciences pertaining to school tuition; and lastly, that the third master should be a good French and drawing master.

Nearly the whole of the classical department should be the province of the headmaster. It is in no degree probable that this town and its vicinity will furnish pupils sufficient to make it desirable that there should be two classical masters; for the greater part of the last hundred years the headmastership, so far as the day scholars or free boys are concerned, has been very nearly a sinecure; and of all the boys now in the head school not more than one boy, I believe, if so much as one, was removed into it because he had reached the standard for such promotion, but because it was desirable that the lower schools should be relieved from their undue proportion of numbers, and that the headmastership should be no longer so much of a sinecure.

The truth is that about nine out of ten of the boys, or perhaps a larger proportion, come to the school not at all for the sake of the classics, but simply and solely for English, writing, and arithmetic. Not one out of 20 goes to the university: nine out of ten leave the school to go to some trade or mechanical employment just before or just after they are 14. The second master should take them just so far in Latin as for it to be a foundation for their better progress in French and other modern languages. Their promotion into the head school is so far from being a benefit that it is an injury. The boys intended for the university or for the learned professions the headmaster should take himself nearly from the first, and then he would be very far indeed from being distressed by excessive numbers, especially as the boys in the head school might be instructed by the second master in writing, arithmetic, and mathematics.

It is scarcely possible for the second master, whatever may be his diligence and whatever his qualifications as to teacher, to gain credit in the classical department, for the cream is continually skimmed off from him and he is expected to do in one year the work for which three years, and often more, is required.

The second master has also to teach so many parts of literature and science that he cannot have time for such parsing as to make the boys perfect in critical niceties and in the application of the more difficult rules of the Latin syntax.

That which would give lively and abundant satisfaction in this town and in its vicinity would be one classical master eminent for his attainments as a scholar; one well qualified commercial master; and a third master to teach French and drawing.

This communication is not at all confidential. My wish is that you should make the contents known to the Haberdashers' Company.

Hoping that I have not trespassed more upon your attention than I may be deemed entitled to do from my long experience of the school and acquaintance with its working,

I am, Sir,

Very faithfully yours,

W. SANDFORD,
Incumbent of Newport, Salop.

DEAR SIR,

December 5th, 1862.

I THANK you for your courteous, though very brief, reply to my written and printed communications.

My letter having been penned on the very day that I saw your notice issued to the Newport churchwardens, I find on maturer consideration that I set forth the state of Newport School much less clearly and fully than I might have done. From the best information afforded me I learn that in the head school there is now only one boy intended for the University. Nearly the sole reason why boys go from Newport School to college is that, besides the smaller exhibitions founded by Mr. Adams, there are four much more valuable exhibitions founded by a Mr. Cardwell. These are 60*l.* a year for the first four years, and at a smaller rate of payment are tenable for ten years, becoming on an average vacant, that is, one of them at each 2½ years.

The Cardwell and Adams exhibitions taken together will defray the college expenses of a servitor at Christ Church without any cost to the parents: therefore, poor boys when they see a prospect of getting them when about 17 wait for them and take them, first pass their admission examination to the college, and then just pass for some degree and to they are put into one of the priest's offices that they may eat a piece of bread, the working of which is alike bad for themselves, for the church, and the congregations to which they are to minister. It is of extreme importance that the standard of examination for an exhibition, which is now ridiculously and mischievously low, should be made very much higher; for though superior scholarship is no decisive proof of moral and spiritual worth, it is for the most part the fact as evidence of that diligence which generally goes together with good conduct, as idleness generally goes together with bad conduct and habits.

For the last 50 years only one boy from Newport School has done so much as to take a second class.

The suggestion which I venture to make to you on an occasion when the vital interests of the school are at issue is that, if you can make it convenient to come down to us, you should be present at the examination of the whole school by Mr. Sealy on the 16th of this month. This will disclose to you the true state of the school, and by consultation with Mr. Sealy, the present examiner, and with his brother, the late examiner, you will more clearly see your way as to what new arrangements you may deem most desirable.

I have myself little prospect of being present at the examination, as I am suffering with a most debilitating illness, which has confined me to the house for more than two months, and during great part of the time to my bed.

Requesting and hoping that you make indulgent allowance for a communication from me in a state of sickness and great debility,

I remain,

My dear Sir,

With my sincere respect,

Your obliged Correspondent,

W. SANDFORD.

Newport Grammar School (Salop),

10th November 1862.

SIR,

In reply to your communication, I beg first to remark that you do not seem to have been furnished with the Reports of the Paid Examiner, which give full accounts of "the condition of the school," you only mention being furnished with reports of the visitors. The Paid Examiner has now performed his functions in three half-yearly examinations. There is kept here a visitors' book recording all meetings from 28th November 1827. My own opinion of the school is that it is satisfactory, and that the appointment of an able paid examiner will prove very beneficial. With regard to popular appreciation of the school, I may state that in February 1862 I admitted 21 boys to the school, of whom nine were rejected by the visitors after examination. I will attach a list of the exhibitioners, which will answer all your enquiries on that subject, and I will add a few proposals.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

C. W. SAXTON, D.D.,

Head Master.

Herbert Jones, now at St. Mary Hall.

PROPOSALS of Dr. SAXTON, Head Master of Newport (Salop) Grammar School.

No. 1. That, as Staffordshire comes close up to the town of Newport, the privileges of a Shropshire-born boy be extended to a radius of five miles from Newport Church.

No. 2. That the entrance money of one half-crown, as originally appointed in Cromwell's time, should be raised to an adequate sum in proportion to the advance of other payments, particularly as the boys pay no head money.

No. 3. That a practice abolished by the Governors in the time of the Rev. E. Meredith be revived, viz., that whenever the parents of a boy choose to pay 10 guineas to the headmaster their son may have the privilege of immediately coming under his care.

No. 4. That if a boy wish to learn Greek the headmaster may at the option of the latter take him up into the upper school.

Inspector of Charities.

HABERDASHERS' ESTATE, HOXTON.

A free public-house, adjoining the high road, and 66 dwelling-houses.

To be let, by tender, by the worshipful Company of Haberdashers, Governors of Aske's Charity Estate, Hoxton, on repairing leases, for 21 years, from Midsummer, 1863:—

The free public-house, known as the "George and Vulture," situate in Haberdashers' Street, which might be enlarged so as to form a corner house to the main street.

Also 12 houses, Nos. 1 to 12, Haberdashers' Place, which may be converted into shops, at the option of the lessee.

Also 19 houses, Nos. 1 to 19, on the south side of Aske's Terrace; and 35 houses, Nos. 1 to 35, on the north and south sides of Haberdashers' Street, in the parish of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, in the county of Middlesex.

Plans of the property, and specifications of the repairs to be performed, may be seen at the offices of Mr. William Snooke, the surveyor to the governors, No. 6, Duke Street, London Bridge, between the hours of 10 and 4 o'clock.

Tenders, in writing only, are to be sent in to Haberdashers' Hall, Gresham Street West, on or before Thursday, the 27th day of November 1862.

Particulars and Conditions.

First.—The premises to be let are particularly shown by the map; the divisions and boundaries of the several houses are to be the same as at present.

Second.—Tenders, in writing, according to the accompanying form only, are to be made for one or more of the houses, singly or together, at the option of the parties tendering.

Third.—The several houses and premises are to be effectually and completely repaired by and at the cost of the lessee, and agreeably to the specifications, within six months from the commencement of the terms respectively. Upon the completion thereof, the leases will be granted. The works are to be performed under the directions and to the satisfaction of the governors' surveyor, to whom due notice in writing is to be given one week at least before the commencement of the repairs. The amount (if any) which may be received of the present tenants for dilapidations will be paid to the new tenants upon the satisfactory completion of the repairs.

Fourth.—With respect to the houses in Haberdashers' Place, the party tendering is to state whether it is his intention to convert them into shops. If so converted, they must be done to the satisfaction of the governors' surveyor, and according to plans to be previously approved by him.

Fifth.—The parties tendering must give references to two or three respectable persons.

Sixth.—The existing leases will expire at Midsummer-day next. The new rent will commence from the time of possession being given.

Seventh.—The new leases will contain the provisions after mentioned.

Eighth.—The governors will not be bound to accept the highest or any tender or tenders.

Ninth.—The fixtures and plant at the "George and Vulture" tavern must be taken at a valuation in the usual way, if required by the outgoing tenant.

Provisions of Leases to be granted.

Terms, 21 years, to commence at Midsummer, 1863.

Yearly rent, £ , payable on the usual quarterly days, clear of the sewers', main drainage, and all other rates, taxes, and charges whatsoever (property tax excepted). The land tax is redeemed. The premiums on fire insurance, which will be paid by the landlords, to be repaid by the tenant and secured as rent.

The tenant is to keep the premises in substantial repair; and to rebuild, if necessary, the party and other walls, arches, and drains.

To paint in every three years the external wood, iron, and other work, and colour the cemented parts; and paint, paper, and colour the internal work usually done, in every seven years of the term.

To give up the premises so repaired, painted, &c., at the expiration of the term, with all additions and improvements and landlords' fixtures.

Power to the landlords to enter and see the condition of the premises. The tenant to make good all dilapidations within three months after notice.

The tenant is not to cut or injure the walls, or main timbers, or make openings, or alter the construction or elevation of the premises, without the landlords' previous consent. He is to keep open the doors and windows, and if the same or the light be obstructed by other persons, he is to give notice to the landlords.

No shop or manufactory to be opened (except in Haberdashers' Place West), but the premises to be occupied as private dwelling-houses only. No nuisance or offensive occupation to be carried on, nor to be used as brothels. No materials to be kept, nor any act done, which may vitiate or increase the rate of insurance.

The lease not to be assigned, or the premises underlet, without the previous licence of the landlords; and all assignments and underleases are to be prepared by the clerk of the Company.

In case of non-payment of the rent, or non-performance of the covenants, the lease will be forfeited.

The landlords will restore the premises in case of injury by fire, unless by the act or default of the tenant the policy of insurance shall have been forfeited.

N.B.—Permission will be given for opening shops in Haberdashers' Place West, the plans to be previously approved by and the work to be done to the satisfaction of the Company's surveyor.

Public-houses, or ale or beer shops, will not be allowed to be opened without previous express licence by the Company.

FORM of TENDER to be filled up and signed.

I agree to take upon lease or leases from the Haberdashers' Company the houses Nos.

in Hoxton, for the term of 21 years, from Midsummer, 1863, at the net yearly rent of £ , and to execute a counterpart thereof; such leases to contain covenants and provisions to the effect above mentioned, and to be prepared by the Company's solicitor at my cost. And I further agree to comply with all the particulars and conditions also herein-before mentioned.

The Grammar School, Monmouth,

SIR,

January 19th, 1863.
I only returned from town at the end of last week and now take the earliest opportunity of answering your letter.

The number of boys in the classical school is 19, the average age is 13, and the number in the commercial school is 81, and their average age 11.

The course of instruction in each department of the school is precisely the same as that laid down by the scheme of 1854.

With respect to the present condition of the school, I have great pleasure in being able to state that it seems to be considered satisfactory to all persons connected with the establishment, the examiner's last report (of which I enclose a copy) speaks in the highest terms of the discipline of the school and the sound education imparted to the scholars. The three other masters of the school are good and useful co-operators with me, and thus we have been enabled to send in pupils who have with success competed against others from schools at Cheltenham, Gloucester, and the neighbourhood.

I might state many means by which in my opinion the school might be made more useful, for at present, owing to the school being perfectly free, even with respect to books and stationery, we receive many whose parents object to paying the few pence for the National School, our standard of respectability is thus reduced, and boys, to whom the education we give would be more useful, are to a certain extent kept away; the existing restriction against boarders also has the same effect, for many parents living at a distance from the town are prevented sending their boys to the school, owing to the present necessity of boys lodging at houses where there is no direct supervision by the masters of a. The place or district in which the proposed master or mistress resides.

the school; but, whatever I may here have said, I hope you will fully understand that I do not wish to urge anything in opposition to the Haberdashers' Company, who will, I have no doubt, use their best endeavours to increase the usefulness of the school.

JONES' FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

Examiner's Report.

GENTLEMEN,

December 15th, 1862.

Having completed the Christmas examination of the Monmouth Grammar School, I proceed to record the conclusions at which I have arrived. They are the result of an inquiry which occupied two days, and which I spared no pains to make as searching as possible. I have also had the benefit of comparing my impressions with the experience of the late examiner, whose reports I have read with much interest. The highest class during the past six months has consisted of the same two boys, Pinn and Lewis; you will be glad to learn that they continue to merit the characters given to them on former occasions. They are pupils who would do credit to any public school in the Kingdom. They also continue to hold the relative positions assigned to them at the last examination. Pinn still retains the first place, rather by the advantage of seniority than by force of superior industry or greater natural ability. In mathematics Lewis has made much less progress than his class-mate, and accordingly I have no difficulty in adjudging the prize for this branch of study to Pinn. In other subjects the difference between the two boys is not considerable. It is therefore much less easy to award the other prize, which is given for classics, history, geography, and divinity taken together; for the most part Lewis' answers show a better command of style, while those of Pinn indicate the riper and fuller knowledge of an older boy. To this remark I must make one exception, Lewis' performance in history and geography was the better in matter as well as in language, and was in all respects excellent. But his gain in this one paper, though appreciable, did not compensate for his inferior success in the classical and divinity papers. These turned the scale in favour of Pinn, who therefore takes the prize. In the English part of their examination both these boys surpassed my expectations. In mathematics also they acquitted themselves respectably, each according to his attainments. The translations from Sophocles and Tacitus which I required of them were executed with an accuracy and vigour deserving of much commendation. It is in their composition, both Greek and Latin, that I discover most room for improvement. In the second Latin class the prize is well earned by Nelmes, who I am informed has won it twice before; by persevering industry this painstaking lad keeps his ground against the second boy, Ducker, whose evident ability is not so well seconded by application. In addition to the subjects for which the prize is given, viz., Greek, Latin, history, geography, and divinity, this form passed a very creditable examination in elementary algebra and geometry. The third Latin class translated fairly an easy passage of Cornelius Nepos and a fable of Phædrus, rendered simple English sentences into very tolerable Latin, and answered well questions in Latin accidence, Roman history, geography, and divinity. Here the prize is taken by James, Hiscocks being a good second. In the fourth class, which has not advanced beyond the first rudiments of Latin, Roberts may be mentioned with commendation.

Leaving the upper section of the school, I pass on to speak of those classes in which no other language than English is taught; no part of my task afforded me greater pleasure than my examination of the senior boys in this department. If a commercial education is not to range beyond the mother-tongue, then I will venture to say in few institutions of this kind can such a training be obtained in greater perfection than at Monmouth. The first English class especially profit by a mental discipline which is far more thorough and complete than might be inferred from its limited programme. The principles of grammar as imparted here by a highly competent teacher, when combined with the principle of arithmetical science, also well taught, afford full scope for the exercise of the intellectual faculties. The effects of this instruction are apparent in the general intelligence displayed by the pupils. Nor would I restrict this observation to the two or three boys at the top of the form, it applies throughout. The prize in the 1st English class is obtained by J. E. Wilson, but Hitchings and several other boys have also done remarkably well. That belonging to the 2nd class I award with some hesitation to Embry. His answers, correct in substance, are disfigured by so many faults of spelling, probably the result of carelessness, that I had nearly preferred to him Lock, who stands second, and who, if he does not show quite so much knowledge, has been guilty of fewer oversights. In the 3rd class the prizeman is McDougall. The English classes below the third consist of boys whose instruction is purely elementary. The 4th class alone could usefully be set to answer questions in writing. The result was such as to reflect great credit on their master. The two remaining divisions I examined orally, and had every reason to be satisfied with their condition. The prize in the 4th class is gained by Godwin, nearly equal to whom are Herbert and Pritchard. In the 5th there is a still closer approximation between Cullis and Woollett, and it was with great difficulty that I at length decided in favour of Cullis. In the 6th the best boys seemed to be Scoging, Dance, and Frost. To all classes which were examined in writing the same set of divinity questions was proposed. In most this paper was very well done, and I may notice that no boy in any class who failed in it has succeeded in gaining a prize. Another subject in which the whole school, with the exception of the head form, were examined is arithmetic, for proficiency in which two prizes have to be awarded. The higher of these I adjudge to Webb of the 2nd Latin class, who has left all competitors a good way behind. The lower I adjudge to G. Wickham of the 3rd English class, to whom H. Scudamore of the class below is second, at no very great interval. The writing prize must be assigned to Hiscocks of the 3rd Latin class, not without honourable mention of Webb, who adds the praise of a good penman to the distinction of the 1st arithmetic prize. On turning over the copy books of the half-year, I was pleased to find in most of them evidence of progressive improvement, while the best performances both in writing and arithmetic are extremely good, the average ones reach a standard of merit which is creditable not only to the scholars, but to their instructor. The neat labours of the 1st English class in book-keeping also bear witness to sensible and careful superintendence. Understanding that I have at my disposal an additional prize, with which to distinguish any merit that would otherwise go unrewarded, I adjudge it to Lewis for his very admirable answers in history and geography. In conclusion, Gentlemen, I beg leave to congratulate you on the flourishing state of the well organised and well administered institution of which you are invested with the government, and on the benefits which the Monmouth Grammar School is made the means of conveying to the district in the centre of which it is situated.

I have the honour to be,

Gentlemen,

Your most obedient servant

(Signed) LEONARD BENTON SEELEY, M.A., late Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge.

To the Master and Wardens of the Worshipful Company of Haberdashers,
Governors of Jones' Free Grammar School at Monmouth.

I certify that the above is a true copy of the report of the Monmouth Grammar School, made by L. B. Seeley, Esq., after his examination of the school held at the close of the half-year ending December 15th, 1862.

C. M. ROBERTS, M.A.,
Head Master.

Haberdashers' Hall,

SIR, The bearer (born 185 .
18 .)
has been this day elected to Mr. Trotman's school by the Haberdashers' Company; you will accordingly receive him.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient servant,

Clerk.

To Mr.

STATUTES for the Regulation of the ALMSHOUSE and FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL of WILLIAM JONES, in Monmouth, in the County of Monmouth, made by the WORSHIPFUL COMPANY of HABERDASHERS of the CITY of LONDON, the GOVERNORS; and approved by the ORDER of the COURT of CHANCERY, July 26th, 1854.

WILLIAM HENRY WOOD, Esq., Master.
 JEREMIAH PILCHER, Esq.
 EDWARD C. BRACEBRIDGE, Esq.
 GEORGE KEEN, Esq.
 JOHN PHILLIPS, Esq.
 JOHN CURTIS, Clerk.

} Wardens.

STATUTES, &c.

The Almspeople.

1.

In the 20 almshouses of this establishment there shall be placed from time to time 20 poor old decayed men and women, sole and unmarried, of honest life and conversation, of the town and borough of Monmouth, if so many there be found, or else of the county of Monmouth, each of whom shall have a house and garden for dwelling, and the weekly sum of 8s. for maintenance; also, every alternate year, at Christmas, a cloth cloak each, value 30s., upon which the escutcheons are to be worn as heretofore accustomed.

2.

The almspeople shall attend Divine Service together at the parish church on the occasions when the same is performed there by the lecturer in pursuance of the 7th clause herein-after contained, and also the lecturer's service in the schoolroom, under that clause, unless prevented by infirmity, ill-health, or other good cause, to be approved by the lecturer.

3.

In case of the death or removal of any of the almspeople, notice thereof shall immediately be given by the lecturer to the magistrates of the town of Monmouth, who shall thereupon forthwith nominate and return to the governors the names of three persons of the description above-mentioned, and who have not received parochial relief within the two preceding years; out of whom the governors shall, as soon as may be after receiving such return, appoint another person or persons in the place or places so becoming void. The lecturer shall also take charge of the cloak and escutcheon of each deceased or removed almsperson, and deliver them to his or her successor.

4.

If any almsperson shall be given to drunkenness, or be a frequenter of alehouses, or shall take any inmate or lodger into his or her house without permission of the lecturer, in writing, to be reported by him to the visitors and governors, or shall live contentiously with the rest of the almspeople, or others, or shall fail to attend Divine Service as herein-before directed, or shall lodge out of his or her almshouse, the lecturer shall have power, of his own authority, to retain from such offending almsperson, as forfeited for the first offence, one week's pension; and for the second offence two weeks' pension, to be applied by him for the benefit of the rest of the almspeople in such comforts or necessities of clothing or nourishment, but not in money, as he may think necessary; but every such offence and forfeiture shall be immediately entered under its proper date in the said report book; and for a third offence the almsperson so offending shall be liable to expulsion from his or her almshouse; and it shall be the duty of the lecturer to temporarily suspend such offender, and immediately report the fact and offence to the visitors as well as to the governors, and also to enter it in his report book; but the order for final expulsion shall vest with the governors only, whose decision shall be final.

5.

Any almsperson who shall be found or justifiably suspected to live incontinently or disreputably, or shall marry, or shall become possessed of any property, sufficient in the governors' judgment for his or her maintenance, shall, under the order of the governors, be subject to the immediate loss of his or her pension or allowance, and to absolute displacement from the almshouse; and it shall be the duty of the lecturer, as soon as any such circumstance shall come to his knowledge or suspicion, forthwith to report the same to the visitors, and the visitors shall with all reasonable speed investigate the case and report their opinion thereupon to the governors; and in cases requiring immediate interference, the visitors or any three of them, after such investigation, are empowered forthwith to suspend such almsperson from the almshouse, and stop the payment of his or her pension or allowance, until the decision of the governors on the case, which shall be final, shall be known.

The Lecturer.

6.

Every person to be appointed to the office of Lecturer shall be of approved good character, piety, and ability, and shall have taken the degree of Bachelor or Doctor of Divinity or Laws, or Bachelor or Master of Arts, in one of the Universities of Oxford or Cambridge, and shall be in Priest's Orders.

7.

It shall be the duty of the Lecturer to read the Church Service and preach a sermon twice on every Sunday, Good Friday, and Christmas Day, and once on every Ash Wednesday and Ascension Day, to the almspeople in the church if permission for that purpose can be obtained, but if not, then in the schoolroom; and also administer the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper to them four times at least in the year, and at such other times as shall be reasonably required, and also upon all fitting occasions to afford them religious consolation and advice. To visit the almspeople weekly, and keep a report book, and therein regularly enter the date of his visits and his remarks upon their health, wants, conduct, and cleanliness, and all applications (whether granted or not) which may be made by the almspeople for relaxation of these Statutes or for permission to do anything for which such permission is hereby required; to lay such book before the Visitors at their quarterly and other meetings, which shall be regularly forwarded by them to the Governors after the quarterly meetings, with any remarks which they may deem it requisite to make thereon; and to personally attend the Visitors' meetings for the purpose of giving all requisite explanations.

8.

It shall also be the duty of the Lecturer to examine the scholars in the school half-yearly at Lady Day and Michaelmas, and to exercise a general superintendence over the school, and to report thereon to the Visitors and Governors; and also to report to the Governors all irregularities in the conduct of any person belonging to the establishment at Monmouth.

9.

The Lecturer shall have, in addition to his stipend, the occupation, rent free, of the Lecturer's house and garden, and he shall, at his own charges, repair, maintain, and keep the same in tenantable repair, in the following particulars; videlicet:—in glazing, tiling, and slating the same and the copings and upper courses of the wall; keep the premises wind and water tight, and do such repairs as a tenant from year to year who had agreed to keep premises in tenantable repair would be bound to do.

10.

The Lecturer shall give such security as the Governors may require for doing such repairs, and also for giving up the house and premises to the Governors upon his ceasing to be Lecturer.

11.

The Lecturer shall not absent himself from his duties, nor take any other charge, employment, or living which the Governors may consider likely to interfere with his duties. In case of the Lecturer not duly performing his duties, or of immoral conduct, of which the Governors shall be sole judges, the Governors may remove him; and thereupon, and also in case of his death or resignation, appoint another Lecturer in his place.

The School.

12.

The school shall be free for one hundred boys, to be elected by the Visitors at their quarterly meetings, from applicants born or whose parents or guardians are resident in the town or borough of Monmouth, or in the county of Monmouth, or in one of the counties of Hereford and Gloucester; preference being given, between candidates in other respects equally eligible, to those born or whose parents or guardians shall reside in the said town or borough.

13.

No boy shall be admitted into the school who has not had the small pox or been vaccinated, or who is not perfectly free from any contagious or infectious disorder, or who is unable to read and write, or who is under eight or above fourteen years of age; and no boy shall continue in the school after attaining the age of 18 years.

14.

Applicants for admission shall obtain from the Head Master printed instructions for the purpose at least 10 days before the then next quarterly meeting of the Visitors. It shall be the Head Master's duty to point out and require the production of what he shall consider sufficient evidence of the date and place of the boy's birth, of his parents' or guardians' residence, and other information required, and also to make inquiries into the character of the parents or guardians and boys applying, and to report the result to the Visitors at their quarterly meetings; to prepare a list of the candidates, classed according to the above rule of preference, and specifying the date and place of the boy's birth and parents' or guardians' residence, and to certify at the foot of such list whether or not the candidates are, in his opinion, in all respects qualified for admission; and, in cases of doubt, to state the particulars to the Visitors, and to transmit a duplicate of such list and certificate to the Governors immediately after every election.

15.

At the time of admission, one of the parents or the guardian of the boy admitted shall sign, in a book to be kept for that purpose, an undertaking that the child shall conform himself to all the school regulations; and a printed copy of the rules applicable to the boys and to the parents shall be given to each party at the time of the boy's admission.

16.

The school hours shall be as follows, viz.:—from the 25th of March to the 25th of September, both days inclusive, from half-past seven o'clock in the morning to nine, from ten to twelve at noon, and from two to five in the afternoon; and, between the 25th of September and the 25th of March, from nine to twelve at noon, and from two until half-past four in the afternoon.

17.

The boys shall come to the school cleanly washed and combed, and decently and properly clothed.

18.

The boys shall have the free use and enjoyment of the school playground in the interval of school hours, and the same shall be open from eight o'clock in the morning till eight o'clock in the evening in the summer, and from eight in the morning till four in the afternoon in the winter.

19.

A correct list or muster roll of the boys shall be kept and regularly called over at the commencement of every school sitting by one of the masters; the names of the boys then absent shall be distinctly shown or recorded thereon in such manner as the head master may direct, and the roll be regularly laid before him before the business of the school commences. It shall also be at all times open to the inspection of the Lecturer; and regularly laid before the Visitors, at their meetings, by the master.

20.

Each morning, at the opening of the schools, prayers selected from the Liturgy of the Church of England, the collect for the day, and a chapter (or a portion of one) of the Bible, shall be read by one of the masters; and, before closing the schools in the afternoon, a chapter out of the Bible shall be read by one of the scholars, and a short prayer from the Liturgy by one of the masters.

21.

The scholars shall be instructed in the Liturgy and the religious principles of the Church of England; and they shall attend church, accompanied by one of the masters, twice every Sabbath Day, and on Christmas Day, Good Friday, Ash Wednesday, Ascension Day, and all general fast or thanksgiving days appointed by proclamation, the master always sitting with them; but no scholar shall be compelled to receive such religious instruction, or to attend church, if his parents or guardians shall object thereto in writing.

22.

Monday and Tuesday in Easter Week, and Whit Monday, are to be holidays, and the afternoons of Wednesday and Saturday in every week half holidays; but no other holiday or half holiday shall be allowed. The vacations are to commence three days before and terminate four weeks after Christmas, and Midsummer Days respectively, unless such four weeks shall end on a Saturday or Sunday, and then on the Monday following.

23.

If any scholar shall be, in the judgment of the head master, insubordinate, or grossly misconduct himself, or shall absent himself from school without leave or cause satisfactory to the master, or shall remove to any other school, or shall in the opinion of the head master be found, after diligent pains and sufficient trial, not to profit in learning, or shall prove so corrupt in principles or manner that his example is or may become pernicious, the head master shall have power to suspend such boy until the next meeting of the Visitors, who shall then have power to expel him, and whose judgment as to his having incurred the penalty of expulsion shall be final.

24.

Public examinations of the scholars shall be held half-yearly at or about Midsummer and Christmas, before the Visitors, by an examiner (who shall be a Master of Arts of one of the Universities of Oxford or Cambridge) appointed for the purpose, and who shall report to the Governors and to the Visitors as to such examinations and as to the state of the school generally. At each of these examinations honorary rewards may be conferred by the Visitors on such boys as they may think most deserving thereof. The scholars are also to be examined half-yearly, at or about Lady Day and Michaelmas, by the Lecturer, who shall make to the Governors and the Visitors reports of such examinations.

25.

Such boys as are approved by the head master shall have the free use of the library, which shall be opened at such hours daily as he shall appoint. He is to take care that all the library books are kept clean and carefully preserved, and that no book be lent out or removed from the library on any pretence whatsoever: he shall also once a quarter examine the catalogue of the books, and report to the Visitors any books that may be missing from the library. Donations of books to the school library may be received, subject to the approbation of the Visitors.

26.

A register shall be kept by the head master of the names and ages of the boys, the date of their admission and discharge or departure from the school, and the cause of such discharge or departure, with the name, residence, profession, or trade, of the parents or guardians, with a column for remarks by the Visitors or masters; and a copy of each quarter's entries (to be made by the writing master, under the head master's direction) shall be regularly sent by the head master to the Governors.

27.

The school shall be divided into the upper or classical school, and the lower or commercial school.

28.

In the classical school the subjects to be taught, in addition to the religious instruction to be given under the 21st clause, shall comprise the Greek and Latin classics and composition, history, English composition, natural philosophy, geography, common and physical, writing, arithmetic, book-keeping and drawing, and such other subjects, including the French and German languages, as may be thought advantageous by the head master, the Visitors, and the Governors. The instruction in this school shall be given by the head master, assisted by the third master.

29.

In the lower or commercial school, in addition to the religious instruction to be given under the 21st clause, instruction shall be given in English grammar and composition, history, geography, common and physical, the elements of physical science, mathematics, arithmetic, book-keeping, writing, drawing, and the rudiments of Latin to those scholars whose parents may require it, with such other subjects as may be approved by the head master, the Visitors, and the Governors, subject to the general superintendence of the head master. The instruction in this school will be given by the second and third masters. Writing, arithmetic, and book-keeping are to be taught by the writing master to the whole of the scholars in both schools.

30.

The present and future scholars shall be admitted into either school as their parents may desire.

The Exhibitions.

31.

The exhibitions shall be open only to scholars at the time of election actually in the school, and who shall have been admitted according to the preceding regulations, and shall have been bonâ fide in the school for at least three consecutive years immediately preceding the election (occasions of temporary absence, which the Visitors shall have allowed, excepted).

32.

Upon a vacancy occurring and being duly notified to the Visitors by the head master, they shall with all reasonable speed make such arrangements as they may consider advisable for making it known in the school, and for fixing and conducting the examination. The election shall take place at one of the regular half-yearly meetings in the month of June or December, after the public examination. The Visitors shall choose such candidate or (if there shall be more than one vacancy, such) candidates as they, with the assistance of the examiner, may deem most deserving, and forthwith report the name, age, and period of education in the school of such candidate or candidates to the Governors, for their confirmation, and at the same time transmit them an accurate list of the candidates admitted to the examination, with the like particulars as to their respective ages and periods of education in the school. The elections are in all cases to be subject to confirmation by the Governors.

33.

The payment of the exhibitions will commence from the date of the scholar's actual residence at college. The period of holding them is in no case to exceed four years from the time of the scholar entering college. They will cease upon his taking his degree of Bachelor of Arts, and may at any time be suspended or entirely withdrawn, in case of the misbehaviour of the holder at college, or for any other cause which the Governors in their absolute discretion shall deem sufficient.

The Examiner.

34.

The examiner shall be a Master of Arts of one of the Universities of Oxford or Cambridge, appointed for that purpose from time to time by the Governors. It shall be the duty of the examiner to examine the scholars half-yearly at Midsummer and Christmas, and to make a detailed written report thereof, and of their proficiency, to the Visitors and the Governors.

The Masters.

35.

There shall be a head master, second and third masters, and a writing master, all of whom shall be elected to their offices by the Governors whenever vacancies occur.

36.

All the masters shall be elected on probation only, and shall remain upon trial in the school for six calendar months, at the expiration of which period the Visitors or the major part of them, for the time being, shall report to the Governors their opinion of the character and abilities of the master so elected, and the Governors shall thereupon either confirm or annul such election at their discretion.

None of the masters shall on any pretence be allowed to take boarders or pay boys, or any fee or gratuity, either annually or otherwise, from the parents or the scholars.

38.

The head and second masters shall, in addition to their stipends, be entitled to the occupation, rent free, of the dwelling-houses and buildings now appropriated to the present head and second masters respectively; and shall, at their own charges, repair the dwelling-houses and buildings appropriated to them respectively, as specified in the section relating to the Lecturer, and shall give such security as the Governors may require for so doing and for delivering up the premises on ceasing to hold office.

39.

The head and second masters shall at all times be resident, and they, as well as all other masters, shall be constantly attendant upon their duties; and if either of them shall be absent, except during the holidays, or unless the cause of absence shall be sanctioned by the Visitors or Governors of the school, then the Governors may, at their pleasure, remove and displace him, and appoint another master in his place; and on no occasion shall two masters be absent at the same time; and if either of the masters shall in the opinion of the Governors be incompetent, insufficient, or otherwise unfit for his duties, or of immoral life or conversation, or negligent in the exercises of religion, or shall, without the Governors' permission, take any other charge or be preferred to any other employment or living, or shall break or infringe any of these statutes—of all which matters the Governors shall be the sole judges—then the Governors may remove and displace the master so offending, and appoint another in his stead.

The Visitors.

40.

The Governors shall appoint 12 gentlemen, residing within 25 miles of the school-house, to be Visitors of the school, and shall appoint one of such Visitors to be chairman, and shall, from time to time, fill up any vacancies in the number which shall arise from death or resignation, or from ceasing to reside within the specified distance. It shall be the duty of the Visitors to visit the school four times a year for general business; but the chairman or any three Visitors may call a special meeting when occasion may require.

41.

The Visitors shall report to the Governors quarterly, or oftener if they shall think proper, the state of the school, the proficiency of the scholars, and the efficient discharge of their duties by the masters and Lecturer. The Visitors shall be at liberty, if any doubt arise on these Regulations, to explain the same.

42.

The absence of any Visitor from the meetings for 12 months shall be considered a resignation of his appointment, and the Governors may proceed to appoint another. Nevertheless the same gentleman may be reappointed on the recommendation of the Visitors, who shall notify each case of vacancy to the Governors.

To the Master, Wardens, and Court of Assistants of the Worshipful Company of Haberdashers.

GENTLEMEN,

I have the honour most respectfully of informing you that this school was closed on the 22nd December 1862, and was re-opened January 5th, 1863, and that I have admitted one boy in obedience to your order.

The present number of scholars is 49.

SALTERS' COMPANY.

TO THE CHARITY COMMISSIONERS FOR
ENGLAND AND WALES.

In pursuance of a Minute of the Board of the 2nd February 1863, I have inquired into the condition and circumstances of the following Charities under the management of the Salters' Company of the City of London, and I have stated in the report under the head of each specific endowment the result of my investigation:—

The title of this Company is "The Master, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Art or Mystery of Salters, London."

The constitution of the Company is formed of the Master and two Wardens and twenty-four Assistants. One of the Livery not on the Court is nominated Renter Warden. The list of the Livery in the printed book is now 142. Freedom is obtained by patrimony (or birth) and servitude (or apprenticeship). Occasionally freedom is obtained by redemption. The number of the freemen are supposed to be diminishing.

THOMAS BEAMOND'S ALMSHOUSES.

Thomas Beamond, by his will of the 24th March 1454, gave to the Company the land where there was then lately erected the Salters' Hall and six mansions in Bread Street, also a house called the Chequer in Bread Street, and a tenement in Westcheap.

As to the said six mansions, the wardens should appoint six of the most indigent poor to dwell therein, each inmate to have 7d. a week for his sustentation out of the fines and profits of the tenements, and after giving 6s. 8d. yearly to each warden and 2s. to the beadle, for their pains, he directed that whatever residue there should be of the said rents and profits should be put in a chest, and securely kept by the said wardens and four honest men for the reparation, sustentation, and new building of all the tenements when need should require.

The estate was charged also with superstitious uses, in respect of which the right of the Crown was purchased by the Company, and the purchase confirmed by an Act of Parliament passed the 19th March, 4 James 1st (including also some purchases of the Brewers' Company), which would seem to have been omitted in the Act comprising the purchases of the other City Companies, referred to in my report on the Charities of the Fishmongers' Company.

After the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry, and on the 29th November 1833, an information was filed by the Attorney-General, at the relation of Thos. Spencer Hall and another, against the Salters' Company, stating the will of Thos. Beamond and the residuary gift therein contained, and also stating the other gifts which had been made for the almsmen at the hall, and alleging that the amount paid to the almspeople was and had long been very much less than the annual value of the premises derived by the Company under the said will, and praying that it might be declared that all the rents and profits of the messuages and hereditaments held by the Company under Beamond's will were applicable to the charitable purposes mentioned in the will, and that an account might be taken of the rents and fines received by the said Company in respect of the hereditaments under Beamond's will from such time as to the Court might seem fit, and also an account of the money which during the period had been applied out of the rents for the maintenance of the said almsmen, and that the annual surplus might be ascertained, and the said defendants charged therewith and decreed personally to answer and pay the same, and that an account might also be taken of the annual sums received by the defendants in respect of the several other gifts thereinbefore mentioned to have been made to them for the benefit of the almsmen, and of the sums annually paid by them thereout for the almsmen, and that the surplus if any, might be answered by the defendants personally, and the messuages, &c., held by the defendants might be ascertained by the direction of the Court, and that proper deeds might be executed by the said defendants concerning the trusts thereof according to the scheme to be settled as thereinafter mentioned, and that it might be referred to the Master to settle a proper scheme for the extension of the Charity and the application of such of the surplus rents as should be found liable to charitable purposes.

The defendants by their answer set forth the Act of 4th James the 1st for securing to the Company the land given for superstitious uses and purchased by them, and the further Act of the said reign comprised lands omitted in the former Act, and amongst others the land devised by Beamond; and the Company set out the various leases and demises which had been made of the property supposed to be that devised, and subject to the specific gifts to the almspeople, but submitted however that the almsmen were comfortably provided for as therein stated. The suit, I am informed, proceeded no further than the answer, when it was compromised with the consent of the Attorney-General, and a decree made by the Vice-Chancellor of England on the 7th May 1841 to the following effect:—

That the defendants undertaking to continue to make the yearly and other payments of money, and distribution of coals in respect of the charitable gifts thereinafter referred to, being the payments and distribution which as they alleged they had theretofore made in respect of such gifts, and the relators thereupon waiving all further relief in respect of the premises than as thereinafter mentioned, it was ordered that the defendants weekly pay to the six almsfolk of the foundation of Thos. Beamond, 12d., and yearly pay to such almspeople 19s., such weekly and yearly payments being made in respect of the gift of Thos. Salter; and should also weekly pay to the almsmen 12d., such payment being made in respect of the gift of Mr. Scott; and should weekly pay to such almsmen 6d., such weekly payment being made in respect of Thos. Garrett's gift; and should also pay yearly to the almsmen 20d. a piece and 2d. more to the ancientest of them, such yearly payment being made in respect of Thos. Barber's gift; and should also yearly pay to the almsmen in equal divisions 6l., such payment being in respect of Wm. Robson's gift; and should also yearly pay to the almsmen in equal divisions 4l., being in respect of James Smith's gift; and should also yearly pay to each of the almsmen 6s. 8d., in respect of Mrs. Cock's gift; and should also pay yearly to the almsmen 10s. in respect of Robt. Payne's gift; and should also pay to the almsmen yearly 2l. 14s., being made in respect of Sir Jno. Coates' gift, and in lieu of the charitable coals directed by him to be delivered to the almspeople. And it was ordered that the Company should pay the relators their costs.

The six almsmen in Beamond's almshouses receive :—

	£	s.	d.
The weekly payment of 10s. 6d. each	163	16	0
In December and at Easter the Company give nine tons of coal, in lieu of the four sacks of great coal in respect of Thomas Salter's Gift	11	5	0
In April of every year they receive 1l. a week amongst them in respect of Robson's Gift and 1l. 7s. in respect of part of four chaldrons of charcoal given by Sir J. Coates, or 1l. 4s. 6d. each in the whole	7	7	0
In October of every year the almsmen receive 8l. a year amongst them in respect of James Smith's Gift and 1l. 7s. for the other part of Coates' four chaldrons of charcoal and 15s. in respect of Salter's Gift for attending at St. Magnus' Church, or 1l. 13s. 8d. each in the whole	10	2	0
The Company gave also to the six men on the distribution day, about 10 days before Christmas, the sum of 3l. 0s. 2d. or 10s. each in respect of Thos. Barber's, Cock's, and Payne's Gifts	3	0	2
The almsmen also attending the Company on every court day, 12 days in the year, receive 2s. 6d. each	9	0	0
They also receive 10s. each on attending at the hall six times a year	18	0	0
And six attendances at meetings 2s. 6d. each	4	10	0
	227	0	2

The amount thus received by each almsman is about 36l. in money for each person and nearly 2l. in coals.

The almshouses for six poor men are still in Salters' Court, but about to be removed to Watford, in the county of Herts, under the sanction of the Board. (See my report on Sir Ambrose Nicholas' Almshouses infra.)*

SALTER'S GIFT.

Thos. Salter, by his will in 1558, gave to the Company 200 marks, to pay inter alia 52s. a year to the six almsfolk, together with four sacks of coals or 2s. 8d. in money a piece, 3s. on attending St. Magnus' Church, and 1s. to the beadle for accompanying them.

The Company pay 2l. 12s. a year to the account of the Beamond's or the Men's Almshouses. The gift of 3s. to the six almsmen for going to St. Magnus' Church by London Bridge is now converted into a payment of 15s., which they receive without attendance at the church, and the beadle receives 5s. instead of the 1s. in respect of his duty of accompanying them.

The almspeople receive other coals which are not charged to the gift, and they also receive nine tons of coals a year in substitution or discharge of the four sacks apiece founded by this endowment.

JOHN SCOTT'S GIFT.

Jno. Scott, by his will in 1578, gave to the six almsmen 52s. a year (12d. a week). The Company now hold a house, No. 47, Friday Street, and pay thereout 2l. 12s. a year towards the maintenance of Beamond's Almshouses. This gift was made one part of the subject of the suit Attorney-General, at the relation of T. S. Hall, versus Salters' Company, mentioned in my report on Beamond's Charity, and is now governed by the directions of the decree there set out.

He also gave 5l. a year from the same source to the poorest of the yeomanry. The latter gift is distributed amongst the almsmen in Monkwell Street.†

GARRATT'S GIFT.

John Garratt, by his will of the 19th January 1582, gave to the Company all his lands in London for certain superstitious uses and to pay to the six almsmen a penny a week each. The estate charged with this gift consists of property in Carr Square, Moor Square, and Moor Lane, Cripplegate. It is let to various tenants at a rental of about 270l. a year. The Company pay 26s. a year to the account of Beamond's Almshouses.

This gift was made one part of the subject of the suit Attorney-General, at the relation of T. S. Hall, versus Salters' Company, mentioned in my report of Beamond's Charity, and its administration is one of the matters comprised in that compromise, the liability of the Company under the decree before set out being limited to 6d. a week. The foregoing statement of the payments made to the almspeople shows that they receive far more than sufficient to cover this as well as the other endowments.‡

BARBER'S GIFT.

Thos. Barber, by his will of the 14th January 1622, gave 200l. to the Company to be lent to two poor young men at 4l. per cent., and thereout to pay annually to six almsmen 20d. apiece and to the ancientest 2d. more. This gift was included in the suit of Attorney-General versus Salters' Company, and the payments to be made in respect of the capital fund are directed to be made by the Company under the minutes of decree set out in my report on Beamond's Charity.

The Company continue to pay 10s. 2d. annually to the account of Beamond's almsmen; it is considered to form a part of the special distribution of 10s. apiece made on the distribution day.

ROBSON'S GIFT.

Wm. Robson in 1633 gave 2,500l. to the Company to pay (amongst other things) 6l. a year to the almsmen. The Company pay 6l. a year from this donation to the account of Beamond's almsmen, the aggregate payments exceeding this and the other charitable funds founded for the purpose.

SMITH'S GIFT.

James Smith in 1661 gave 4l. a year to the six almsmen. The rent of the premises charged with this gift having increased, the amount of the payments for the benefit of the almsmen has been doubled, and the Company now carry 8l. per annum to the account of Beamond's almsmen.

This gift was one of the subjects of the decree before referred to (see Beamond's Charity). The increase of the payment to the almspeople appears to have been made under a scheme of the Court of Chancery settled in 1825, and referred to in my report on Smith's Almshouses (infra).

SIR JOHN COATES' GIFT.

Sir John Coates gave 200l. to the Company to be lent to two young men, they paying yearly 20s. to the Company's

*THOMAS BEAMOND'S ALMSHOUSES.

In 1865 the Company purchased land at Watford, containing 2a. 1r., for 740l., on which it was then proposed to build new almshouses for the six almsmen, who were however lodged instead in the two side buildings of the new almshouses hereafter mentioned.

By an Order of the Board of this date the Company were authorised to sell the 2a. 1r. for the sum of 1,200l., which was invested in the purchase, in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, of 1,226l. 1s. 1d. Consols.

† JOHN SCOTT'S GIFT.

By an Order of the Board of this date the above-mentioned yearly payments of 2l. 12s. and 5l. were redeemed by the transfer into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 253l. 6s. 8d. Consolidated 3l. per cent. Annuities.

‡ GARRATT'S GIFT.

By an Order of the Board of this date the above-mentioned yearly payment of 26s. was redeemed by the transfer into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 43l. 6s. 8d. Consolidated 3l. per cent. Annuities.

officers and four cartloads of charcoal to the almsmen and the poor of Dowgate Ward.

This was the subject of an information filed the 11th December 1833 by the Attorney-General at the relation of John Edwards and another, stating the gifts of—

200*l.* by Sir John Coates,
100*l.* „ Thos. Payne,
100*l.* „ Sir Ambrose Nicholas,
100*l.* „ Henry Plumpton,
200*l.* „ Lady Nicholas, and praying that an account might be taken of the several principal sums or of such parts thereof as should appear to have come to the hands of the defendants, and that they might be personally charged with and declared liable to raise and pay the same with interest at 5*l.* per cent. from such time as the Court should think fit, and that it might be referred to the Master to settle a scheme for the future application of what should be found due from the defendants to such charitable purposes as would best effectuate the intentions of the donors of the several sums aforesaid.

The defendants put in their answer, and stated to the effect that all such monies had been lent out and ultimately lost, and the relators thereupon proposed and obtained the assent of the Attorney-General to a decree which was made by the Vice-Chancellor of England on the 31st May 1839, which was as follows:—

“The defendants, the Salters’ Company, undertaking to continue the several annual payments directed by the wills of the several donors in manner set forth in their answer, it was ordered that the defendants should pay to the Master and Wardens of the Company the sum of 10*s.* to the renter of the Company 6*s.* 8*d.*, and to the beadle 3*s.* 4*d.*, and to the almsmen founded by Thos. Beaumont the annual sum of 2*l.* 14*s.*, and the annual sum of 2*l.* 12*s.* to the officers of the ward of Dowgate for the poor of that ward, such several yearly payments being made in respect of Coates’ Gift; and the two latter thereof in lieu of coals by him directed to be delivered amongst such almsmen and poor, and should also pay to the clerk of the Company 5*s.*, to the beadle 2*s.*, and amongst the almsmen 10*s.*, such several yearly payments being made in respect of Robert Payne’s gift; and also distribute amongst the almsfolk of the Monkwell Street Almshouses of Sir A. Nicholas 12 chaldrons of coal in respect of Sir A. Nicholas’ Gift, and in lieu of charitable coals by him directed to be distributed; and should also pay to the Company’s use 20*s.*, and to the clerk and beadle in equal division 10*s.*, and to the poor box towards the relief of the poor 10*l.*, such several yearly payments being made in respect of Henry Plumpton’s Gift; and should also pay to the poor of the parish of Saint Mildred, Poultry, 20*s.* in respect of Lady Nicholas’ Gift.”

The Company give credit for 1*l.* 7*s.* for coals in December and at Easter, making 2*l.* 14*s.* a year in respect of the four cartloads of charcoal, and the Master, Wardens, and beadle receive the 20*s.* a year.

MRS. COCK’S GIFT.

Mrs. Cock gave 100*l.* to the Company to pay 6*s.* 8*d.* yearly to each of the six almsmen. This is distributed to the almsmen on the distribution day.

PAYNE’S GIFT.

Robert Payne gave 100*l.* to the Company to be lent to two young men, and out of the interest 10*s.* to be paid yearly to the almsmen. This is given to the almsmen on the distribution day.

SIR AMBROSE NICHOLAS’S ALMSHOUSES.

Sir Ambrose Nicholas, by his will of the 28th April 1578, gave to the Company 12 small tenements or Almshouses in Monkwell Street, and also all other his messuages and lands in St. Alphage and St. Olave; to pay weekly to the 12 almspeople 7*s.*, and provide 300 faggots yearly for them, and to employ the residue for the poor of the Company.

The Almshouses in Monkwell Street are still occupied by the almspeople, but are on the point of being removed to the country. The property devised by the testator forms nearly a square plot, bounded on the north by Hart Street, on the west by Monkwell Street, and on the south by Fell Street. The eastern boundary is at the back of the premises north of Wood Street.

The property of the Charity is as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
Nos. 5 and 6, Hart Street and stables adjoining, let to Messrs. Smith and Chillingworth on two leases for 21 years, which expire Midsummer 1864	-	-	185 13 0

A projected hotel company has proposed to take the whole of this property at a rent far exceeding the present income. I am informed that 1,200*l.* a year has been offered, and that the Company has demanded about 1,500*l.* per annum. The expenditure has immemorially exceeded the income of the endowment. The excess since the year 1845 appears by the following statement:—

	£	s.	d.
1845–46, expenditure	-	-	87 6 9
1846–47	-	-	65 11 0
1847–48	-	-	65 10 10

In 1858 and 1859 there was surplus income	-	-	98 4 3
			1,470 15 5

The disbursements on the Almshouses and almspeople are:—

	£	s.	d.
Pensions, 14s., to each of 12 almswomen (weekly) -	436	16	0
Medical attendance by stipend -	16	16	0
Water rate on the Almshouses in Monkwell Street -	5	0	0
Coals (1861), 18 tons -	21	12	0
Insurance of Almshouses -	3	0	0
Master, Wardens, Surveyor, and Clerk, Annual View in June 1861 -	3	3	0
Repairs and painting, and Surveyor (1860-61), average of three years -	30	0	0
	516	7	0

In addition to the foregoing payments the almswomen receive on the Distribution Day 11. 11s. each, making together 181. 12s., which is thus made up:—

	£	s.	d.	£	s.	d.
Cock's Gift -	0	12	0
Wick's " -	6	0	0
Scott's " -	5	0	0
Hyde's " -	5	0	0
To which the Company add, to make up the amount -	2	0	0
				18	12	0

The Almshouses in Monkwell Street, as well as those of Beamond's (in Bow Lane), are now in course of being rebuilt in the neighbourhood of Watford.

The authority for this reconstruction was issued by the Board, dated in 1862, upon the Report of Mr. Simons.*

ROBSON'S GIFT.

Wm. Robson gave 131. a year to the 12 almsfolk. This is paid out of the interest of the gift of 2,5001. before referred to.

MRS. COCK'S GIFT.

Mrs. Cock gave 12s. a year to the 12 almsfolk. This is given annually to the almswomen on the distribution day.

WICKS' GIFT.

John Wicks, by his will of the 24th February 1727, gave to the Company an acre of copyhold land in Plaistow Marsh for the poor of the Almshouses. And he also gave 51. a year charged on land at Westham for the poor of the Almshouses.

The land at Plaistow or Britty Mead is let to John Lowe at 21. 10s. a year, and 41., after deducting 11. land tax, is received from Messrs. Carruthers in respect of the property at Westham. The total for this gift is 61. 10s. a year.

SALTER'S GIFT.

Thomas Salter gave to the Company 200 marks, and directed them to pay (inter alia) 11. 6s. to the sisters of the late Norman's house at Norwich. The sum of 11. 6s. a year is paid to the churchwarden of the parish of St. Paul in Norwich, as at the time of the last inquiry.

JOHN SCOTT'S GIFT.

John Scott, by will of the 3rd July 1578, gave to the Company two houses in the parish of St. John the Evangelist to provide yearly one cartload of coals for the poor of Allhallows and St. Margaret Moses.

The following sums are paid in respect of this Charity:—

	£	s.	d.
Six almsmen in Beamond's Almshouses -	2	12	0
Twelve almswomen in Monkwell Street Almshouses, given away on the distribution day -	5	0	0
The churchwardens of the parish of St. Margaret Moses -	0	18	0
	8	10	0

There is also a charge for the officers of the Company of 6s. 8d. for their pains, making together 81. 16s. 8d. †

JOHN GARRATT'S GIFT.

John Garratt gave to the prisons of the King's Bench, Marshalsea, and Newgate 6s. 8d. a piece yearly.

	£	s.	d.
The Company pay to Beamond's almsmen yearly -	1	6	0
To the City prisons, on the receipt of the Keeper of the Queen's Bench Prison -	6	8
And in respect of Newgate and Ludgate, to Mr. Temple, by the authority of the Court of Aldermen -	13	4	1

BARBER'S GIFT.

Thomas Barber directed the Company to make the following payments out of the interest of 2001. at 41. per cent. —

	£	s.	d.
To the churchwardens of St. Botolph, Bishopsgate -	6	18	6
To the Master of the Company -	0	3	4
To the Wardens -	0	5	0
To the clerk 2s., to the beadle 1s. -	0	3	0
To six almsmen (Beamond's) -	0	10	2

The several payments are made annually to the respective objects above mentioned.

WILLIAM ROBSON'S GIFT.

Wm. Robson in 1633 deposited with the Company 5,0001., with an agreement as to the sum of 2,5001. part

* SIR AMBROSE NICHOLAS'S ALMSHOUSES.

In 1862 the Company purchased land at Watford containing two acres for 7001., and in 1863 an adjoining half acre for 2001., on which were built 18 Almshouses at a considerable cost. The centre building is occupied by the 12 almswomen, and the two side buildings by the six almsmen on Thomas Beamond's Foundation.

By 13 Orders of the Board of this date the Company were authorised to grant building leases of the whole of the property in Monkwell Street for 80 years from Michaelmas 1864, at a peppercorn rent for the first year, and the annual rent of 1,5001. during the remainder of the term.

By an Order of the Board of this date the claim of the Company for the purchase monies and the cost of the erection of the new Almshouses above mentioned was approved to the extent of 8,1631. 15s. 6d., to be repaid, with interest at 4½ per cent., out of the surplus income of the Charity.

On the 1st July 1881 there was an amount of 1,5331. 10s. 7d. still due to the Company on this account.

† JOHN SCOTT'S GIFT.

By an Order of the Board of this date the above-mentioned charge and liability to provide one cartload of coal (in respect of which a yearly sum of 18s. had for a very considerable period been paid) were redeemed by the transfer into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 671. Consolidated 3 per cent. Annuities.

29th November 1878.

‡ JOHN GARRATT'S GIFT.

This Charity is now administered by the Trustees of the Prison Charities, acting under the provisions of a scheme approved by an Order of the High Court of Justice (Chancery Division) dated 8th December 1876.

By an Order of the Board of this date the above-mentioned charge of 11. was redeemed by the transfer into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 331. 6s. 8d. Consolidated 31. per cent. Annuities.

13th July 1877.

thereof, to pay the interest at 5l. per cent. after his decease as follows:—

The same at Jesus' College, Oxford - - - - -	10	0	0
To the Master and Officers of Company - - - - -	20	0	0

And he gave to the Company 50l. to pay to St. Bartholomew's Hospital an additional 2l. 10s.

A portion of the 5,000l. was invested in the purchase of premises in Lombard Street and Birchin Lane, and the will of Robson directed that when the rents and profits of the houses should be settled in perpetuity on the said charitable uses, that then the indenture he had from the Company for that purpose should be cancelled.

An information was filed in July 1833 by the Attorney-General, at the relation of the Rev. Wm. Sandford and another, against the Salters' Company, setting forth the fact of the aforesaid deposit and the trust as to the 2,500l. the purchase of the said premises in 1634, the will of W. Robson, that the rents of the said premises then amounted to 788l. 9s. 4d. a year, and alleging that the defendants appropriated the greater part of the said rents and profits to their own use, and had made very small additions annually to the charitable gifts, and that after making the payments before mentioned the Company wrongfully claimed the whole of the surplus, and praying that an account might be taken of all sums received by the defendants in respect of the rents of said messuages, &c., and of any fines received by them on granting leases, and also an account of all monies paid by the Company towards the charitable uses aforesaid during the period for which the aforesaid account of rents should be taken, and that the Company might be decreed to answer and pay the balance which should appear to be due on such account, and that the same might be invested for the benefit of the Charity; and that it might be declared that the interest thereof and all yearly profits of the said messuages which should remain after the payment of the several sums mentioned, and directed by said Wm. Robson to be paid by the Company, ought to be applied towards the proportional augmentation of the same Charities respectively, and that it might be referred to the Master to approve of a scheme for the proper application thereof.

It does not appear that the cause was ever brought to a hearing.

Mr. Thompson, the clerk to the Salters' Company, informs me that in August 1834 he reported to the Court of Assistants of the Company that the Company's answer had been put in to the information, and that since then he had been in communication with the Attorney-General's solicitors in consequence of their intended application to the Court of Chancery to inspect all books, &c. of the Company in anywise relating thereto, in the course of which they admitted that the Company's answer was so full that they did not consider there was any strong ground for proceeding with the information, and suggested that an application might be made to the Attorney-General for his opinion whether under the circumstances all further proceedings should not be abandoned. Mr. Thompson further reported that he had declined being a party to such a reference, as partaking of a species of compromise. And for the same reason he could not assent to any such plan upon any understanding that the Company were to pay costs; if the Court considered that there was a sufficient case to warrant costs it would be a different thing. It was arranged that the subject should be mentioned to the Court of Assistants, and if sanctioned by them the application should be made to the Attorney-General on the part of the relators alone, and that afterwards the Court should be applied to for sanctioning the abandonment of the information. The matter was fully discussed, and it appears by a minute of the 7th August 1834 that it was finally resolved that the Court of Assistants concurred as to the propriety of agreeing with any reasonable suggestion for staying further proceedings in the information in question, so that it should not involve any possibility of charging the Company with compounding the subject matter of the information, and that the clerk of the Company be authorised to agree to the proposed manner of bringing the question before the Court.

In reply to my inquiry for a statement of the further proceedings, and a copy of any decree which might have been made, Mr. Thompson writes as follows:—

"On receipt of your letter of the 13th November I made further inquiry on the subject, and having learnt that the index only had been searched which did not extend so far back as 1833, when the suit was filed, I have had further search made during the earlier period, but no trace of any decree can be found."

There is not I apprehend any doubt that the suit entirely failed to charge the Company with any greater sum than the specific payments which they had undertaken by their agreement with the donor to make. The 20l. "to be expended yearly by the Company about the time of his decease," being excluded, the total charge under the foundation is the sum of 107l. 10s. a year, which (with the exception of the 2l. 10s. for a sermon after mentioned) is appropriated as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To the poor of the Company. This is given, 6l. to the Beamond Almsmen, 13l. to the Monkwell Street Almswomen, and 1l. to the additional gifts - - - - -	20	0	0
To the poor of Newport, on the receipt of the incumbent - - - - -	10	0	0
To the minister of Newport (Rev. Mr. Sandford) - - - - -	5	0	0
To the master of the Free School, Newport (1862, John Lees) - - - - -	5	0	0
To the Hospitals of Bridewell, Christchurch, St. Thomas, and St. Bartholomew - - - - -	25	0	0
The Bursars of St. John's College, Oxford, towards the maintenance of two poor scholars there - - - - -	10	0	0
The Bursars of Jesus' College, Oxford, towards the maintenance of two poor scholars there - - - - -	10	0	0
The Officers of the Company for their pains and trouble, Master, Wardens, Clerk, and Beadle - - - - -	20	0	0
	105	0	0

The sermon to be preached on the day of the decease of the founder has not been preached for many years, nor as it appears since the feast was discontinued, and the 2l. given for that purpose, as well as the two sums of 5s. each to the officers of the church have not been appropriated. It has been suggested that a sum in respect of the arrears of this payment for a certain period should be set apart with the accruing payments for some other charitable purpose.*

Mrs. Cock's Gift.

Mrs. Cock gave 100l. to the Company to pay (in addition to the 2l. 12s. to the almshouses)—

	£	s.	d.
To the poor of St. Martin, Ludgate - - - - -	0	15	0
" prisoners in Ludgate - - - - -	0	5	0

By an Order of the Board of this date the above-mentioned yearly payments, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of 107l. 10s., were redeemed by the transfer into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 3,583l. 6s. 8d. Consolidated 3l. per cent. Annuities.

last inquiry), on the receipt of Mr. Temple, the officer of the Court of Aldermen.

The sum of 2*l.* is given to the almsmen in Beamond's almshouses, and the 12*s.* to the almswomen in Monkwell Street on the distribution day.

A sum of 1*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.* is divided amongst the officers of the Company.

The Deputy of the Bread Street Ward receives a sum of 1*l.* 6*s.* 4*d.* annually, and gives a receipt for it, for the poor of his ward.*

HARDING'S GIFT.

Robert Harding, by his will of the 20th November 1568, gave to the Company a yearly rent of 40*s.* out of two tenements in Crooked Lane, for 36 poor men 12*d.* each, to the Wardens 3*s.* 4*d.*, and the beadle 8*d.*

The Company do not receive the rentcharge, but they nevertheless add a sum of 1*l.* 16*s.* to their occasional gifts to the poor of the Company.

The 3*s.* 4*d.* a year is paid to the officers.

PETER BLUNDELL'S GIFT.

Peter Blundell, by his will of the 9th June 1599, gave to the Company 150*l.* to purchase hereditaments and pay 40*s.* to the poor prisoners of Ludgate.

The sum of 2*l.* a year is paid, on the receipt of Mr. Temple, the officer of the Court of Aldermen.†

PLOMPTON'S GIFT.

Henry Plompton gave 100*l.* to the Company, to be lent out to young men, they paying 40*s.*, viz. :

To the Company's use	-	-	-	20
To the clerk and beadle	-	-	-	10
To the poor-box	-	-	-	10

The sum of 1*l.* a year is given annually, 10*s.* being added to the Casual Gifts Fund and 10*s.* to the officers.

The Capital Fund formed one of the subjects of the suit regarding the Loan Funds, mentioned in my Report on Sir John Coates' Charity.

DAVID COCK'S GIFT.

David Cock gave 100*l.*, to be lent to two young men, each paying yearly 23*s.* 4*d.*, of which 40*s.* should be paid to the parson of Allhallows for the repair of the church, and 6*s.* 8*d.* to the Master and Wardens.

The sum of 2*l.* a year is paid annually, on the receipt of the churchwarden of the parish of Allhallows, Bread Street.

The capital sum was a subject of suit as part of the Loan Fund, mentioned in my Report of Sir John Coates' Charity.

IRELAND'S GIFT.

John Ireland gave 200*l.*, to be lent out at seven per cent., and the interest paid as follows :—

The monies paid as follows:—
	£	s.	d.
To the Master and Wardens - -	1	0	0
To the poor's-box - -	2	13	4
To the clerk and beadle - -	0	6	8
To the parish of St. Mildred, Bread Street - -	4	0	0
Towards the account dinner of the Company - -	6	0	0

The Company appropriated 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* as the estimated produce of this gift.

The sum of 4*l.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. Mildred, Bread Street, and a sum of 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* is added to the fund for casual gifts to the poor of the Company.

This sum, though a loan fund, does not appear to have been mentioned in the suit against the Company as belonging to that class of charities. (See Sir John Coates' Gift.)

CRISP'S GIFT.

Ellis Crisp gave to the Company 150*l.*, to be lent to three young men at 4 per cent., to be paid as follows :—

	£	s.	d.
To the poor of St. Mildred's, Bread Street	-	1	0 0
To the town of Marshfield, Gloucestershire	-	4	0 0
To the Company's officers	-	1	0 0

The Company pay to the churchwarden of St. Mildred, Bread Street, a sum of 1*l.* a year, and to the vicar of the parish of Marshfield, Gloucestershire, 4*l.* a year, upon the certificate referred to in the former report.

I do not find any record of the existence of the capital fund, nor was it mentioned in the suit included under the head of Sir John Coates' Charity.

LADY NICHOLAS' GIFT.

Lady Nicholas gave 200*l.* (of which the Company only received 50*l.*) to be lent to a young man, he paying 20*s.* to the poor of St. Mildred's, Bread Street.

The sum of 1*l.* a year is paid to the churchwardens of St. Mildred's, Bread Street.

The capital sum was part of the subject of inquiry in the suit as to loans. (See Sir John Coates' Gift.)

BARNARD HYDE'S GIFT.

By Indenture of the 12th December 1630, between Barnard Hyde of the one part and the Master, Wardens, and Commonalty of the Salters' Company of the other part, in consideration that Barnard Hyde had given to the Company certain sums of money, they covenanted to purchase lands of 62*l.* a year, to be bestowed as follows :—

To a preacher for a weekly sermon in St. Dunstan's in the East or St. Mary at Hill	-	30	0	0
To the poor of the parish where the said lecture should be performed	-	5	0	0
To 10 poor men of the Company	-	5	0	0
To the parish of Little Ilford, Essex	-	1	0	0
To 54 poor widows or maids (5 s. each) of three parishes out of 30, so that the distribution should come round once in every tenth year	-	13	10	0
To the Master, Wardens, and Officers	-	3	0	0

And the residue (4*l.* 10*s.*) to be yearly disposed of at some loving meeting of the Company.

The houses in Gracechurch Street, out of which this Charity Fund arises, are the property of the Company, and are let to — Hyam at a rent of 300*l.* a year.

The residue beyond the payments to the Charitable purposes belong to the Company.

The lecturer at present appointed by the Company is the rector of St. Mary at Hill, the Rev. John Crosthwaite.

The Company have since 1851 paid the lecturer 50*l.* per annum, instead of the 30*l.* directed by the Foundation Deed.

There is a Tuesday evening lecture delivered in the church weekly.

The churchwardens of the same parish receive 5*l.* for their poor.

The churchwardens of Little Ilford receive annually 1*l.* for four poor persons of that parish.

The sum of 13*l.* 10*s.* is divided amongst the several parishes, according to the rota, for the 54 poor maids or widows. I refer on this distribution to my reports on the several parishes.

The sum of 5*l.* given to the poor men is distributed amongst the poor women in Monkwell Street Almshouses at the Distribution Day.

* MRS. COCK'S GIFT.

This Charity is now administered by the Trustees of the Prison Charities, acting under the provisions of a scheme approved by an Order of the High Court of Justice (Chancery Division) dated 8th December 1876.

By an Order of the Board of this date the above-mentioned charge of 5*s.* was redeemed by the transfer into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 8*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Consolidated 3*l.* per cent. Annuities.

The sum of 3*l*. is distributed amongst the Officers of the Company, making an entire distribution of 57*l*. 10*s*.*

JAMES SMITH'S ALMSHOUSES AT MAIDENHEAD.

James Smith, by Indentures of the 22nd and 23rd July 1661, after reciting that he had then lately erected at Maidenhead eight tenements or Almshouses for eight poor men and their wives, conveyed to the Company a messuage and land in the parishes of Bray and Cookham upon trust to pay—

To the said eight men and their wives	£	s.	d.
To the churchwardens of Cookham for bread on Sunday	5	4	0
To the churchwardens for their trouble	1	0	0
To the churchwardens of Maidenhead for their oversight of the almspeople	1	0	0
To the minister of Cookham for a sermon	1	0	0
To the clerk of that parish	0	10	0
To the minister of Maidenhead for a sermon 20 s ., and to the clerk 10 s .	1	10	0
To the six poor almsmen of the Company	4	0	0
To the clerk of the Company 2 l ., and the beadle 10 s .	2	10	0

And the residue, if any, for the repair of the Almshouses.

The Deed directs that there should be 20 trustees, freemen of the Company, and not members of the Court, and it prescribes also the rules and orders to be observed in nominations to the Almshouses.

The last appointment of trustees was made on the 31st December 1845, and of whom several are still surviving.

The property of the Charity consists of the following particulars:—

1. Norden farm in the parish of Bray. A farmhouse and buildings, formerly 116 a . 3 r . 11 p . of land, now about 115 acres. Let to James Henry Clark on an agreement for a lease for 14 years from Michaelmas 1850	£	s.	d.
2. A field near the almshouses, containing 3 a . 2 r . 9 p . of land. Let to — Spratley, a yearly tenant	190	0	0
(2 a . 1 r . 15 p ., part of this land, was purchased with 320 l ., part of the sum of 392 l . received from the Great Western Railway Company in respect of 1 a . 3 r . 9 p ., land taken by them.)	12	0	0
3. A sum of 90 l . Reduced 3 per Cents., the residue of the purchase money, standing in the name of Edward Thompson, the clerk of the Company	2	14	0

*BARNARD HYDE'S GIFT.

By an Order of the Board of this date the above-mentioned yearly payments, amounting in the aggregate

The expenses connected with the almshouses may be thus estimated:—

Insurance	£	s.	d.
The expenses of repairs and improvements of the almshouses for the last seven years have averaged nearly 50 l . a year. New offices in the rear were added in 1857 during this period. The average would not probably in ordinary periods be more than	4	10	0
	40	0	0

The almshouses contain eight sets of rooms, each containing a sitting and bedroom over, each set having a separate outer door opening into a square.

The almspeople, whether man and wife or the survivor, receive each—

Also every alternate year 3½ yards of broadcloth for the men and 3 yards broadcloth for the women, and making in coats and cloaks. (This is a variable sum. In 1862 it was 19*l*. 9*s*. 6*d*.)

15*s*. 4*d*. 0

The other charitable payments made by the Company in respect of this endowment are—

To the Beamond almspeople at Michaelmas, 1 l . 6 s . 8 d .	£	s.	d.
To the chapel warden at Maidenhead	8	0	0
To the minister or perpetual curate of the chapel at Maidenhead	1	0	0
To the clerk of the said chapel	2	0	0
To the vicar of Cookham for sermon on Easter Monday	1	0	0
To the parish clerk of Cookham	2	0	0
To the churchwardens of Cookham for bread for the poor	1	0	0
To the churchwardens of do.	10	8	0
To the agent of the Company for payment of the almspeople	1	0	0
To the clerk of the Company, 4 l ., beadle 1 l .	4	0	0
	35	8	0

These various classes of expenditure make up a sum of 242*l*. 14*s*. 10*d*., which would leave but a small annual balance, amounting to little more than 15*l*. a year.

The variable expenses may perhaps be placed at too high an average.

A deputation of the Company visits the almshouses about every second or third year. In 1860 the expenses charged in respect of this deputation was 14*l*. 14*s*., and a sum of 4*l*. 18*s*. was at the same time distributed amongst the almspeople.

At Midsummer 1862, when the accounts were made up, there was a balance of 80*l*. 19*s*. 2*d*. in hand to the credit of the Charity.

Under a petition presented to the Master of the Rolls, Sir Thomas Plumer, in February 1823, a new Scheme was prepared and confirmed by the Order of the Court of the 17th March 1825. The effect of this Scheme was to double the amount theretofore paid to the almspeople out of the charity estate of James Smith, and also to double the sum paid to each of the other charitable objects.

The minister, churchwardens, and other inhabitants of Cookham, assembled in vestry, nominate two married men and their wives, both being of the age of 50 years, inhabiting within the parish of Cookham, (of whom six according to the 23rd rule should be out of the street of Maidenhead). These names being certified to the Company they choose one of the married couples thus nominated to the vacant rooms. The 2nd rule requires that each nominee should have been twenty years in the parish, and should be approved by four of the principal householders of the parish. The officers of the Company suspect that the selection is not unfrequently made less with the view and benefit of the objects selected than the interest of the parish by the diminution of the rates.*

PARKHURST AND SMITH'S CHARITIES.

Mary Parkhurst and Elizabeth Smith, by Indenture of the 16th May 1764, granted to the Company a rentcharge of 50*l.* a year issuing out of land in St. Mary, Rotherhithe, Surrey, upon trust to pay to the eight almsmen and their wives 41*l.* 12*s.*

For fuel and firewood at Michaelmas 4*l.*, and the residue to be applied as the Company should think fit.

The Company receive 50*l.* a year from the Surrey Canal Company, who have become the proprietors of the estate in the parish of St. Mary, Rotherhithe, charged with this payment.

Of the above sum 45*l.* 12*s.* is carried to the credit of the Maidenhead Almshouses, and the remainder to the credit of the Company.

SIR TIMOTHY WALDO'S CHARITY.

Sir Timothy Waldo, by will of the 26th October 1784, gave to the Company 100*l.*, the interest to be given to two poor persons, being Protestants. And he also gave to the Company 500*l.* Consols, to apply one moiety of the dividends in apprenticing a poor boy of Hever, Kent, and if no such boy could be found, the said moiety should be given to the poor of Hever, and the other moiety to be expended in clothing the poor of Hever.

The capital sum of 100*l.* does not appear to have been distinctly appropriated.

The sum of 500*l.* 3 per cent. Consols stands in the corporate name of the Company, and produces 15*l.* a year.

A sum of 71*l.* 10*s.* is appropriated to the clothing of the poor of Hever, with respect to which an application for trustees and a Scheme is now before the Board, and the Company has intimated their concurrence in the proposal.

The Company are furnished at present with the bill for the clothing ordered by the overseer and churchwardens.

The sum of 71*l.* 10*s.* for apprenticeship is generally accumulated until sufficient is raised to amount to a premium. The last apprentice was bound on the application of the churchwardens in October 1859, at a premium of 20*l.* There is now a sum of 30*l.* in hand on this account.

The sum of 5*l.* a year is carried by the Company to their Casual Gift Fund, and annually distributed to the poor of the Company.

All which I submit to the Board.

15th December 1863.

THOS. HARE,
Inspector of Charities.

RICHARD CHAWRY'S GIFT, otherwise known as SIR WM. HORNE'S GIFT.†

Richard Chawry, by his will dated 13th February 1504, gave to the Company certain hereditaments in the City of London, charged with the payment of 5*s.* per annum to the prisoners of each of the prisons of Newgate, Ludgate, Marshalsea, and King's Bench.

This Charity is now administered by the Trustees of the Prison Charities, acting under the provisions of a Scheme approved by an Order of the High Court of Justice (Chancery Division) dated 8th December 1876.

By an Order of the Board of 13th July 1877 the above-mentioned charge, amounting in all to 1*l.*, was redeemed by the transfer into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 33*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Consolidated 3 per cent. Annuities.

* JAMES SMITH'S ALMSHOUSES AT MAIDENHEAD.

28th February 1865.

By an Order of the Board of this date the Trustees were authorised to grant a lease of 1*a.* 2*r.* at Cookham for 10 years from Michaelmas 1864 at the annual rent of 15*l.*, for the purpose of digging and selling gravel.

12th January 1877.

By an Order of the Board of this date the Trustees were authorised to sell the "Union Field" at Cookham, containing 5*a.* 0*r.* 7*p.*, for 1,115*l.* This sum was invested in the purchase in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of 1,153*l.* 18*s.* 11*d.* Consolidated 3*l.* per cent. Annuities.

By an Order of the Board of this date directions were given by way of Scheme that so long and for such time as the office of parish clerk of the parish of Cookham should be vacant, the income of the Charity applicable for his benefit should be appropriated and applied by the vicar and churchwardens of the said parish in and towards the expenses attending the conduct of religious worship in the parish church of Cookham aforesaid.

SALTERS' COMPANY.

TO THE CHARITY COMMISSIONERS FOR ENGLAND AND WALES.

IN pursuance of an Order of the Board, dated 19th March 1862, I have inspected the Almshouses under the management of the Salters' Company, founded by Sir Ambrose Nicholas, Knight, and Thos. Beamond; also the site proposed for building Almshouses at Watford for the reception of the almsmen and almswomen now inhabiting the same, and have to report as follows :—

The Salters' Almshouses in Monkwell Street, Cripplegate, were founded by Sir Ambrose Nicholas, Knight, who by his will, dated 28th April 1578, gave his 12 small tenements situate in Monkwell (then called Mugwell) Street, within Cripplegate, London, in the occupation of seven men and five widows therein named, and intended as Almshouses for 12 poor men or women being free of the City of London (Salters always to be preferred), to live free of rent during their lives, and to be admitted by the appointment of the Wardens and Commonalty of the art or mystery of Salters and their successors for the time being; and he bequeathed the said 12 tenements with the appurtenances to the said Wardens and Commonalty and their successors for ever for this purpose.

A large stone tablet on the present building bears this inscription :—“These Twelve Almshouses were founded in the year 1578 by Sir Ambrose Nicholas, Knt., Citizen and Alderman of London, in the Gift of the Worshipful Company of Salters, who rebuilt them after the Great Fire of 1666, and who have been and are considerable benefactors to the Charity.”

These Almshouses, situated in a narrow street in Cripplegate, are very old, small, low, and ill-arranged; the large chimney-breast and staircase rendering the lower or sitting room exceedingly narrow. The bedroom over is rather better in this respect, but this is also narrowed by a staircase leading to a little useless garret, or rather loft, in the roof.

The four houses next Hart Street are exceedingly bad, and in addition to their being smaller than the rest they are nearest to a furnace belonging to a steam engine used on the manufacturing premises immediately in the rear, and stated by the almswomen to be a serious nuisance and inconvenience, especially in the summer.

A more material objection, in which all the occupants share, is that there is but one watercloset in the centre of the Almshouses. Each almswoman has a key, but the inconvenience of going along the street to this place, where the receptacle for the dust, ashes, &c. of all the houses is situated, and from whence also every drop of water has to be carried, is very great. The state of substantial repair appeared to me better than might be expected from such old tenements.

The inmates receive 14s. a week each, also Christmas money 31s. 6d., and 1½ tons of coal per annum. Medical attendance is provided by the Company.

The Salters' Almshouses in Bow Lane were founded by Thomas Beamond, who by will dated 1454 bequeathed a considerable estate to the Wardens and Brethren and Sisters of the said fraternity and guild, and as to six houses, part of the devised property, the testator willed that the Wardens and their successors should receive and order six of the most poor and indigent of the art to dwell therein.

Six almsmen of the Salters' Company now dwell in apartments arranged for the purpose in two houses belonging to the Company in Salters' Court, Bow Lane. Five of the number are married. To each two rooms are appointed. These houses are supposed to have been built immediately after the Fire of London, and although there were complaints of some of the rooms being damp, cold, and dark, they are immeasurably better than the Monkwell Street tenements. The houses are of course very old, and the arrangement of the basement is bad—low, dark, damp, and confined.

The repairs appear to have been constantly attended to, and the substantial state of these two houses (with the exception of the windows or, rather, casements) was better than from their great age would be expected.

The six inmates here receive 10s. 6d. a week, 1½ tons of coals a year, and other benefits.

Both the almsmen and almswomen extol the Company for their liberality, and I found upon the whole less disinclination to the idea of removal than I have ever before witnessed at similar inspections.

The proposed new Almshouses are intended to be erected on a portion of the field called Butt Field, which is situated within a quarter of a mile of the railway station at Watford. They will be bounded by the Parsonage House at one extremity, which is now in progress, and at the other by new boys' and girls' schools, which are in full operation. How far the noise during certain times proceeding from the playgrounds attached to the schools, in exchange for the constant sounds of factories and metropolitan traffic to which the inmates are now subject, would be agreeable or otherwise will vary in different individuals.

The site is a desirable one, and so situated that drainage to any extent can be had. It is stated that the main sewer will be continued beyond the Salters' Company's ground, all proprietors paying their proportion.

The road is laid out, but not yet made beyond the schools before mentioned.

I was informed the front aspect is north-east.

The new district church is within two or three hundred yards, and the distance to the centre of the town of Watford under half a mile.

The works belonging to the Water Company are near. The water is stated to be good, and the supply plentiful.

The plan and elevation submitted, although very plain, appears well adapted to the purpose.

I am of opinion that the most casual view of the improved habitations and more healthy locality can leave no doubt but that the almsmen and almswomen will be great gainers by the removal.

All which I submit to the Board.

JOHN SIMONS.

IRONMONGERS' COMPANY.

TO THE CHARITY COMMISSIONERS FOR
ENGLAND AND WALES.

IN pursuance of a Minute of the Board of the 13th day of November 1860, I have inquired into the condition and circumstances of the Charities under the management of the Company of Ironmongers of the City of London, and I have stated in the Report under the head of each specific endowment the result of my investigation.

The Company or Corporation of Ironmongers is intituled "The Master and Keepers or Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery or Art of Ironmongers, London."

The governing body consists of the master, two wardens, and the livery, which is from time to time filled up to the number of 100.

The master and wardens pass to their offices by rotation, holding such offices for one year each, the junior warden becoming in his second year the senior warden. The livery are chosen from the freemen. The freedom is acquired by patrimony, actual (and not colourable) servitude of apprenticeship of seven years, and by redemption, at the discretion of the court, which is obtained by payment of 100 guineas.

The number of freemen, exclusive of the livery, is about 150.

BETTON'S CHARITY.

Thomas Betton by his will of 15th February 1723 devised and bequeathed the residue of his estates whatsoever and wheresoever to the Company of Ironmongers upon trust to pay one full half part of the interest and profits unto the redemption of British slaves in Turkey or Barbary, one full fourth part of the interest, &c. unto charity schools in the City and suburbs of London where the education is according to the Church of England, in which number that of St. Leonard, Shoreditch, to be included, and not giving anyone above 20*l.* per annum; and the other fourth part in consideration of the Company's care and pains in the execution of the will, to the uses following, viz:—

Ten pounds per annum to such minister of the Church of England as they should from time to time entertain in their hospital for performing divine service; the remains unto the necessitated decayed freemen of the said Company, their widows and children, not exceeding 10*l.* a year to any family.

The residuary estate of the testator as appears in the Reports of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 2, page 49, and Vol. 32, part 2, page 450), was laid out in the purchase of real estates in the counties of Middlesex and Essex, and a fee farm rent payable from an estate at Bainbrigge, Yorkshire, excepting a portion of the fund which either originally stood, or was subsequently placed in Bank Stock and South Sea Annuities, and some small portion also in Government funds.

The estate was the subject of an administration suit, the result of which is briefly stated in the Reports of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 2, page 49).

The Charity funds were applied in accordance with the original direction, so far as the circumstances of the times admitted, but a large accumulation arose of the funds applicable to the objects to which the first moiety of the estate was devoted by the will. In November 1829 an information was filed by the Attorney-General, at the relation of D. H. Howlett, against the Ironmongers' Company, stating amongst other things that by certain treaties entered into between this country and Turkey and the States of Barbary all dealings in slaves were prohibited, and, therefore, according to the laws of this country, the said moiety could not be applied according to the directions of the testator; and the information prayed that it might be declared that one moiety of the Charity Estates ought to be applied to the purposes of the Charity, and as near to the intention of the donor as the circumstances of the case would admit; that it might be referred to the Master to take an account of the rents and profits and other revenues of the said Charity; that the Company should account for such part as should appear to have been improperly applied; and that the Master should settle a plan for the future application thereof.

The Company by their answer, the substance of which is set out in the same Report, stated that the accumulations of the surplus income in June 1827 amounted to 81,500*l.*, 3*l.* per cent. Reduced Annuities, and 3,569*l.* 18*s.* 7*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols, besides a freehold estate at Sible Hedingham, in Essex, which, in 1806, the Company had purchased for 6,191*l.* 10*s.* cash, a portion of the then accumulations, and which estate produced a rental of 230*l.* a year, and the defendants stated the resolutions which had been come to by a special committee of the Company for the application of the annual income of the accumulation towards the other objects to which the second moiety of the testator's estate had been devoted.

An interim order of the Court of the 25th March 1830 continued the application thus adopted by the Company pending the litigation on the subject.

An order of the Court of the 19th July 1830 referred it to the Master to approve of a scheme for the administration of the moiety of the estate from which the accumulations had arisen, and to inquire whether such scheme could be carried into effect without the aid of Parliament, and also to settle a scheme for the proper application of the other moiety. The order also directed the defendants to transfer to the Accountant-General one moiety of the stock purchased with part of the testator's residuary estate, to be placed to an account called "The Principal Account," and the stock which had arisen from the moiety of the estates applicable to the redemption of slaves to "The Accumulated Income Account."

The report of the Master of the 20th July 1833 advised that 7,000*l.* stock should be set apart in order that the dividends and amount of accumulations thereof might form a fund to provide for the redemption of British subjects who might thereafter be detained in Turkey or Barbary, and he approved of a scheme for the application of the surplus income in two moieties; one for charity schools in the City and suburbs of London, and the other for objects connected with the Company, similar to those directed by the will, and as to the second moiety of the estate the Master approved of the application which the Company had adopted.

The Master of the Rolls (Sir John Leach) by his decree 12th November 1833, declared that the Court had no jurisdiction to apply the surplus income of the moiety of the Charity property in question to any purpose inconsistent with the testator's intention, and referred it back to the Master to approve of a scheme to be submitted to Parliament, and his honour confirmed that part of the Report which related to the setting apart of the 7,000*l.*, Bank 3*l.* per cent. Annuities to "The Redemption Slave Account," and directed the same accordingly.

On appeal from this decree to the Lord Chancellor (Lord Brougham) his Lordship on the 21st November 1834 reversed the declaration as to the want of jurisdiction in the Court, and as to the application to Parliament. The cause was in pursuance of this decree re-heard before the Master of the Rolls (Sir W. W. Pepys) on the 28th of April 1835, who referred it back to the Master to review his report and settle a scheme, having regard as near as might be to the intention of the testator and having regard to the bequest touching British captives, and having regard to the other charitable bequests in the will.

On the 3rd August 1839 the Master made a separate report and certified that there were no direct objects to which the surplus moiety and the accumulations thereof and the dividends and income thereof could be applied, and the Master thereby further certified that if the true construction of the order of the 1st May 1835 should be that he was bound in the first instance to consider the application of the surplus moiety and the accumulations thereof, and of the dividends and income thereof, in reference only to the intention of the testator as to the bequest contained in his will touching British captives, and if the case of "the Attorney-General v. Gibson" cited before him, were a case which should appear to the Court as applicable to the present case, that the application proposed by the scheme therein referred to as having been brought in by the trustees of the Mico Charity was an application as near as might be to the intention of the testator, as to the bequest contained in his will touching British captives, provision being made for the increase of the comforts of such of the pensioners in Greenwich Hospital as were present at the battle of Algiers, and for the education at the school attached to such hospital, and at the Royal Naval School, and at the school attached to the Royal Benevolent Society, all therein mentioned, of the children of such officers and men as were present at the battle of Algiers. But the Master thereby submitted also to the Court whether a portion of the surplus moiety and the accumulations thereof and of the dividends and income thereof might not in such case be properly applied for the benefit of the Seamen's Hospital Society and the Royal Naval Benevolent Society therein mentioned, at least in respect of the last mentioned Charities, so far as respected the officers and men, and their families engaged at the battle of Algiers, but if the case of "the Attorney-General v. Gibson" should not appear to the Court as applicable to the present case, or one that ought to govern it, or if the true construction of the order of the 1st of May 1835, should be that he was bound to consider of the application of such surplus moiety and the accumulations thereof, and of the dividends and income thereof, having regard as near as might be to the intention of the testator as to the bequest contained in his will touching British captives, and having regard also to the other charitable bequests in the will, whether the case of "the Attorney-General v. Gibson" should or not appear to the Court applicable to the present case, or one that ought to govern it, then he found subject to the provision being made for the increase of the comforts of such of the pensioners in Greenwich Hospital as were present at the battle of Algiers, and the education of their children at such schools as therein-before mentioned, and also subject to the submission therein-before mentioned, as to the Seamen's Hospital Society and the Royal Naval Benevolent Society, that the proper application of the surplus moiety, and the accumulations thereof, and of the dividends and income thereof, would be for the better support of the Charity Schools in the city and suburbs of London, where the education is according to the Church of England, including the school of the parish where the testator dwelt, and the Royal Naval School, and the school attached to Greenwich Hospital, and he further certified that save as aforesaid, there were no objects to which the surplus moiety and the accumulations thereof, and the dividends and income thereof could be applied, having regard to the directions contained in the decree of the 1st May 1835.

The consideration of the report and exceptions taken by the Company thereto, came on for hearing before the Master of the Rolls (Lord Langdale) on the 13th December 1839, when it was declared that there were no direct objects to which the income of the moiety of the Charity estates and funds mentioned in the pleadings and the accumulations thereof could be applied, regard being had to the bequest in the will of the testator touching British captives. And it was declared that the scheme proposed by the appellants and mentioned in the report, so far as it proposed the appropriation of the income of the moiety and the accumulations thereof to the Charity Schools in the City and suburbs of London where the education is according to the Church of England, and to the necessitated decayed freemen of the Ironmongers' Company, their widows and children, was a proper scheme for the application of the income of such moiety and the accumulations thereof, and of the income and dividends thereof, as near as might be to the intention of the testator, having regard to the bequest contained in his will touching British captives, and having regard also to the other charitable bequests in his will; and it was referred back to the Master to review his report and to approve of a scheme for the application of the moiety and the accumulations thereof, and the dividends and income thereof to the Charity Schools in the city and suburbs of London where the education is according to the Church of England, and to the necessitated decayed freemen of the Ironmongers' Company, their widows and children.

On the appeal of the informant and relators against this decision the Lord Chancellor, on the 23rd January 1841, reversed the decree of the Master of the Rolls, except so much thereof as declared that there were no direct objects to which the income of the moiety of the Charity estates and funds mentioned in the pleadings, and the accumulations thereof, could be applied, regard being had to the bequest in the will of the testator touching British captives, and in lieu of the part so reversed it was declared that the half part of the rents, interest, and profits of the testator's property which by his will is directed to be applied to the redemption of British slaves in Turkey or Barbary, and the interest and profits of the accumulations thereof ought to be applied in supporting and assisting Charity Schools in England and Wales where the education is according to the Church of England, but not to an amount of more than 20l. a year to any one school, and it was referred back to the Master to settle and approve of a scheme for that purpose, and the consideration of all further directions and subsequent costs was reserved.

From this decision which negated the application of a moiety of the moiety in question, to purposes connected with the Company and its freemen, similar to those which the testator had pointed out as to a portion of the other moiety, the Ironmongers' Company appealed to the House of Lords, assigning by their counsel, Sir W. W. Follett, Mr. Sutton-Sharpe, and Mr. Adams, as their principal reasons of appeal:

First. Because in default of the direct objects to which the income of the moiety of the Charity Estates and funds and the accumulations thereof could be applied, regard being had to the bequest in the will of the said T. Betton, touching British captives, the application of the income of the said moiety and the accumulations thereof to the Charity Schools in the City and suburbs of London, where the education was according to the Church of England, and the necessitated decayed freemen of the Ironmongers' Company, their widows and children, was a proper scheme for the application of such income and the accumulations thereof, and the accruing dividends thereof, as near as might be to the intention of the testator, having regard to the bequest in his will touching British captives, and having regard also to the other charitable bequests in his said will.

Second. Because, according to the true construction of the will of the said T. Betton, in default of the direct objects to which, by the said will, the income of the said moiety of the said Charity Estates was given, the income of such moiety ought to be applied to the other charitable objects mentioned in the said will.

The respondents, the Attorney-General, and the relator, by their counsel, Mr. Pemberton, Mr. C. P. Cooper, and Mr. Spurrier, assigned as their principal reasons for supporting the decree:

Firstly. It is a well-established principle in courts of equity that where a testator has bequeathed property to different definite charitable purposes, some of which have failed, it is to be applied to other charitable purposes as nearly as may be in conformity with the intention of the testator as such intention is to be collected from his will.

Secondly. In the present case by the order of the 1st May 1835, which has not been appealed from, the Master was, in accordance with that principle, directed, in settling a scheme, "to have regard as near as might be to the intention of the testator as to the bequest contained in his will touching British captives, and to have regard also to the other charitable bequests in the will."

Thirdly. The testator in bequeathing a fourth part of his residuary property as he has done. "In consideration of the Ironmongers' Company's care and pains in the execution of his will," has manifested that he had in view rather the remuneration of those on whom he reposed the burden of carrying his will into execution, than the establishment of any particular charity.

Fourthly. The only charitable purposes therefore directly contemplated as such by the will are two, namely, the redemption of British slaves in Turkey or Barbary, a purpose which has wholly failed, and the support of schools in London and its suburbs for education, on the principles of the Church of England; and the bequest to such last-mentioned charitable purposes afford therefore the only guide to be found to the intention of the testator.

Lastly. The application directed by the decree appealed from of the property destined to the purpose which has failed is in conformity with the intention of the testator in so far as it can be collected from such last mentioned charitable bequests, with regard to the latter of such bequests, inasmuch as it provides for the support of schools for education on the principles of the Church of England, and with regard to the former of such bequests, inasmuch as it is extended to the whole of the British community, and as no other application has been suggested more in conformity with such intention, and in particular none suggested more nearly resembling the charitable purposes which has failed.

The cause came on before the House of Lords on the 7th June 1844, and was heard before the Lord Chancellor (Lyndhurst), Lord Brougham, Lord Cottenham, and Lord Campbell, when their lordships dismissed the appeal and confirmed the decree.

The Master then proceeded to make his report, and by such report dated the 23rd December 1845, certified that the income of the funds in court and of the estates, constituting the moiety and accumulations in question in the cause amounted to the yearly sum of 5,000*l.* or thereabouts, but such amount of income in part arising from Bank stock, rents, and profits of estates might increase or diminish, and he certified that there was then standing to the separate account in the cause, namely, "redemption slave account" 7,916*l.* 8*s.* 3*d.*, Bank three per cent. Annuities, including the 7,000*l.* like Bank Annuities originally transferred and set apart to that account as a fund to provide for any British subjects that might hereafter be detained in slavery in Turkey or Barbary. And the Master certified that it had been submitted to him that in apportioning the said income, estimated at 5,000*l.* a year, among the 26 dioceses of England and Wales as therein-after mentioned, regard had been had to the population, to the number of parishes or ecclesiastical districts, and to the number of schools most proper to be supported and assisted in each diocese, so that conformably to the decision of the Court the benefit of the Charity might be fairly and equally distributed over the whole kingdom, and he certified that the following apportionment was a fair and just distribution of the income in manner aforesaid.

And the Master thereby approved of the following scheme in lieu of the scheme mentioned in his report of the 21st April 1842, for the purpose of applying the half part of the rents and profits of the testator's property; but the scheme so approved contained directions for the passing of the accounts before the Master, which were not confirmed by the Court, but were expunged from the scheme by the subsequent order, and are not, therefore, stated amongst the following clauses. The clauses approved and adopted are:—

1st.—That the annual sums above mentioned and apportioned, and the sums to be apportioned as herein-after provided, shall be distributed and divided to and among the schools in each diocese that shall be most proper to be supported and assisted, not giving to any one school more than 20*l.* a year and not less than 5*l.* a year, under and according to such rules and regulations as are herein-after mentioned and contained.

2nd.—That the Ironmongers' Company shall receive the whole income of the charity funds and estates, and shall keep accounts of all monies received in respect thereof, and of their application of such monies, such accounts to be made up yearly, and shall also keep full minutes of all their proceedings in respect of the Charity

3rd.—That the Ironmongers' Company shall, from time to time, as circumstances may require, alter and vary the sums apportioned or to be apportioned to any diocese according to the population, the number of parishes or ecclesiastical districts, the number of schools proper to be supported and assisted therein, so far as they shall be able to ascertain the same, and shall, within six weeks from the time of making the same, report any such alteration or variation to the bishop of such diocese.

4th.—That notice of all grants proposed to be made to schools shall be given to the bishops of the dioceses in which such schools shall be situate one month before making the same, and in case any bishop shall within such month make any communication to the Ironmongers' Company on the subject of such proposed grant, or any of them, or otherwise relating to the Charity, the Ironmongers' Company, in coming to a determination on the subject of such grants or other communications of the bishops relating to the Charity, shall give due consideration to such communication, and inform the bishops of their determination thereon.

5th.—That in selecting the most proper schools to be supported and assisted, a preference shall be given to the claims of schools that have been recently established where the difficulties incident to a new undertaking are still to be overcome; and that among new schools those be preferred which are connected with new district churches, where the clergyman chiefly depends for his support upon the pew rents, and where the local resources are required for church buildings and other similar purposes.

6th.—That the schools especially preferred shall be those in which instruction is given both on Sunday and on every day throughout the week, and that Sunday schools merely, and schools for infants under seven years of age, shall be excluded from the benefit of the fund.

7th.—That in cases where a boys' school and girls' school are under one and the same management, and are intended for the benefit of the same population, they shall be regarded as one establishment, and one grant only shall be deemed sufficient for both.

8th.—That once in every year the Ironmongers' Company shall require a certificate from the managers or trustees of the schools to which grants shall be made, or if there shall not be any managers or trustees thereof, then from the ministers of the parishes in which such schools shall be situate, a certificate as to the state of the school buildings, the manner in which the schools are conducted, the amount as well as the yearly income, whether derived from subscriptions or otherwise, as also of the yearly expenditure for the preceding year, and the debts or incumbrances (if any) affecting the schools, and the Ironmongers' Company shall give due consideration to such certificate in determining on the propriety of continuing such grants.

By the order of Lord Langdale, the Master of the Rolls, of the 29th July 1846, his Lordship confirmed the scheme mentioned in the Master's report of the 23rd December 1845, with the exception aforesaid, and directed that the same should be established, and the half part of the rents, profits, and interests, applied accordingly.

The costs of these proceedings (except the costs of the appeal to the House of Lords, which were ordered to be paid by the Company), were paid out of the moiety of the Charity estates. The aggregate amount of the costs has not been computed, but I am informed that they were not much less than 10,000*l.*

The account was continued under the order, and a balance found due from the Company. This fund was invested and added to the fund in court on the accumulated income account. The amount of the stock belonging to this branch of Betton's Charity and standing in the name of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery to the credit of the cause, Attorney-General v. Ironmongers' Company, is set out in a later part of this report.

The real estate of the Charity consists of the following particulars, in which I have followed the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (Vol. 2, Appendix P. 228):—

MIDDLESEX.—ISLE OF DOGS.

Under an order of the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales of the 17th July 1855, and an order of the 5th June 1857, the Company demised to John Henry Weetzel, his executors, administrators, and assigns three pieces or plots of land, containing in the whole about 3 acres, at rents amounting together to - - - 162 0 0

(These were building leases for 63 years, and upwards of 70 fourth-class houses, called respectively Betton's Terrace, Totnes Terrace, Ingelburn Terrace and Place, Laura Cottages, and Elizabeth Cottages, have been built in pursuance of the covenants and under the inspection of the Company's surveyor).

Under an order of the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales of the 17th July 1855, another plot of land, was demised to W. J. and R. Tindal for a like term of 63 years upon a building lease, and a factory and warehouse has been built thereon, the reserved rent being - - - 50 0 0

The remainder of the land called Barnfield, stated to be about 31 acres of marsh land, is now let to Mr. Bradshaw, a tenant from year to year at - - - 77 10 0

Upon the Isle of Dogs property, under the order of the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales of 31st day of October 1856, the Company were authorised to raise 1,000*l.* by way of mortgage, bearing interest at 4½ per cent., and to pay the same to the Metropolitan Board of Works as and for the construction of a sewer by the said board as therein mentioned.

A redemption or sinking fund has been created, which on the 30th June 1860 amounted to 161*l.* 10*s.*, 3*l.* per cent. Consols, in the names of members of the Company, 50*l.* in cash, and the accumulating dividends, are annually appropriated to this fund.

The Metropolitan Board of Works have given the Company notice of their intention to take a portion of the land of the Charity running through the property in East and West Ham to the outfall on the river in quantity about 80 acres for the Metropolitan sewer. The claim of the Ironmongers' Company in respect of this Charity is about 41,700*l.*, and 500*l.* an acre for the Reed Shore, according to the quantity which shall be taken. Into this matter it is not necessary and it would be premature to enter, but the conclusion of the purchase will of course materially affect the future particulars and rental of the estate.

WEST HAM, ESSEX.

Under the order of the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, dated the 3rd day of February 1857, the Company demised a plot of land, containing about ¼ of an acre, to Messrs. Dodge, Bacon and Co., carrying on business under the style of the Patent Leather Cloth Company (Limited), for a term not exceeding 60 years at an annual rent of 20*l.* - - - 120 0 0

Under a subsequent arrangement with the Patent Leather Company, communicated to the Board, and receiving their preliminary and conditional sanction, intimated to the Ironmongers' Company by the Board's letter of the 22nd November 1858, the term was extended to 99 years, and a further quantity of land, making altogether about 1½ acres, was included in the demise, with provisions for building, and the whole rent was fixed at 120*l.* Buildings (including the manufactory and warehouses of the Company) of a substantial character have been erected. The Ironmongers' Company have applied to the board for its confirmation.

It will be observed that the report of the Master of the 20th July 1833, approved of the application of this moiety of the original estates, and that no directions were given by the Court thereupon. The application has therefore continued to be made substantially in the same manner as before the institution of the suit.

As to the fourth part for the benefit of charity schools in the City and suburbs of London, in the construction of the term suburbs the Company have adopted the signification of parishes actually abutting on parishes in the City of London. A list was settled many years ago in a classification of first, second, and third-class schools, according to the number of scholars and necessity of assistance, rather than what the terms would otherwise imply. The list was revised about 10 years ago, and now stands as shown in the following statement, the balance of the quarter of the income is allotted to St. Leonard, Shoreditch, the school specially referred to by the testator, and the school mentioned in each parish, where not otherwise described, is the parochial or national school of the mother parish or church. The sums appropriated to the schools in the following statement were the sums allowed in the year 1859-60:—

I have stated the average of the fourth part of the income for the last three years applicable to the schools in the City and suburbs of London at 391*l.* 4*s.*, but the amount of rental and income received in the year 1859-60 only afforded the above sum of 356*l.* 7*s.* It is apparent that several of the schools in the above list do not stand in need of assistance, and none of the poorest establishments are within it. The object of the members of the Ironmongers' Company is to select the most needy institutions within the scope of their powers, and it were greatly to be desired that some method were found of indicating the schools which are situated in the most populous neighbourhoods, and performing most satisfactorily the business of instruction and at the same time the most in want of aid.

The increase of the income will afford an extension of the distribution which may be by addition of the amount given to each school, or by adding to the number of schools allowed to participate.

As to the other fourth for the chaplain, and the necessitated deceased freemen of the Company, their widows and children.

The tomb of Thomas Betton is in the burial ground of the almshouse in Kingland Road, and is by the desire in the will repaired by the Company from this portion of the fund.

The chaplain of the Ironmongers' Company, who resides and officiates at Sir Robert Geffrey's Almshouses, receives from the Ironmongers' Company 104*l.*, from Geffrey's Charity 75*l.*, from Chase's 10*l.*, from Betton's 10*l.*, and Hanson's 1*l.*, making up a stipend of 200*l.* a year

The poor members of the Company are divided into two classes, outdoor and indoor.

Of the outdoor pensioners there are 38, and indoor (in Sir Robert Geffrey's Almshouses) 20. To the outdoor pensioners 10*l.* a year each are paid, and to the indoor 6*l.* a year.

As Betton's Charity will not make up these amounts, the Ironmongers' Company provide the difference from their own funds, which has required from 180*l.* to 220*l.* a year. In 1858-9 the Company paid from their own funds 222*l.* 8*s.* 0*d.*

The income of the Charity property, falling within the scheme of 1845, is thus:—

The Slave Redemption Account had up to the year 1858 accumulated to the sum of 12,409*l.* 16*s.* 9*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. Consols. By an order of the Court of Chancery of the 24th Nov. 1858, it was ordered that the interest from time to time to accrue due on the 12,409*l.* 16*s.* 9*d.* Consols be paid to the petitioners, the Ironmongers' Company, until the further order of the Court to be applied by them in the manner directed by the order of the 29th July 1846, concerning the interest and dividends to accrue due on the Bank Annuities, Bank stock, and South Sea Annuities, standing in the name of the Accountant-General to the credit of the cause, "The Accumulated Income Account," thereby directed to be paid to the Company.

The disbursements in 1859, 1860 were increased (or rather the accidental charges of the year were increased) by the circumstance that 57*l.* 4*s.* 6*d.* was allowed to tenants in property tax, and no return obtained in that year, and that the surveyor's account was 89*l.* 13*s.* 0*d.*, exceeding its usual or ordinary magnitude (as I have above estimated it) by about 50*l.* This accounts for the comparatively small sum arising from the moiety of the general estate in that year.

The amount of this moiety of the Charity in the last year, as actually received and applied, thus tests the accuracy of the general account which I have above presented.

After the final establishment and confirmation of the scheme above stated the following advertisement was issued by the Ironmongers' Company and inserted in every journal in England and Wales. This was done at an expense of about 60*l.*

To Clergymen and others connected with the Established Church.

The Worshipful Company of Ironmongers, London, as Trustees of Mr. Betton's Charity, hereby give notice that, by a decree of the Court of Chancery, the income arising from the accumulated funds of this Charity is directed to be distributed annually amongst schools in England and Wales, where the education is in accordance with the principles of the Church of England. Parties desirous of obtaining grants must forward their applications, containing particulars of their schools, &c. to the Clerk of the Company at Ironmongers' Hall, London.

Sunday and infant schools are not within the scope of the Charity, nor can any grant be made for building school-houses or establishing schools.

Ironmongers' Hall,
March 13th, 1847.

The applications in reply to the advertisement were about 2,300 in number. To every applicant the following paper of questions was transmitted:—

QUESTIONS to be answered by Parties making Application for a portion of the Funds arising from Mr. BETTON'S CHARITY.

The funds are intended for national, parochial, and other schools of a similar nature, where the education is in accordance with the principles of the Church of England, except Sunday and infant schools, which are not within the scope of the Charity.

No grants can be made for building school houses, or establishing schools, but only for assisting schools in operation.

and address.

By the regulations of the Court of Chancery respecting this Charity, the Ironmongers' Company are bound to require a certificate annually from the trustees or managers of each school, or if no managers or trustees, from the clergyman of the parish, as to the state of the school buildings, the manner in which the school is conducted, the amount of income and expenditure for the preceding year, and the debts or incumbrances, if any, affecting the schools.

The information received in reply to the foregoing interrogatories was tabulated by the clerk in the following form :—

Name of Parish or District.	Name of Clergyman.	Popula- tion.	No. of Children.				Income.		Annual Expences.	New or Old Dis- trict.	Valuation of Parish or District.	Observations.
			Educated.		Clothed.		Perman- ent.	Uncer- tain.
			Boys.	Girls.	Boys.	Girls.

The tabular statement was prepared before November 1847. The observations made on each case after perusing the applications, answers, and correspondence in each case, were brought before the trustees (a committee of the Com- pany, consisting of 40 in number, of whom about 25 attend) who meet annually in November. At the first occasion, for acting upon the information gathered as above, the business occupied several days. The Com- mittee apportioned to the schools of each diocese the sum specified in the scheme for that particular diocese. This allotment to each diocese was not strictly persevered in but for a short time; few applications had proceeded from Worcester and Carlisle, and some portions of the sums specified for those dioceses were given to others. The diocese of Manchester was also subsequently carried out of that of Chester. After seven years, in 1854, the com- mittee sent a circular to the schools, stating that a revision was contemplated, and in the result of their new inquiries they altered the original distribution as to about 60 schools, without other regard to the diocese than that of consider- ing that the same diocese had the first claim, ceteris paribus, to any sum which had been originally given. The chief diminution was in the diocese of Carlisle. At the first grant to every school, a letter in the following form was sent :—

Ironmongers' Hall.

SIR, THE trustees of Mr. Betton's Charity have granted the sum of £ to the school at and, should the funds permit, the grant will be continued during the pleasure of the trustees and upon the following conditions, vizt. That the Government or diocesan inspector of schools, or any inspector to be appointed by the trustees be ad- mitted from time to time to examine into the efficiency of the school. That a certificate, stating the school is properly con- ducted, be transmitted from the clergyman of the parish or district at the time of each payment. You will have the kindness to inform me at your earliest convenience whether you are willing to accept the grant on the conditions above stated, and if so a certificate and re- ceipt will be forwarded to you at an early period for signa- ture, and to enable you to receive the money from the bankers of the trustees. It will, however, be necessary that I should previously be furnished with the names of the treasurer and manager. I am, sir, Your most obedient servant, S. ADAMS BECK.

On the acceptance of the grant on the specified condi- tions, the clerk transmits to the clergyman of the parish the following letter and form of receipt :— Ironmongers' Hall, London, 18 . SIR, HEREWITH I beg to forward you the cheque and certificate to enable you to receive the grant from Betton's Charity for the year ensuing. I beg at the same time to call your attention to the questions on the back of the certificate, and to request that the fullest and clearest answers may be given. The account of income is to in- clude all sums received on account of the school, and the statement of the expenditure is to show the full amount disbursed on account of the school, whether for master's salary or otherwise. Where the expenditure exceeds the income it would be desirable that you should state how the excess is made up, as the trustees are of opinion, from the returns made to them, that the clergyman and treasurers are frequently called upon to pay considerable sums from their own resources which only appear as a portion of the general expenses and not as arising from their private funds.

I must also, in consequence of many parties returning the cheques to me for payment again call your attention to the mode in which payment is to be obtained. The money will be paid on the receipt and certificate being signed and presented for payment at the banking house of Sir Charles Price, Bart., and Company, King William Street, either through your bankers, or by yourself, or some friend per- sonally.

In case any change should have taken place since last year in the clergyman, treasurer, or manager, it will be necessary that I should be furnished with the christian and surnames of the new officer in order that the list, from which the bankers pay the receipts, may be rectified.

I am, sir, Your most obedient servant, S. ADAMS BECK.

A list of the grants proposed to be made in each diocese is previously sent to the bishop. In some instances alterations have been made at the bishop's suggestion.

There has been no general revision of the grants since 1854, but in the year 1861, being the second period of seven years, it is intended by the Company to reconsider the list, and after obtaining such assistance as they can from the inspectors of schools, both general and diocesan, to revise the distribution.

When the subject of this moiety of the Charity was in litigation in the Court of Chancery the costs were taxed. The taxation took place under an order of the Master of the Rolls (I presume an order of course) of the 10th December 1849 and included costs up to that time. The principle adopted by the taxing master was to allow—

	£	s.	d.
For every single letter sent - - -	0	3	6
But if more than one is written the same day, the charge was to be 5s. for the first, and 2s. for every other. For perusing and considering 1,782 papers of questions and answers to applicants for grants, and upwards of 5,000 letters. Accompanying and relating to the same. Drawing epitome and full particulars of the applications for the trustees - - -	221	0	0
It will be observed it is as nearly as possible 2s. 6d. per application, which was the calculation on which the allowance was made. There were in the same bill allowances for various attendances on the trustees, on the business of which the following is an example.
Attending the trustees, going through statements of accounts, apportioning funds between different dioceses, viz., St. Asaph, Bangor, Bath, Canterbury, Carlisle, and Chester - - -	3	3	0
Similar allowances were made for attendance on the apportionment to several other clusters of dioceses.
Preparing, addressing, and sending out 748 circulars to clergymen to whose schools grants had been made, with form and certificate - - -	6	6	0
Filling in 736 certificates and receipts and counterfoils, with amount of grant, name of school and all necessary particulars -	18	8	0

	£	s.	d.
Attending several clergymen, bankers, trustees, and other parties on the subject of this charity, in the years 1846, 1847, 1848, and 1849 - - -	36	15	0
Adopting the principle to be collected from the scale of charges thus sanctioned by the Court; the clerk of the Company has since charged :
For examining and preparing the epitome of each application annually - - -	0	2	6
For filling up certificates each - - -	0	0	6
For filling up circulars annually - - -	6	6	0
Attendance on clergy annually - - -	10	10	0
Attendance on committees per day - - -	3	3	0

The total amount charged for the expense of management, was in—

1856-1857 - - -	129	19	4
1857-1858 - - -	148	16	9
1858-1859 - - -	155	4	2

The other charges on the fund are only small sums for stationery and 10l. for the committee, in ordinary years. On the septennial revision there may be several committees, and the charge is on that occasion multiplied accordingly. On the last occasion there were three committees.

The distribution to the several charities throughout England and Wales and the short particulars of the application upon which the grant was made, and the educational claims and necessities of each school, as they at present appear, is set forth in an account recently prepared with a view to the revision of 1861, which concludes this report.

The aggregate amount distributed in the last years was as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
1857-58 (actually paid) - - -	5,258	0	0
one unpaid - - -	5	0	0
unpaid - - -	35	0	0
(added to schools in the succeeding year)
unpaid - - -	30	0	0

New grant or additional grants to other schools have been made since June 1860 to the amount of 200l.*

1877.

By an order of the said board of this date the Ironmongers' Company were empowered to effect the purchase, at the price of 600*l.*, of a piece of land containing 7 a. 3 r. 36 p. or thereabouts, situate in the aforesaid parish of Sible Hedingham, numbered 1,080 on the tithe map, and to provide the amounts required for that purpose out of surplus income.

26th June
1878.

By an order of the said board of this date the Ironmongers' Company were authorised to sell to Edward Rowcliffe, Esq., at the price of 2,850*l.*, several pieces of land containing in the whole 49 a. 2 r. 35 p., forming part of the "Booker's Lee Estate" at Alfold, in the county of Surrey, and numbered 69 to 78 inclusive on the tithe map of that parish.

The purchase money was in accordance with the directions in the above order duly remitted and invested in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in the purchase of Consols.

1878.

By an order of the said board of this date the Ironmongers' Company were empowered to effect certain drainage works upon two farms called respectively "Smart's" and "Emperor's," farms, containing 152 acres, situate in the parish of Moreton, in the county of Essex, at an outlay of 1,000*l.*, to be provided by the sale of stock held by the Official Trustees, subject to a proviso for the replacement of stock realised within 10 years by annual instalments.

The sum of 1,000 sterling was realised in accordance with the above order and remitted in accordance with the authority of the Company.

The grant of the following several leases of property at West Ham, in the county of Essex, belonging to this Charity for terms of 80 years have been sanctioned by orders of the said board, viz.:—

24th October
1879.

By an order of the said board of this date the Ironmongers' Company were empowered to sell to the West Ham School Board for the sum of 2,200*l.* a piece of land containing 3 r. 8 p. situate in and fronting to Abbey Lane, West Ham.

The sale was subsequently completed and the purchase money invested in Consols in the name of The Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in accordance with the terms of the order.

12th March
1880.

By an order of the said board of this date the Ironmongers' Company were empowered to provide by the sale of stock held by The Official Trustees of Charitable Funds the balance of the amount required to complete a purchase of the manor of East Hall, and a farm called "East Hall of the Company at 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* per annum, which interest he gave to the Company. And the testator gave to the said Company 50*l.* to the end that they should give to their clerk for ever such sufficient recompense for making the bonds for the 1,300*l.* to be lent as aforesaid, and for giving the notice at every meeting of the yeomanry of such sums as should be then in cash, or soon after due, that the said clerk might hold himself therewith contented and take nothing of the young men either for making the bonds or in any way whatever. And he gave the 10*l.* arising from the said 300*l.* to the Company on the conditions that they accepted the trust.

The Commissioners of Inquiry report that the payment in respect of the interest of the 1,000*l.* was discontinued by an order of the Court of Chancery in 1741, on the allegation that the fund had been authoritatively appropriated by Parliament, during the civil wars. (Vol. 10, p. 238.)

By subsequent inquiries it appeared that, although there was no doubt that the Company and its members had been compelled to make large contributions to the Parliament about 1642, 1644, and 1645, yet there was no reason to suppose that this particular sum had been specifically taken.

On the 15th October 1833 an information was filed by the Attorney-General at the relation of William Everett, against the Company, praying that it might be declared that the Company were chargeable with and bound to provide out of their general funds the said two several sums of 1,000*l.* and 300*l.* to be applied on the trusts of the will as the Court should think necessary, and that the same might be set apart and invested as to the said 1,000*l.* so as to yield an income of 40*l.* to be applied for the release of poor prisoners. And that the defendants should account for the arrears of the said yearly sum of 40*l.* from the year 1770 down to the time of the resumption of the yearly payments. And that it might be referred to the Master to take such account accordingly, and that the defendants might pay the amount when so ascertained, and that such arrears should be invested to form a fund yielding interest to be applied to the trusts to which the same ought to have been applied either with reference to making loans or otherwise as the Court might direct, and that it might be referred to the Master to settle a scheme.

By the decree of the 30th of November 1836 the Master of the Rolls ordered that the Ironmongers' Company should be charged therewith accordingly, and that it should be referred to the Master to settle a scheme for the lending out of the said two sums of 1,000*l.* and 300*l.*, and for the application of the interest thereof, having regard to the will and intentions of the testator, with directions to tax the costs of all parties, and reserving the consideration of all further directions.

The Master made his report dated the 20th March 1837, and found that it had been alleged on the part of the relator that since the gifts were made the value of money had greatly decreased and the prices of the necessary articles of life had greatly increased, so that 100*l.* was at that time of more value than 300*l.* at the present time, and that it was believed that if the loans be restricted to 100*l.* there would not be any applications from freemen of the Company for the same, nor would such a sum be deemed sufficient benefit as to produce freemen to procure two or three sureties, to give a bond, or to grant a mortgage for the same, but if the loans should be increased, or a discretion given to the Company to increase them to 300*l.*, the same would be applied for and would be considered a benefit by poor freemen of the Company, the relator had therefore proposed as a proper scheme for the lending out of the said 1,000*l.* and 300*l.* or so much thereof as would remain after payment thereof of the said extra and subsequent costs, and for the application of the interest thereof, regard being had to the said will in certain articles.

The Master then set forth the scheme which he settled and approved of, and which is in the terms of the printed document following:—

To Freemen of the Worshipful Company of Ironmongers.

SCHEME for Regulating Sir J. CAMBELL'S CHARITY settled by the Court of Chancery in 1837.

FIRST.

That so much of the said sums of 1,000*l.* and 300*l.* mentioned in the said decree as should remain after payment of the relators' extra costs, and the subsequent costs of this suit, be set apart as a fund, to be called the "Loan Fund," bearing interest; and that the management of the said fund, and all matters incidental thereto, be vested in the Company for the time being.

SECOND.

That the residue of the said sums of 1,000*l.* and 300*l.* after payment of the said costs be lent or advanced as or by way of loans to young freemen of the said Company, in sums of 100*l.* and upwards, but not exceeding the sum of 300*l.* to each freeman, for five years, bearing interest at 4 per cent. per annum, upon bond with two or three good sureties for the repayment, to be approved of by the said Company for the time being.

THIRD.

That each applicant for such loans shall at the respective times of the same being made give a bond with two or three sureties, as may be required, whereby they shall become jointly and severally bound to the master and wardens of the said Company for the time being in a penalty of double the amount of the sum borrowed and conditioned for the repayment of the said principal sum within three calendar months from the lending thereof; but that the calling in of the said loan is not to be made, nor the said bond put in force, until the expiration of five years from the date thereof, unless it shall be manifest to the said Company upon good grounds that any of the obligators or sureties are not responsible and are unable to satisfy the same, in which case it shall be lawful for the said Company to call in the money, and in case of non-payment to put the said bond in force, unless the borrower, being and continuing solvent, can procure another surety or other sureties of substance as the case may require and the Company shall judge necessary; and in the event of the borrower becoming insolvent or in distressed circumstances, or, in the opinion of the Company, unable to discharge the said loan, that then it shall be lawful for the said Company immediately thenceforth to put the said bond in force against the said borrower and his sureties, or such of them as the said Company shall think fit.

FOURTH.

That on the death of any borrower before the said five years shall expire, the said Company shall call in the money, and in case of non-payment put the bond in force against his representatives and sureties and all persons liable thereon, if they shall think fit.

FIFTH.

That in case the whole or any part of the said sums applicable to loans shall not be required, nor be advanced by way of loan, on bond as aforesaid, then the Company may lend out the same in sums not exceeding 300*l.* to any one freeman on mortgage of freehold, leasehold, or other property of ample value, without sureties, at 4 per cent. per annum for five years.

SIXTH.

That the respective borrowers shall bear and pay the charge for the stamps only on the bonds, and all proper and necessary charges and expenses of and attending the making and executing of the mortgage, and all other Farm" containing 399 a. 3 r. 17 p. situate at Bradwell-on-Sea in the county of Essex, authorised by an order of the High Court of Justice, Chancery Division, dated the 12th December 1879 at the sum of 14,800*l.*

In pursuance of such last mentioned order of the said board, the sum of 2,028*l.* 7*s.* 5*d.* was realised by the sale of 2,030*l.* 18*s.* 2*d.* Consols, and remitted for application to the above purpose.

Pursuant to an order of the said board of this date the sum of 98*l.* 8*s.* 6*d.* representing the proceeds of the sale of timber on property belonging to the charity at Sible Hedingham was invested in Consols in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

By opinion of the said board of this date the Ironmongers' Company as trustees of the Charity and owners of property in Alfold, in the county of Surrey, were authorised to contribute a sum not exceeding 10*l.* in aid of a fund collected for restoring the spire of the parish church of Alfold aforesaid.

8th July.

matters relative thereto, and the Company shall bear and pay the residue of the charge for the said bond out of their own funds.

SEVENTH.

That in a book to be provided and kept by the clerk of the Company shall be entered the names and residences of the respective borrowers and their sureties, their profession or business, the sums lent, the times of making the loans, and when payable, and any other particulars which may be thought material or necessary.

EIGHTH.

That once at least in every year, and also from and immediately after any of the moneys called in shall be received, notice shall be posted up in the common hall of the said Company, and advertised in two or more of the London daily newspapers of the greatest circulation, that such moneys are ready to be advanced on loan to such freemen of the said Company, and in manner as herein-before mentioned.

NINTH.

That notice of the said funds, or such parts thereof as are now in hand, shall be immediately in like manner posted up and advertised as ready to be advanced on loan to freemen of the said Company, at the rate of interest aforesaid.

TENTH.

That when the whole or any part of the residue of the said sum of 1,000*l.* shall be in hand, and not immediately required for loans, the same shall be invested in Exchequer bills, or some other convenient or tangible security, and the interest made therefrom, as also the interest to arise from the said loans, shall, when, and as the same shall be received be paid and applied to, and for the charitable objects and purposes herein-after mentioned as far as the same will extend.

ELEVENTH.

That the interest of the loans and investments of the said sum of 1,000*l.*, when, and as the same shall be received, be paid yearly and every year for ever, for or towards the releasing of such honest poor freemen of London out of some or all the prisons as shall have most need, and who shall be confined therein for their fees and charges, or other small debts or sums not exceeding 15*l.*

TWELFTH.

That the interest of the said sum of 300*l.* given to the said Company be retained by them for their own use and benefit or applied at their own discretion for charitable purposes.

THIRTEENTH.

That all reasonable and necessary expenses incidental to carrying this scheme into effect, except such as are herein-before provided to be paid by the borrowers and the said Company, shall be borne and paid out of the said trust funds, or out of any interest to be made therefrom.

FOURTEENTH.

That the articles of this scheme shall be printed and put up in the hall of the said Company.

FIFTEENTH.

That the said book shall be open to the inspection of all or any of the members of the said Company at all reasonable times without expence.

By an order of the Court on further directions of the 27th May 1837 it was ordered that the scheme for carrying the Charity into effect be carried into execution, and that the Master was to tax all parties their costs of the suit as between solicitor and client, and that such costs be paid out of the Charity fund.

The sum of 852*l.* 6*s.* 6*d.* which appears to have been the amount of the balance of 1,000*l.* after paying the costs which amounted to 147*l.* 13*s.* 6*d.*, was in 1837 invested in the purchase of 907*l.* 18*s.* 9*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols.

In February 1838 the Company sold out 218*l.* 11*s.* 7*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols, part of this fund producing 200*l.* cash, to lend to a freemen named Playfair. In 1842 324*l.* 15*s.* 3*d.* further stock was sold out to lend 300*l.* to a freeman named Smithson, which left 364*l.* 11*s.* 11*d.* like stock of the original fund. In 1845 the Company bought 100*l.* 5*s.*

stock with 100*l.* repaid by Playfair; in the same year 457*l.* 7*s.* 3*d.* stock was sold out for loans of 300*l.* to Radford, and 150*l.* to Woodin, both freemen.

This reduced the stock to 7*l.* 9*s.* 8*d.*

In April 1846 the Company bought 103*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.* stock with 100*l.* received from Playfair. Both these sums were received from Playfair's sureties. In December 1846 the Company purchased 52*l.* 4*s.* 5*d.* stock with 50*l.* received from Smithson's sureties. In July 1847 they purchased 56*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.* stock, with 50*l.* received from Smithson's sureties. In August 1848 a further purchase of 57*l.* 17*s.* 1*d.* stock was made with 50*l.* received from Smithson's sureties. In October 1849 the Company purchased 53*l.* 13*s.* 2*d.* stock with 50*l.* received from Smithson's sureties. In August 1850 they purchased 103*l.* 1*s.* 10*d.* stock with 100*l.* received from Woodin's sureties. In February 1851 they purchased 51*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* with 50*l.* received from Woodin's sureties. The loans to Playfair and Woodin were thus recovered and part of Smithson's.

In August 1851 there remained as the result of the transaction 485*l.* 16*s.* 6*d.* stock, with the outstanding loans. In January 1855 the Company sold out 111*l.* 7*s.* 6*d.* stock for a loan of 100*l.* to Gorton, and in September 1856 a sum of 317*l.* 6*s.* 9*d.* stock for a loan of 300*l.* to Raven. In January 1860 the Company bought 226*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* stock with 150*l.* received in full from Radford (the principal) and 67*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.* from his sureties.

The stock now (13th February 1861) consists of 283*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.* 3*l.* per cent. Consols and the outstanding loans of—100*l.* to Gorton.

300*l.* to Raven.

There is also a balance of 100*l.*, due from Smithson, which is considered to be a bad debt. The notice of the loan fund is posted in the hall of the Company.

It has not been the habit of the Company to insert advertisements of the loan fund in the newspapers for two or three years past.

The interest account of the Cambell Loan Fund exhibits two payments in 1854 and one in 1860 each of 15*l.* for the discharge of prisoners.

In 1859 4*l.* 10*s.* 4*d.* was paid for a like purpose. Printed applications are left with the Governor of White Cross Street, and in filling them up it is expected that he will state that the prisoner is confined for debt and can be released for the sum of 15*l.*

The Governor, Colonel Hicks, brings the receipt from the plaintiff's attorney and certifies the discharge. The acceptance of the 15*l.* is usually a compromise of a larger debt, which the detaining creditor consents to receive in satisfaction of his demand. I need not remark on the fraud to which this is open if the administration be not carefully guarded and great care exercised by the Governor of the prison in the cases he selects.

There are law charges in the recovery of the sums due from the borrowers. I find that in some cases there have been law charges for the preparation of the bonds, which according to the sixth clause of the scheme are to be borne by the Company. The clerk of the Company will examine the past accounts and extract such charges and bring them to the credit of the income account of the Charity. In some cases expenses have been incurred in the discovery of an attempted fraud or concealment on the part of the borrowers, and allowances have been made to persons who have assisted in getting in funds by such means. In the year 1859-60, the sum of 7*l.* 10*s.* was paid as commission for the recovery of Radford's debt which had theretofore been considered lost.

The balance in hand on the income account (i.e. the dividends on the stock, and interest on the loans) in June 1860 was 83*l.* 5*s.* 7*d.* To this will be added the charges for the preparation of the bonds which up to this time have been erroneously made.

CHASE'S GIFT.

William Chase by his will dated the 1st February 1719, gave to the Company 200*l.* to pay yearly 10*l.* to a minister to read prayers daily, and preach a sermon on Sundays at Geoffrey's Almshouses.

The 10*l.* is annually paid to the chaplain of the almshouses. The chaplain receives 200*l.* a year, in which this is included, but forms a distinct payment.

CHAPMAN'S CHARITY.

William Chapman by his will of the 8th August 1579 gave to the Company 200*l.* for maintaining in Oriel College, Oxford, two poor scholars 5*l.* a piece, until they should be of the age of 30 years; a further sum of 100*l.* to pay to 24 poor householders of Cookham, Berks, 5*l.* 4*s.*; every Sunday in bread and money, 2*s.* to be paid to 12 of such householders on one Sunday, and to the other 12 on the next Sunday.

The books of the Company state that the students are elected by the college under a decree of the Court of Chancery of the 18th of James I., but of which the clerk of the Company has never seen any copy. The Company receive nominations of the dean and provost and senior tutor of the college, and pay the 5*l.* to such nominees, who are always fellows of the college.

The Company pay 5*l.* 4*s.* a year to the churchwardens of Cookham, Berks.

DANE'S CHARITY.

Margaret Dane, by her will of the 16th May 1579 gave to the Company 2,000*l.* to lend the same to 20 young men of the Company for three years at 5 per cent. interest and the Company to pay 100*l.* yearly for the same as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
Christ's, Bartholomew's, and St. Thomas' Hospitals (10 l. each) - - -	30	0	0
Twenty poor maids - - -	10	0	0
Two poor scholars at Oxford and Cambridge, each 5 l. - - -	10	0	0
Bread and beef to poor prisoners - - -	10	0	0
To a school at Bishop Stortford - - -	5	0	0
Faggots for the poorest people of the 24 wards (12,000 faggots) - - -	25	0	0
Dinner at the hall - - -	10	0	0

The sum of 2,000*l.* is stated to have been lent out according to the will for many years, but by an entry in the books of the Company it appears that the money was taken by the Parliament sometime in or after 1640 and never repaid. The payment in respect of the interest continued to be made by the Company, until a suit was instituted in the Court of Chancery in 1833.

On the 3rd December 1833 an information was filed by the Attorney-General at the relation of William Everett against the Ironmongers' Company, praying that the defendants might be declared to be accountable and liable to pay or otherwise chargeable with the said 2,000*l.* of the gift of the said several yearly sums in the will mentioned to the several charitable uses in that behalf, as the interest thereof, and that the said defendants ought, under the circumstances, and that they be decreed to provide or apply some specific fund in respect of the said 2,000*l.*, yielding a clear yearly income to the amount of the said several yearly sums or otherwise as might under the circumstances appear proper either by way of investment or otherwise.

By the decree of the 30th November 1836, the defendants submitting to be charged with the said principal sum of 2,000*l.*, the Court declared them charged therewith accordingly and referred it to the Master to settle a scheme for the lending out of the said 2,000*l.*, and for the application of the interest thereof to the several charitable trusts and purposes in the said will expressed as soon as might be having regard to the will, save as to the 10*l.* for a dinner which was to be in the discretion of the said Company.

The Master by his report of the 20th March 1837 approved of a scheme for the administration of the fund, which was directed to be invested, after the payment of costs directed to be taxed and paid. The sum invested was 1,855*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.* which purchased 1,997*l.* 11*s.* 9*d.*, 3*l.* per cent. Reduced Annuities. The scheme is appended to this report.

The sum of 1,997*l.* 11*s.* 9*d.* stock was first reduced by the sale of 323*l.* 6*s.* stock for the purpose of a loan of 300*l.* to James Imeson, according to the scheme. It was lent upon bond with two sureties. Imeson became insolvent, one of the sureties also became insolvent, a sum of 50*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.* was recovered and invested in 53*l.* 8*s.* stock, making then altogether 1,727*l.* 14*s.* 3*d.* The other surety paid 10*s.* in the pound on the debt, which was invested in the sum of 152*l.* 5*s.* 3*d.* like stock, making it a fund of 1,879*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.*

A subsequent loan of 100*l.* having been made to Gorton, the dividends on the stock, after deducting expenses of notices, &c. are apportioned according to the directions of the scheme; thus in 1859-60—

	£	s.	d.
Paid for marriage portions to 20 poor persons -	5	10	5
For fuel to 24 wards, on receipts to the ward beadies - - -	13	16	3

To Freemen of the Worshipful Company of Ironmongers.

SCHEME for regulating Mrs. DANE'S CHARITY, settled by the Court of Chancery in 1837.

FIRST.

That so much of the said sum of 2,000*l.* mentioned in the said decree, as shall remain after the payment of the relator's extra costs and the subsequent costs of this suit, be set apart as a fund, to be called the "Loan Fund," bearing interest; and that the management of the said fund and all other matters incidental thereto, be vested in the said Company for the time being.

SECOND.

That the residue of the said sum of 2,000*l.* after payment of the said costs be lent or advanced as or by way of loans to young freemen of the said Company; but that poor young freemen of the said Company, occupiers and inhabitants of the City of London or the suburbs thereof, and such who may be retailers of linen cloth, are to be preferred in sums of 100*l.* and upwards, (but not exceeding the sum of 300*l.* to each freeman), for five years, bearing interest at five per cent. per annum upon bond with two or three good sureties for the repayment, to be approved of by the said Company for the time being.

THIRD.

That each applicant for such loan shall, at the respective times of the same being made, give a bond with two or three sureties, as may be required, whereby they shall become jointly and severally bound to the master and wardens, and six others of the said Company by name, for the time being, in a penalty of double the amount of the sum borrowed, conditioned for the repayment of the said principal sum within three calendar months from the lending thereof; but the calling in of the said loan is not to be made nor the said bond put in force until the expiration of five years from the date thereof, unless it shall be manifest to the said Company, upon good grounds, that any of the obligors or sureties are not responsible or are unable to satisfy the same, in which case it shall be lawful for the said Company to call in the money, and in case of non-payment to put the said bond in force, unless the borrower, being or continuing solvent, can procure another surety or other sureties of substance as the case may require and the Company shall judge necessary; and in the event of the borrower becoming insolvent or in distressed circumstances, or in the opinion of the said Company, unable to discharge the said loan, that then it shall be lawful for the said Company immediately thenceforth to put the said bond in force against the said borrower and his sureties or such of them as the said Company shall think fit.

FOURTH.

That on the death of any borrower before the said five years shall expire, the said Company shall, if they shall see fit, call in the money, and in case of non-payment, put the bond in force against his representatives and sureties, and all persons liable thereon.

FIFTH.

That in case the whole or any part of the said sum applicable to loans shall not be required nor be advanced by way of loan on bond as aforesaid, then the Company may lend out the same, in sums not exceeding 300*l.* to any one freeman, on mortgage of good freehold, leasehold, or other property of ample value, without sureties at five per cent. per annum for five years.

SIXTH.

That the respective borrowers shall bear and pay all proper and necessary charges and expences of and attending the making and executing the bonds and mortgages and all other matters relative thereto.

3 X

SEVENTH.

That in a book, to be provided and kept by the clerk of the said Company, shall be entered the names and residences of the respective borrowers and their sureties, their profession or business, the sums lent, the times of making the loans, and when payable, and any other particulars which may be thought material or necessary.

EIGHTH.

That once at least in every year, and also from and immediately after any of the moneys called in shall be received, notice shall be posted up in the Common Hall of the said Company, and advertised in two or more of the London daily newspapers of the greatest circulation, that such moneys are ready to be advanced on loans to such freemen of the said Company, and in manner herein-before mentioned.

NINTH.

That notice of the said funds or such part thereof as is now in hand shall be immediately in like manner posted up and advertised as ready to be advanced on loan to freemen of the said Company, and at such rate of interest as aforesaid.

TENTH.

That when the whole or any part of the said trust fund shall be in hand and not immediately required for loans, the same shall be invested in Exchequer bills or some other convenient and tangible security, and the interest made therefrom, as also the interest to arise from the said loans when and as the same shall be received, be paid and applied to or for the charitable objects and purposes hereinafter mentioned so far as the same will extend rateably and in due proportion.

ELEVENTH.

That a fair proportion rateably of the yearly sums of 10*l.* bequeathed to each of the said hospitals, viz.:—Christ's Hospital, St. Bartholomew's, and St. Thomas' Hospital, be paid to them respectively.

TWELFTH.

That a like fair proportion rateably of the yearly sum of 10*l.* be paid and distributed at the discretion of the said Company for ever to 20 poor maids, within every year, at or on the respective days of their marriage.

THIRTEENTH.

That a like proportion rateably of the yearly sum of 10*l.* be paid to and equally between the two Universities of Oxford and Cambridge for ever, in or towards the relief and bringing up in learning of two poor scholars, the one to be in Oxford and the other in Cambridge, but so as that he that hath the benefit the one year should not have it the next year, but to come through the whole or as many number of poor scholars as may be, and when all the poor scholars shall have partaken thereof, then to revert again, in due order and regularity.

FOURTEENTH.

That a like proportion rateably of the yearly sum of 10*l.* be paid for ever to the governors, keepers, or wardens of the several prisons of Newgate, Ludgate, Giltspur-street, Whitecross-street, Tothill-fields, Marshalsea, the Borough Click in Tooley-street, and the King's Bench, in such proportions as the said Company shall think fit, to be laid out in the purchase of bread and meat, to be distributed amongst the poor prisoners in the said prisons, once in every year.

FIFTEENTH.

That a like proportion rateably of the yearly sum of 5*l.* be paid for ever to one of the churchwardens of Bishop Stortford, in the county of Herts, to be applied towards the maintenance of the school there; or such school failing, then to the relief of the poor people of the same parish not receiving parochial relief.

SIXTEENTH.

That a like proportion rateably of the yearly sum of 25*l.* be paid for ever in equal shares to the respective officers of 24 of the wards of the City of London, to be laid out in the purchase of fuel to be distributed among the poorest people of the said wards once in every year at Christmas.

SEVENTEENTH.

That a like proportion rateably of the yearly sum of 10*l.* given to the said Company in or towards a dinner to be made at their hall on the day of the said testatrix's death, in every year, be retained by them or applied at their discretion for charitable purposes.

EIGHTEENTH.

That all reasonable and necessary expenses incidental to the carrying this scheme into effect (except such as shall be properly charged to the said borrowers) shall be borne and paid out of the said trust funds, or out of any interest to be made therefrom while in hand and until the same shall be so lent out as aforesaid.

NINETEENTH.

That the articles of this scheme shall be printed and put up in the hall of the said Company.

TWENTIETH.

That the said book shall be open to the inspection of all or any of the members of the said Company at all reasonable times, without expense.

GAMAGE'S GIFT.

Anthony Gamage by his will, 15th December 1771 bequeathed to the Ironmongers' Company 400*l.* to be lent to young men, freemen of the Company, in different sums as directed by the will, rendering to the wardens of the Company 30*s.* for every 100*l.*, the sum to be:—

	£	s.	d.
For the wardens' use - - - -	0	6	8
Company's use, amongst the poorest brethren yearly, to be divided - - - -	0	10	0
Clerk - - - - -	0	1	8
Beadle - - - - -	0	1	8
Wardens of the Grocers' Company for seeing to the bestowing of the 400 l. , between the Company, their clerk, and beadle as thereby directed - - - - -	0	10	0

The capital sum of 400*l.* is not distinguished from the other funds of the Company. A general notice of moneys to be lent to the poor freemen of the Company is occasionally advertised; but no loans have been made or applied for on this account since the last inquiry. The want of applications is supposed to be on account of the small sums directed by the will to be lent to each freeman, namely as to 300*l.* in sums of 50*l.* each and as to 100*l.* in sums of 25*l.* each.

In respect of the interest account, the sum of 2*l.* a year is paid to the Grocers' Company, and 2*l.* is paid to four pensioners in Lewin's Almshouses. The payments to the officers of the Ironmongers' Company are not made.

SIR R. GEFFERY'S CHARITY.

Sir Robert Geffery by his will of the 10th February 1703 bequeathed to the Wardens and Commonalty of the Mystery or Art of Ironmongers of London a legacy of 400*l.* to be laid out in lands for certain charitable uses in the parish of St. Dionis Backchurch, London. And a further sum of 520*l.* to be laid out in lands for charitable uses in the parishes of Landrake and St. Erney in Cornwall; and the residue of his real and personal estate to be paid to the said Company for the erection of almshouses for poor people near London and the maintenance thereof.

The accounts of the testator's estate appear to have been taken in the Court of Chancery in a cause the Ironmongers' Company v. Roberts, which by its decree of the 9th July 1708 reciting that the residue of the estate amounted to 1,534*l.* 13*s.* 9*d.* in the hands of the executors, directed the application of the two legacies of 400*l.* and 520*l.* to the several uses prescribed by the will, and as to the residue that the plaintiffs should be at liberty to propose to the master a convenient piece of ground in or near London, not exceeding 10 miles, in fee simple for the building the almshouses on, and that the purchase should be effected out of part of the residue of testator's estate, and the other trusts of the will be carried into effect with the approbation of the Master, who should take an account of the rents of the premises purchased, and of the interest of the money not so employed, and that such rents and interest should be applied in the first place in building the almshouses.

The Charity consists of three branches:—

1. The St. Dionis Backchurch Prayer Charity.
2. The Landrake and St. Erney School and Bread Charity.
3. The Almshouses.

1. THE ST. DIONIS BACKCHURCH PRAYER CHARITY.

The testator after directing that his body should be buried within the parish of St. Dionis Backchurch in London where he had lived many years, as near the communion table as may be, and giving numerous personal and charitable legacies bequeathed the 400*l.* to the Company to be laid out as above stated, and the same lands, houses, and ground rents being so purchased should settle the same in such manner as the council should advise for an allowance to some person to read and celebrate divine service in the parish church of St. Dionis Backchurch twice every day in the week yearly for ever except Sundays and such holydays when the said service and preaching should be appointed and had in the said church at the hours and times theretofore used in the said church according to the rubric and liturgy of the Church of England; and his will was that the rents of the said lands, &c., so to be purchased, as aforesaid, should be by the said Company as the same should be by them received, paid to the minister or curate of the said parish of St. Dionis Backchurch who should take upon himself or should be appointed for the reading and celebrating of divine service in manner as aforesaid, allowing thereout 50*s.* per annum to the clerk of the said parish for officiating there: Provided that in case there should be any neglect in reading prayers at any time for more than three days together then the rents and profits of the said premises to be purchased as aforesaid should go and be paid to the hospitals of Bethlem and Bridewell for ever.

By a deed of the 5th February of the 10th Queen Anne (1711) John Hilton and Mary his wife, in consideration of 2,730*l.* conveyed to the Company the property therein mentioned in the Strand and St. Martin's Court. To hold the same in trust to the uses of the will of the said Sir Robert Geffery, viz., as to and for the before mentioned parcel of ground and messuage erected thereon being the part or passage called St. Martin's Court, in the possession of Thomas Jones, being the third house from the north corner of the said court, and fronting west at the yearly rent of 6*l.*, and also that other parcel of ground and messuages fronting west to St. Martin's Court and Church Lane on the north-east in the occupation of James Baber at the rent of 9*l.*, and also the other parcel of ground and messuage in the occupation of Charles Mathews, being the fourth house from the north corner of the said court, and fronting west thereto, at the yearly rent of 5*l.*, that the yearly rents of the said three several parcels of ground and messuages amounting to 20*l.* a year be paid to some person to read and celebrate divine service in the parish church of St. Dionis Backchurch according to the will, such person allowing thereout 50*s.* a year to the clerk with a declaration of trust in case of failure as in the will mentioned: And the deed proceeds to declare the trusts of the other portions of the property conveyed by the deed for the two other branches as therein mentioned. The deed as appears by a note in the margin was approved by the Master of the Court (R. Eyre) by the executors of the testator are parties to it.

The houses and premises in the Strand and in Church Court were in or about 1826 or 1827 taken by the Commissioners of Woods and Forests under the powers of an Act of the 7th George 4th intituled, "An Act to extend to Charing Cross, the Strand, and parts adjacent, the powers of an Act for making a more convenient communication from Marylebone Parish, &c." The purchase money was settled at 11,000*l.* This sum was paid into Court and invested in 12,716*l.* 15*s.* 3*d.* consols. The sum was appropriated between the three Charities in the following proportions:—

1. The St. Dionis' Prayer Charity in respect of Nos. 8, 9, and 11, Church Court, valued at 1,592 l. 4 s. cash	Stock. £ s. d. 1,811 10 3
2. The Cornish (Landrake) Charities in respect of No. 3, Strand and No. 4, Church Court, valued at 2,095 l. cash	2,404 10 0
3. The Almshouses in respect of the valuation of the residue of the property, at 7,353 l. 17 s. (The entire valuation was 11,041 l. 1 s. , but the sum of 11,000 l. was accepted as above stated)	8,500 15 0
	£12,716 15 3

In 1838 the Company purchased an estate in the parish of East Ham, in Essex, from Lord Henniker for the sum of 9,250*l.* cash. This sum was produced by the sale of the 1,811*l.* 10*s.* 3*d.* Consols, the St. Dionis part of the fund, and the 2,404*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.* like stock, the Landrake part of the fund, and 5,703*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.* like stock, part of the 8,500*l.* 15*s.* 0*d.* Consols belonging to the almshouses. The estate was conveyed to the Company by a deed of the 28th March 1838, which recites the apportionment of the stock towards the purchase money, and is approved by the Master. The deed declares that the master and keepers or wardens and commonalty of the mystery of Ironmongers and successors shall hold the said lands on the trusts of the will of Sir Robert Geffery (that is to say) as to the part or parts of the said lands and hereditaments and the rents and profits thereof which should bear the same proportion to the whole thereof as the said sum of 1,811*l.* 10*s.* 3*d.* Consols should bear to the whole of so much as should be sold to produce the said sum of 9,250*l.* of the said sum of 12,716*l.* 15*s.* 5*d.* like stock upon and for the charitable uses and trusts in and by the said will of the said Sir R. Geffery, and the said indenture of the 5th February 1711 expressed or declared of or concerning the said messuages and hereditaments purchased with the said 400*l.* And as to the part or parts of the said lands and hereditaments and the rents and profits thereof which should bear the same proportion to the whole thereof as the said sum of 2,404*l.* 10*s.* 0*d.* like stock should bear to the whole of so much as should be sold to produce the said sum of 9,250*l.* of the said sum of 12,716*l.* 15*s.* 5*d.* like stock, upon and for the charitable uses, trusts, and purposes in and by the said will and indenture of 1711 declared concerning the messuage and premises purchased with the said 520*l.* And as to the residue of the said lands and hereditaments and the rents thereof, together with the residue which should remain of the said 12,716*l.* 15*s.* 5*d.* like stock and the dividends thereof, upon the trusts in the said will and the said indenture of 1711 declared of and concerning the said hereditaments purchased with the said sum of 1,810*l.*

The dividends on the 1,811*l.* 10*s.* 3*d.* stock belonging to this branch of the Charity before its sale were 54*l.* 6*s.* 10*d.* a year, and the same sum has, notwithstanding the declaration of trust in the deed, ever since continued to be paid over to the rector of St. Dionis Backchurch for the time being.

It will be seen, by a reference to my report on this Charity made on the occasion of my inquiry into the endowments for the benefit of the parish of St. Dionis Backchurch, that the practice is merely to ring the church bells without performing any service, in consequence, as it was stated, of the non-attendance of any congregation. The circumstance of the practical desuetude of the Charity probably led the Company to consider this branch of the endowment of less importance, and therefore to appropriate a larger share of the income to the almshouse branch of the Charity than it was entitled to.

A portion of the estate at East Ham is required for the main drainage of the metropolitan sewer. This consists of about four acres, for which 2,575*l.* has been claimed by the Company for value and severance. The rental of the four acres is about 18*l.*, and if the compensation money which may be received shall produce only 70*l.* a year there will be an income of about 50*l.* It is suggested that as the third branch of the endowment, the almshouses, has since the purchase of the estate been in receipt of more than its share of the income, the increase about to be obtained shall be divided according to their proportions between the two first branches, the St. Dionis and the Landrake; that is to say, three-sevenths to the former and four-sevenths to the latter, until the rights of the respective Charities shall have been adjusted.

It will be seen that in default of the prayers being read this gift passes over, according to the will, to the Christ's and Bethlehem Hospitals. No demand has, however, been made on the part of those institutions for the execution of this direction of the will, although I am informed that it is not unknown to the officers of those institutions.*

The St. Dionis Backchurch Prayer Charity.

* The above-mentioned edifice having been demolished under the provisions of the Union of Benefices Act (23 & 24 Vict. cap. 142) the Corporation of London as the governors of Bethlehem and Bridewell Hospitals with the consent of the board (signified by their certificate dated the 14th of January 1879) instituted legal proceedings, in the result of which the plaintiffs were by the order of the Master of the Rolls, dated the 4th of April 1881 declared entitled as from the 1st of May 1876 to the income of so

2. The Landrake and St. Erney Bread and School Charity.

The testator directs that the 520*l.* for this branch of his charity should be paid to the Company and laid out as above stated, and that the investment being so made that they should settle the same in such manner as council should advise to the intent that out of the rent and profits thereof, in the first place, 2*s.* a week weekly for ever might be paid and laid out in bread for the poor inhabitants of Landrake and St. Erney in Cornwall aforesaid, and distributed to them by the churchwardens of the said parish of Landrake for the time being on every Sunday in the forenoon, after divine service, and the rest and residue of the rents of the said lands &c. to be purchased with the said 520*l.* should be paid from time to time as the same should be received, unto the schoolmaster of Landrake aforesaid, or to some other person that should teach the children of the poor inhabitants within the parishes of Landrake and St. Erney aforesaid to write and read English, and to learn and be instructed in the catechism then used and appointed in the Church of England.

In the deed of 1711, before mentioned, the trusts are declared of the land purchased of Hilton and wife. As to the plot or parcel of ground and messuage thereon on the north side and fronting the Strand, in the occupation of Rebecca Church, being the corner house on the east side of the passage entering into the court from the Strand, at the yearly rent of 26*l.*, to pay and apply the rents and profits as follows, viz., for bread, and for teaching the children in the parishes of Landrake and St. Erney according to the trusts of the will.

It will be seen by the former part of this report that on the sale of the estate at Charing Cross, of which the above formed a part, 2,404*l.* 10*s.* Consols, part of the purchase money was appropriated to this Charity, and that on the reinvestment of the fund in 1838 trusts were declared of a portion of the purchased estate equivalent to the several proportions of the purchase money. The dividends on the 2,404*l.* 10*s.* Consols, before its sale, were 72*l.* 5*s.* 8*d.*, and the same sum has still continued to be paid quarterly to the schoolmaster at Landrake (now Mr. Robert Forman.)

The schoolmaster produces quarterly a receipt from the churchwardens for the 2*s.* per week for bread, and a certificate from the minister of the parish that the school is properly conducted. I append the Rules adopted by the Company in concurrence with the clergyman about 12 or 15 years ago. These rules were made in consequence of complaints of the irregularity of attendance and apparent disregard by the inhabitants of the benefits of the school.

It appears that the fund now applicable to the school is considerably larger than has hitherto been applied. The rental of the estate at East Ham is 450*l.* a year, of which the parish of Landrake would, according to the purchase deed and the trusts thereby declared, be entitled to about two-ninth parts. I have pointed out the propriety of an accurate apportionment of the income so that this educational institution may receive its due share, and in a former part of this report I have stated the suggestion which has been made of the manner in which the relative claims of the several charities may be adjusted out of a prospective increase of revenue. The school is not visited by the Company, which has no funds applicable to such visitation.*

Pursuant to an order of the board dated the 7th of February 1882, the sum of 707*l.* 16*s.* 7*d.* new 3*l.* per cent. Annuities (representing sums inadvertently withheld from the rector of St. Dionis Backchurch during the period which elapsed between the years 1838 and 1837) was on the 27th of February 1882 transferred by the Company into the name of "The Official Trustees of Charitable Funds," pending the establishment of a suitable scheme.

By an Order of Her Majesty in Council, dated the 30th of April 1877, a scheme was established under the provisions of the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, 1873, and 1874, for the administration of this Charity. The following is a copy :—

Approved by Her Majesty in Council, 30th April 1877.

CHARITY COMMISSION.

IN THE MATTER OF THE ENDOWED SCHOOLS ACTS,
1869, 1873, AND 1874.

County—CORNWALL.
No. 83. Parish—LANDRAKE WITH ST. ERNEY.
Endowment—Geffrey's School.

SCHEME for the Administration of the Foundation established under the will of Sir Robert Geffrey, dated on or about the 10th day of February 1703, for a School known as Sir Robert Geffrey's School, and for other purposes, in the united parish of Landrake with St. Erney, in the county of Cornwall, and of the endowment thereof.

GENERAL ADMINISTRATION OF FOUNDATION.

1. That the above-mentioned Foundation and endowment shall henceforth be administered in accordance with the provisions of this Scheme under the name of Geffrey's School, Landrake, herein-after called the Foundation.

Future administration of Foundation.

2. The estates and property of the Foundation, except as otherwise hereby provided, shall continue to be managed by the Ironmongers' Company of London, herein-after called the Company, according to the general law applicable to the management of property by trustees of charitable foundations. And the Company shall duly account to the School Governing Body or Governors herein-after mentioned for the rents and proceeds thereof, and shall pay over to the said Governors, or as such Governors shall direct, the income of such estates and property, after deducting all proper charges for management and necessary outgoings. And in case of dispute as to such deductions or payments, either party may refer the matter to the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, whose decision shall be final.

Management of property.

3. As soon as conveniently may be the said Governors shall provide upon some convenient freehold site in or near the village of Landrake proper school buildings suitable for not less than 122 day scholars. For this purpose such a sum of money as with any contributions from other sources will be sufficient shall be provided or raised by the Company out of the capital endowment or property of the Foundation by sale or otherwise. For all the purposes of this clause the Company and the said Governors shall act subject to the consent and approval of the Charity Commissioners. Such site and buildings shall be vested in the Company and their successors as bare trustees in trust for the Foundation, but shall be managed by the said Governors.

School site and buildings to be provided.

THE SCHOOL GOVERNING BODY AND MANAGEMENT.

4. The School Governing Body, herein-after called the Governors, shall, when completely formed and full, consist of six persons, of whom one shall be called Ex-officio Governor, and five shall be called Representative Governors.

School
Governing Body.

5. The Ex-officio Governor shall be the Vicar of Landrake with St. Erney for the time being, if he shall be willing to accept the office.

Ex-officio
Governor.

6. The Representative Governors shall be competent persons each rated to the relief of the poor at a yearly value of not less than 12*l.* and duly qualified to discharge the duties of the office, and shall be appointed by the following electing bodies respectively in the following proportions, that is to say :—

Representative
Governors.

Two by the Vestry of Landrake with St. Erney ;
and

Three by the Company.

Such appointments shall be made as often as there may be occasion by the body entitled to appoint at a meeting thereof, which shall be convened, held, and conducted as nearly as may be in conformity with the ordinary rules or practice of such body. Every Representative Governor

3.—The Almshouses.

The testator directed that the residue of his real and personal estate should be paid to the said Company to purchase a piece of ground near London for an almshouse for so many poor people as the money arising by the residuary estate at 6*l.* per annum each person, and 15*s.* a piece yearly for gowns, might extend to, and should employ the overplus and remainder of his residuary estate in shall be appointed to office for the term of five years, reckoned from the date of appointment, but shall in every case be re-eligible. The first Representative Governors shall be appointed as soon as conveniently may be after the date of this Scheme. The Chairman or other presiding officer of each meeting at which the appointment of any Representative Governors or Governor shall be made, shall forthwith cause the names or name of the persons or person so appointed to be notified, in the case of the first such appointment to the Vicar of Landrake with St. Erney, and in the case of every subsequent appointment to the Chairman of the Governors or their clerk, if any, or other acting officer. Any appointment of a Representative Governor not made as aforesaid, as to the first such Governors within three calendar months after the date of this Scheme, or within such further time, if any, as may be fixed under this Scheme for the transfer of the administration of the Foundation, subject as herein-mentioned, to the Governors, or as to future Representative Governors within six calendar months after the notice herein-after prescribed of the occurrence of a vacancy has been given, as the case may be, shall for that turn be made by the then existing Governors.

The proper expenses attending the appointment of every Representative Governor shall, unless otherwise provided for, be paid by the Governors out of the income of the Foundation; but the particulars of all such expenses shall be submitted to and allowed by the Charity Commissioners previously to their being so paid.

7. Any Representative Governor who, during his term of office, shall become bankrupt or incapacitated to act, or express in writing his wish to resign, or omit for the space of one year to attend any meeting, shall thereupon forthwith vacate the office of Governor; and the Governors shall cause an entry to be made in their minute book of every vacancy occasioned by any of the said causes, or by the death or the expiration of the term of office of any Representative Governor; and as soon as conveniently may be after occurrence of any vacancy a new Representative Governor shall be appointed by the body entitled as aforesaid to make such appointment. Provided nevertheless that until any vacancy or vacancies shall be filled up, the surviving and continuing Governors for the time being (if sufficient in number to form a quorum) shall have power to act for all the purposes of this Scheme. Notice of the occurrence of any vacancy in the office of Representative Governor shall be given, as soon as conveniently may be, by or under the direction of the Governors to the proper electing body or the clerk, if any, or other acting officer of such body.

8. Every Governor shall, at or before the first meeting which he attends upon his first or any subsequent appointment, sign a memorandum declaring his acceptance of the office of Governor, and his willingness to act in the trusts of this Scheme. And until he has signed such a memorandum he shall not be entitled to discharge the functions of a Governor.

9. The Governors shall hold meetings in some convenient place in Landrake with St. Erney, or the neighbourhood, as often as may be found necessary or desirable, and at least twice in each year, on and at convenient days and times to be appointed by themselves, and to be notified to each Governor by the clerk, if any, or by some other person acting under the direction of the Governors, at least seven days previously to every meeting.

10. A preliminary meeting for the arrangement of the conduct of the business shall be held upon the summons of the Vicar of Landrake with St. Erney, upon some day to be fixed by him, being within one calendar month after the time at which, under the provisions herein contained, the administration of the Foundation shall, subject as herein mentioned, be assumed by the Governors in place of the present Governing Body.

11. The Governors shall, at the said preliminary meeting, and afterwards at their first meeting in each year, elect one of their number to be Chairman of their meetings for the current year, and they shall also make regulations for supplying his place in case of his death, resignation, or absence during his term of office. The Chairman shall always be re-eligible.

12. A quorum shall be constituted when three Governors are present at a meeting. All matters and questions shall be determined by the majority of the Governors present at a duly constituted meeting; and in case of equality of votes the Chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

13. The Chairman or any two Governors may at any time summon a special meeting for any cause that seems to him or them sufficient. All special meetings shall be convened by or under the direction of the person or persons summoning the meeting by notice in writing delivered or sent by post to each Governor, specifying the object of the meeting. And it shall be the duty of the clerk, if any, to give such notice when required by the Chairman or by any Governors having a right to summon such meeting.

14. A minute book and proper book of account shall be provided by the Governors, and kept in some convenient and secure place of deposit to be provided or appointed by them for that purpose, and minutes of the entry into office of every new Governor, and of all proceedings of the Governors, shall be entered in such minute book.

15. So soon as the full number of Governors shall have been completed according to the provisions of this Scheme, or upon the expiration of the first three calendar months after the date of this Scheme, if the full number of Governors shall not then have been completed, the administration of the Foundation shall, subject as herein mentioned, be assumed and exercised by the said Governors in place of the Company, and the Company shall thereupon, subject as herein mentioned, become ipso facto removed and discharged from their office of Governing Body of the School. In the meantime the Foundation shall continue to be administered and managed so far as may be necessary by the Company as nearly as may be in conformity with the provisions of this Scheme. The aforesaid time of three calendar months may be extended, if necessary, by an order of the Charity Commissioners, made upon the application of the Company or of any one or more of the Governors, if any.

16. So far as may be practicable and convenient the school may be carried on as heretofore until the school buildings aforesaid are ready for occupation, or until such other time as may, with the approval of the Charity Commissioners, be fixed by the body for the time being having the administration of the School under this Scheme. At the expiration of the time so fixed Mr. Robert Foreman, the present Master, shall cease to hold office, and the Governors shall thenceforth pay to him the yearly sum of 50*l.* during his life.

17. The Governors shall take all requisite measures for bringing the provisions of this Scheme into active operation for the regulation of the School as soon as practicable, and they shall have power to make all suitable and proper arrangements for that purpose.

THE SCHOOL AND ITS MANAGEMENT.

18. The School, subject to the special provisions of this Scheme, shall be conducted as a Public Elementary School under section 7 of the Elementary Education Act, 1870.

19. The Governors shall appoint, pay, and at their pleasure dismiss all teachers in the School, and subject to any regulations of the Education Department, shall have power to regulate and prescribe from time to time their respective qualifications. The principal teacher shall be a member of the Church of England.

20. All scholars shall pay such tuition fees as the Governors shall fix from time to time, no such fee, except as herein-after provided, being at the rate of more than 9*d.* a week.

21. Religious instruction shall be given in the School under such regulations as shall be made from time to time by the Governors. Such instruction shall be in accordance with the doctrines of the Church of England. Subject to the control of the Governors instruction in the subjects required by the regulations of the Education Department shall also be given in the school according to the classification and arrangements made by the principal Teacher.

Teacher, the exemption of such scholar from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, and such scholar shall be exempted accordingly, and a scholar shall not, by reason of any exemption from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject, be deprived of any advantage or emolument in the School to which he or she would otherwise have been entitled. If any teacher, in the course of other lessons at which any such scholar is in accordance with the ordinary rules of the School present, shall teach systematically and persistently any particular religious doctrine, from the teaching of which any exemption has been claimed, as in this clause before provided, the Governors shall, on complaint made in writing to them by the parent, guardian, or person liable to maintain or having the actual custody of such scholar, hear the complainant and inquire into the circumstances, and if the complaint is judged to be reasonable, make all proper provisions for remedying the matter complained of.

23. The Governors shall not be precluded by any provision in this Scheme from conforming to any regulations which the Education Department under the Elementary Education Act, 1870, or under any authority, may impose as the conditions of a grant of money, provided that such regulations shall not be inconsistent with the provisions of the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, 1873, and 1874, or with the maintenance of an Upper Department as herein provided.

24. There shall be in the School an Upper Department for the purposes of a higher than elementary education. No boy or girl shall be admitted into this Department without satisfactorily passing an examination conducted by or under the direction of the principal Teacher. Such examination shall be graduated according to the age of the boy or girl, and shall be regulated in other particulars from time to time by or under the directions of the Governors, but shall never for any boy or girl fall below the following standard :—

Reading poetry or prose.

Writing from dictation.

Sums in simple and compound rules of arithmetic, with the multiplication table and the tables of weights and measures.

A knowledge of the chief divisions of the world, and of the nature of a map.

25. The principal Teacher shall receive payment at the rate of 2*l.* yearly for each scholar in the Upper Department, besides any payment to which he may otherwise be entitled under the Foundation.

26. The tuition fee for a scholar in the Upper Department shall be at the rate of not less than 1*l.* 10*s.* nor more than 4*l.* a year. No extra or additional payment of any kind shall be allowed without the sanction of the Governors and the written consent of the parent or person acting in the place of parent of the scholar concerned.

27. The secular instruction in the Upper Department shall include the following subjects, or so many of them as may be practicable :—

English grammar, composition, and literature.

Geography and history.

Book-keeping and mensuration.

Elements of geometry and algebra.

Natural science.

Latin or some foreign modern language, or both.

Drawing and drill.

Vocal music.

28. Unless the scholars in the Upper Department have been examined in the special subjects proper thereto by Her Majesty's Inspector of the School at his last annual inspection, there shall be once in every year an examination of them by an Examiner appointed for that purpose by the Governors, and paid by them, but otherwise unconnected with the School. Such Examiner shall report to the Governors on the proficiency of the scholars and on the condition of the Upper Department as regards instruction and discipline, as shown by the result of the examination. The Governors shall communicate the report to the principal Teacher.

29. The Governors shall, when the said pension ceases to be payable, apply a sum not exceeding 20*l.* yearly under such reasonable regulations as they may from time to time prescribe in the advancement of the education of boys and girls in the parish of Landrake with St. Erney, in the following ways or one of them :

- (1.) Providing Scholarships tenable in the Upper Department, to be awarded to the most deserving scholars who have been educated in the School for at least three years, and have passed the examination suitable to their age at the last annual examination by Her Majesty's Inspector.
- (2.) Providing an Exhibition or Exhibitions of a yearly value not exceeding 10*l.* each, to be competed for by scholars in the Upper Department, and to be tenable at any place of higher education or of professional or technical study, under such conditions as the Governors may think fit.

30. After defraying the expenses of management and of the repairs of the school buildings, and providing for the said pension and the weekly payment of 2*s.* herein-after mentioned, and making such payments in respect of the Upper Department and Scholarships and Exhibitions as aforesaid, the income of the Foundation shall be applied for the other purposes of this Scheme.

GENERAL.

31. The Governors shall apply the sum of 2*s.* weekly for bread for the poor inhabitants of the united parish of Landrake with St. Erney, to be distributed by the Churchwardens thereof according to the will of the Founder as heretofore.

32. The Governors may receive any additional donations or endowments for the general purposes of the Foundation. They may also receive donations or endowments for any special objects connected with the School which shall not be inconsistent with or calculated to impede the due working of the provisions of this Scheme. Any question arising upon this last point shall be referred to the Charity Commissioners for decision.

33. Within the limits prescribed by this Scheme the Governors shall have full power from time to time to make regulations for the conduct of their business and for the management of the Foundation, and such regulations shall be binding on all persons affected thereby.

34. Any question affecting the regularity or the validity of any proceeding under this Scheme, shall be determined conclusively by the Charity Commissioners upon such application, made to them for the purpose as they think sufficient.

35. If any doubt or question arises among the Governors or the Company as to the proper construction or application of any of the provisions of this Scheme, the Governors or the Company, as the case may be, shall apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon, which opinion and advice when given shall be binding on the Governors and the Company and all persons claiming under the Trust who shall be affected by the question so decided.

36. From the date of this Scheme all jurisdiction of the Ordinary relating to or arising from the licensing of any Master in the School shall be abolished.

37. The Charity Commissioners may from time to time, in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction, frame Schemes for the alteration of any portions of this Scheme, provided that such Schemes be not inconsistent with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, 1873, and 1874.

38. From and after the date of this Scheme the Foundation shall for every purpose, except as herein provided, be administered and governed wholly and exclusively in accordance with the provisions of this Scheme, notwithstanding any former or other Scheme, Act of Parliament, Charter or Letters Patent, statute, or instrument relating to the subject matter of this Scheme.

39. The Governors shall cause this Scheme to be printed and a copy to be given to every Governor and Teacher, upon their respective appointments, and copies may be sold at a reasonable price to all persons applying for the same.

40. The date of this Scheme shall be the day on which Her Majesty by Order in Council declares Her approbation of it.

year 1715, at an expense of nearly 4,500*l.* upon two pieces of ground conveyed to the Company by indentures of lease and release, the releases dated respectively the 2nd March 1712 and 29th March 1716. The cost of the building being defrayed out of the surplus in the hands of the trustees, and such rents and interests as had accumulated according to the decree in Chancery of 1708.

There is a resident chaplain who occupies four rooms, a matron who has five rooms, and a laundress with two rooms, and the rest of the rooms are occupied separately by the almspeople.

It appears by the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry that a scheme was settled in 1808 for the government of this Charity. This scheme which was in force and acted upon at the time of the Commissioners' Report, continued in operation until 1834. In that year the Ironmongers' Company presented a petition to the Lord Chancellor, stating the alteration which had taken place in the estate and circumstances of the Charity, and praying that a further scheme might be settled for its administration.

By an order of the Court of the 24th December 1834, it was referred to the Master to make the inquiries and approve of the scheme as therein mentioned. The Master by his report of the 2nd December 1835, set forth the scheme which he had considered and approved, and which was as follows:—

1st. To apply yearly so much of the said surplus income as with the sum of 175*l.* 10*s.* allowed by the Master for pensions and gowns will be sufficient to pay to each of the inhabitants of the said almshouses, who shall from time to time be elected to receive the benefit of the said Charity, not less than 6*l.* and not more than 12*l.* for a pension and 15*s.* for a gown.

2nd. To apply any sum of money not exceeding 100*l.* in the purchase of coals for the supply of the said almshouses.

3rd. To apply so much money as with the 16*l.* allowed by the Master will be sufficient from time to time to pay the general taxes payable in respect of the said premises.

4th. To apply yearly out of the said surplus income in payment to the said clerk of the said trustees the sum of 30*l.*, to the matron 34*l.*, to the apothecary 5*l.* 5*s.*, to the chapel clerk 7*l.*, to the ground keeper 8*l.*, in addition to the salaries allowed to them respectively by the Master.

5th. To apply yearly in payment to the said gate keeper a salary of 10*l.* per annum.

6th. To apply in the common and ordinary repairs of the almshouses and chapel so much as with the 50*l.* per annum allowed by the Master will be necessary for the purpose, but such repairs not in the whole to exceed 130*l.* per annum on an average.

7th. To the chaplain 75*l.* per annum.

8th. To apply 14*l.* 14*s.* per annum in payment of the expenses of the Committee, and 12*l.* 12*s.* for gas, for lighting the almshouses.

The Report was confirmed by an Order dated the 23rd December 1835.

The property of this portion of the Charity is as follows:—

The property at Charing Cross to which this portion of the Charity became entitled under this deed, was the whole of which the trusts were not declared for the two preceding charities. In respect of this property 8,500*l.* 15*s.* Consols were (as has been before stated) appropriated to the almshouses, and of this 5,703*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.* Consols, were sold out and formed part of the purchase money of the East Ham Estate, leaving in Court belonging to the almshouses' charity, a sum of 2,797*l.* 3*s.* 11*d.* Consols, the dividends on which are - - - - - 82 3 4

It was proposed by the Company (as found by the Master's Report of the 2nd December 1835) that 100*l.* per annum out of the interest of the 7,297*l.* 11*s.* accumulated building fund should, with its accumulations be invested in Consols for forming an additional fund for rebuilding and substantially repairing the almshouses and chapel, and the Master found that the 7,297*l.* 11*s.* stock would not be sufficient as a reserve fund, and he was of opinion that no part of the said principal sum should be applied to the charitable purposes directed by the said will otherwise than that the same should be set apart or continued as a building fund, and that out of the annual dividends arising therefrom, amounting to 218*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* the sum of 100*l.* should be annually taken and added to the said principal sum for the purpose of accumulating of and for rebuilding and substantially repairing the said almshouses. And he was also of opinion that the residue of the dividends of the said principal sum, amounting to the sum of 118*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.*,

By an order of the board, dated the 3rd of March 1882, the Company being willing to regard the sum of 38*l.* 18*s.* part of the cost of the erection in accordance with plans and specifications approved by the Education Department, and upon a site gratuitously conveyed to the Company by the Earl of Mount Edgcombe, of suitable school buildings in the parish of Landrake with St. Erney, were authorised to place the balance, amounting to the sum of 884*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.*, of such cost to the debit of the account of the Foundation with the Company, and to provide

On the 30th June 1860, there appeared a balance due to the Charity of 342*l.* 3*s.* 5*d.*

No person is elected as an almsman or almswoman under the age of 60, except free persons, with regard to whom there is no restriction as to age. No person has been elected under 40, and then only under peculiar circumstances. There are more almspeople who are not free than free, but those having the freedom of the Company are preferred. They are not permitted to have children or families, but an aged person is refused liberty to have the company of a daughter. At present all receive the same allowances excepting the additions made in respect of the offices they hold in one or two cases.*

HALLWOOD'S CHARITY.

Thomas Hallwood, by his will, 20th April 1622, gave to the Company 400*l.* to pay such rents and profits as should grow half-yearly for the maintenance for three years of four poor scholars, two of Maudlin College, Oxford, and two of Christ's College, Cambridge, being divinity students, the donor's kindred to be preferred.

The fund is not distinguished, but the Company pay four students 4*l.* a year each. They are nominated by the Company, on application, with certificate of residence and good conduct. New nominations are made every three years.

The payments of 40*s.* a year to the wardens of the Company are not made. The 4*l.* a year is generally added to Lewin's gift to students; the study of divinity is not made a special condition.

MARY HANBEY'S GIFT.

Mary Hanbey by her will, 16th February 1796, gave to the Company 300*l.* Reduced Annuities upon trust every four years to paint and repair the monument of her husband at St. Luke's, and distribute the remainder to the poor freemen of the Company.

The Company hold the stock in their corporate names, and apply so much as is necessary in repair of the tomb, and distribute the residue to poor freemen every four years. On the last occasion, the 6th July 1858, 19 pensioners received amongst them 34*l.* 13*s.*, the indoor pensioners receiving 1*l.* 10*s.*, and the outdoor pensioners 1*l.* 19*s.* 6*d.* each.

THOMAS HANBEY'S CHARITY.

Thomas Hanbey by his will, 12th January 1782, gave 2,000*l.*, 3*l.* per cent. Consolidated Bank Annuities, to Christ's Hospital, on condition that they should maintain and educate two boys, the sons of freemen of the Ironmongers' Company. The Hospital accepted the bequest, and the Company nominate sons of freemen, of whom two are always on the books.

HANDSON'S CHARITY.

Ralph Handson by his will, 9th January 1653, devised to the Ironmongers' Company his messuages and tenements in Crutched Friars, to pay out of the rents the following stipends:—

	£	s.	d.
To the master of St. Saviour, Southwark, Free School	-	1	0 0
And to the usher	-	0	10 0
To the churchwardens of that parish for the poorest widows and orphans	-	5	0 0

To the wardens of the yeomanry for suppers	-	2	0 0
To four poor almsfolks of the Company (20 s. apiece)	-	4	0 0
To Christ's, Bartholomew's, Bridewell's, and St. Thomas' Hospitals, 40 s. apiece	-	8	0 0 and the residue of the rents for reparations and other necessary occasions and the relief of the poor of the Com-

the same by the realisation of any stock held by them in trust for the Foundation and representing the investment to that amount of accumulations of unapplied income.

* SIR ROBERT GEFFEREY'S CHARITY.

The Almshouses.

By an Order of the Board dated the 29th of February 1876, the Company were authorised to repair and improve the almshouses at a cost of not more than 3,000*l.* (exclusive of incidental expenses) to be provided by the realisation of a sufficient part of the sum of 5,983*l.* 6*s.* 1*d.* new 3*l.* per cent. Annuities belonging to the Charity, subject to a proviso for the replacement within 15 years from the date of the order of the sum expended.

pany, in their good discretion, as the Court of Assistants should think requisite.

The Commissioners of Inquiry, after stating the then income of the property, add, "The residue of the rents of the property has never been specifically applied, but has been carried to the general account of the Company, and out of their general funds the Company have been in the habit of giving and continue to give large sums of money in charity every year, partly in purchasing coals, partly in money to pensioners, being poor freemen of the Company, and partly in other charitable donations. The value of coals yearly given is about 150*l.*, and the sum of 240*l.* a year is regularly given in pensions. Upon an average a sum exceeding 500*l.* a year is given out of the general funds in charities beyond what is specifically directed by wills, or other instruments of donation."

In the year 1833 an information was filed by the Attorney-General at the relation of Daniel Humphreys Howlett against the Company, praying that it might be declared that the warehouses and tenements erected on the site of the messuages, &c., devised by the will of R. Handson were vested in the Ironmongers' Company upon trust as to the residue of the yearly rents after making the specific payments for the relief of the poor of the said Company or other charitable uses, so that the Company should not apply the sums to their own uses, and that the execution of the trust might be enforced by the decree of the Court according to a scheme to be settled by the Master, and that it might be declared that for the future separate accounts ought to be kept of the yearly rents of the said Charity estate and the surplus thereof; and that, in case it should appear necessary, an account might be taken before one of the masters of such surplus and of the fines received by the said Company on the renewals of leases, and in particular of the said three fines of 500*l.* each and of the application of the same by the Company for such period before the filing of the information as might appear necessary, and that such declarations might be made by the Court touching the manner of taking such accounts as the case might require; and that the particular tenements and premises of the said Charity might be ascertained, and that it be referred to the Master to inquire respecting the validity of the lease to the East India Company and the propriety of such lease, and in case it should be invalid whether any proceedings should be taken for the purpose of impeaching the same.

On the 9th May 1834 the parties having the conduct of the suit obtained an order of course to amend the information by adding relators or otherwise as they might be advised, and shortly afterwards amended the same by adding the name of William John Hall as a relator, and striking out the description of Howlett as a freeman of the Ironmongers' Company, but the fiat or sanction of the Attorney-General for the amendment was not obtained until the 23rd June 1834. On this ground the Company moved the Vice-Chancellor (Sir Lancelot Shadwell) that the amended information should be taken off the file for irregularity with costs, which was ordered on the 23rd November 1834. The suit was in this manner disposed of and the proceedings were not again revived.

The property in Crutched Friars remains as stated by the Commissioners of Inquiry. It consists of extensive warehouses, the interest of the East India Company in which has been purchased by the East and West India Dock Company, who pay the Ironmongers' Company annually the rent of 300*l.*, deducting only property tax.

The Company have raised the gift of 5*l.* to the 20 poor widows of the Company to the sum of 40*l.*, 2*l.* each being given. They are generally the same persons as are outdoor or indoor pensioners of Betton's Charity.

The 1*l.* a year is paid to the chaplain of the Company for preaching the sermon in the church of All Hallows.

The 4*l.* a year is paid to four poor almspeople in Lewin's Almshouses.

The other payments to the churchwardens of the several parishes and to the master and usher of St. Saviour's School, and to the four hospitals are made to them respectively.

The gifts to the wardens of the livery and the wardens of the yeomanry, the rent gatherers and the upper beadle are not specifically paid, but fall into the general funds of the Company.

The 2*l.* a year to the clerk forms part of a sum of 6*l.* 16*s.* 8*d.* paid to him in respect of particular estates, including this and that of Sir James Cambell (probably in respect of the 50*l.* specifically assigned as remuneration for his duty in respect of the preparation of the bonds for loans).

The residue the Company regard as being, by the terms of the devise, under their own absolute disposition. They have, however, for very many years appropriated considerable sums out of it annually (except in some years in which they take them from other funds to guard against any assumed right that the practice might create) in aid of the funds arising from Betton's Charity for pensioners, when that fund is not sufficient to provide the sums voted by the Company to that class of recipients.

The assigned pension to Betton's pensioners is outdoor 10*l.*, and indoor 6*l.*, but that fund being always insufficient (except in the last year under special circumstances) to pay pensions to such an amount, the deficiency has been, in the manner above stated, provided out of Handson's estate. The coals given to Sir R. Geoffrey's almshouses exceed the 100*l.* allowed, and the Company make up the excess out of their own funds.*

HAYDON'S GIFT.

John Haydon, by his will, 11th March 1579, gave to the Ironmongers' Company 100*l.* to be lent to two young men of this Company trading over the seas, paying yearly to the master and wardens 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* to be paid over to the master and wardens of the Mercers' Company.

The interest amounting to 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* is paid to the Mercers' Company, but the capital is not set apart, nor is the sum lent. The reasons are probably the same as those which operate in Gamage's Gift.

LEWIN'S CHARITY.

Thomas Lewin, by his will, 20th April 1555, devised to the Ironmongers' Company several messuages and appurtenances in the parish of St. Nicholas Olave, for certain superstitious uses, and to find a priest for saying masses at St. Nicholas Olave, at a yearly salary of 10*l.*, and to permit four honest and sad, impotent, poor, aged, and decayed men of the Company to inhabit four tenements which testator intended to erect in the churchyard of St. Nicholas, and to pay to every one of the said four persons quarterly 20*d.*, and also to pay to two poor scholars of Oxford and Cambridge (50*s.* each) 5*l.*

The Company are possessed of five houses in Bread Street Hill, in the parish of St. Nicholas Olave, on which a very large sum of money has lately been expended, and from which a rent of 455*l.* a year is derived.

The four almshouses erected by the Company in 1785, in Brick Lane, St. Luke's, Middlesex, are the present habitations of the four almspeople, who are free of the Company, and are nominated by the Court of Assistants. They are comfortable houses.

The almspeople receive 10*l.* a year each. They may be married couples, but in that case one only is nominated as pensioner. They are regarded also as Betton's indoor pensioners, in which character they receive 6*l.* a year. They also have other donations mentioned under the head of the respective givers, and coals which are paid for by the Company. The entire value to the occupier or occupiers of each tenement is about 18*l.* a year.

The scholarships are applied for by students, and the payments are generally added to Hallwood's gift of 4*l.*, making together 6*l.* 10*s.* It is made on a certificate of residence and good conduct from the tutors.

LOANE'S CHARITY.

Nathanial Loane, by his will, 22nd July 1625, devised to the Company a rentcharge of 52*s.* out of houses in the Little Old Bailey, to pay to seven of the poorest people, men or widows of the Company, 7*s.* apiece, and to the two beadles and porter 1*s.* apiece. And by an indenture of the 10th August 1763, the houses were conveyed to trustees for the parish of St. Sepulchre upon trust to divide the rents in the following proportions:—

* RALPH HANDSON'S CHARITY.

Pursuant to an order of the Board of Charity Commissioners of this date the redemption of the several perpetual annuities belonging to the Charity, amounting in the whole to the sum of 35*l.* 15*s.* was effected in consequence of the transfer to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the Charity of the sum of 1,200*l.* Consols.

1st August
1876.

Sepulchre parish	-	-	$\frac{8}{13}$ ths.
Islington parish	-	-	$\frac{1}{13}$ ths.
Staines parish	-	-	$\frac{1}{13}$ th.
Ironmongers' Company	-	-	$\frac{1}{13}$ th.

The premises are situated in the Old Bailey, and are under the management of trustees appointed by the parishes of St. Sepulchre and Islington. The $\frac{1}{13}$ th of the Company now amounts to 15*l.* a year, and deducting property tax, leaves 13*l.* 10*s.* 11*d.* It is divided amongst seven poor freemen of the Company, with Riggs' gift. Thirty-six out-door pensioners receive 25*s.* a year each, and 27 indoor pensioners 23*s.* each. The Company, however, insist that this, so far as the gift in respect of Loane's Charity exceeds the 52*s.* annually, is of their own bounty.

RANDALL OR RANDOLPH'S CHARITY.

It appears from an entry in an old account book of the Ironmongers' Company that in 1585, 480*l.* was received by the wardens from the executors of Mr. Justice Randolph, to which the Company added 20*l.*, and the money was invested in the purchase of two rentcharges, together amounting to 25*l.* a year. The rentcharges arise out of property of this Company in Bread Street Hill. The Company deduct 4*s.* in the pound for land tax, which thus reduces the annual payment to 20*l.* a year.

The sum of 10*l.* a year for Castle Barnard Ward is paid to the churchwardens of the parish of St. Bennet Paul's Wharf, and the 10*l.* for Queenhithe Ward is paid to the churchwardens of St. Michael, Queenhithe. These churchwardens distribute the several sums amongst the other parishes in each ward.

RIGGS' GIFT.

William Riggs, by his will, 21st November 1814, bequeathed to the Ironmongers' Company 2,000*l.* Reduced Annuities, to pay (subject to certain annuities) the dividends for the benefit of the poor members of the Company.

The annuitants are all deceased, and the dividends on the fund which stands in the corporate name of the Company are divided amongst the poor freemen of the Company at the same time with Loane's gift. In December 1860 36 out-pensioners received 1*l.* 5*s.* each, and 27 in-pensioners received 1*l.* 3*s.* each, including both Charities.

SAMPSON'S GIFT.

John Sampson by his will, 22nd October 1691, devised to the Ironmongers' Company a rentcharge of 6*l.* payable out of a messuage and premises in Marlborough, Wilts, for four poor widows, pensioners in Old Fish Street, London.

The rentcharge is received (deducting land tax of 4*s.* in the pound, and leaving, therefore, 4*l.* 16*s.*) from the Marquis of Aylesbury, and the Company divide the amount amongst the four pensioners in Lewin's Almshouses.

WILD'S CHARITY.

William Wild, by his will of the 9th July 1846, bequeathed to the Ironmongers' Company 3,500*l.* Consols. Upon trust, nevertheless, and for the purposes therein-after mentioned, that is to say, upon trust out of the dividends thereof to pay unto Eliza Yeatherd an annuity of 60*l.* during her life, and thereout to pay to his servant, Alice Weston, an annuity of 30*l.* during her life, and thereout also to pay to the clerk of the said Company for ever an annuity of 5*l.*, and upon trust to pay and distribute all the residue and remainder of such dividends during the lives of the said Eliza Yeatherd and Alice Weston, and after their respective deceases then the whole of such dividends after deducting the 5*l.* a year to the clerk as aforesaid unto and among the non free poor inhabitants of Sir Robert Geffery's Almshouses, Kingsland Road, Middlesex, share and share alike for ever, such distribution to be made half yearly when and as such dividends should from time to time become due and payable, or quarterly at such times as the said Ironmongers' Company should think fit.

The sum of 3,150*l.* Consols (after deducting legacy duty) stands in the Company's name belonging to this Charity.

Mrs. Eliza Yeatherd, one of the annuitants, is still alive, and receives 60*l.* a year in respect of her annuity.

In June 1860 the Company divided the residue (after deducting the clerk's 5*l.* and 2*l.* 7*s.* expenses) amongst 18 non-free persons in Sir Robert Geffery's Almshouses, each receiving 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.*

All which I submit to the Board.

THOS. HARR,
Inspector of Charities.

2nd July 1861.

Three Wardens, and Court of Assistants.

The latter is uncertain in numbers, but the quorum is 13. The average number of members is about 20. The liverymen now on the list are 246, including the members of the court. There is a privilege of all the free vintners, vintners by service or patrimony, to sell wine throughout the Kingdom without a license from the Board of Inland Revenue or magistrates, under the old construction of ports and port towns. The number of freemen, not liverymen, known to the clerk, is 273, and there may be about 50 more. The title of the Company is "The Master, Wardens, and Freemen, and Commonalty of the Mystery of Vintners of the City of London."

VINTNERS' ALMSHOUSES.—SHULDHAM'S GIFT.

Guy Shuldham, by his will of the 7th November 1446, gave to the Company lands and tenements in the parishes of St. Martin, Vintry, and St. James, Garlick-hithe, London, on condition that the said Company and their successors, the great hall, with the kitchen and house for coals, and a pantry and buttery, and a void piece of land called the Yard, with the well in the same, and the apparell to the same well belonging, and also a parlour above leaded and a house called the counting-house, being parcels of the said lands with the appurtenances, for ever after his decease, put, convert, and conserve to the proper use of the said master, wardens, and commonalty, paying for the same with the money of the common box, 6s. 8d.

And he directed that the Company should grant the 13 little mansions to 13 poor men or women without rent; and to let the residue of the said lands and tenements, and pay to the 13 poor people 4s. 4d. each yearly.

The history of the site of these buildings is dated in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 8, p. 380). A portion of it before the Fire of London seems to have been appropriated to the Hall of the Company occupying nearly the site of the present hall at the foot of Southwark Bridge on the Thames Street side. After the Fire the premises described as the little mansions, which were supposed to be only rooms in a large building, were not reconstructed on the same site but on a plot of land purchased by the Company, adjoining the Trinity Almshouses in the Mile End Road. These almshouses were re-built about 60 years ago, mainly from a bequest from Mr. Kenton, one of the Company, and his executors. The almshouses, as described by the Commissioners of Inquiry, consist of 12 small houses, six on each of two sides of a square, with a chapel at the side opposite the entrance. Each house has an outer door, with a parlour and bed-room on the same floor, and a cellar or kitchen below.

An information was filed on the 16th December 1833, which was amended by successive orders of the 29th July 1834 and the 24th January 1835, and as amended was by the Attorney-General at the relation of George Everitt and William Everitt, against the Vintners' Company, stating the gift by Guy Shuldham, and the subsequent transactions, and praying that it might be declared that the said Vintners' Company took and acquired the lands and tenements devised by G. Shuldham, except so much as was appropriated to the use of the Company as a hall or otherwise, the residue of said lands and tenements distinguished from so much thereof as then constituted the buildings therein mentioned and specified. And that the said Company then held the same, subject to a charitable trust, and not absolutely to their own use, and that the said Company, for the time being, in respect of the said lands so vested in them, were chargeable, not merely with the obligation of supporting almshouses for the relief of 13 poor almspeople, and of applying the yearly sum of 4s. 4d. for the maintenance of each of such poor, but that they were liable for, and chargeable with, the whole of the rents of such residue of said lands and tenements as were applicable to a charitable use.

The bill also prayed that the Company might be charged in account with the moneys received from Mr. Kenton and his executor for the relief of the almshouses, and might account for the surplus rents, profits, and receipts on taking the account.

The Company put in their answer to the original and amended bills, and certain proceedings took place with reference to the competency of the relators, and orders were made for the inspection by the relators of the books and documents of the Company. In January 1836, it was proposed to the Company by Messrs. Yates and Turner, the solicitors to the relators, that a decree should be made charging the Company with the maintenance of the almshouses, "in as ample, effectual, and beneficial a manner as they were then maintained." This the Company refused to consent to. In Hilary Term, 1839, a subpoena to rejoin was served, but no further proceedings were taken, nor was the information ever dismissed.

The Company charge themselves with 2l. 16s. 4d. a year in respect of the penny a week with which the premises are charged.

The almshouses are occupied by 12 women. The widows of liverymen are preferred to freemen, and then the widows of freemen, but it was opened to the widows of freemen in consequence of widows of liverymen not being sufficient in number. They are not generally elected under the age of 60.

Each of the almswomen receives as follows:—

KENTON'S GIFT.

Benjamin Kenton, who died in 1802, by his will (date not stated), gave 2,050*l.* to the Company; a competent part thereof to be laid out in rebuilding the almshouses, and directed that what remained should, together with a further sum of 200*l.* be placed out at interest and applied (after deducting 2*l.* 2*s.* a year for a sermon) amongst the poor women of the almshouses.

The whole of the money received in respect of this bequest was expended in rebuilding the almshouses.

The Company, however, charge themselves with the annual sum of 12*l.* 12*s.*, which is divided in 12 equal sums and given to the 12 almspeople on the day fixed on for the commemoration of the donor. They also pay 2*l.* 2*s.* a year for a sermon in the parish church of Stepney, preached by a clergyman named by the master, usually the rector; the rector receiving the fee.

The same testator gave the Company a sum of 2,000*l.* for their own use. This money the Company have voluntarily dedicated to a fund called "The Decayed Members' Fund."

FLOWER'S GIFT.

— Flower gave to the almswomen 5*l.* a year for a dinner and 5*l.* a year for coals. The Company charge themselves with 10*l.* a year, which is applied to the benefit of the almspeople, in respect of this gift.

TOMLINSON'S GIFT.

— Tomlinson gave to the almswomen 3*l.* a year. This is annually continued to be applied for the almswomen.

GALE'S GIFT.

Mrs. Gale, by her will (date not known), gave to the Company 100*l.* to be lent to two young men at 4*l.* per cent., and directed that with part of it two loads of charcoal should be bought, and the overplus be divided in August among the almsfolk.

The capital of this fund had not, at the last inquiry, been lent out for a long period, if ever. An information was subsequently filed against the Company at the relation of Thomas Gabriel Bottomley and Hugh Coppental, against the Vintners' Charity, stating the loan gifts,—

Mrs. Dale	100
Edward Malloes	150
Paul Hawkins	40
Thomas Bullock	50

and praying that the charitable bequests aforesaid for loans and all other, if any, like bequests might be established, and that the due performances of the said trusts might be enforced and secured for the future; and then, if necessary, some proper scheme might be named for that purpose, and that proper accounts might be directed to be taken of the aforesaid moneys, and of the manner in which the same had from time to time been applied.

The Company put in their answer stating that after diligent inquiries made by their clerk respecting the said moneys, that all traces of the same appear to have been lost about the year 1654, but whether such moneys were lost by inability of persons to whom they were lent and their sureties to repay the same, or whether they were mixed up and blended with the general funds of the Company they were unable to trace, and verily believed the same could not be traced; but the defendants were willing to admit that the bequests of Gale, Malloes, and Hawkins, of 100*l.*, 150*l.*, and 40*l.* had been at some time or other mixed up and blended with the funds of the Company, and though they had no trace of the 50*l.* given by Bullock, yet they admitted the same was received and had been so mixed up and blended.

No further proceedings were taken in the suit.

The sum of 4*l.* a year is charged by the Company upon their funds, and forms part of the sum appropriated for the benefit of the almswomen. It is a portion of a gift of 5*l.* 5*s.* given to each almswoman on the 31st July.

The sum is made up as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
Flower's Gift	0	8	4
Hawkin's	0	3	4
Gale's	0	6	8
Malloes'	0	8	4
Shuldham's	0	4	8
Jacob's	0	7	3
Mervayle's	3	6	5
	£25	5	0

JACOB'S GIFT.

Richard Jacob, by his will in 1609, charged his lands in Eastcheap with 13 nobles (4*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*) yearly for the poor almspeople. The Company hold the lands in Eastcheap except a part which has been taken for city improvements.

They apply annually this sum with the other sums for the benefit of the almspeople. (See my report on Gale's Gift.)

MALLOES' GIFT.

Edward Malloes, by will of the 5th September 1614, gave to the Company 150*l.* to be lent to three young men paying for same 5*l.* a year for the almspeople.

The capital of this gift was included in the information filed against the Charity and mentioned in my report on Gale's Gift. It is not in any specific investment. The sum of 5*l.* a year is part of the sum of 63*l.* given to the almspeople in July. (See my report on Gale's Gift.)

PIERPOINT'S GIFT.

John Pierpoint, by will of the 1st June 1711, gave to the Company 105*l.* to pay 12 widows, in the Hospital, Mile End, 10*s.* apiece.

The sum is not held in any distinct state of investment, but the sum of 10*s.* apiece is paid to the almspeople in sums of 2*s.* 6*d.* per quarter.

KENNETT'S GIFT.

Alderman Brackley Kennett, about 1780, gave 52*l.* 10*s.* to the Company to pay 2*l.* a year to the almswomen. The sum of 3*s.* 4*d.* each is paid the almswomen in July of each year.

MERVAYLE'S GIFT.

Richard Mervayle, by his will of the 5th April 1437, gave to the Company lands and tenements in Lombard Street in pure and perpetual alms to the sustentation and relief of poor people.

The property possessed by the Company under this devise is—

The freehold messuage and premises, No. 54, on the north side of Lombard Street, in the parish of St. Edmund the King, in the City of London. It has been recently let to Messrs. Barclay and Co., Bankers, on a building lease for a term of 99 years (under the sanction of the Board of the 9 June 1863) at a rent of - - - 900

This is without the land tax which belongs to the Company, having been redeemed by their own moneys.

The rent paid by Messrs. Barclay is 930*l*.

In consequence of the increase of income of the Lombard Street property a committee of the Company has lately presented the following report to the court, which has been approved.

"The special committee appointed to consider and recommend to the court what augmentation should be made to the gifts to the poor of the Company in consequence of the increased rental of the Lombard Street property beg to report the present payments, viz. :—

8 senior decayed members 30*l*. each per annum.
8 junior " " 24*l*.
16 widows on the quarterly poor " list 12*l*. 12*s*. per annum.
8 3rd-class decayed members 12*l*. 12*s*. per annum.
26 quarterly poor, of whom 21 are widows and 5 freemen, 6*l*. 6*s*. per annum.

"The 12 widows in the almshouses are paid a monthly allowance of 2*l*. in addition to various other gifts, making a total of 40*l*. 7*s*. 10*d*. each per annum, and to the matron an additional 8*l*. 8*s*. per annum, and a liveryman's widow without an almshouse is paid 10*s*. per week, making 26*l*. per annum.

"The amount voted by the court for temporary relief has been of late very much increased, in addition to which the court have voted annuities to two ladies (widows of late members of the court).

"The total given in charity to members of the Company during the last year amounted to 1,620*l*.

"We, your committee, considering the very great increase that has taken place in the sums voted for temporary relief in anticipation of the increased rental, recommend that at least 200*l*. thereof should be reserved for this mode of relief, and if the court should consider that amount sufficient, we would then recommend that the permanent allowances should be augmented as follows :

8 senior decayed members 30*l*. to 36*l*. per annum.
8 junior " " 24*l*. to 30*l*.
16 widows from 12*l*. 12*s*. to 14*l*. 14*s*. per annum.
8 3rd-class decayed members 12*l*. 12*s*. to 14*l*. 14*s*. per annum.
26 quarterly poor from 6*l*. 6*s*. to 10*l*. 10*s*. per annum.
12 almswomen to have an addition of 5*s*. per month to their allowance, the income being raised from 40*l*. 7*s*. 10*d*. to 43*l*. 7*s*. 10*d*.

all of which we respectfully submit to the consideration of the court."

In addition to the periodical payments mentioned in the foregoing report, there are various sums given annually by votes of court to casual applicants; these in the year 1862 were 209*l*. 10*s*. This is an increasing claim upon the Company.

The total of these disbursements under the new arrangement will be as follows :—

	£	s.	d.
8 senior decayed members	288	0	0
8 junior " "	240	0	0
16 widows - " -	235	4	0
8 (third class) decayed members	117	12	0
26 quarterly poor - " -	273	0	0
The almspeople ()	397	9	0
	£1,551	5	0

From this should be deducted the produce of the special fund called "The Decayed Members' Fund," of £8,237 14*s*. 9*d*. and £3,208 0*s*. 0*d*. Reduced Annuities

£11,445 14 s . 9 d .	-	-	343	7	5
			£1,207	17	7

The moneys appropriated for the poor of the several classes above mentioned, and which may be regarded as paid from Mervayle's Charity, so far as that will extend, are therefore upwards of 1,200*l*., being a surplus of 300*l*. beyond the income.

In addition to this there are 10 aged widows of members of the court who receive 60*l*. a year each, and the widow of a liveryman who receives 29*l*. a year.

SKYDMORE'S GIFT.

Stephen Skydmore, by his will of the 20th March 1584, gave all his lands and tenements in Blackfriars to the Company on trust to pay to each of 17 parishes in and near the City of London 20*s*. for fuel in the month of October.

	£	s.	d.
To St. Stephen, Coleman Street, parish, for bread - - -	-	1	12 0
To the poor of the Company - - -	-	1	0 0
To the City of Cork - - -	24	0	0 0

The Company held the estate in Shoemaker's Row in Broadway, Blackfriars, in the parish of St. Ann, Blackfriars.

They pay the sum of 19*l*. 12*s*. a year over to the churchwardens of the City parishes mentioned in the devise, and to the Municipality of the City of Cork 24*l*. a year.

BUCKLE'S GIFT.

Cuthbert Buckle, by his will of the 20th June 1594, gave to the Company his lands and tenements in St. Mary-at-Hill and St. Dunstan-in-the-East parishes.

The Commissioners of Inquiry (volume 8, page 383) report that this devise had not apparently been accepted by the Company.

Nothing more is known of it.

BLUNDELL'S GIFT.

Peter Blundell, by his will of the 9th June 1599, gave to the Company 150*l*., to purchase lands and pay thereout 40*s*. to the poor in Bridewell Hospital.

No account is found of any lands having been purchased; 2*l*. a year is paid to the treasurer of the hospital.

HAWKINS' GIFT.

Paul Hawkins, by his will of the 21st June 1600, directed his executrix to pay to the Company 40*l*., to be lent to a young man, for the delivery yearly of one load of good charcoal for the poor of the Company, and 2*s*. to the clerk.

This was one of the subjects of the information mentioned in my report of Gale's Gift. There is no account of any investment of the capital.

The supposed produce is paid in sums of 3*s*. 4*d*. each to the 12 almswomen in July of every year, forming part of the 5*l*. 5*s*. they then receive.

JACOB'S GIFT.

Richard Jacob, by his will of the 20th May 1609, gave to the Company all his houses in Eastcheap, to pay thereout,—

	£	s.	d.
To the parish of St. Clement Danes	-	4	0	0
To the poor of St. Andrew Hubbard	-	2	0	0
To Bridewell Hospital	-	3	0	0
To Christ's Hospital	-	2	0	0
To Bartholomew's Hospital	-	2	0	0
To St. Thomas' Hospital	-	3	0	0
To the poor almspeople of the Company	-	4	6	8

The property held by the Company under this devise has been referred to in my report of this donor as part of the Almshouses Charities.

The foregoing additional charges are paid to the churchwardens of the several parishes and treasurers of the hospitals.

BULLOCK'S GIFT.

Thomas Bullock, by his will of the 18th February 1632, gave to the Company 50*l*. to be lent to young men; they paying 20*s*. yearly for the relief of poor members of the Company.

This part of the subject of the suit is mentioned under Gale's Gift. There is no account of the investment of the fund. The 20*s*. a year is added to the distribution to the poor, and returned in the accounts of the Company with Mervayle's Gift.

Cox's GIFT.

Thomas Cox, by his will (date not known), gave to the Company 50*l*., to distribute 50*s*. to poor widows.

The sum of 2*l*. 10*s*. is added in the Company's account to Mervayle's Gift, and may be considered as included in what is given by the Company to their poor, which far exceeds the produce of the Charity Estates.

YOUNG'S GIFT.

Mrs. Winifred Young gave to the Company 50*l.* for their poor.

The sum of 3*l.* a year in respect of this donation is returned with Mervayle's Charity, as given to the poor, and it may be regarded as forming part of the surplus of the gift disposed of.

STOWELL'S GIFT.

Richard Stowell gave to the Company 20*l.*; the interest to be paid to their poor. The Company account for 1*l.* a year as supposed to be derived from this source.

The Company give to the poor far more than the produce of the estates.

BATEMAN'S GIFT.

Thomas Bateman, in 1817, gave to the Company 100*l.* 3 per cent. Reduced Annuities; the dividends to be paid to decayed members thereof.

This forms part of the sum of 8,237*l.* 14*s.* 9*d.* 3 per cent. Reduced Annuities, set apart for the benefit of decayed members. (See Mervayle's Gift.)

LUCAS' GIFT.

At a special court of assistants of the Company held on the 4th July 1839, the renter warden reported that Mr. Alderman Lucas, then master of the Company for the second time, had paid into the hands of the renter warden 500*l.*; the interest to be annually distributed to the almswomen inmates of the almshouses. It was resolved that the said 500*l.* should be invested and kept separate from the said charity funds of the Company, by the title of Alderman Lucas' Gift, that so great an act of beneficence might be held in perpetual remembrance by the members of the Vintners' Company.

This money was invested in the purchase of 604*l.* 8*s.* New 2½ per cent. Annuities, which stands in the corporate name of the Company.

The dividend, amounting to 15*l.* 2*s.* 2*d.* a year, is divided equally amongst the 12 almswomen in the Mile End Almshouses.

PEACOCK'S GIFT.

John Henry Peacock, by his will of the 14th May 1849, gave to the Company 500*l.*, and directed the dividends thereof for ever, to be paid and applied to and for the use and benefit of the widows of decayed liverymen, inhabitants of the almshouses at Mile End, belonging to the said Company, at such times and in such proportions and manner as the trustees or other officers for the time being of the said almshouses should see fit.

This money was invested in the purchase of 522*l.* 3*s.* 10*d.* New South Sea Annuities, since converted into 574*l.* 8*s.* 3*d.* New 2½ per cents.

The dividend, amounting to 14*l.* 7*s.* 2*d.* a year, is equally divided amongst the widows in the Mile End Almshouses.

DECAYED MEMBERS' FUND.

This fund is composed of a gift of 2,000*l.* by Mr. Kenton (as stated in the report on his Charity) for the use of the Company, but which was applied by them to the benefit of the decayed members to which various subsequent donations of other members have been added, the respective names and amounts of which will appear in the annexed table.

The total sum now consists of 8,237*l.* 14*s.* 9*d.* Reduced 3*l.* per cent. Annuities.

A further sum of 3,208*l.* like stock, arising from the balances of the poor box, has been also considered as belonging to the above fund.

The dividends are distributed at the discretion of the court of the Company for the benefit of the class indicated by its title.

All which I submit to the Board.

THOS. HARE,
Inspector of Charities.

AARON'S GIFT.

Samuel Aaron, by his will of the 10th April 1730, gave to the Company 300*l.*, requesting them to distribute 12*l.* at Christmas, viz., 10*l.* amongst 10 poor men in the almshouse formerly at Islington, and now in Monkwell Street, and 2*l.* amongst the eight poor women in the Whitefriars Almshouse, which is now in Islington.

This gift (of which it appears only 274*l.* 10*s.* was received from the executors) is considered as part of the endowment of the Countess of Kent's Almshouses, and is not paid to them separately, but included in the general allowance of 20*l.* each. The almsmen receive also more than the prescribed allowance. (See Heath's Endowment.)

MRS. ACTON'S CHARITY.

By a Minute of the Court of Assistants of the 4th of October 1837, the master communicated to the court that he had received from Mrs. Acton, the widow of Mr. Samuel Acton, a liveryman of the Company, a free gift to the Clothworkers' Company of 1,000*l.*; and it was thereupon resolved that the thanks of the court be conveyed to Mrs. Acton for the very liberal gift, with an assurance on the part of the court that the proceeds of that sum, when invested, should be scrupulously devoted to charitable purposes, in conformity with the wishes expressed by the donor.

This money was invested in the purchase of 1,082*l.* 11*s.* Consols in the name of the Company. The dividends have been applied in pensions of 7*l.* 10*s.* each for four blind persons, the first of whom appeared to be nominated by the Company. The Company, I was informed, have always considered that the words "free gift" and the thanks of the Company for it, imply that the Company received the money free from any charitable trust. Under this impression the return of income tax has not been applied for, nor has any charge for management been made by the Company. It appears to me, certainly, that the language of the resolution implies that the Company received the money on a trust, which they cannot repudiate. It is a question of no actual importance at present, as the Company have always disposed of the money to the poor, as above stated.*

* MRS. HANNAH ACTON'S CHARITY.

Under an order of the Board of this date the above-mentioned sum of 1,082*l.* 11*s.* Consols, was transferred into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

10th August

ARMER'S CHARITY.

William Armer, by his will of the 3rd September 1575, gave 50*l.* to the Clothworkers' Company, to be delivered out to five honest householders of the handicraft of clothworkers for three years, every of them giving security for the repayment thereof. The will was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury on the 11th October 1575. This is one of the charities included in the loan fund administered according to the scheme in the report of the Master in Chancery of the 21st July 1840, referred to under Heydon's Charity.

BARKIN'S CHARITY.

James Barkin, by his will of the 20th September 1675, gave 100*l.* to the Clothworkers' Company, to be lent out to five young men free of the said Company, to each of them 20*l.* for three years without interest, upon giving security for the repayment thereof at the end of the time. The will was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury the 5th July 1677, and the money was paid to the Company, and is included in the loan fund administered according to the scheme in the master's report of the 21st July 1840, referred to under Heydon's Charity.

BAYWORTH'S GIFT.

John Bayworth, by will of the 21st March 1622, gave to the Clothworkers' Company a messuage in the parish of St. Mary, Fenchurch, upon trust yearly at Easter—

	£	s.	d.
To pay to Christ's Hospital	1	0	0
To the poor of the almshouses at Farnham	0	13	4
To the parson of St. Mary Fenchurch for a sermon on All Saints' Day, 10 s. ; to the churchwardens of do. for repairing of church, 10 s.	1	0	0
To the parson of Farnham for a sermon on All Saints' Day, 10 s. ; to the repairing of church and schoolhouse, 10 s. ; to the poor of the parish, 10 s. ; to the schoolmaster for a sermon, 6 s. 8 d. ; to the clerk for keeping clean the testator's monument, 3 s. 4 d.	2	0	0
To the renter warden of the said Company	0	3	4
To the clerk of do.	0	3	4
To the master and wardens 40 s. a piece towards their charge in dining with the Lord Mayor	10	0	0 and the residue amongst the poor handicraftsmen of the said Company.
	15	0	0

The property consists of the house, No. 134, Fenchurch Street, let to Thomas Heath, for a term of 21 years, expiring at Midsummer 1864, at a rent of 120*l.*

The payments are made to Christ's Hospital of 20*s.*; to the churchwardens of Farnham, 2*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*; to the master and wardens, 10*l.*; to the renterwarden and clerk, 6*s.* 8*d.*; to the parish of St. Gabriel, Fenchurch Street, 1*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* (including 2*s.* 6*d.* for the parish clerk, which does not appear to have been included in the gift).

The balance is carried to the funds, which are applied for the benefit of the poor of the Company in pensions. (See Rogers' Gift.)

The Company do not themselves administer the portion of the gift which is for the poor of the almshouses at Farnham, but the whole is paid to the churchwardens of that parish.*

* JOHN BAYWORTH'S GIFT.

By an order of the Board of this date the Company were authorised to grant a lease of the abovementioned property for 61 years from Christmas 1860, at the rent of 30*l.*, up to 25th March 1861, the yearly rent of 136*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.* up to 24th June 1864, and the yearly rent of 366*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.* during the remainder of the term

BLUNDELL'S CHARITY.

Peter Blundell, by his will of the 9th June 1599 gave to the Company 150*l.* on trust, with parcel thereof to purchase lands, out of the rents of which 40*s.* yearly to be paid to the poor people of Bridewell, and the residue employed as that the wardens should have the benefit thereof for their pains.

The Company purchased a house in Friday Street, which is No. 36, and let to a Mr. Richardson for a term of 21 years, expiring in March 1865, at a rent of 28*l.* The sum of 2*l.* a year is paid out of the rents to the treasurer of the Bridewell Hospital. The residue is disposed of by the Company according to the internal arrangements.†

BLUNT'S CHARITY.

William Blunt, otherwise Blownte, by his will of the 24th April 1596, gave 50*l.* to the Clothworkers' Company (in addition to 50*l.* already given by him to the said Company) the money to be delivered to 10 poor men at 10*l.* a piece for three years freely, and giving security for the repayment thereof at the end of that time. The will was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury in the year 1596, and the two sums of 50*l.* were included in the loan fund administered according to the scheme in the Report of the Master in Chancery of the 21st July 1840 referred to under Heydon's Charity.

RICHARD BOYLSTON'S CHARITY.

Richard Boylston, executor of Thomas Boylston, by deed poll of the 14th December 1648, after reciting that the said Thomas Boylston, deceased, had on the 3rd August 1642 lent to the Parliament in the name of the Clothworkers' Company 100*l.* for the pressing necessities of Ireland, to be repaid out of the next subsidies, granted and assigned to the said Company. The said sum of 100*l.*, with full authority to receive the same, upon condition that the said Company should yearly, on St. Stephen's Day, the Annunciation of the Virgin Mary, and the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, distribute to so many of the 24 poor men and women of the said Company partakers of the charitable benevolence of Mr. William Lambe, deceased, as should on the several feast days make their personal appearance at the usual place of meeting, and attend the said master and wardens to the chapel of St. James in the Wall, and there hear the several sermons there preached, twelve pence a piece, that is to say, if they all appeared there 24*s.* every feast day, but in default of their appearance then only 12*d.* to every one that should appear.

It would appear that this loan bore interest or was repaid in 1648, for the payment to the poor appears to have commenced in 1648 and continued to 1813. It was then paid to the almspeople until 1819, when it ceased.

From the year 1838 when payment was resumed, the sum of 3*s.* has been given to 24 poor persons, who received Lambe's clothing on the 1st October in every year. There is an attendance at the chapel on that day.

BOYLSTON'S CHARITY.

Thomas Boylston, by his will, declared that he had in 1648 delivered to the Company 800*l.* for the maintenance of a lecture in the parish church of Burton-upon-Trent, and to pay to a preacher for the same 31*l.* 4*s.*, and to the clerk and sexton 16*s.* a year.

This bequest is charged as a share of the purchase money of the King Street and Cheapside Estate. (See Heath's Almshouses.)

The Company attribute 32*l.* out of the rents to this gift, and pay the amount annually to the lecturer at Burton-upon-Trent, who is now the vicar of the parish, upon a certificate that the lecture has been delivered.

† PETER BLUNDELL'S CHARITY.

By an Order of the Board of this date this charge of 40*s.* was redeemed by the transfer into the name of the official trustees of charitable funds of the sum of 66*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* Consolidated 3*l.* per Cent. Annuities.

BRICKLIS' OR BRYKLES' CHARITY.

John Brykles, by his will dated the 8th November 1440, bequeathed to the Church of Allhallows the Great and to the parson, his lands and tenements in the parish of St. Martin Vintry, and also an annual rent of 26s. 8d. out of a certain cellar and premises in Harbour Lane, and the yearly rent of five marks. The payment was settled by an award of the 20th May 1515, made for settling variances concerning the premises, the arbitrators awarded that the Clothworkers' Company should for ever thereafter pay the said five marks (3l. 6s. 8d.) to the parson, churchwardens, and parishioners of the said parish. The sum of 3l. 6s. 8d. accordingly is paid by the Company to the churchwardens of Allhallows the Great, and is applied by them as fully described in my report of the charity in that parish.*

BARBARA BURNELL'S CHARITY.

Barbara Burnell, by her will of the 27th June 1630, gave to the Company 300l. to purchase lands and pay yearly to the parson and churchwardens of Stanmore, 7l. for a distribution of 12d. every Sunday for bread for the poor, the parish clerk to have weekly one penny-worth thereof and 2s. yearly on Michaelmas Day for keeping his monument clean, and to bestow 4l. 6d., the residue, in clothing for six poor women. And that the Company should also pay yearly to a poor scholar of Oxford, the sum of 5l. The 300l. is under the deed of June 1734 (see Heath's Almshouses) charged as a portion of the King Street and Cheapside Estate. It appears by the books of the Company that the Company, by an order of the 14th October 1685, had directed that the 300l. should be a charge on their Islington estate. The proportion of the rents of the estate attributed to this charity is 12l. a year.

The sum of 7l. a year is paid annually to the churchwardens of Great Stanmore and the Exhibition has been increased to 20l. per annum. (See Pilsworth's Charity.)

JOHN BURNELL'S GIFT.

John Burnell, by his will of the 15th December 1603, gave to the Company 100l., to be lent to two young men, free of the Company, at 5l. per cent. to be employed as follows: 2l. 12s. for bread to 12 of the poorest inhabitants of St. Michael Crooked Lane, 1l. 6s. for bread to the parish of Great Stanmore, and 1l. 2s. in coals among the poor of the said Company.

The loan fund is dealt with under the order of the Court of Chancery of 31st July 1840, confirming the master's report of the 21st July 1840, referred to in the report on Heydon's Charity.

The Company charge themselves with the interest whether the fund be lent or not, or be or be not productive, and apply the same as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To the parish of St. Michael, Crooked Lane, paid to the churchwarden	2	12	0
To the parish of Great Stanmore, paid to the churchwardens	1	6	0
To the poor of the Company being part of Rogers' gift	1	2	0

THOMAS BURNELL'S CHARITY.

By a deed poll of 10th July 1655, the Company, in consideration of 65l. paid by Thomas Burnell, covenanted with the parson and churchwardens of Allhallows, Barking, to pay them 52s. a year for bread.

The rector and churchwardens of Allhallows are paid 52s. a year by the Company.

T. BURNELL'S CHARITY.

By a deed poll of the 10th June 1655, the Company, in consideration of 135l. paid by Thomas Burnell, covenanted with the parson and churchwardens of Stanmore, Middlesex, to pay yearly 5l. 8s., as follows: 2l. 9s. 6d. on the 29th September, and 19s. 6d. respectively on the 25th December, 25th March, and 27th June to be applied, 30s., part of the said 2l. 9s. 6d., to be added to 4l. 6s., the gift of Barbara Burnell, for clothing six poor women, and the remainder 19s. 6d., and also the other quarterly sum of 19s. 6d. to be paid to the said parson and churchwardens to furnish 1s. 6d. of good Suffolk cheese for the poor, to whom should be made a distribution of bread by John and Barbara Burnell, and Robert and Catherine Hilson.

The Company pay the 5l. 8s. to the churchwardens of the parish of Great Stanmore.

BURTON'S GIFT.

Francis Burton by deed, 9th August 1684, released and assigned to the Company a deed or grant of 20s. per annum, made by the Company in the 27 Henry I. to Rowland Hill and his wife (who had given 30l. to the Charity) to pay annually for ever to two artisan clothworkers 10s. each.

This gift is distributed with Rogers' Charity.

CHRISTIAN'S GIFT.

Philip Christian, by his will of the 6th December 1653, gave two houses in the parish of St. Faith to the Company to pay to two poor boys, natives of the Isle of Man, 10l. a piece; but if it should happen that there be a free school in the town of Peel, Isle of Man, the said 20l. a year should go to such school, the schoolmaster to have 18l. and the other 2l. for providing books, &c. and also to pay 7l. a year to seven poor men or women free of the Company, to the master and four wardens 10s. a piece, to the clerk 6s. 8d., and to the beadle 3s. 4d.

From an entry in the Company's Records it appears that a decree in Chancery was made in 1686, which assigned two thirds of the estate to the school, and the other third to the poor of the Company. An entry in the book of the Company of the 21st January 1747, states as follows:—

"This day Dr. Thomas Wilson, rector of St. Stephen Wallbrook, attended this court and presented a memorial and request, setting forth that he had been the last year to visit his father, the Bishop of Man, and brought a petition from thence from Mr. Tear, master of the school of Peel in that island, that the contents of the said petition were true as the poor man had represented, that the schoolhouse founded by Mr. Philip Christian was now by length of time in such a ruinous condition that it must be taken down and rebuilt. That he procured from his friends in London some monies towards it, but far short of completing that good work, therefore humbly hoped this Worshipful Company would be pleased to become contributors to so good a design which would be an act of charity and a lasting advantage to that poor town and neighbourhood. The court thereupon ordered the said schoolmaster's petition to be read and the contents considered, but the request not to be granted for an augmentation to his salary, the estate out of which his salary is paid being three houses in Lovell's Court in Paternoster Row, two of them let at 12l. per annum clear of taxes, and the other now empty and has been so for about five years. That by a decree in 1686 two thirds are for the schoolmaster and the other third for the poor of the Company, That, notwithstanding, no more than 12l. per annum is made of this estate, 10l. per annum is continued to be paid to the schoolmaster although he is not entitled to more than 8l. till the rents are increased. That in regard to the schoolhouse, it appears by the said decree that upon stating of the then account the Company had received 230l., and thereby it was ordered that 80l. should be deducted by the Company to defray the charges of the suit, and the remainder, being 150l. to be divided according to the will, so that 100l. should be paid to complainants for the building of a schoolhouse as prayed for by their bill, and 50l. for the relief of the poor of the Company, which 100l. was paid on the 19th August 1686 to Horatio Darling by virtue of a letter of attorney from the then Bishop of Man; that the Company having no concern or anything to do with the schoolhouse and in consequence lying under no obligation whatsoever to be contributory to the upholding such schoolhouse, yet to manifest their readiness to promote and encourage all charitable good designs were pleased to vote that 10l. 10s. should be paid (as the Company's "charity and benevolence) upon completing the said building by the quarter warden of the Company for the time being, and Dr. Wilson being required to come into Court was acquainted with the resolutions of the court afore-mentioned, for which he returned thankful acknowledgments for himself and on behalf of the inhabitants of the town of Peel for the court's favor to the poor schoolmaster by allowing him now more than the Company are obliged to pay him, and also of a further generous and charitable act of contributing towards the support of the said school-house."

The property under this endowment now consists of the houses Nos. 8, 9, and 10 Lovell's Court, Paternoster Row, let to Messrs. Remnant and Evans on lease for 21 years from Christmas 1848, at the yearly rent of 105*l*. This money is divided according to the decree, two thirds to the Peel school and one third to the poor of the Company. The payment for the school is made to the Bishop of Sodor and Man annually after deducting 5*l*. 5*s*. for the annual expenses. The net amount is 66*l*. 10*s*. to the school (of which 63*l*. is yearly paid), and 33*l*. 5*s*. to the poor of the Company. The difference between the 63*l*. and the 66*l*. 10*s*. is reserved as a repairing fund. A letter from the Bishop of the 26th January 1860 states that "the school is in a very satisfactory condition in every other respect but that of room. The buildings are, I trust, likely to be extended this year, and the sum of 38*l*. 14*s*. 1*d*. which you name" (being the sum referred to by the clerk of the Company as being in hand) "will no doubt be most acceptable, but I will not apply for it without it is really wanted."

In the year 1842 the sum of 100*l*., in 1845 15*l*., and in 1848 15*l*., were paid by the Company in addition to the share of the rents for the assistance of the school and in aid of the repairs.

The payment for the poor of the Company is made to the general relief and pension account. (See Rogers' Charity.)

OLIVER CLAYMOND'S CHARITY.

Oliver Claymond or Clement, by a codicil to his will of the last day of February, 31 Henry VIII. (1540), enrolled in the Mayor's Court in 1542, amongst other things directed the Company out of lands and tenements which he devised to them, to find a pascall light and sepulchre light at Easter within the parish of Allhallows Staining, London, and finding yearly four staff torches and the garnishing of 24 other torches in the said church on Corpus Christi day to accompany reverently the Sacrament at the procession of the same day. It appears also as stated in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 27, p. 332) by an old paper in the possession of the parish of Hitchin, Herts, the same person charged his houses with a sum of 6*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*. a year, payable by the Company in augmentation of the vicarage of Hitchin.

In the year 1551 the following note appears in the Rental Warden's Account:—

"Paid the vicar of Hitchin for his resignation of his title, and such evidence as he had to show concerning an annuity of 20 nobles a year going out of Mr. Claymond's lands, 19*l*. 6*s*. 8*d*."

In 1555, an agreement was made with the vicar to pay 4*l*. per annum. In 1558, the rental warden paid 4*l*. per annum. In 1560, the vicar was paid 10*l*., on condition that he would make no further claim for his annuity. On the 16th May 1569, it is stated that the Company purchased the annuity for 100*l*. In 1591, the opinion of counsel was taken on the objections of the Company to pay the annuity, and other proceedings were taken which are not at this time very intelligible. In July 1593, the vicar of Hitchin exhibited a bill in the exchequer for the recovery of the annuity. Since that time it is stated in the books of the Company that the payment has been regularly made.

The Company hold premises Nos. 62 and 63, Mark Lane, and 23, Abchurch Lane in fee, which they enter in their books as derived from this devise, and which produce a large rental. Out of the two former houses, they pay 20*s*. a year to the churchwardens of the parish of Allhallows Staining, and out of the latter 6*l*. 13*s*. 4*d*. a year to the vicar of Hitchin.*

CORNELL'S CHARITY.

George Cornell, by his will of the 5th of April, 1850, bequeathed to the Clothworkers' Company 2,000*l*., 3*l*. per cent. annuities, upon trust to pay six annuities of 10*l*. a year to six blind persons, members of the Company, and in the event of there not being a sufficient number of such persons, members of the Company, then to such other blind persons, citizens of London, as the court of the said Company should in their discretion think deserving of the said annuities.

The will was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, the 9th May 1850.

The sum of 1,800*l*. was received, after the legacy duty was deducted, but the Company added sufficient to make up the 2,000*l*. stock, which was purchased in the 3*l*. per cent. reduced annuities, and which now stands to their account.

The dividends, amounting to 60*l*. a year, are divided annually amongst six poor blind persons, some being members of the Company, and the others freemen of the city. It may be observed that the Company construe the word "citizen" to be confined to freemen of the city of London.

It certainly appears to me that the modern Acts which have opened the parliamentary franchise to the inhabitants and householders, must also have entitled them to the appellation of citizens.†

DIXON'S GIFT.

Thomas Dixon, by his will of the 2nd June, 1574, gave 250*l*. to Christ's Hospital, to purchase lands of 10*l*. a year, viz., 6*l*. for the Hospital, and 4*l*. for the Clothworkers' Company, and he directed that if the rent should increase, the amount should be divided rate and rate alike between the said Hospital and Company.

The estate is managed by Christ's Hospital, and the Company receives their proportion of the rents from that institution, according to an account rendered by the Hospital to the Company, and which the master and auditors and wardens sign; but I do not find that the account of Christ's Hospital is in fact audited. In 1858-9, the income of 384*l*. 11*s*. 1*d*. was subject to the payment of 51*l*. 6*s*. 6*d*. for outgoings, and after having applied 6*l*. to Christ's Hospital and to the Clothworkers' Company 4*l*.; the surplus profits, amounting to 204*l*. 3*s*. 3*d*., were divided equally between the two institutions.

The moiety of this balance 102*l*. 1*s*. 8*d*., 4*l*. was distributed to the poor of the Company in pensions and in casual aid as stated under the head of Rogers' Charity and forms part of the distribution there mentioned.

GEORGE NEALE DRIVER'S CHARITY.

By an indenture of the 2nd July 1853, between George Neale Driver of the one part, and the master, wardens, and commonalty of the Clothworkers' Company of the other part, reciting that the said G. N. Driver was seised of the hereditaments therein-after described, subject as to those firstly described to an indenture of lease of the 17th November, 1696, whereby the same were demised for 500 years at the rent of 5*l*. And as to those secondly described to an indenture of lease of the 1st October 1694, whereby the same were demised for 500 years at 5*l*. 15*s*. per annum, and reciting that the said G. N. Driver was a member of the said Company, and in token of his esteem for the same had determined to make such settlement of the said hereditaments in their favour as thereby effected. It was witnessed that the said G. N. Driver conveyed to the said Company, and their successors and assigns, all that piece of ground on the south side of Wellclose Square, near Ratcliffe Highway, Middlesex, containing in breadth from east to west 20 feet, and in depth from north to south 79 feet, together with the messuage or tenement, buildings and offices held therewith, and known as No. 35, Wellclose Square. And also all that other piece of ground situate trustees direct to the vestry clerk of the parish of Allhallows Staining.

†GEORGE CORNELL'S CHARITY.

By an order of the Board of this date the trustees were authorised to apply the produce of the sale of the above-mentioned sum of 2,000*l*. Reduced, in the purchase of freehold ground rents at Shackwell Lane, West Hackney, producing 79*l*. per annum.

1878.

* OLIVER CLAYMOND'S CHARITY.

By an Order of the Board of this date the payment of 20*s*. to the churchwardens of the parish of Allhallows Staining was redeemed by the transfer into the name of the official trustees of charitable funds of the sum of 50*l*. Consolidated 3*l*. per Cent. Annuities.

The dividends on the stock are remitted by the official on the east side of Wellclose Square aforesaid, containing in breadth 23 feet, and in depth 100 feet, together with the messuage, &c. held therewith, and known as 41, Wellclose Square aforesaid, to hold the same, subject to the said two leases unto the said Company, their successors and assigns for ever, upon trust to apply the rents thereof for the 1st, 3rd, and each successive corresponding alternate year for ever thereafter for the use of the said Company, and to apply the rents for the 2nd, 4th, and each successive corresponding alternate year for ever thereafter for such purposes of charity as the court of the said Company should direct, and whether by payment thereof to any indigent person or persons or otherwise as such court might think proper and without responsibility for the application thereof.

The rents of this estate are as follows:—

The balance of the rents for each alternate year is given away in such year at the nomination of the master of the Company for the time being to one poor person.

EDWARD'S GIFT.

William Edwards, by will of the 7th April, 1700, gave 100*l.* in money to the Company to pay yearly at Christmas to 10 poor artisan clothworkers or their widows 10*s.* a piece amounting to 5*l.* a year.

This charity the Company administers with Rogers' Charity.

THOMASINE EVAN'S GIFT.

Thomasine Evans, by her will of the 11th October 1796, gave to the Clothworkers' Company five tenements in St. Catherine Coleman parish, London, on condition every second year to choose eight poor widows or wives of the age of 50 years dwelling within the city of London, whereof two to be of St. Mary, Abchurch parish, and every second year bestow on the said eight poor women one gown of cloth of 20*s.* value, and on further trust to provide two cart loads of coal to the poor of St. Catherine Coleman, and the like to St. Mary Abchurch.

The Company is the proprietor of the property in Crutched Friars devised by this will.

The Company pay annually—

The sum of 4*l.* a year is considered to have been included in the expenditure of clothing referred to under Hobby's Gift. The four persons receiving clothing in 1857 received articles to the amount of 18*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.*

These recipients and those under Webb's Charity attend at the church at St. Mary-at-Hill on the 5th September in every year, if a week day, or on the following Monday.*

FARRINGTON'S CHARITY.

It appears by a resolution of the court of the Company of the 15th November 1613, that Richard Farrington, by his will, gave to the Company 60*l.* to buy some rent, to be distributed yearly to the poor of the said Company, which 60*l.* was received of Mrs.

Farrington, late wife and executrix of the said Richard Farrington, by Mr. Darkehurst, the last year quarterwarden, and was not employed and bestowed according to the said Richard Farrington's will: and forasmuch as it was not thought fit by this course that the said money should lie dead in the hands of the Company without any benefit coming to the poor thereby, according to the intent of the said Richard Farrington, it was therefore on that day agreed that from thenceforth until the said 60*l.* might be conveniently bestowed and laid out upon some purchase of land or rent, according to the said Richard Farrington's will. There should be distributed to the poor of the Company yearly, in regard to the use of the said money, 3*l.* half-yearly to be distributed by the master and wardens at the usual times of distribution of the rent of the lands given to the Company by Mrs. Holligrave.

The sum of 3*l.* a year is given away to the poor with the funds referred to in the report of Rogers' and other gifts.

FINCH'S CHARITY.

James Finch, by his will of the 15th February 1508, gave to the Clothworkers' Company certain premises in Hey Wharf Lane, in the parish of Allhallows the Great, upon trust that the master and wardens of the said Company should find and sustain yearly for evermore a Doctor or Bachelor of Divinity of good and honest fame and conversation to read divinity within Whittington College of London three days in every week, and that such reader from time to time should be elected by the master of the said college by the parson of Allhallows in Honey Lane, by the parson of St. Stephen, Walbrook, and by the parson of St. Peter, Cornhill, and by their successors, for the time being or by three of them, and the testator ordained that the said master and wardens should pay yearly to the said reader of divinity for his salary to be had of the issues and profits of the said premises 10*l.* at two terms of the year at the Feasts of Easter and St. Michael.

The Company, out of their property in Hey Wharf Lane in Thames Street, pay annually 10*l.* a year to the reader of Whittington College, who is now the Rev. Thos. Hill, the perpetual curate of the parish of the Holy Trinity, Minorities.†

FRANKLAND'S GIFT.

William Frankland, by his will of the 19th August 1574, gave to the Company his two tenements in Thames Street, upon condition to pay 20*s.* a year for coals to the poor in the parish of Allhallows the Great, and 3*l.* a year to the parish of Skipton, Yorkshire.

The property of the charity consists of a house in Thames Street, occupied by a Mr. Andrew McLaren, as a tenant to the Company. The rentcharge of 4*l.* a year is disposed of as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To the churchwardens in Allhallows the-Great - - -	1	0	0
To the churchwardens in Skipton in Yorkshire - - -	3	0	0
	£4	0	0

The latter parish returns an account to the Company of the persons' names who receive the dole.‡

GREGORY'S CHARITY.

Edward Gregory, formerly a member of the Company, by deed of the 4th June 1845, granted to the Company and their successors all that yearly rentcharge of 4*l.* payable out of the manor of Cowlesfield Esturmeay, in the county of Wilts, and also out of all the lands and tenements formerly of Lawrence Low, situate in Cowlesfield, Cowlesfield Esturmeay, and Whiteparish in the county of Wilts, upon trust to pay the same on the 26th December in every year unto one of the three most aged blind pensioners receiving pensions from the said Company, every nomination to be made between Michaelmas and Christmas days, and every such nomination to be deemed an appointment during the pleasure of the master, wardens, and commonalty. And on the death of such augmented pensioner the next payment of the said 4*l.* should fall into the general funds of the Company for the purpose of indemnifying the said Company against the trouble and expense of receiving and paying the said augmentation pension, and that after the lapse of a year from the death of any augmented pensioner the said Company should elect another pensioner, and so on from time to time for ever: Provided that preference should be given to pensioners free of the said Company.

The Company receive 4*l.* a year from a solicitor at Devises, Wilts, agent of Sir Frederick Bathurst. The Company pay the money annually to one of the three most aged of the blind pensioners. The sum is continually paid to the pensioner until he or she dies.

All the pensioners who have lately received it have attained upwards of 90 years of age.

HALSE'S CHARITY.

John Halse, by his will of the 10th August 1573, bequeathed 100*l.* to the Clothworkers' Company to the intent that the master and wardens should deliver the same to four young men of the Company by even portions to occupy the same without interest for three years, and so from three years to three years for ever. The will was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, and the said 100*l.* received by the said Company. It is now included in the loan fund, and administered under the scheme settled by the Master's Report of the 21st July 1840.

HAMER'S CHARITY.

Ralph Hamer, by his will (date unknown), gave 100*l.* to the Clothworkers' Company, to be lent out to four young men free of the said Company, two to be retailing drapers, and the other two working clothworkers, to have the money by equal portions for seven years, finding securities for the repayment thereof at the end of that time.

This is included in the Loan Fund and administered under the scheme of the 21st July 1840, referred to under Heydon's Charity.

HEATH'S ALMSHOUSES.

John Heath, by his will of the 23rd January 1640, gave to the Clothworkers' Company 1,500*l.*, and directed that 300*l.* should be laid out in erecting five tenements of brick, and that with the remaining 1,200*l.* the Company should purchase lands of the clear yearly value of 60*l.*, and ten poor men of the Company aged 60 years who should be clothworkers or dressers of cloth, to inhabit the said tenements, and for want of clothworkers ten other mechanics and handicraftmen free of the Company, towards whose maintenance the rent and profits of the land should be equally divided.

The almshouses at the time of the former inquiry were situated in the parish of St. Mary, Islington. On the 3rd November 1824, ten almshouses and a clerk's house were built in Monkwell Street, Cripplegate, adjoining Lamb's Chapel or St. James in the Wall (see Lambe's Charity). The present building bears the following inscription:—

"John Heath, by his will in 1640 having bequeathed property to the Clothworkers' Company for the building almshouses for the purposes of solacing the declining years of ten poor freemen of the Company aged 60 years or thereabouts, in pursuance of such bequest ten almshouses were erected at Islington, but the same becoming dilapidated, were taken down and the present built at the Company's expense, at the same time the adjoining chapel and clerk's residence were rebuilt, the whole being situated upon ground given by will to the said Company in 1568 by William Lambe, citizen of London. The first stone of the above was laid on the 3rd day of November 1824, by

"JOHN WARD,
"Master."

The expense of the building of the houses and the repair of the chapel was 6,600*l.*

The Commissioners of Inquiry (p. 231) remark that the Company were unable to inform them how the legacy was dealt with from the time of its receipt by the Company until 1734, but they proceed to state the investments made by the Company in 1734 of the sum of 1,200*l.* and of other charitable bequests.

There being no account furnished of the disposition of the money by the Company from the year 1640 to the year 1734, a question arises similar to that to which I referred in the case of the investment of the 360*l.*, the property of the Free Grammar School at Sutton-Valence. If the Company invested moneys in the intervening period in the purchase of real estate, as it was their duty to do, it might not have been in their power in the year 1734 to appropriate such lands to their own use and attribute the investments then made to the charities. Upon this, however, no evidence whatever has been brought before me, and farther than the statement of the officers of the Company that they have no knowledge of any anterior investments, or of any documents illustrating them, it is of course not in my power to penetrate. In a record book of the Company it appears that a dispute had taken place between the Company and some adjoining proprietors of land in King Street respecting lights. On the 10th July 1734, it appears by the same book that a draft deed was produced to the Company for the purpose of conveying and appropriating the estate purchased in King Street to the discharge of several charitable donations formerly given to this Company "the several sums of money" having been received and no lands purchased there-
"with"; so that the estates so purchased may be always subject to the payment of the charities of such benefactors. It appears in the document book of the Company or index to their muniments, that by deeds of the 26th and 27th June 1720, there was a conveyance by Long and others to the Company of three houses in King Street. The deed of the 13th June 1734 referred to by the Commissioners of Inquiry is a conveyance from Thomas Hennand (who, I am informed, was then the Clerk of the Company) to the Company of the premises mentioned in the Report, and it recites as its basis a previous conveyance of the 12th and 13th June in the same year of the same lands by the Company to their clerk, reciting the said donations and the fact that the Company had at several times laid out 6,074*l.* 10*s.* (a greater sum) in the purchase of lands, and that the same was intended to be thus conveyed for the better and more effectual continuation and establishment of the several and respective pious and charitable uses therein mentioned.

The funds of the following charities were according to this deed charged in the following proportions on the estate:—

		£		£ s.

				26,074 10

The present property of the charities mentioned in the foregoing table is as follows:—

No. 18, Billiter Street, yard and workshops.	Let to Edward Spencer, on lease for 22 years from Christmas 1841.	£ 60
No. 93, Cheapside.	Let to the General Annuity Endowment Company for 80 years from Michaelmas, 1854, sanctioned by the order of the Charity Commissioners under their seal of the 6th February 1837.	250 for the first 12½ years and 400l. for the remainder of the term.
Nos. 38, 39 and 40, King Street Cheapside (now one house).	Let to John Clarke, Edgar P. Stringer, Joseph Robinson, and Joseph C. Ridgway (who are directors of the Mutual Life Assurance Society, but are not so described) on lease for 78 years from Michaelmas 1856, under the sanction of the Charity Commissioners by their order of the 16th April 1858.	£ 200 until Michaelmas 1876, and then 300l. for the remainder of the term.

The two last are building leases and no fines are now taken. The property has been the site of very valuable improvements. To the foregoing account it appears that at the former Inquiry the land tax which had been redeemed by the Company had been carried; but no notice is now taken in the account of the land tax. If redeemed with the property of the charity it is immaterial, if with the property of the Company, the charity cannot of course complain of the omission.

The 300l. given by the founder for erecting the almshouses was no doubt (as the Commissioners observe, p. 231) expended, and probably a larger sum, in the erection of the old almshouses at Islington. The site of these houses is stated to have been and still is the property of the Company and not of the Charity.

Of the 570l. income produced by this estate, the proportion applicable to Heath's Trust is estimated at 112l. 13s. In 1853 the expenditure of the Company for the maintenance of the 10 Heath's almsmen was as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
The almsmen at 20l. a piece -	200	0	0
Medical attendance, coals, repairs, and rates -	219	3	4
	£419	3	4
The same expenses in 1858 were,—
The almsmen -	200	0	0
The other expenses as above -	139	10	7
	£339	10	7

The excess of these payments beyond the 112l. 13s., and the 10l. under Aaron's endowment is therefore the bounty of the Company.

The 10 almsmen are poor freemen of the Company chosen by the court on petition. Their trades or businesses are miscellaneous. There are always more applicants for admission than there are persons to be admitted.*

HEATH'S CLOTHING CHARITY.

John Heath, by indenture of the 2nd December 1635, gave 1,000l. to the Clothworkers' Company, they agreeing to pay 50l. yearly for ever, viz., to a minister for a sermon on the day of his burial, 13s. 4d., also to purchase so much woollen cloth as would make 30 gowns for 30 poor men and women (26 whereof to be freemen or freemen's widows, and two men and two women should be inhabitants of the parish where he should be buried); also, to buy for the said men and women linen cloth for 30 shirts and smocks, 30 leather shoes, and 30 pair of stockings, to pay to the master and wardens 3s. 4d. each (16s. 8d.) and to every one of the livery present at the sermon 6d., to the clerk of the Company 3s. 4d., to the beadle of the livery 2s. 6d., to the beadle of the yeomanry 1s. 6d., to the clerk of the church 1s. 6d., and to the sexton 12d., and also to pay yearly to two poor scholars, one of Oxford and the other of Cambridge of the surname of Heath, 50s. a piece.

* JOHN HEATH'S ALMSHOUSES.

Of the income produced by the above-mentioned estate the proportion now applicable to Heath's Trust is estimated at 258l. 15s. 9d.

The almshouses have been removed to Islington.

The King Street and Cheapside estate was applied by the Company to this and other charities (see Heath's almshouses). The sum appropriated to this charity as its proportion of the rent is 50l. a year.

The distribution of clothing annually made by the Company exceeds the amount of this and the other endowments for the purpose. (See Hobby's Charity).

The exhibitions are, like the others (see Pilsworth's Charity), increased to 20l. a year. They have not been usually held by persons of the name of Heath, but one is now claimed by a sizar of that name, of Trinity College, Cambridge. There are at the same time 12 applicants; all others, however, will be excluded in favour of Mr. Heath.

HEATHER'S CHARITY.

Elizabeth Heather, by her will of the 4th January 1801, gave the annual interest and dividends of the residue of her estate to be divided amongst six poor widows of decayed housekeepers to be annually nominated and chosen.

By a deed of the 2nd February 1842 between the Clothworkers' Company of the one part and Robert Joyce, Samuel Carter, and John Illidge, executors of Thomas Bailey, who was the surviving executor of the said Elizabeth Heather, of the other part. After reciting the said will and that by an order of Chancery of the 26th April 1839 in a suit in which the said Robert Joyce and Samuel Carter were plaintiffs, and the Attorney General and Henry John Fraser and the said John Illidge defendants, it was referred to the master to approve of a scheme for the application of so much of the residue of the said testatrix as should remain after the payments of the costs therein mentioned. And that the said master had by his report of the 20th January 1841 found that the plaintiffs, considering that the trust funds (estimated at the annual sum of 60l.) would be too small for the foundation of an establishment for the relief of poor widows of deceased housekeepers, had proposed as a proper scheme for the application of the said testatrix's residuary estate that the sum should be transferred to the Clothworkers' Company, upon trusts there stated, and which scheme was approved by the master as being as near as might be to the charitable purposes expressed by the said will. It was by the said deed declared that the Company should stand possessed of the funds to be so transferred upon the following trusts, viz.:—

1st. That the Company should in each year (after payment of the necessary charges of management) distribute the annual income among such six poor widows of deceased housekeepers as among the applicants conforming to the rules and regulations after contained, should appear to them to be most deserving and necessitous.

2nd. That a separate book should be kept relative to the management of the trust, in which an account should be entered of the name in which the said income was expended.

3rd. That the distribution should take place on the 1st December in each year, or within a week after that day.

4th. That to ensure a sufficient competition an advertisement should be inserted in three of the daily papers in the first and a like in the second week of each November.

5th. That such advertisement should state the amount to be distributed, the description of persons among whom the distribution is to take place, and to whom their applications were to be addressed, which must be received before the 23rd November. It may also state (if the Company think proper but not otherwise) what would be required under the next clause.

6th. Every candidate to produce certificate of marriage and of husband's death, and to state in writing at the time of such application, such particulars relative to herself, her condition, and circumstances as should be proper to be considered in deciding upon the respective claims with satisfactory references for information as to character and verification of statement.

7th. No application to be received or considered which should not be made previously to the 23rd November in the year in which distribution is to be made.

8th. All moneys paid to the Company under the before-mentioned order or under any other order in the suit to be invested in their names in the funds or on Government securities with liberty to alter and vary for other securities of like nature.

The site in Essex Road, Islington, valued at 3,000l. and upwards, was presented and formally dedicated by the Company to the Charity in 1873, and new almshouse buildings were erected out of the corporate as distinguished from the trust funds at a cost of 5,309l. 15s. 10d.

The fund is now 1,207*l.* 12*s.* 5*d.* Consols and 635*l.* 15*s.* 3*d.* 3 per Cent. Reduced Annuities, producing an income of 55*l.* 6*s.* 0*d.*

The applicants for participation in the gift are very numerous. There are always six pensioners of 8*l.* each. The expenses of advertising and of management amount to the balance of the fund after these payments. The administration of the trust is stated to be very troublesome and onerous. I annex the forms of application and a table of the names of applicants in the last year.

And the testator directed his executors to convey his lands to the Clothworkers' Company to perform the several devises mentioned.

The property came into the possession of the Company under a deed of the 31st August 1580.

*ELIZABETH HEATHER'S CHARITY.

Under two orders of the Board of this date the above-mentioned sums of 1,207*l.* 12*s.* 5*d.* Consols and 635*l.* 15*s.* 3*d.* Reduced were transferred into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

13th Nov.
1877.

By a decree of the Vice-Chancellor of England dated the 11th of June 1833, made at the hearing of a cause Attorney General at the relation of Thomas Spencer Hall against the Clothworkers' Company and the master and fellows of University College, Oxford, and the master, keeper, and fellows, scholars of Peterhouse, Cambridge, and the churchwardens of the parishes of Clerkenwell, St. Sepulchre, and Islington, and Stephen Simpson and Augustus Burney, the court declare that the lands and hereditaments devised to the defendants, the Clothworkers' Company, by the will of the testator and the rents and profits thereof from the time of the filing of the information and for the future, together with the 3,355*l.* 17*s.* Consols standing in the name of the said Company, and the dividends thereof from the time of filing the said information and for the future were devoted, and ought to be applied to the charitable purposes therein-after mentioned. And it was ordered that the sum of 321*l.* 1*s.* cash in the hands of the Company which had arisen from the rents of the hereditaments and from the interest of the said 3,355*l.* 17*s.* Consols since the filing of the information be laid out in the purchase of bank three per cent. annuities in the names of the Company, and that interest thereafter to become due as well on the said 3,355*l.* 17*s.* as also on the bank annuities to be purchased as aforesaid, together with what should be received by the said Company in respect of future rents, be applied in the first place in payment of the specific sums in the said will mentioned, that was to say, 5*l.* per annum to the heir of the testator, 5*l.* per annum to Peterhouse, Cambridge, 5*l.* to University College, Oxford, 4*l.* to the poor of St. Sepulchre, 10*l.* towards the repairs of St. Sepulchre's Church, 4*l.* to the poor of Clerkenwell, 10*l.* to the repair of Clerkenwell Church, and 8*l.* towards the repair of the highways as in the bill mentioned. And that the said Company should yearly retain and apply to their use one fourth part of the residue of the dividends and rents in full satisfaction of all their interests in the premises and of all trouble, costs, charges, and expenses to be incurred by them about the collection, receipts, and application of the said rents and interest. And that the said defendants should annually distribute the other three fourth parts of such residue amongst the several charities and for the several purposes therein-before mentioned, and in aid of the several specific gifts or sums to them rateably, and in proportion to the amount thereof respectively, to wit, 5/46ths to Peter-house College, 5/46ths to University College, Oxford, 4/46ths to the poor of St. Sepulchre's, 10/46ths to the repair of St. Sepulchre's Church, 4/46ths to the poor of Clerkenwell, 10/46ths to the repair of Clerkenwell Church, and 8/46ths towards the repairs of the highways aforesaid, such payments to be made on the 25th of March in every year.

The distribution of the estate has been subsequently according to the scheme above directed.

The property consists of 3,355*l.* 17*s.* £ s. d.

* WILLIAM HERON'S CHARITY.

The Smithfield property was taken by the Corporation of the city of London in 1876 for 21,000*l.* under compulsory powers, and the proceeds re-invested under an Order of the Court of Chancery, in freehold ground rents at West Hackney, producing 967*l.* 13*s.* per annum by way of rental.

The above-mentioned sums of 3,355*l.* 17*s.* and 362*l.* 5*s.* 2*d.* Consols were sold in 1875 and re-invested

HEWER'S GIFT.

William Hewer, by will of the 9th September 1715 gave to the Clothworkers 100*l.* for the use of the poor. With the interest of this sum the Company annually debits itself. The 5*l.* a year is carried to the account of the Company's poor and distributed with Watson's Gift.

HEWETT'S CHARITY.

William Hewett, by will of the 4th April 1599, gave 300*l.* to the Company to the intent that they should pay to Bartholomew's Hospital 5*l.* a year, to Christ's Hospital 5*l.* a year, and to St. Thomas's Hospital 5*l.* a year; and he also gave 110*l.* to the Company to the intent that they should allow yearly for ever 5*l.* to some poor honest scholar of Cambridge studying Divinity.

The 410*l.* formed part of the funds which the Company appropriated for the King Street and Cheapside property mentioned in the report on Heath's Alms-houses; of the income of that estate the sum of 20*l.* is appropriated to this Charity.

The three hospitals receive the sums of 5*l.* a year a piece, and the Company have increased this exhibition to the sum of 20*l.* with the other exhibitions. (See Pils-worth's Gift.)

HEYDON'S GIFT.

John Heydon, by his will of the 11th March 1573, gave 100*l.* to the Company to be lent out to two young men of the Company, and the interest thereon 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* to be paid to the Mercer's Company.

By an Order of the Vice-Chancellor of England of the 21st March 1839 made upon the petition of the Company under Sir Samuel Romilly's Act, relating to the said charities, it was referred to the Master to inquire and state to the Court what sums of money had come to the hands of the Clothworkers' Company under the several donations mentioned in the said petition and to approve of a scheme for lending out the several sums given to the said Company and for the application of the interest, if any, to be paid by such loans; and the Master by his report of the 21st July 1840, settled and approved of the following scheme:—

1st. That the gift of 100*l.* under the will of John Heydon, of 100*l.* under the will of Alexandre Iverie, of 100*l.* under the will of John Burnell, of 100*l.* under the will of Samuel Lese, of 100*l.* under the will of James Stoddart, of 120*l.* under the will of Roger Wilcocks, and of 26*l.* 13*s.* 14*d.* under the will of Katherine Hylson, amounting together to 646*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, with such additions thereto as therein-after mentioned, should be united together in one separate sum; and that the residue of the several other charitable gifts in the report mentioned, which are to be lent out, without interest, amounting together to 1,496*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, should be united into one other separate sum, and that so much of the said several sums of 646*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* and 1,496*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* as should remain after payment of the costs of the petition, should be set apart as two several funds, the said first-mentioned sum to be called "the Loan Fund bearing interest," and the other to be called "the Loan Fund not bearing interest," and that the management of the said respective funds and all matters incidental thereto should be vested in the Company and their successors.

2nd. That the said Fund to be constituted of the said 646*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, be lent by way of loan to freemen or members of the Company in such sums as the said Company in their discretion should think fit, but not exceeding 300*l.* to any one freeman or member for a period of three years at such rate of interest as after mentioned.

3rd. That forasmuch as the sums payable, or which have been applied in respect of the interest of the said several sums constituting the said 646*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* have amounted to the sum of 23*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, and that as the said sum of 646*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* will be reduced by the payment thereof of a proportion of the costs and expenses in this matter, it is proposed that in order to keep the rate of interest sufficiently low to afford an inducement to freemen to avail themselves of the intended accommodation and at the same time to provide for the said sum of 646*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, together with so much of the said 1,496*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* as would make up the principal sum of 800*l.*, to be lent out in such manner and in such sums as in the preceding article mentioned at the rate of 3*l.* per cent. per annum.

4th. That the residue of such sum of 1,196*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*, after the making up the said 800*l.* as aforesaid, and paying the proportion of the costs, charges, and expenses in the matter in respect of the said first-mentioned sum, be also lent to the freemen of the said Company in such sums as the said Company in their discretion should think fit, but not exceeding 150*l.* to any one freeman for a period of three years and without any interest whatever in respect of such loans.

5th. That in regard to the persons to whom such loans respectively are to be made, and being such freemen or members as aforesaid, the same shall be at the discretion and nomination of the said Company.

6th. That from the advancement of each such sum by way of loan as aforesaid the freeman or member to whom the same should be made shall execute a bond with two or three sureties, as may be required, whereby he and they shall become jointly and severally bound unto the said Company in a penalty of double the amount of the sum so lent and advanced, conditioned for the repayment by the said obligors their heirs, executors, or administrators of the principal sum so lent, and either with or without interest, as the case may be within the aforesaid period of three years for which such loan is to be made.

7th. That the respective persons to whom such loans shall be made shall bear and pay all costs and charges attending the making and executing of the said bonds and sureties and all other matters and things relating thereto.

8th. That in a book, to be provided and kept for that purpose by the clerk of the said Company, shall be entered the names and residences of the respective borrowers and their respective sureties, the respective professions or business, the amount of the sums lent, the times of making such loans, and the times of the repayment of the same, and any other particulars which may be thought material or necessary.

9th. That when and as often as the said Company shall have in their hands any of the moneys aforesaid ready to be lent out by way of loan under the articles aforesaid, the said Company shall cause to be posted up in some conspicuous place in their common hall, and when such moneys shall amount to 500*l.* or upwards, shall also cause to be advertised in two of the London daily newspapers a Notice that such moneys are ready to be advanced in loans to freemen of the Company and in the manner therein-before mentioned.

10th. That until the said sum of 800*l.* shall have been lent out by way of loan under the aforesaid articles in that behalf, the said Company shall pay interest at the rate of 3*l.* per cent. per annum for the same, and of what shall from time to time remain thereof in their hands, and so from time to time whenever any part thereof, which shall have been lent out, shall be repaid, in order that the whole of the said fund may be productive and bear interest.

11th. That the interest to be paid or received by the said Company for or in respect of the said 800*l.*, or every or any part thereof, shall from time to time be duly apportioned and divided between the said several donations respectively given by the said John Burwell, John Heydon, Katherine Hylson, Alexander Iverie, Samuel Lese, James Stoddart, and Roger Wilcocks respectively, in the proportion to the amount of such donations respectively, or of what has been received in respect thereof, and such interest and the respective appurtenances thereof shall be applied by the said Company, as far as the same will extend, towards the charitable purposes respectively declared concerning such interest, in and by the aforesaid respective wills or instruments in that behalf.

Under this scheme advertisements are published in the following form, and the freemen of the Company apply:—

"Loan trusts under the management of the Cloth-workers' Company. The Company have in hand money to be lent to their freemen in sums not above 150*l.* without interest, or 300*l.* with interest at 3*l.* per cent. per annum, to any one person for a period not exceeding three years, the borrower entering under an Order of the Court of Chancery in freehold ground rents at West Hackney, producing 139*l.* per annum.

By an Order of the Board of this date, the Company were authorised to grant a lease of two pieces of land situate at the rear of "The Cedars" at Clapton, containing 15½ perches (which were acquired as part of the purchases before mentioned), for the term of 85 years from Lady-day 1877, at the annual rent of 7*l.*

The ground rents yield a total of 1,113*l.* 13*s.* per annum.

"into a bond to the Company with two or three sureties for repayment (at the end of the first year if required)". Applications to be addressed to,

"Robert B. Towse, Clerk,
"Clothworkers' Hall, Mincing Lane, London,
"January 1860."

Of the sum of 800*l.* to bear interest, there was at the 31st December 1858 250*l.* not lent, and 550*l.* lent to freemen in sums of 300*l.*, 100*l.*, and 150*l.*

Of the money not bearing interest there was on the 31st December 1858, 734*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.* not lent, and 225*l.* lent in sums of 25*l.*, 50*l.*, and 150*l.*

The Company requires a bond with two sureties conditioned on repayment at the end of the year, but the loans to those who are considered to continue respectable and solvent are allowed to remain for three years.

The Company notwithstanding their care have lost some of the loans by the failure of the sureties and have been obliged to sue for the recovery of some of the debts.

The sum of 3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* as the interest of the 100*l.* under this endowment, is paid every year to the Mercers' Company.*

Robert Hilson by his will appointed 1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* to be yearly paid for the relief of Great Stanmore, and by

* JOHN HEYDON'S GIFT.

The charities of John Heydon and others are now regulated by a scheme framed under the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, 1873, and 1874, which was approved by Her Majesty in Council on 26th March 1878.

A copy of the scheme is annexed.

CHARITY COMMISSION.

In the matter of the Master, Wardens, and Commonalty of Freemen of the Art or Mystery of Clothworkers of the city of London; and

In the matter of the donations of Augustin Hynde, Thomas Ormston, John Mackell, Dame Elizabeth Lyon, Sir Thomas Rowe, Lady Hinde, John Halse, William Armer, John Haydon, William Lambe, Peter Shales, John Lute, Alexander Iverie, John Southall, William Blount, John Burnell, James Stoddard, Samuel Lese, James Burkin, Richard Farrington, Sir William Stone, Ralph Harmer, Roger Wilcocks, and Katherine Hylson; and

In the matter of the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, 1873, and 1874.

SCHEME FOR THE APPLICATION OF THE ABOVE-NAMED DONATIONS.

Whereas by an order of the High Court of Chancery, dated the 31st July 1840, and made in the matter of the Clothworkers' Company (being the above-named master, wardens, and commonalty), and of the Act of Parliament 52 George III. cap. 101, it was ordered that the sum of 2,143*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* therein mentioned (being the amount of the above-named donations in the hands of the said Company), should, after deducting therefrom the costs of obtaining the said order, be lent, advanced, and disposed of as by the report of the Master in the said matter was approved and certified, that is to say, that the said sum, subject to the payment of the costs aforesaid, should be divided into two several funds to be called respectively "The Loan Fund bearing interest" and "The Loan Fund not bearing interest," and that the management of the said funds should be vested in the Clothworkers' Company, and be lent or advanced, by way of loan, to freemen or members of the said Company, in such sums and on such terms as was therein provided concerning the said funds respectively, and that the interest of the said loan fund bearing interest should from time to time be duly apportioned and divided between the several donations given by the above-named John Burnell, John Haydon, Katherine Hylson, Alexander Iverie, Samuel Lese, James Stoddard, and Roger Wilcocks respectively, in proportion to the amount of such donations respectively, or of what had been received in respect thereof, and such interest and the respective apportionments thereof should be applied by the said Company as far as the same would extend for or towards the charitable purposes respectively declared of and concerning such interest in and by the respective wills or instruments relating thereto.

And whereas the costs of obtaining the said Order amounted to the sum of 124*l.* 17*s.* 2*d.*, which was duly paid out of the said sum of 2,143*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.*, whereby the same was reduced to the sum of 2,018*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.*, which said sum, in pursuance of the said Order, was divided into two several funds, and the sum of 800*l.* part thereof was appropriated to the Loan Fund bearing interest, and the sum of 1,218*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* to the Loan Fund not bearing interest.

And whereas from time to time, since the date of the said Order, sums, amounting in all to the sum of 301*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.*, parts of the Loan Fund not bearing interest have been lost and become irrecoverable owing to the default of borrowers and their sureties, whereby the said Loan Fund not bearing interest has become reduced to the sum of 916*l.* 14*s.* 4*d.*

And whereas the said Order and certain of the wills and instruments therein referred to sums forming part of the annual interest of the Loan Fund bearing interest are applicable in manner following, that is to say:—

	£	s.	d.
To the Mercers' Company -	3	6	8
Doles for poor of the parish of St. Michael, Crooked Lane -	2	12	0
Doles for poor of the parish of Great Stanmore -	2	12	8
Doles for poor of the parish of St. Martin, Ironmonger Lane -	2	10	0
Doles for poor of the parish of St. Olave, Jewry -	1	10	0
Doles for poor of the Clothworkers' Company -	11	2	0

And whereas it is apprehended that, besides the said sum of 301*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.*, other parts of the said Loan Funds, or one or other of them, amounting in all to the sum of 1,000*l.*, or thereabouts, may in fact, on being called in, prove to be irrecoverable, owing to the default of borrowers and their sureties, but the nominal sums standing to the credit of the said Loan Funds respectively in the books of the Clothworkers' Company are as follows, that is to say:—

	£	s.	d.
The Loan Fund bearing interest -	800	0	0
The Loan Fund not bearing interest -	916	14	4
Making together the sum of -	1,716	14	4

And whereas the Clothworkers' Company are desirous that the said Loan Funds, or so much of the same respectively as is now recoverable, but subject to the payment of the said several annual sums payable to the Mercers' Company and to the poor of the said parishes of St. Michael, Crooked Lane, Great Stanmore, St. Martin, Ironmonger Lane, and St. Olave, Jewry, amounting in all to the annual sum of 12*l.* 11*s.* 4*d.* (herein-after called the external charges), and also that the said sums hitherto applicable to doles payable out of interest of the Loan Fund bearing interest to poor of the Clothworkers' Company, amounting in all to the annual sum of 11*l.* 2*s.* 0*d.*, should be applied for the advancement of education in manner herein-after appearing.

And whereas the Clothworkers' Company, with a view to the further advancement of education, have offered to make up out of their corporate funds all the actual and apprehended deficiency of the said Loan Funds respectively, so as to complete the full sum of 2,018*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* (being the said sum of 2,143*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* in the hands of the Clothworkers' Company at the date of the said Order, less the costs of obtaining the same), as the sum to be made applicable to the advancement of education as aforesaid:

Now it is hereby declared by the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, with the consent of the Clothworkers' Company, that it is desirable to apply for the advancement of education the said several Loan Funds, subject to the payment of the external charges, and also the said sums hitherto applicable to doles payable out of interest of the Loan Fund bearing interest to the poor of the Clothworkers' Company.

And the said Loan Funds (subject as aforesaid), and also the said sums applicable to doles to poor of the Clothworkers' Company, shall henceforth be administered in accordance with the following provisions of this scheme:

1. As soon as conveniently may be, the Clothworkers' Company shall pay to the governing body of the trust for carrying on the North London Collegiate and Camden Schools for Girls the said full sum of deed poll of the 25th January 1585, after reciting that Catherine Hilson his widow for better securing the payment of the said 1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.*, had paid to the Clothworkers' Company 40 marks (26*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*) the Company bound themselves to pay yearly the said 1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* to the churchwardens of Great Stanmore, their executors, and administrators. It is stated that this sum of 40 marks the Company ordered to be lent out for three years to some honest man of the Company upon sufficient sureties for payment of the principal and interest, and at the three years end to be lent out again, and so on from three years to three years for ever. This sum is included in the order of the Court of Chancery of the 21st July 1840, made upon petition under Sir Samuel Romilly's Act for regulating the loan charities. (See Heydon's Charity.)

The sum of 1*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* a year is paid annually to the churchwardens of the parish of Great Stanmore.

HINDE'S CHARITY.

Lady or Mrs. Hinde by her will about the year 1569, bequeathed to the said Company, 20*l.*, upon and for similar trusts to those declared in the will of Augustin Hynde.

This money is included in the Loan Fund, administered under the scheme settled in the master's report of the 21st July 1840, referred to in Heydon's Charity.

* HITCHINS' CHARITY.

Robert Hitchins, by his will of the 24th June 1680, gave 1,500*l.* to the Company to purchase an estate and apply the rents as follows:—To 20 poor men and 20 poor women on St. Stephen's day yearly 3½ yards of cloth at 6*s.* a yard, one pair of shoes, one pair of hose, and one shirt or smock, to a minister for a sermon 20*s.*, to him who should read the Psalms 2*s.*, to the clerk of the Company 5*s.*, and to the beadle 2*s.* 6*d.* And he directed that six of the men and six of the women should be inhabitants of the freedom part of St. Giles, Cripplegate.†

The sum of 1,500*l.* is a part of the consideration of the King Street and Cheapside Estate, applied by the Company in 1734, to Heath's Almshouse (q.v.) and other charities. The portion of the rent of the estate attributed to this charity is 140*l.* 16*s.* 4*d.*

† He directed that six of the poor men and six of the poor women should be natives and inhabitants of the said freedom part of the parish of St. Giles without Cripplegate aforesaid, if so many were to be annually found, but if not to be found then to such six poor men and six poor women, inhabitants of the said part of the said parish as the churchwardens of the said freedom part of the parish for the time being should think the fittest objects of charity to receive the same.

* ROBERT HITCHINS' CHARITY.

This charity is now regulated by a scheme framed under the Endowed Schools Act, 1869 and amending Acts, which was approved by Her Majesty in Council on 20th November 1880.

A copy of the scheme is annexed.

The portion of the rent of the estate attributed to this charity is now 323*l.* 9*s.* 9*d.*

CHARITY COMMISSION.

In the matter of the Charity under the management of the Clothworkers' Company of the city of London known as Hitchins' Charity, established by the will of Robert Hitchins; and

In the matter of the Endowed Schools Act, 1869, and amending Acts.

SCHEME FOR APPLYING FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF EDUCATION THE ENDOWMENT OF THE ABOVE-MENTIONED CHARITY, SUBJECT AS IN THIS SCHEME MENTIONED.

1. It is hereby declared, with the consent of the governing body, that it is desirable to apply for the advancement of education the endowment of this charity, subject to a yearly payment of 3*l.* 9*s.* 9*d.* to be made thereout, as heretofore, for a sermon on St. Stephen's Day and for expenses incidental thereto.

The endowment shall henceforth be administered in accordance with the provisions of this scheme under the name of the Hitchins Foundation, herein-after called the foundation.

2. Subject as herein provided, the governing body of the foundation shall be the master, wardens, and commonalty of freemen of the art and mystery of Clothworkers of the city of London, being the above-named Company, and, as such governing body, herein-after called the governors.

3. Religious opinions, or attendance or non-attendance at any particular form of religious worship, shall not in any way affect the qualification of any person for being one of any governing body under this scheme.

4. From and after the date of this scheme, all stock in the public funds and other securities belonging to the foundation, and not hereby required or directed to be otherwise applied or disposed of, shall be transferred to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for the foundation.

5. The estates and property of the foundation shall be managed by the governors according to the general law applicable to the management of property by trustees of charitable foundations.

6. The accounts of the governors in respect of the foundation shall be made up and balanced to the 31st day of December in every year. The accounts shall be examined by the governors and signed by their clerk, if any, or other officer, within three calendar months after the day to which they are made up. As soon as practicable after the accounts are so signed they shall be audited in accordance with regulations to be approved by the Charity Commissioners.

2,018*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* (including therein the said several Loan Funds, or so much thereof as may now be recoverable), to be held by the said governing body in trust to apply the same in the erection of school buildings in accordance with the provisions of the subsisting scheme for the management of the said trust, and in addition to the moneys by the said scheme authorised to be applied in like manner. Provided that such buildings shall comprise a principal hall, to be called the Clothworkers' Hall, for the assembly of the girls attending the collegiate school of the said trust, and for other purposes of the said trust: Provided also, that the said governing body shall in every year, if required so to do by the Clothworkers' Company during such year or within reasonable time afterwards, pay to the said Company the said sum of 12*l.* 11*s.* 4*d.* in respect of the external charges: Provided lastly, that the said governing body, in the management of the said trust, shall comply with the provisions of this scheme, so far as the said trust may be affected thereby.

2. From and after the date of this scheme the Clothworkers' Company shall pay and distribute the external charges as heretofore, by means of the said annual sum of 12*l.* 11*s.* 4*d.*, or otherwise, as they think fit.

3. Daughters of poor freemen or members of the Clothworkers' Company recommended as meritorious to the said governing body by the master, wardens, and court of assistants of the said Company, by writing under the hand of the master, or the hands of any two of the wardens, shall, on being found fit in accordance with the provisions of the scheme for the management of the said trust, and on payment of the entrance and tuition fees payable by candidates for admission for the time being, be admitted to the schools of the said trust in preference to other candidates for admission; provided, that whenever 10 scholars having had the benefit of such preference, are attending the schools, no further such recommendation as aforesaid shall be made by the said master and wardens until at least one of such scholars shall have ceased to attend the schools.

4. The Charity Commissioners may from time to time, in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction, frame schemes for the alteration of any portions of this scheme, provided that such schemes be not inconsistent with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, 1873, and 1874.

5. From and after the date of this scheme the said Loan Funds and premises shall for every purpose, except as herein provided, be administered and governed wholly and exclusively in accordance with the provisions of the same scheme, notwithstanding any former or other scheme, Act of Parliament, charter or letters patent, statute, or instrument relating to the same premises.

6. The Clothworkers' Company shall cause this scheme to be printed, and a copy to be given to every master and warden of the Company, and to every chairman of the said trust for carrying on the North London Collegiate and Camden Schools for Girls upon their respective appointments, and copies may be sold at a reasonable price to all persons applying for the same.

7. The date of this scheme shall be the day on which Her Majesty by Order in Council declares her approbation of it.

This leaves a net sum of 127l. 5s. 5d.

Statement of accounts.

7. The governors shall cause a statement showing their receipts and expenditure in respect of the foundation to be printed in such form and with such particulars as may be from time to time prescribed by the Charity Commissioners, and shall send the same within 30 days after the audit to the managers herein-after mentioned and to the Charity Commissioners, and publish an abstract thereof in one or more newspapers. Such abstract shall be in the form given in Part I. of the schedule hereto, unless some other form is allowed by the Charity Commissioners, in which case the form so allowed shall be followed.

Apportionment of income.

8. The income of the foundation, subject as aforesaid, after payment of the expenses of management of property and business and any other necessary or proper outgoings, shall be divided into 40 equal shares. Of such shares 12 shall be a separate branch to be called the parochial branch of the foundation, and shall be paid to the governing body thereof herein-after mentioned, to be by them applied in accordance with the provisions in that behalf herein-after contained.

Educational trusts for benefit of children of free men or women of Company.

9. Out of the remaining 28 shares the governors shall apply the sum of 100l. yearly for the education of the sons or daughters of free men or women of the Clothworkers' Company, in accordance with any rules or regulations of the said Company in that behalf for the time being in force, not being inconsistent with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Act, 1869, and amending Acts.

Residue for Exhibitions.

10. The residue of the said 28 shares shall, after providing for expenses, if any, of examinations, be applied in maintaining exhibitions, each of a yearly value of not more than 30l., tenable at any place of education higher than elementary to be approved by the governors. These exhibitions shall be competed for by girls who have for three years at least attended any of the public elementary schools within the school district of the metropolis, and have passed in one or more subjects in one of the two highest standards of examination for the time being recognised by the regulations of the Education Department, or in an equivalent examination; but shall in other respects be subject to such conditions of award and tenure not inconsistent with the provisions of this scheme as the governors may fix. Any such exhibition for which there is no duly qualified candidate of sufficient merit shall for that occasion not be awarded, and any amounts so left not disposed of shall be accumulated for the like purposes.

PAROCHIAL BRANCH.

Governing body of parochial branch.

11. The governing body of the parochial branch of the foundation, herein-after called the managers, shall be the following persons, that is to say:—

The master and the two senior wardens of the Clothworkers' Company for the time being; and

The two churchwardens for the time being of the parish of St. Giles-without-Cripplegate in the city of London, if they shall respectively be willing to accept the office.

Declaration by managers on entry into office.

12. Every manager shall, at or before the first meeting which he attends upon his first or any subsequent entry into office, sign a memorandum declaring his acceptance of the office of manager, and his willingness to act in the trusts of this scheme. And until he has signed such a memorandum he shall not be entitled to discharge the functions of a manager.

Meetings of managers.

13. The managers shall hold meetings in the hall of the Clothworkers' Company, or in some convenient place in the parish of St. Giles-without-Cripplegate, or elsewhere in the city of London, as often as may be found necessary or desirable, and at least twice in each year, on and at convenient days and at times to be appointed by themselves, and to be notified to each manager by the clerk, if any, or by some other person acting under the direction of the managers, at least seven days previously to every meeting.

Preliminary meeting.

14. A preliminary meeting for the arrangement of the conduct of the business shall be held upon the summons of the master of the Clothworkers' Company upon some day to be fixed by him, being within one calendar month after the date of the scheme.

Chairman.

15. The master of the Clothworkers' Company for the time being shall be the chairman of the meetings of the managers, and the managers shall make regulations for supplying his place in case of his absence.

Quorum and voting.

16. A quorum shall be constituted when three managers are present at a meeting. All matters and questions shall be determined by the majority of the managers present at a duly constituted meeting; and in case of equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

Special meetings.

17. The chairman or any two managers may at any time summon a special meeting for any cause that seems to him or them sufficient. All special meetings shall be convened by or under the direction of the person or persons summoning the meeting by notice in writing delivered or sent by post to each manager, specifying the object of the meeting. And it shall be the duty of the clerk, if any, to give such notice when required by the chairman or by any managers having a right to summon such meeting.

Minutes.

18. A minute book and proper books of account shall be provided by the managers, and kept in some convenient and secure place of deposit to be provided or appointed by them for that purpose, and minutes of the entry into office of every new manager and of all proceedings of the managers shall be entered in such minute book.

Accounts.

19. The managers shall cause full accounts to be kept of their receipts and expenditure, and such accounts shall be stated for each year, and examined and passed annually by the managers at the first meeting in the ensuing year, unless some other meeting shall be appointed for the purpose with the approval of the Charity Commissioners. Every such account shall be signed by the managers present at the meeting at which it shall be passed.

The managers shall cause sufficient abstracts of their accounts to be published annually for general information. Such abstracts shall be in the form given in Part II. of the schedule hereto, unless some other form is allowed by the Charity Commissioners, in which case the form so allowed shall be followed.

Managers may act although body not full.

20. The managers for the time being, if a quorum is constituted, shall have power to act for all the purposes of this scheme, although the number of managers as herein-before constituted is not full.

Application of income.

21. The managers shall apply the yearly amount to be paid to them as aforesaid in gifts of money or clothing, of such amount or value respectively as they shall fix, to girls under the age of seven years in the elementary school of the foundation of Lady Eleanor Holles in the said parish of St. Giles-without-Cripplegate otherwise St. Giles, Cripplegate, who have for not less than twelve calendar months attended that school, and who are certified by the principal teacher of that school as having been regular in attendance and diligent in their studies.

GENERAL.

22. No boy or girl shall by reason of any exemption from attending prayer or religious worship, or from any lesson or series of lessons on a religious subject be deprived of any advantage or emolument under this foundation to which he or she would otherwise have been entitled.

Religious exemptions.

23. The governors and the managers may respectively receive any additional donations or endowments for the general purposes of their respective trusts. They may also respectively receive donations or endowments for any special objects connected with such trusts, which shall not be inconsistent with or calculated to impede the due working of the provisions of this scheme. Any question arising upon this last point shall be referred to the Charity Commissioners for decision.

Further endowments.

24. Within the limits prescribed by this scheme each governing body shall have full power from time to time

General power of governing.

The clothing purchased by the endowment is given away on St. Stephen's Day, the 26th December every year. The parish of St. Giles, Cripplegate, by their churchwardens, nominate six poor men and six poor women, and the other recipients are free of the Company and selected by the court. They all receive the Bodies to make regulations.	to make regulations for the conduct of their business and for the management of the foundation so far as relates to such governing body, and such regulations shall be binding on all persons affected thereby.

Question of proceedings under scheme.	25. Any question affecting the regularity or the validity of any proceeding under this scheme shall be determined conclusively by the Charity Commissioners upon such application made to them for the purpose as they think sufficient.
Construction of scheme.	26. If any doubt or question arises in either governing body as to the proper construction or application of any of the provisions of this scheme, such governing body shall apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon, which opinion and advice when given shall be binding on such governing body and all persons claiming under the foundation who shall be affected by the question so decided.
Jurisdiction of ordinary abolished.	27. From the date of this scheme all jurisdiction of the ordinary relating to or arising from the licensing of any master under the foundation shall be abolished.
Charity Commissioners may make new schemes.	28. The Charity Commissioners may from time to time, in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction, frame schemes for the alteration of any portions of this scheme, provided that such schemes be not inconsistent with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Act, 1869, and amending Acts.
Foundation to be governed exclusively by this scheme.	29. From and after the date of this scheme the foundation shall for every purpose, except as herein provided, be administered and governed wholly and exclusively in accordance with the provisions of this scheme, notwithstanding any former or other scheme, Act of Parliament, charter, or letters patent, statute, or instrument relating to the subject matter of this scheme.
Scheme to be printed and sold.	30. The governors shall cause this scheme to be printed, and a copy to be given to every manager, and copies may be sold at a reasonable price to all persons applying for the same.
Date of scheme.	31. The date of this scheme shall be the day on which Her Majesty by Order in Council declares Her approbation of it.

* JOHN HOBBY'S CHARITY.

2nd July
1867.

By an order of the Board of this date the trustees were authorised to grant a lease of a piece of ground at Plumstead on the south side of the high road leading from Woolwich to Erith with the messuage then lately known as the Vicarage house, but since converted into two tenements, that to the westward being a beershop called "The Volunteer," and that to the eastward being in the occupation of Harding; and of pieces of ground adjoining eastward of the herein-before described premises, with the four newly-erected messuages fronting the said high road, for 60 years from Midsummer 1860, at the annual rent of 40*l.*

4th Nov.
1867.

By an order of the Board of this date the trustees were authorised to grant a lease to the personal representatives of the late G. T. Cann, of pieces of land at Woolwich containing 3*a.* 1*r.* 4*p.*, bounded on the north by Nightingale Lane, and on the south in part by James' Lane, together with the three messuages numbered 1, 2, and 3, Prospect Place, Nightingale Lane, and the two cottages numbered 4 and 5, and stable in Prospect Place; also the two newly-erected messuages opposite Nightingale Lane, and the messuages, shed, and drying-houses adjoining Jackson's Lane, for 80 years from Midsummer 1869, at the annual rent of 200*l.*

The lease was accordingly granted by the trustees on the 6th November 1867.

1868.

By an order of the Board of this date, the trustees were authorised to sell a piece of land then or lately used as a reed bed, containing 2*a.* 3*r.* 6*p.*, lying next the River Thames at Plumstead Marshes, and then or lately let on lease to Mr. George Russell as portion of Borstal Farm.

The purchase money, 437*l.* 13*s.* 5*d.*, was invested in the name of the official trustees in the purchase of 461*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* Consols.

1st Dec.
1868.

By an order of the Board of this date the trustees were authorised to grant leases of a piece of land fronting Nightingale Lane and Nightingale Vale, Woolwich, containing 3*a.* 1*r.* 13*p.* for 80 years from Michaelmas 1868, at the aggregate rent of 80*l.*

1st March
1870.

By an order of the Board of this date the following scheme was established for the future regulation of John Hobby's Charity for Imprisoned Debtors.

Scheme.

1. The income of the charity shall be received by the Clothworkers' Company of the city of London, and shall be applied by them in manner herein-after provided.

2. The Company shall immediately after the passing of this scheme apply the sum of 1,942*l.* 4*s.* 4*d.*, being the balance of surplus income now in their hands, in manner following, that is to say, they shall pay 500*l.* to themselves in aid of the funds for the improvement of the Grammar School at Sutton Valence in the county of Kent, and the residue they shall pay to the treasurer of the Corporation for Middle Class Education in the metropolis and suburbs thereof, to be applied by that corporation to the purposes of their schools, with a special view to the advancement of technical instruction in connexion therewith.

3. The Company shall be at liberty out of the income of the charity to apply yearly sums not exceeding the amounts herein-after mentioned in aid of any school or schools established for the education of the poor of the several parishes herein-after named and conducted under such regulations as will not operate to exclude any persons on account only of their religious creed or persuasion, that is to say:—

In the parish of Plumstead, not exceeding	£	48 yearly.
" Woolwich	"	30 "
" Watford	"	6 "
" Sutton Valence	"	24 "

4. The remainder of the income of the charity shall be applied at the discretion of the Clothworkers' Company in aid of such sick or convalescent hospitals or dispensaries, or reformatory, industrial, or other schools, or such other institutions for the cure or relief of the physical maladies or the moral or social evils affecting the poorer or industrial classes of London and its neighbourhood, or providing for the instruction of the same classes as shall from time to time appear to the Company most in want of support and most calculated to effect the objects of restoring the physical strength or developing and improving the mental and moral habits which are necessary to make useful, self-supporting, and efficient members of society.

By an order of the Board of this date, the trustees were authorised to apply the proceeds of the sale of the above-mentioned sums of 1,822*l.* 3*s.* 2*d.* and 1,000*l.* consols, in and towards the purchase of freehold ground rents at West Hackney yielding 119*l.* 17*s.* 1*d.* per annum.

By an order of the Board of this date the trustees were authorised to apply the proceeds of the sale of the above-mentioned sum of 461*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* Consols towards the purchase of a piece of land situate at West Hackney with four private dwelling houses thereon known as numbers 24, 25, 26, and 27, St. Mark's Villas, then demised for terms of 96 years from Lady Day 1870, at rents amounting in the whole to 26*l.*

The purchase money for the above, amounting to 650*l.*, was proposed to be provided in part by the sale to be effected under an order of the High Court of Chancery of the above-mentioned sum of 201*l.* 5*s.* 2*d.* Reduced.

By an order of the Board of this date, the trustees were authorised to sell two cottages at Plumstead opposite to the "Volunteer" beershop in the high road, with the appurtenances containing in the whole 509 square yards, for 450*l.*

By an order of the Board of this date the trustees were authorised to apply the sum of 325*l.*, part of the said sum of 450*l.*, in effecting the purchase in fee in trust for the charity of a piece of land situate in Hancock Street, Woolwich, with three dwelling houses thereon known as numbers 13, 14, and 15, Hancock Street, and should yearly pay 60*l.* to Christ's Hospital and should stand entrusted with the other charity, which agreement was confirmed by a decree of the Court of Chancery of the 22nd February, 29 Charles II., and further reciting that she had completed the said purchase and had made another purchase of lands of 24*l.* a year; it was witnessed that she conveyed to the Clothworkers' Company, certain messuages, lands, and tenements in Plumstead and Woolwich, Kent, and at Watford, Herts.

An information was filed on the 6th June 1832 against the master, wardens, and commonalty of the Company at the relation of Thomas Spenser Hall and Effingham Wilson, praying that the defendants might answer the premises and that it might be declared that the said defendants were trustees of all the messuages, &c. which they were possessed of under the said will and deed for the benefit of the charities they founded, and that all the rents and profits thereof ought to be applied to the charitable purposes therein expressed, and that it might be referred to one of the masters of the said Court to take an account of all sums of money received by the said Company for rents and profits, and also for fines and premiums on making leases of the said messuages and hereditaments. And also to take an account of the sums properly paid and expended by the defendants about the charitable purposes aforesaid. And that the said master might be directed to ascertain the amount of the sums received by said defendants yearly and every year above the sums so paid and expended, and to ascertain the amount of such surplus. And that the said defendants might be ordered to answer and pay the same, and that the same, when paid, might be applied in an augmentation of the said charities. And that it might be referred to the master to approve of a proper scheme for the application of the amount so to be paid, and also of the future surplus rents of the estates for the benefit of the said charity.

A decree was pronounced on the 10th March 1834, whereby it was declared that the several objects or persons to whom the specific sums in the pleadings mentioned, amounting to 170*l.* a year, were given by the will of J. Hobby, were entitled to the surplus rents and profits of the charity estates after making the said specific payments rateably and in the same proportion respectively as they are respectively entitled to the said 170*l.* And the defendants, by their answer, admitting a sum of 753*l.* to be in their hands in respect of the rents of the estates in question received by them since filing the information, it was ordered that after payment thereof of the said specified sums or gifts amounting to 170*l.* a year, or such of them as since the filing of the information had become due and remained unpaid and of the costs therein-after directed to be paid, the residue (if any) should be apportioned among the said several objects rateably and in proportion as they were entitled to the said 170*l.*, and it was ordered that the future surplus of the said charity estates to be received by the said defendants after payment of all proper expenses and of the specific sums of 170*l.* and of such formerly known as numbers 9, 11, and 13, and to provide the costs and expenses of and incident to the purchase out of the balance of the said sum of 450*l.*, and to apply the residue thereof towards the payment of any sums owing by the Charity in respect of the purchase of ground rents amounting to 119*l.* 17*s.* 1*d.*, authorised by the said first order of 6th August 1875.

By four orders of the Board of this date the trustees were authorised to sell the hereditaments under mentioned, at the prices set opposite to each lot.

It does not appear under what circumstances or by what means the Company became entitled to 200*l.* a year of the rent of the paper mills. I have not been able to ascertain whether they purchased or became owners of the property adjoining the charity estate, and the question does not appear to have been dealt with by the decree of 1834. It appears by the conveyance of March 1677 that the charity property did not include what was called Hamper's Mill, and applied only to property adjoining Hamper's Mill.

The outgoings of this estate, consisting of quitrents, repairs, surveys, wallscott (or a rate for keeping up a river wall) would amount to about -	80 0 0
The Company charge for the expenses of the management of the charity 5 l. per cent. on the gross amount received, which in 1858 was about -	37 15 0
	£117 15 0

The property, according to the scheme of 1834, is divisible into 17 parts, $\frac{1}{7}$ ths to Christ's Hospital, $\frac{1}{7}$ ths to the Company's clothing fund, $\frac{1}{7}$ ths to poor prisoners.

In the year 1853 the sum of 192*l.* 10*s.* 7*d.*, and in 1858 154*l.* 15*s.* 5*d.* were paid to Christ's Hospital. The same sums were in those years applied to the clothing fund; the income of Evans', Heath's, Hobby's, Lambe's, Lute's, Middlemore's, and Webb's Charities amounted together to about 700*l.*

In the year 1858 the amount expended in clothing (including Lambe's Charity, but exclusive of Hitchins') was 708*l.* 19*s.* In May Heath's and Hobby's Charities are given away; on the 5th of September Evans' and Webb's; on the 1st of October Middlemore's; and on the 18th of October Lute's Charity is given away. The freemen of the Company and their widows know that such gifts are to be distributed at such times, and that it is necessary for them to attend at the Cloth-workers' Hall and put down their names during the previous month, when the cases are inquired into and their eligibility as objects of the charities considered. Every male recipient obtains a hat, a shirt, a coat, waistcoat, and trowsers of blue cloth, and stockings and boots. The cost of these suits in April 1859 was 3*l.* 14*s.* each. The women each receive a bonnet, shawl, merino gown, flannel petticoat, a serge petticoat, shift, stockings, and shoes. The cost of these articles in April 1859 was 2*l.* 0*s.* 5*d.* each. The clothes are supplied by contract, and when the names of the selected recipients are written off by a member of the Court of Assistants they are entitled to go to the tradesmen indicated and obtain the clothes.

With regard to the $\frac{1}{7}$ ths for poor prisoners, there is an accumulated balance. Applications are constantly received from the governor of Whitecross Street Prison. The ordinary sum required for the release of prisoners is 3*l.* It is said that the present governor, Col. Martyn Hicks, has employed a person to get the poor prisoners through the insolvent court, and the expense of doing so defrayed from these funds in 1858 was 6*l.*, and in 1859, 75*l.* There is now an accumulated balance of 1,221*l.* 12*s.* 8*d.*

The abolition of the three prisons mentioned in this endowment and the great alterations which have taken place in the modern laws and remedies between debtor and creditor would appear to render it necessary to adopt some new method of distributing charitable funds applicable to the benefit of prisoners for debt. This, however, raises a very large question, owing to the number and magnitude of the gifts for distributions in money and kind to prisoners in the metropolis and elsewhere, and it is a question which it appears to me ought to be considered in a more extensive point of view than could be taken in settling a scheme for any single charity. Instead, therefore, of recommending in this and other like cases any application to the court for a new scheme, I have rather preferred to leave the disposition of the income as it may happen to be made in the exercise of the judgment of the administrators, the capital being secure and hereafter capable of being applied in some manner more extensively beneficial to the unfortunate persons for whom it is intended than the direction for any detached and fragmentary application of a particular fund is likely to be.

With reference to the administration of this and other charities by the Company, I may here observe that in those cases where the Company do not take any beneficial interest in the charity, it is their habit to charge 5*l.* per cent. as the expense of general management, exclusively of the actual charges for purely professional purposes.

In the other cases where the Company take a beneficial interest, no general per-centage is charged. If the gift be, as in many cases it is, to the poor of the Company, it is right to mention that the charge is not in substance deducted, as the gifts by the Company commonly exceed the amount derived from the original benefaction.

It will be observed that a large portion of the estate of this charity is situated in the parish of Plumstead. The parish is very populous, and its inhabitants are for the most part artisans, labourers, and poor. The incumbent of Plumstead, the Rev. Wm. Acworth, attended at my inquiry and stated the educational wants of the poorer classes in his parish and the efforts which have been made by benevolent persons and by Government assistance to supply them, and urged his claims on the trustees as the owners of large real estate in his district dedicated, moreover, to charitable purposes.

I stated to the Company and its officers, in the presence of the incumbent, the disposition of the Board to afford its sanction and aid to the trustees of charities in the performance of the duties admitted to attach to real estate with due liberality, and I assured them that they might rely on the support of the Board in any application of a proper portion of the income of the charity estate to the local objects referred to.

HOLLIGRAVE'S CHARITY.

Mrs. Margaret Holligrave, by indenture of the 12th November 1595, granted to the Clothworkers' Company all her messuages, &c. in East Smithfield, upon trust, to pay to the poor of St. Botolph's, Aldgate, 20s. a year; to the poor of St. Mary, Aldermary, 20s. a year; to the prisons of Newgate, Ludgate, and the two compters, 5s. a year each, and the residue of the rents to the said Company to be distributed as follows: to the master and wardens for their pains, 20s. yearly; and the residue for the poorer sort of clothworkers, and no others, at Christmas and Midsummer.

The whole of the premises comprised in this devise were sold under an Act of 6 Geo. 4. to the St. Katherine's Dock Company for 11,150*l.*, laid out in the purchase of 12,773*l.* 12s. 2d. Consols. In 1839 premises in Moorgate Street, paying ground rents of the annual value of 363*l.* 3s. 9d. were purchased, the stock sold for such purpose being 12,649*l.* 15s. 9d., leaving 123*l.* 16s. 5d. stock still in the Court of Chancery.

Under this purchase the Company are proprietors of the following property in fee, subject to the leases subsisting thereon:—

	£	s.	d.

The above-mentioned sum of 123*l.* 16s. 5d. Consols was sold in 1876 and re-invested, under an order of

HUSSEY'S CHARITY.

Thomas Hussey, by indentures of the 4th April 1622 and the 20th March 1623, gave to the Company 120*l.* to pay on the eve of St. Thomas, to 20 poor men of the Company 6s. a piece; to 20 poor women 12d.; and to the clerk, two beadles, butler, and porter 12d. a piece. This bequest is apportioned to the estate purchased as stated in my report of Heath's almshouses. The sum of 7*l.* 5s. 5d. attributed from the rents to this charity, and the distribution of this and other similar funds and charities is mentioned under Watson's Gift.

HYNDE'S CHARITY.

Augustin Hynde, by his will of the 23rd June 1556, gave to the said Company 100*l.*, upon condition to deliver the same to four young men of the Company, to have the occupying thereof for three years, to each of them 25*l.*, taking good securities for the same, and so from three years to three years for ever, the said 100*l.* to be delivered by the master and wardens and 12 of the assistants to four young men of the said Company to have the occupying thereof for three years.

The will was proved on the 16th August 1556, and the 100*l.* was paid to the Company.

This is one of the charities included in the loan funds, now administered according to the report of the Court of Chancery of the 21st July 1840 referred to under Heydon's Charity.

It forms part of the moneys comprised in the schedule to that report.

IVERIE'S CHARITY.

Alexander Iverie, by his will of the 25th December 1588 (31 Elizabeth), bequeathed to the Company of Clothworkers the sum of 100*l.* to be paid them by his executors, which money he willed might be employed towards the relief and better maintenance of the poor people of the said Company and that such small profits as they should make for the use of the said 100*l.*, might for ever thereafter be employed towards the relief of the poor people free of the said Company.

This is one of the charities included in the loan fund now administered according to the report of the Court of Chancery referred to in Heydon's case. It forms a part of the money comprised in the schedule to that report. The Company charge themselves with an interest of 3*l.* a year, which they distribute to the poor of the Company, in the same manner as the other funds described under Rogers' Gift.

COUNTESS OF KENT'S ALMSHOUSES.

The Right Honourable Margaret, Countess of Kent, by an indenture of 14th July 1538, reciting that she was seised in fee of four tenements at Queenhithe, and of one tenement in Fenchurch Street, and that she and the Clothworkers' Company were possessed of a lease of a garden ground in Whitefriars, with an almshouse built by the said countess for a term of 99 years, the said countess granted the residue of her part of the said lease to the said Company, and covenanted that she had by will devised the said five tenements to the Company, for which gift and for 350*l.* paid by the said countess to the Company, they covenanted to pay 18*l.* a year for ever for seven poor almswomen resident in the said almshouses.

And by her will of the 3rd December 1540, the said countess devised all her lands and tenements in London to the said Company, to the intent that seven poor women should be maintained continually by the said Company out of the rents of the property in Fenchurch Street and Queenhithe.

The Company take under the deed and by the will of the Countess of Kent property in Whitefriars and Fishmonger's Alley, Fenchurch Street. The houses in Queenhithe appear to have been sold by the Company in 1548 for the sum of 115*l.* 10s.

The Whitefriars estate of the Company consists of property derived from the countess, and also of the property purchased in 1654 of Daniel Potter at the north of the almshouse for 330*l.*; on these premises a building lease was afterwards granted.

the Court of Chancery, in freehold ground rents at West Hackney, producing 4*l.* 10s. 2d. per annum.

The whole property of the Company in Whitefriars at present is,—

	£	s.	d.
(1.) Part of Powell's Glassworks, let on lease at a rent of - - -	130	0	0
(2.) No. 18, Temple Street - - -	42	0	0
(3.) No. 17, Temple Street - - -	70	0	0
(4.) Nos. 1 to 5, St. Andrew's Court, Whitefriars - - -
	£242	0	0

It does not appear what portion of this property belongs to the almshouse and what to the Company. There appears to be no doubt that the only property belonging to the Company originally in Whitefriars was the almshouse, and if the subsequent purchase of the Company cannot be defined, it will be difficult for them, I apprehend, to assert their exclusive claim to any part of the property as against the charity.

By an order of the Board of this date the trustees were authorised to grant a lease of the "White Swan" public-house (which includes the site of Nos. 17 and 18, Temple Street) for 80 years, from Christmas 1880, at the annual rent of 250*l.*

† WILLIAM LAMBE'S CLOTHING CHARITY.

This charity is now governed by an Act of Parliament known as William Lambe's Chapel and Estate Act, 1872.

A copy of the Act is annexed.

CHAPTER CLIV.

A.D. 1872.

AN ACT to provide for the building and endowment by the Clothworkers' Company of a new Church in lieu of Lambe's Chapel, Cripplegate, for the disposal of the Site of such Chapel, and of other property comprised in the Will of William Lambe, citizen and clothworker of London, deceased, and for the variation of certain charitable gifts; and for other purposes. [25th July 1872.]

Indenture, dated 12th
July, 10th
Eliz.

Whereas by an indenture executed in duplicate, and made the twelfth day of July, in the tenth year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, between the master and four wardens of the Guild or Fraternity of the Assumption of Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Art or Mystery of Clothworkers in the city of London on the one part, and the mayor and commonalty and citizens of the said city of London of the other part, it was witnessed as follows; (that is to say,) "That whereas William Lambe of London, gentleman, by writing sufficient in the law intended to declare his last will and testament concerning the disposition of the messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments which then he had set and being in the parish of Saint James in the Wall nigh Cripplegate, of London, Saint Stephen in Coleman Street, of London, and of Saint Olave in Silver

It is probably now impossible to ascertain whether this was taken by the Company under the deed or the will of the countess, or whether it is charged with the 18*l.* a year or is to any extent an absolute devise for the benefit of the charity.

The Company in the year 1770 transferred the almshouses which were originally in Whitefriars to Islington, consisting of eight tenements, built by the Company on land of their own at that place, situated in the Lower Road. These houses were rebuilt nearly on the same spot about five or six years ago, and were increased to 11 in number, with a garden for the whole. On this erection the Company expended 3,359*l.* The almshouses are occupied by 11 freemen's widows or freemen. They are allowed 20*l.* a year each (in the whole, 220*l.*) and coals, medical attendance, wages of gardener, and repairs amounting in the year 1858 to 158*l.* 18*s.* 11*d.*, and 10*l.* per cent. on the rebuildings which amounted to 335*l.* 19*s.* 9*d.*, making a total expenditure in the year 1858 of 714*l.* 18*s.* 8*d.

† LAMBE'S CLOTHING CHARITY.

By an indenture of the 12th July 1568 between the Clothworkers' Company of the one part and the Corporation of London of the other part, reciting that William Lambe intended to bequeath certain premises in the parishes of St. James in the Wall, St. Stephen Coleman, and St. Olave, Silver Street, to the said Company, it was covenanted that the said Company should on the 1st of October, and on the feast days of St. Stephen, the Annunciation of the Virgin, and the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, cause a sermon to be preached in the Church of St. James in the Wall, and that at every sermon four of the livery should be present and 6*s.* 8*d.* paid to the preacher of every sermon, and 13*s.* 4*d.* to the said four liverymen.

"Street, within the city of London, and by the same to give and bequeath the premises to the said master and four wardens of the Guild or Fraternity of the Assumption of Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Art or Mystery of Clothworkers in the city of London, and to their successors for ever: Now for furtherance of the good intent and purposes for which chiefly the said William Lambe intended to make and declare his said last will touching the premises in manner and form aforesaid, it is covenanted, granted, and agreed by and between the parties to these presents, at the special instance of the said William Lambe, in manner and form following; that is to say, the said master and four wardens of the Guild or Fraternity of the Assumption of Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Art or Mystery of Clothworkers in the city of London for them and their successors do covenant and grant to and with the said mayor and commonalty and citizens of the city of London and their successors by these presents, that they, the said master and four wardens of the Guild or Fraternity of the Assumption of Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Art or Mystery of Clothworkers in the city of London and their successors, from the day of the decease of the said William Lambe for evermore shall and will yearly, on the first day of October and on every of the feast days of Saint Stephen, the Annunciation of Saint Mary the Virgin, and of the Nativity of Saint John Baptist, cause some godly learned man to make one sermon within the chapel or church of St. James in the Wall aforesaid, in the forenoon of every of the said days, the first of the said sermons to be made at that day or feast of the day or feasts aforesaid that first shall come after the decease of the said William Lambe, and that at every of the said sermons there shall be present in the chapel or church aforesaid four of the livery of the said Company of Clothworkers, to see such things as by these presents are there appointed to be done duly executed, and that the said master and four wardens of the Guild or Fraternity of the Assumption of Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Art or Mystery of Clothworkers in the city of London and their successors shall pay to the preacher of every such sermon, immediately after the making thereof, six shillings and eightpence of lawful money of England, for his pains taken therein, and on every such day to the said four clothworkers that shall be there present thirteen shillings and fourpence for their pains taken touching the premises; and furthermore that the said master and four wardens of the Guild or Fraternity of the Assumption of Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Art or

That the said Company should give 12 gowns to 12 men at the yearly expense of 6*l.* 9*s.*, and 12 gowns to 12 women at the expense of 5*l.* 11*s.*, and also 12 shirts to 12 men of the value of 1*l.* 10*s.*, and 12 smocks to 12 women at the expense of 1*l.* 4*s.*, and 24 pair of shoes for the said men and women, such distribution to be made on the 1st October in the chapel of St. James aforesaid, amongst 12 poor aged men and 12 women being impotent and lame, such men and women to be present at every of the said four sermons. And it was further covenanted that if the chamberlain, town clerk, and under chamberlain of the said city, or any of them should on the 1st October be present at such sermon to see the premises duly executed, the Company should pay them 6*s.* 8*d.* a piece. And that the said Company should after the decease of the donor find a chaplain

"Mystery of Clothworkers in the city of London and their successors shall and will yearly, after the decease of the said William Lambe, for evermore cause twelve gowns meet for 12 men to be new made of good new frieze, every gown to contain six and a half yards of frieze, (if so be that twelve such gowns may yearly be conveniently bought and made ready to be worn with the yearly expense of six pounds nine shillings of lawful money of England,) or else, in case the said sum of six pounds nine shillings will not suffice thereunto, then shall and will yearly, after the decease of the said William Lambe, for evermore cause twelve gowns to be made for twelve men such as may conveniently be bought and made ready to be worn with the expense of six pounds nine shillings yearly, and furthermore shall and will yearly, after the decease of the said William Lambe, for evermore cause twelve gowns meet for twelve women to be new made of good new frieze, every gown to contain five and a half yards of frieze, (if so be that twelve such gowns may yearly be conveniently bought and made ready to be worn with the expense of five pounds eleven shillings of lawful money of England yearly,) or else, in case the said sum of five pounds eleven shillings will not suffice thereunto, then shall and will yearly, after the decease of the said William Lambe, for evermore cause twelve gowns to be made for twelve women such as may conveniently be bought and made ready to be worn with the said expense of five pounds eleven shillings yearly; and furthermore shall and will yearly, after the decease of the said William Lambe, for evermore cause twelve shirts meet for twelve men to be made of canvas or lookram, every shirt to contain two and a half ells apiece, the price of every ell twelvence of lawful English money, and also twelve smocks meet for twelve women to be made of canvas or lookram, every smock to contain two ells, the price of every ell twelvence, and also shall provide and buy yearly from thenceforth for ever twelve pair of new strong winter shoes meet for twelve men, and twelve pair of strong winter shoes meet for twelve women, and the same gowns, shirts, smocks, and shoes shall yearly, on the first day of October, give and distribute in the chapel or church of Saint James aforesaid to and amongst twelve poor aged men, being impotent or lame, and amongst twelve poor aged women, being impotent or lame, in manner and form following; that is to say, to every such poor man one man's gown, one shirt, and one pair of shoes, and to every such poor woman one woman's gown, one smock, and one pair of shoes, and shall also cause every of the said poor men and women to be present at every of the four sermons aforesaid that shall be made in the year when they shall receive the said gowns and other alms aforesaid; and over this, that if the chamberlain of the city of London for the time being, the town clerk of the said city for the time being, and the under chamberlain of the said city for the time being, or any of them, shall, on the first day of October yearly, or in any year or years after the decease of the said William Lambe, be present in the chapel or church of Saint James aforesaid at the sermon or sermons there to be made, and to see the premises duly and truly executed, that then the said master and four wardens of the Guild or Fraternity of the Assumption of Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Art or Mystery of Clothworkers in the city of London and their successors shall and will yearly, on the first day of October, pay to every of the said chamberlain, town clerk, and under chamberlain so then present the sum of six shillings and eightpence for his pains to be taken in the premises; and lastly, shall, after the decease of the said William Lambe, from time to time for evermore find an honest, virtuous, and sad chaplain that shall in the forenoon of every Wednesday, every Friday, and every Sunday say divine service in the said chapel or church to all persons that will then come to hear or be present at the same, and shall duly and decently keep and preserve the said chapel or church to serve to the intent and purpose aforesaid

"from the day of the decease of the said William Lambe for evermore: Provided always, and it is nevertheless agreed by and between the said parties to these presents, that if it so be that the said William Lambe, upon reasonable request therefore to be made, do not, by his last will and testament hereafter to be made concerning the premises, sufficiently convey and assure the premises, with the appurtenances, to the said master and four wardens of the Guild or Fraternity of the Assumption of Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Art or Mystery of Clothworkers in the city of London or their successors, (all leases for term of forty years or under from the making thereof to be made by the said William Lambe of the premises set and being in the said parish of Saint James or of any part or parts thereof (the said church only excepted), by indenture or indentures, whereupon, as much rent as now is paid for the premises so to be demised shall be reserved, payable during every such lease to the said William Lambe, his heirs and assigns only excepted and foreprized), and then and from thenceforth the covenants, grants, and agreements in these presents contained, on the part of the said master and four wardens of the Guild or Fraternity of the Assumption of Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Art or Mystery of Clothworkers in the city of London or their successors, shall be utterly void and of none effect, anything in these presents contained to the contrary thereof in anywise notwithstanding."

And whereas the said William Lambe (who was a citizen and clothworker of London), by his will dated the eleventh day of October, in the sixteenth year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and which will is expressed to be made according to the advice and device of the counsel learned in the laws of this realm of the master and four wardens of the Guild or Fraternity of the Assumption of Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Art or Mystery of Clothworkers in the city of London, and to be his last will and testament concerning only the disposition of the messuages, lands, and tenements thereafter mentioned in manner and form therein following, after recitals referring to his messuages, lands, tenements, gardens, and other hereditaments, situate in the parish of Saint James in the Wall, and in the parish of Saint Stephen in Coleman Street, and after a recital whereby it appeared that such parcels of the premises as were set and being in the said parish of Saint James were, by an indenture bearing date the seventh day of July, in the ninth year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth, charged with an annuity or yearly rent of six pounds thirteen shillings and fourpence, granted to the master, keepers, or wardens and commonalty of the Mystery or Art of Stationers of the city of London, he the said William Lambe being sole seized of the premises in his demesne as of fee charged with the yearly rentcharge aforesaid, and being a freeman of the city of London of the Mystery of Clothworkers in the said city, did first will that the said annuity or yearly rent of six pounds thirteen shillings and fourpence should be from the day of his decease for ever well and truly paid to the said master, keepers, or wardens and commonalty of the Mystery or Art of the Stationers of the city of London and their successors for ever, according to the purport of the said last-mentioned indenture, to be employed to such uses as were therefore expressed in the said indenture; and furthermore he willed, gave, and bequeathed by that his last will all his messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments whatsoever, with their appurtenances, set, lying, and being in the parishes of Saint James in the Wall nigh Cripplegate, of London, Saint Stephen in Coleman Street, of London, and of Saint Olave's in who should every Wednesday, Friday, and Sunday, say divine service in the said chapel, and should duly preserve the said chapel, with a proviso that if the said donor did not by will convey the said premises to the Company to their proper use and behoof for ever discharged of all incumbrances, the said covenants should be void.

And the said William Lambe, by his will of the 11th October 1574, gave all his messuages, &c. in the above-named parishes (subject to a yearly rent of 6l. 13s. 4d. to the Stationers' Company) to the said Clothworkers' Company for ever to the uses, intents, and purposes of the above-mentioned deed.

Silver Street, within the city of London, and all and singular other the premises with their appurtenances, in as large and ample manner as he the said William Lambe ever had or enjoyed the same premises, or any of them, to the master and four wardens and commonalty of the Guild or Fraternity of the Assumption of Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Art or Mystery of Clothworkers in the city of London, and to their successors for ever, and to their own proper use and behoof for ever, to the several uses, intents, and purposes mentioned, declared, and expressed in a pair of indentures bearing date the twelfth day of July, in the tenth year of the reign of Her then Majesty Queen Elizabeth, made between the master and four wardens of the Guild or Fraternity of the Assumption of Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Art or Mystery of Clothworkers in the city of London on the one part, and the mayor and commonalty and citizens of the said city of London on the other part: Provided always, and his (the said testator's) will and mind was that if it should fortune the corporation of the said Company of Clothworkers to be by any ways or means at any time thereafter seized into the Prince's hands whereby the said Company might not enjoy and have the use of the said lands and tenements to perform the intents and purposes in the said indenture mentioned and expressed, then he willed and his mind was that the rents and yearly profits coming and growing of the said lands and tenements, during all the time that the said Corporation should remain so seized into the Prince's hands, should be paid by the occupiers or tenants of the said lands and tenements to the president and fellows, by what name or title soever they be incorporated or called, of the college then lately erected and founded by Sir Thomas White, knight, and alderman of the city of London, to the use of the poor scholars of the same college so long as the said Corporation should remain seized and holden in the Queen's Majesty's hands, her heirs and successors, and no longer, and after and immediately the said Queen's Majesty, her heirs or successors, should ouste her or their hands of the said seizure of the said Corporation, and restore the same again to the said Company of Clothworkers, that then he (the said testator) willed and his mind was that the said lands and tenements, with all and singular their appurtenances, should be and remain to the said master and four wardens and commonalty of the Guild or Fraternity of the Assumption of Blessed Mary the Virgin of the Art or Mystery of Clothworkers in the city of London aforesaid, and to their successors for ever, and to their own proper use and behoof for ever, to the said several uses and intents in the said indenture mentioned and declared: And further he willed and his mind was that if it should fortune at any time thereafter that the master and wardens of the said Company of Clothworkers for the time being to be remiss and negligent in doing, performing, and distributing such sums of money and other devises and bequests before by him devised and appointed, mentioned, and expressed in the said indentures, so that the said devises or any of them be left undone and not paid and given to the poor in form aforesaid, by the space of one whole year, then he, the said testator, willed that all such gifts and devises whatsoever by him before made and devised to the said master, wardens, and commonalty of Clothworkers should be utterly void, frustrated, and of none effect to all intents and purposes; and then he willed, gave, and devised all the said lands and tenements, with all and singular their appurtenances, to the president and fellows of Saint John's College of Oxford, to the use of the poor scholars of the said college for ever:

And whereas under and by virtue of the said indenture and will of the said William Lambe, and of a license from Queen Elizabeth dated the sixth day of November one thousand five hundred and eighty-seven, the messuages and hereditaments therein mentioned, including the said chapel or church of Saint James and the new chapel built in place thereof as herein-after mentioned, have ever since the death of the said William Lambe, (except only as to a house forming part of the said premises in the parish of Saint Stephen, Coleman Street, and which was in the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four taken by the corporation of the city of London, as herein-after mentioned,) been held by the said master, wardens, and commonalty of freemen of the Art and Mystery of Clothworkers of the city of London, herein-after called "the Clothworkers' Company:"

And whereas in or about the years one thousand eight hundred and twenty-four, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-five, and one thousand eight hundred and twenty-six the old chapel of Saint James having fallen into decay was pulled down and a new chapel was erected by the said Clothworkers' Company, which chapel is situate in Wood Street Square, formerly Lambe's Court, adjoining to Monkwell Street near Cripplegate in the city of London, and is herein-after called "Lambe's Chapel," and the sermons and services in the said indenture mentioned have been from time to time preached and performed in the said chapel by such chaplain or other minister who has been and is appointed and paid by the Clothworkers' Company, and the said Company have from time to time carried into effect the charitable intentions and objects of the said William Lambe:

And whereas in the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-four the corporation of the city of London required and took for the purposes of an Act of Parliament passed for improving the approaches to London Bridge one of the houses forming part of the said premises in the parish of Saint Stephen, Coleman Street, and then known as No. 6, Great Bell Alley, and the moneys paid by them in respect thereof, which amounted (together with the profit arising from an interim investment thereof in bank annuities), to the sum of eight hundred and forty-two pounds sixteen shillings and sevenpence, have been as to six hundred and ninety-eight pounds eleven shillings and sixpence, part thereof, in the year one thousand eight hundred and forty-one invested as part of a sum of five thousand seven hundred and fifty pounds in the purchase of four pieces of ground with the four messuages thereon erected, situate in Moorgate Street, in the city of London, which messuages are now five messuages and known as Nos. 48a, 48, 49, 53, 54 in the said street, and one hundred and forty-four pounds five shillings and one penny, the residue thereof, have been invested as part of a sum of three thousand three hundred pounds in the purchase of freehold houses known as No. 43, Mincing Lane, and No. 43, Fenchurch Street, in the city of London, which property so purchased was duly conveyed to and is now vested in the Clothworkers' Company:

And whereas the property given and bequeathed to the Clothworkers' Company by the will of the said William Lambe consists now of the particulars set forth in the schedule hereto, and of certain other hereditaments and premises situate in the parish of Saint Stephen, Coleman Street, aforesaid, and of an undivided part or share of and in the said messuages and houses in Moorgate Street, Mincing Lane, and Fenchurch Street, by reason of the investment therein of the purchase money arising from the sale of No. 6, Great Bell Alley, as lastly herein-before recited:

And whereas by reason of the changes which have taken place in the city of London, there is no longer a resident population in the neighbourhood of Lambe's Chapel capable of receiving the benefits contemplated

The Company consider that notwithstanding there is no gift of the residue, the above payments are all that they are liable to make, inasmuch as it was only upon the condition of making them that the Company entered into the covenant, and it is to be observed, that by an ultimate provision in the will, if the donor did not by will convey the said premises to the Company discharged of all incumbrances that the said covenants should be void.

A tabular statement of the property comprised in this devise is given in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (p. 220). Assuming that the conclusion come to by the Commissioners is the correct one, as upon the above circumstances it probably is, that "Lambe's pensioners owe what they receive beyond the specified sums to the voluntary benevolence of the Company," it does not appear necessary to go into the specific rents and description of the property charged, which are by the said William Lambe, and the intentions of the said William Lambe in regard to the said chapel are at present frustrated, and the expense of keeping up the said chapel and paying a chaplain to perform divine service therein is in fact uselessly incurred:

And whereas, having regard to the spiritual destitution of many of the suburbs of London, it would be of great public advantage, and in accordance as near as may be with the pious and charitable intentions of the said William Lambe, that instead of the said Lambe's Chapel as now existing, a church should be built and endowed in one of such suburbs as aforesaid:

And whereas it has been proposed by the Clothworkers' Company at once to discharge and fulfil the obligations so as aforesaid imposed on them by the said indenture and will of the said William Lambe, by building and endowing in perpetuity a church within the limits of the ancient parish of Saint Mary, Islington, and to endow at Saint John's College, Oxford, a scholarship to be accepted by the said college as an equivalent for all their claim and interest under the said will, and that Lambe's Chapel and the site thereof, and all other the messuages, hereditaments, and property devised by the said will of William Lambe to the Clothworkers' Company, shall be held by the Company discharged from the obligations imposed by the said indenture and will, but subject, nevertheless, as to the messuages and hereditaments in the parish of Saint Olave's in Silver Street, (and which messuages and hereditaments are in the said indenture and will referred to as being situate in the parish of Saint James in the Wall, and in the parish of Saint Olave's in Silver Street, and are mentioned and described in the said schedule hereto,) to the charges and obligations herein-after mentioned:

And whereas the messuages and hereditaments mentioned and described in the said schedule hereto are of ample value to secure the charges and obligations imposed by this Act:

And whereas it is desirable and expedient that the said proposal should be carried into effect, and further that some modification should be made or permitted in the description of articles to be given from time to time in the nature of alms, as provided by the said indenture, but such objects cannot be attained without the aid and authority of Parliament.

May it therefore please Your Majesty that it may be enacted; and be it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same as follows:

1. This Act may be cited for all purposes as "William Lambe's Chapel and Estate Act, 1872."

2. The Clothworkers' Company shall, at their own expense, build upon a site to be provided by them, situate within the limits of the ancient parish of Saint Mary, Islington, and fit up for the performance of divine service according to the rites of the Church of England, a church to be dedicated to the service of Almighty God, by the name of Saint James the Apostle, and to be called "the Church of Saint James, of the Foundation of William Lambe, Citizen and Clothworker of London." The site of such church shall be selected by the Clothworkers' Company, subject to the approval of the bishop of the diocese.

3. The Clothworkers' Company shall also, at their own expense, provide a residence for the minister or incumbent for the time being of the said church, at a distance not exceeding eight hundred and eighty yards therefrom.

4. The church shall contain five hundred sittings at the least, all of which shall be free sittings, subject, nevertheless, to such appropriation of part thereof as herein-after mentioned.

5. The Clothworkers' Company shall expend upon the erection and fitting up of the said church, in addition to providing the site thereof, the sum of four thousand pounds at the least, and the said church shall be built according to such plans, elevations, and specifications as shall be approved by the bishop of the diocese and by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England, for which purpose plans, elevations, and specifications shall be with all convenient speed prepared by the Clothworkers Company and submitted to the said bishop and Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The said church shall be finished and fitted up ready for consecration within two years after the approval of the bishop and the said commissioners to such plans, elevations, and specifications shall have been obtained.

6. The right of patronage and nomination from time to time of a minister or incumbent to the said church, after the same shall have been duly consecrated according to the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England, shall be and the same is hereby vested in perpetuity in the Clothworkers' Company, their successors and assigns, but no sale or disposition of such patronage or nomination for any valuable consideration whatever shall be made until thirty years next after the passing of this Act, unless the entire proceeds be legally secured to the permanent augmentation of the benefice, but every such sale or disposition made before the expiration of the period of thirty years, except as aforesaid, shall be illegal, and every presentation, admission, institution, or induction thereupon shall be void, and the right of patronage shall thereupon for that time lapse to the bishop.

7. The Clothworkers' Company shall, at any and every time when the said church or the fittings thereof shall require to be repaired, maintained, or upheld, upon receiving notice to that effect from the bishop of the diocese for the time being, do or cause to be done in a convenient manner and at a convenient time or times all such works of reparation and maintenance as shall be requisite, and the expense of executing such works shall be a charge, and the same is hereby charged upon the messuages and hereditaments described in the schedule hereto.

8. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners for England shall upon the application of the Clothworkers' Company apply and put in force all or any of the powers and authorities vested in them by the "New Parishes Acts, 1843, 1844, or 1856," (but subject to such consent as is thereby in that behalf required,) for the purpose of constituting a separate district for spiritual purposes to be assigned to the said church, and for the purpose of causing such district to become a new parish, and such church when consecrated shall be the church thereof, and such district or parish may be constituted either before or after the consecration of the same church, and thenceforward the said district or parish (as the case may be) shall be deemed and taken to be a district or parish created under the New Parishes Acts: Provided always, that nothing contained in such last-mentioned Acts, or any of them, shall alter or affect the express provisions herein contained, but such last-mentioned Acts, or any of them, shall only apply if and so far as they shall be applicable consistently with the provisions of this Act.

9. The Clothworkers' Company shall by way of endowment pay to the minister or incumbent of the said church for the time being the annual sum or stipend of three hundred pounds for ever, such annual sum or stipend to be paid on the usual quarter days in each year, commencing from the quarter day immediately preceding his appointment, and to be charged and the same is hereby charged upon the messuages and hereditaments mentioned and described in the said schedule.

10. The minister or incumbent of the said church shall, in addition to or as part of the duties and offices which he shall be legally authorised to perform, duly perform in the said church the services on Wednesday, Friday, and Sunday, by the said indenture directed to be performed in Lambe's Chapel, and the quarterly sermons on the first day of October and the three feast days in every year in the said indenture mentioned shall also be preached in the said church by a minister to be designated and paid from time to time for that

The Company continued to make the distribution to Lambe's pensioners of sums of 4*l.* a year each for several years after the last report, but for many years past the Company have ceased to grant new pensions of 4*l.* a year, the applicants for such smaller pensions not having been considered proper objects, and instead of such smaller pensions, the number of larger pensions of 10*l.* a year was increased, which are limited to persons of either sex of the age of 60 years and upwards. There are only three 4*l.* a year pensioners remaining, and there are now 50 10*l.* a year pensioners, as stated under Rogers' Gift.

By a provision in the will it is declared that if the Company should be negligent in the performance of duty by the Clothworkers' Company: Provided always, that it shall be lawful for the Clothworkers' Company from time to time to appoint for such purpose, instead of the first day of October and the said three feast days respectively, such other days within seven days respectively thereafter as shall coincide with the days appointed by them for the distribution of the articles of clothing next herein-after mentioned and the said quarterly sermons.

11. The charitable gifts directed to be made by the said indenture to poor aged men and women being impotent or lame shall continue to be made and provided by the Clothworkers' Company, but with the following modifications; that is to say, from the date of the assignment of a district or parish to the said church, the objects shall be selected by the Clothworkers' Company out of the inhabitants of such district or parish. The Clothworkers' Company shall have the option of substituting blankets or other articles of warmth and comfort for the articles other than shoes directed to be given by the said indenture, so nevertheless, that the full sum of fourteen pounds fourteen shillings shall be expended annually by the Clothworkers' Company in such substituted articles. The said articles and the said shoes shall on the first day of October in every year, or within seven days thereafter, be distributed in the said church, or in such other place in the district or parish as the Clothworkers' Company shall from time to time for that purpose appoint.

12. The provisions in the said indenture contained as to attendances at divine service, or at the preaching of sermons in the chapel therein mentioned, and all payments thereby directed to be made in respect thereof, shall apply to the new church so to be built as aforesaid, and to the services and sermons to be performed and preached at the said church as hereby provided.

13. For the purpose of providing special accommodation for the poor aged men and women herein-before mentioned, and for such members of the Clothworkers' Company and others as under the provisions of the said indenture are expected to attend the said church, the Clothworkers' Company shall be entitled to select and retain pews or seats therein capable of accommodating fifty persons in the whole, which pews or seats shall be thenceforward appropriated to the Clothworkers' Company or their nominees for ever.

14. The Clothworkers' Company shall pay to the said president and scholars of Saint John the Baptist College in the University of Oxford the clear net annual sum of eighty pounds for ever, the same to be paid on the usual quarter days in each year (free from all deductions, except only in respect of income tax), the first quarterly payment thereof to be payable on Christmas-day one thousand eight hundred and seventy-two, and the said annual sum to be charged and the same is hereby charged on the messuages and hereditaments described in the schedule to this Act next after the annual sum or stipend of three hundred pounds for the minister or incumbent of the said church, and the other obligations by this Act charged thereon; and the said annual sum of eighty pounds shall be held by the said college as the endowment of an open scholarship in the said college to be called "William Lambe's Scholarship," and to be obtained and held in such manner and for such time and generally on such terms as may from time to time be made by the governing body of the said college at any stated general meeting thereof; and the obligation by this present section imposed upon the Clothworkers' Company shall be deemed and taken to be in full release and satisfaction of and for all estate, right, title, interest, or possibility present or future which the said president and scholars or the said college have or has, or might but for this Act at any time hereafter have, in, to, or out of the messuages, hereditaments, and property devised by the said will of the said William Lambe to the Clothworkers' Company.

15. The obligations herein-before by this Act imposed upon the Clothworkers' Company shall be deemed and taken to be an equivalent for, and in substitution for and in discharge of, the obligations and duties imposed on them by the said indenture and the will of the said William Lambe, and the Clothworkers' Company shall be and they are hereby discharged of and from all such last-mentioned obligations and duties.

16. All the messuages and hereditaments devised by the said will of the said William Lambe to the Clothworkers' Company are hereby expressly exonerated and discharged from every obligation, trust, or condition imposed or declared by the said indenture of the 12th July, tenth Elizabeth, or by the said will.

17. The Clothworkers' Company shall forthwith pull down Lambe's Chapel, with all outbuildings and appurtenances thereof, and sell or dispose of for their own purposes the materials, furniture, and fittings thereof. The site of the said Lambe's Chapel, and also of the former church or chapel of Saint James in the Wall, respectively, and of all outbuildings and appurtenances thereof respectively, shall henceforth, as from the passing of this Act, be divested and discharged of and from all sacred or ecclesiastical uses, purposes, and character, so that the same may be used for any secular purpose whatsoever, and the Clothworkers' Company shall, within two years from the passing of this Act, erect upon the site of Lambe's Chapel, or upon other land comprised in the said schedule, substantial buildings of the value of two thousand five hundred pounds at the least, in addition to any moneys which have been already expended thereon by the Company or their lessees.

18. The Clothworkers' Company shall hold the messuages and hereditaments mentioned in the said schedule, and all buildings now or hereafter to be erected on the said hereditaments or on any part thereof, upon trust to keep the same in repair, and to apply the rents and profits thereof, so far as may be necessary, in discharge of the obligations hereby imposed, and as to the residue or surplus thereof for their own proper use and benefit.

19. The messuages and hereditaments devised to the Clothworkers' Company by the will of the said William Lambe (other than those comprised in the said schedule) shall be and the same are hereby declared to be the property of the Clothworkers' Company absolutely for their own use and benefit, as if the same had been so devised to them by the said will.

20. If it shall appear that any bodies are interred in or under the site of the said chapel or its outbuildings or appurtenances, such bodies shall be properly removed by and at the cost of the Clothworkers' Company into such duly consecrated burial ground or cemetery as they shall select for that purpose.

21. Provided always that nothing herein contained shall prejudice or affect the annuity or yearly rent of six pounds thirteen shillings and fourpence granted to the master, keepers, or wardens and commonalty of the Mystery or Art of Stationers recited or referred to in the will of the said William Lambe.

The SCHEDULE before referred to.

The chapel, which was the ancient chapel of St. James in the Wall in Lambe's Chapel Court and Monkwell Street, was entirely taken down in 1825 and rebuilt with 10 almshouses adjoining and the chapel keeper's house (see Heath's almshouses), at an expense to the Company of 6,600l. The annual expense of repairs, rates, taxes, coals, insurance, &c. amount to about 60l. a year.

* LAMBE'S ALMSHOUSES, at SUTTON VALENCE, KENT.

William Lambe, by an indenture of the 6th April, 22nd Elizabeth, between himself of the one part and the said Company of the other part, reciting that he had granted to the Company a messuage and land in Abbey Warley, Essex, a tilekiln, house, and land in Upminster, Essex; and reciting that he had erected six almshouses in Sutton-Valence for 12 poor almspeople; it was agreed that out of the profits of the said lands there should be yearly paid to the said Company 4l. for an annual visitation to the free school. And the Company covenanted to pay 4l. a year towards the maintenance of the people in the almshouses; and further reciting that William Lambe had by indenture of the 20th August, 18th Elizabeth, granted to the corporation of London, governors of Christ's Hospital, a term of 500 years in a tenement, &c. in Mile End, Stepney, to the intent that the said governors should yearly pay to the said Company 6l. towards the maintenance of the poor people in the almshouses. Nothing has been received from this last named gift, which appears to have been the subject of a suit in the 42nd year of Elizabeth. (Reports, p. 398, vol. 30.)

There are now six almshouses at Sutton-Valence adjoining the school premises. They are six continuous tenements with two rooms and a wash-house in each. They are occupied by inhabitants of Sutton-Valence, aged persons, men and women and married persons. They are selected by the court out of names recommended by the master of the school, the rector of the parish or his curate, and the churchwardens.

The Company pay 10l. a year to the inmate nominated in each house, as well as occasional gifts of 10s. each on their visitation and a ton of coals to each house.

Two widows and four men are now in the almshouses. The sum has been increased at different times, and since they have received 10l. a year half relief is allowed by the parish, viz., 1s. 3d. to 1s. 6d. a week.

Thomas Loveridge therein described of the other part, been agreed to be demised to the said Thomas Loveridge, his executors, administrators, and assigns, for the term of eighty years from the twenty-ninth day of September one thousand eight hundred and seventy.

All that other piece of ground (adjoining to and partly bounded by the said last-mentioned piece of ground), and upon which Lambe's Chapel now stands, together with the said chapel, vestry room, and appurtenances thereto belonging.

And also the vacant space, square, or court formerly known as Lambe's Court, but now known or distinguished as Wood Street Square, Monkwell Street, aforesaid.

LAWS and REGULATIONS of the FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL at Sutton Valence, in the county of Kent, founded by WILLIAM LAMBE, Esquire, and extended by the voluntary bounty of the Worshipful Company of Clothworkers.

INTRODUCTORY ADDRESS to the COURT OF ASSISTANTS of the CLOTHWORKERS' COMPANY.

GENTLEMEN, 1st November 1841.

HAVING fulfilled the duty undertaken by us, of preparing a set of laws and regulations for the government of the Company's school at Sutton Valence, which laws and regulations have duly obtained your sanction, we have only to express our hope that they may prove useful and beneficial, and tend to raise and dignify the character of an institution, enlarged by you at a very considerable charge, derived from your own funds, and from which it is hoped that the Company, in their corporate character, will derive lasting credit hereafter.

The instances are but few, in the history of the great civic companies, of an act so truly beneficent and disinterested as this, but we hope that the example, which you have herein given, will not be without its effect upon them, for the motives are undoubtedly of great weight, which should induce them to devote a portion of the wealth, derived from their ancestors, to the advancement of the sacred cause of Education, among the rising generation of the present day.

This is one of the results which eminent statesmen have had in view when the measure of a general investigation into the trusts and charities of the Livery Companies of London received the sanction of the Legislature; by anticipating that object, they will, therefore, at once create the strongest of claims, on their own behalf, to a lasting place among the great institutions of the country, and render a service to the rising generation, the importance of which our daily experience tends to elevate and exalt to the highest degree.

It is with pride and satisfaction we shall ever reflect on the part you have permitted us to take in the various measures for the improvement of the school at Sutton Valence.

PREFACE.

A brief account of the early history and progress of Sutton Valence School, would appear to be a proper appendage to this publication.

It was founded in 1576, by William Lambe, Esq., a member of this Company, at whose death it devolved permanently upon the court as a trust, but so limited were the notions of the founder, in making a provision for its future execution, that besides assigning the house and garden in which the school was then conducted in perpetuity to the Company, the only endowment for its support was a rentcharge of 30l. a year, and even that was so irregularly collected, owing to the unsettled state of the country in the following century, that it was finally disposed of by the Company for somewhat less than 12 years' purchase.

Our predecessors did not, on that account, neglect the trust which they had undertaken. Indeed, there is no period of our history in which it cannot clearly be shown, that the Company expended much more upon the school than the original endowment, and they have incurred a very large outlay at various periods, in rebuilding and repairing the school-house. The court on duplicate plans, signed by the Right Honourable Baron Redesdale, the Chairman of Committees of the House of Lords, one of such plans being deposited in the office of the clerk of the Parliaments, and the other of such plans being in the possession of the Clothworkers' Company.

did, moreover, bestow a large share of their attention on the management of the school at all times, and a reference to the rules and orders will show that frequent reports of Committees were made, and that more space, perhaps, in those proceedings, is occupied by that subject, than by any other. But it must at the same time be admitted, that long periods of total neglect often succeeded to the energy thus displayed, and that the school never acquired much distinction, or was of any decided benefit to the district in which it was placed.

A new era in the Company's affairs began in the year 1837. The court had consented to the formation of various committees for the management of the general business, and the extension of the trusts and charities, and it was soon determined that the school at Sutton Valence should partake of the benefits of the improved system. The duty of reconstructing that seminary was confided to the committee of record and trusts, who applied themselves to it with so much assiduity, that by the autumn of 1838, the old school had been broken up, and all arrangements duly planned for re-opening it upon the present plan, which took place in January 1839, when a great number of the members of the court repaired to Sutton Valence to give due importance to that ceremony. Divine service was performed on the occasion in the church of Sutton Valence, and a sermon was preached by the Company's Chaplain, in which a pledge was given on their part, that they would carry out this undertaking by all the means in their power.

An examination of the scholars took place in June of the same year, which was attended by the master of the Company, the chairman of the committee of record and trusts, and several other members of the court, but was conducted privately, as in the short time since the school had been opened, it was not to be expected that any great proficiency could have been made.

The first public examination took place in June 1840, and afforded very gratifying proofs of the ability of the master, and of the industry and talent of his pupils. At the examination, however, in June 1841, the whole had assumed a greatly improved character, Edward Russell James Howe, one of the pupils, presented an essay on the effects of the Norman Conquest, so well written and so carefully reasoned, as to create the surprise of the examiner, Professor Hall, of King's College. It of course received the prize, as well as the high encomiums of all the company present. An order of the court was passed, on the report of the visitors, that Howe's essay should be printed; and it was further ordered, that in consideration of his extraordinary merit, and in the event of his becoming resident at one of the universities, he should receive 50*l.* annually from the Clothworkers' Company, during three years, to enable him to complete his education.

With such encouragement the school cannot fail to produce great and learned men, and to reflect great honour on those by whom it is supported.

LAWS AND REGULATIONS of SUTTON VALENCE SCHOOL as revised and adopted by court 1st November, 1848.

The Scholars.

1. Shall be of two classes.

First.—The sons of freemen of the Clothworkers' Company; and the sons of freewomen, born after the admission of their mother to the freedom, and after the death of their father; preference being given to those whose parents have filled a respectable rank, but who have been rendered unable by declining circumstances to give their children a good education.

Second.—The sons of inhabitants of Sutton Valence and its vicinity, (preference being given to those residing in that and the adjoining villages of Langley, Leeds, Chart, East Sutton, and Lenham, but the benefit, may extend, by the permission of the Company, to every part of Kent.

2. The Clothworkers' boys, six in number, to be boarded and educated at the expense of the Company.

3. No boy to be admitted under the age of nine years, nor continue in the school after the age of 16 years, unless by the special permission of the Company.

4. No boy to be admitted who has not previously received the first rudiments of education. A certificate of good health must be given, and an examination take place by a medical man, if required, previous to admission.

5. Sons of clothworkers who may be candidates, shall have their names inserted in a book to be kept for that purpose, and will then be furnished with the subjects they will be required to know; the candidates shall be examined at the hall in Mincing Lane, by the master of the school, in the presence of the master of the Company, and those who can read without hesitation, give a satisfactory answer to the leading questions in the Bible, to simple questions in geography and English history, work the first four rules in simple arithmetic, write a legible hand, and have a tolerable knowledge of the Church catechism, shall be considered as eligible for election on any vacancy occurring, when the court shall make its own selection from such names.

6. The Kent boys to receive education free of all expense, but not to be boarded at the cost of the Company; and both classes of scholars in addition to English, French, German, arithmetic, and writing, shall pursue some branch of classical or mathematical learning, and other subjects, qualifying the scholar, if required, for admission to either of the universities.

7. Application for the admission of the Kent boys to be in writing, addressed to the master of the school, accompanied by the recommendation of two respectable housekeepers, which applications are to be submitted for the approval of the court.

8. All boys not present at the opening of the school after the vacations, without a legitimate excuse, to be punished as the master may think fit; and if absent more than six days, to be subject to expulsion, at the discretion of the master and the trustees of the school.

9. The Clothworkers' boys, or any of the Kent boys, that may board with the master shall attend Divine service on the Sabbath at Sutton Valence parish church, or at any other church in the neighbourhood, attended by a master.

10. The name of each scholar, and in the case of a Kent boy the names of the persons by whom he was recommended, together with the date of his admission and of final departure from the school, shall be registered in a book kept for that purpose by the master, or by his usher under his direction, with a column for remarks by those members of the Company who may occasionally visit the school.

11. Every scholar shall wear a cap similar to that worn by boys on the foundation of other free grammar schools, to be provided annually at the expense of the Company; but in the event of its being lost or wilfully injured or damaged, his parents shall be at the expense of substituting another.

12. The school hours shall be as follows: from Lady Day to Michaelmas, in the morning from 7 to 8, and from half-past 9 till half-past 12; and from half-past 2 to half-past 4 in the afternoon. From Michaelmas to Lady Day: from 9 to 12 in the morning, and from 2 to 4 in the afternoon.

13. The holidays shall commence on the 30th June, and continue for six weeks; and on the 23rd December, and continue for five weeks; and 10 days at Easter from Maunday-Thursdays, but it shall not be compulsory for the boys to leave school at the latter period.

14. An examination of the scholars shall take place previously to the Midsummer holidays every year by an examiner, to be approved by the Committee of Record and Trusts, and prizes shall be distributed to the most deserving by the master of the Company for the time being, accompanied by two of the wardens and the chairman of that committee; and the names of the scholars obtaining such prizes shall be recorded on boards to be affixed in the schoolroom for that purpose.

15. A copy of these laws and regulations shall be given to the parents immediately after election.

The Master.

1. He shall be a member of the Church of England, a graduate of one of the Universities of Oxford or Cambridge, in priest's orders, and not more than 35 years of age at the time of election.

2. He shall be allowed a salary of 120*l.* annually, and five tons of coals for the use of the schoolroom and establishment, and also occupy the school-house and garden adjoining, free of all rent and taxes.

3. He shall be allowed 30*l.* annually for the board, and all charges connected therewith of each of the six Clothworkers' boys, the Company reserving to themselves a discretionary power of increasing the number to 12 on the same terms.

4. He shall have the entire superintendence and government of the school.

5. He shall appoint, subject to the approbation of the Company, an usher or assistant master, for whom he shall be allowed 80*l.* annually.* In the event of the introduction of other masters into the school, similar allowances to be made, at the discretion of the Company as to their amount.

6. He shall appoint the books to be read in the several classes; and personally instruct the scholars, more especially the higher classes, in Latin and Greek.

7. He shall furnish to the Company at Midsummer and Christmas a report of the number of scholars during the preceding half year, distinguishing the classes, and setting forth the subjects taught in each, with such other information as he may consider expedient to communicate.

8. He shall read, or cause to be read, prayers twice a day in the school.

9. The religious instruction of the pupils shall be strictly in conformity with the doctrines and articles of the Established Church.

10. He shall not take upon himself any cure or other employment, without the previous consent of the Company.

11. He shall make the system of education the same for the foundation scholars as for those of the Clothworkers' Company. No distinction being made in the treatment of any of the boys.

12. He shall keep a register for the inspection of the members of the court, to contain a statement of the punishments inflicted from time to time, and for what cause they were inflicted.

13. He shall not inflict, unless for trivial faults, any personal chastisement at the time when the faults are committed, but carry them into effect when necessary to be inflicted on the following morning, immediately after prayers.

14. He shall take especial care that during the hours of play the boys shall not be allowed to ramble about the country, but he shall know where they are, that they may always feel under his control and observation whether present or not.

15. He shall give a bond to the Company engaging to resign his office when called upon to do so by them.

The Matron.

A house is rented in the village by the Company for boarding and lodging the day scholars on the foundation to which a matron has been appointed.

Visitors.

Besides the master and wardens of the Company who are visitors by virtue of office, the school shall be under the general superintendence of the Committee of Record and Trusts.

Exhibitions.

An exhibition of 20*l.* a year, applicable either to Oxford or Cambridge, has been specially created by the court for scholars on the foundation, on their becoming resident at either of those universities, but only to be bestowed on the recommendation and approbation of the master, in concurrence with the court.†

Two exhibitions of 10*l.* a year each, payable by St. John's College, Cambridge, to scholars of Sutton Valence School upon their entering the university, were founded by Mr. Francis Robins in the year 1721.

THE NATIONAL SCHOOL OF SUTTON VALENCE.

The Company in November 1838 gave 50*l.* towards building the national school in the village, and 20*l.* subsequently towards erecting a house for the master and mistress, they have also since 1839 subscribed 24*l.* annually, in consideration whereof 24 boys are educated free of expense, and called "the Clothworkers' boys."

At the annual visit to Sutton Valence for the examination of the boys of the Clothworkers' school, a gratuity is given towards providing a dinner for the children of the national school.

THE FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL AT SUTTON VALENCE, KENT.

By letters patent of the 9th February, 18th Elizabeth (1576), Her Majesty, at the instance of William Lambe, ordained that there should be one grammar school at Sutton Valence to be called "The Free Grammar School of William Lambe" for the education of boys and youths in grammar for all time to come; and that after the death of the said William Lambe, the Clothworkers' Company should be the governors of the said school, and they were incorporated as such governors.

And by a deed of the 10th February following, 30*l.* a year was made payable out of certain messuages and lands in Kent to the said Company for the maintenance of the said school, 20*l.* thereof for the schoolmaster, and 10*l.* for the usher.

And John Mapliden by his will dated the 20th June 1713, gave a rentcharge of 5*l.* a year issuing out of property in the parish of Ulcombe for the usher of the said school; and Francis Robins by his will of the 7th July 1720 gave 600*l.* to St. John's College, Cambridge, to found two exhibitions of 10*l.* a year a piece, to be paid to two poor deserving lads of the name or kindred of Robins or Sabb, born in Kent; and for want of such to two poor and apt lads born in Chart, Sutton, Leeds, Langley, or Lenham, and educated at Sutton school. As to this latter part of the endowment there was a boy sent from the school to Cambridge in 1854 and who remained there till 1858; and there is at the present time a boy in the school who is ready for Cambridge.

The founder, William Lambe, also charged his estates in Essex (which now belong to the Company) with 4*l.* to the master and four wardens for a visitation of the Sutton Valence school, which money is carried to the credit of the school.

In an account of the school, printed by authority of the Company in 1848 and which I append, it is stated that "besides assigning the houses and gardens in which the school then was conducted in perpetuity to the Company, the only endowment for its support was a rentcharge of 30*l.* a year, and even that was so irregularly collected, owing to the unsettled state of the country in the following century, that it was finally disposed of by the Company for somewhat less than 12 years' purchase."

In Stowe's Chronicle (edition of 1596, p. 349) it is said that "William Lambe erected a free school and six almshouses at Sutton Valence, where he was born, and appointed for the master 20*l.* and the usher 10*l.* yearly for ever, and to the six almshouses 10*l.* a year with an orchard and garden."

The records of the Company show that in 1594 "a convenient lodging or chamber was ordered to be made for the master over the schoolhouse."

It is not certainly ascertained whether the buildings at present existing stand on the property of the charity or on land which has been purchased by the Company. The schoolhouse was built about 1840 at an expense of 800*l.* It communicates with the master's house by a covered way and has dormitories over it. It was originally built for a dining room, the old schoolroom then remaining but which has since been pulled down.

It appeared at the last inquiry, that from 1760 to 1818 the sum of 2,220*l.* 4*s.* 9*d.* was expended in repairs of the school, dwelling and almshouses; and very large sums have since been expended on the same objects. The premises consist of the schoolmaster's house and a schoolroom detached, and these with a garden and yard and the almshouses and small gardens stand upon somewhat more than an acre of ground.

The rentcharge of 30*l.* was, by a deed of the 10th February 1605, sold for 360*l.* This money is stated not to have been re-invested and to form part of the capital funds of the Company. There is no record at least of the re-investment of the 360*l.*, nor is there any record of the manner in which it was disposed of. There is no evidence that it has been kept in money or in any manner ear-marked. Lands or real estate have been purchased by the Company subsequently to the sale of the rentcharge from time to time; and the Company claims to be entitled to say that such purchases were made exclusively with their own money and not with the money of this charity.

The gift of John Mapliden of 5*l.* a year was charged on property in Ulcombe. Of this 50*s.* a year was paid in respect of a small farm in Ulcombe occupied by a man of the name of Bates. The farm has been recently sold, having been purchased by a gentleman named Whittich of Tenterden. The other 50*s.* is paid to Mr. Milligan (the master not to the usher) from a house in the village of Sutton Valence, occupied by William Higgins, formerly belonging to William Cotton Shirley and now to Sir Edward Filmer. It is supposed to be transferred in exchange for an estate called Buckhurst.

* George Mapliden, of Sutton Valence, by will, dated 20th June 1713, gave 5*l.* annually in augmentation of the usher's ancient salary, chargeable upon estates, in the parish of Ulcomb, and now paid by Sir Edmund Filmer, Bt, and Mr. Shirley.

† Besides this, the Company may be induced to grant additional assistance at the universities to those scholars who may in any remarkable manner distinguish themselves.

The annual expenditure of the Company on the school for several years past is exhibited in the following tabular statement :—

The master's house and premises over the school afford accommodation for about 12 or 13 boarders, besides the two assistant masters. It appears that in 1818 the then master had 23 boarders and had accommodation for 30; and since that time the old school-room was taken down.

The Company considers that at the present time 24 boys are admissible on the Kent foundation, including the parishes of Sutton Valence, East Sutton, Chard, Leeds, and Langley. This was adopted under the ordinances of November 1786. Each boy is admitted on the certificate of the master that he has received the first rudiments of education, and a certificate of good health must be given, and an examination take place by a medical man if required previously to admission.

The present master is the Rev. Henry Mawson Milligan, who was appointed in 1848. About the year 1837 or 1838, the Company began to nominate six boys, the sons of freemen, as boarders, for each of whom the Company at first paid 30*l.* a year, and subsequently 40*l.* a year. There are at the present time six Clothworkers' sons and 15 day boys on the Kent foundation, and one day boy not on the foundation. The master also has four private pupils in the house: he was not at the time of his appointment allowed to take such boarders, but he has since been permitted to do so.

The present master's salary is 180*l.* a year, and the usher is appointed by the master at a salary of 80*l.* a year. The Company subscribe 24*l.* annually to the Sutton Valence national school for boys and girls, which is supported by voluntary subscriptions and the payments of the children. There is also a British and Foreign school in the parish.

The master of this school has furnished me with an account of his income and expenditure (Appendix A), which does not appear in any respect exaggerated, for the purpose of showing that the receipts barely meet the expenditure and allow but very little for the restoration of furniture, wear and tear, &c. It appears that if the school is to be continued in its present form that a large sum of money must be expended by the Company in repair or rebuilding, not less than 2,000*l.* and upwards. The Company are under no recognised obligation to make the expenditure nor to sustain the school at any expenditure beyond the income with which it may be chargeable in respect of the 360*l.*

It becomes an important question in what way the duties of the Company and the educational claims of the locality and the public can be reconciled.

The present measure of usefulness of the institution appears to be small; whether the changes in local circumstances and in the increase of the opportunities of education generally are such as to impede or advance the condition of the school are matters on which I cannot form any opinion. I append to the report a copy of an address, signed by many respectable inhabitants of the district, who conclude that a school of the highest class would flourish in Sutton Valence, but at the same time appear to think that it requires considerable support from the Company, and that it should afford a commercial education. I do not see that any public object is gained by the application of large funds to sustain a grammar or middle-class school where the upper or middle classes would do nothing to support it without that expenditure. I think if the Company were to appoint a master and permit him to have the use of the school-house and premises free of rent and taxes, the school, if really necessary to the inhabitants, should be a self-sustaining establishment. The present master is desirous of resigning his appointment, and it may be more useful that his successor should be a certificated master, able to give a good commercial education and depending on his own exertions for his success.*

THE SUTTON VALENCE GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

The undersigned, being the parish officers of the several parishes of Sutton Valence, East Sutton, Chart Sutton, Leeds, and Langley, beg leave to submit the following observations for the consideration of the Worshipful Company of Clothworkers, trustees of the above school.

That it is within the knowledge of some of those whose names are hereunto attached that previous to the year 1838, the school, on the whole, was very well attended, both by pupils resident in the neighbourhood as well as by boarders from other parts of the county.

That subsequent to the year 1838, when a system of education of a higher class was introduced into the school until a year or two previous to the death of the Rev. Mr. Goodchild, and also during the first few years of the present master's engagement, the school appeared to go on very satisfactorily; but that the last few years it has gradually declined, and from the small number of pupils now attending it is evident that, as now conducted, the school has become of very little use to the neighbourhood.

That the undersigned can conscientiously bear witness to the great liberality shown by the Clothworkers' Company in appropriating considerable sums annually from their own funds for the purposes of the school, and they highly appreciate the views expressed by the Company in 1838 and in 1848, with the object of improving the character and value of the establishment.

That it is the opinion of the undersigned that the success of all schools of that high order contemplated by the Company can only be secured by superior talents on the part of the head master, who should be a man who has distinguished himself at one of the universities in such a manner as to be able by his own abilities and judgment to command the respect and attention of the public, and also to merit the continued support and good opinion of those who may have placed pupils under his charge.

That the undersigned feel it to be their duty to state that in their opinion the present master of the school is not well adapted to fill the office which he now holds, and in respectfully submitting that opinion for the consideration of the Company, the undersigned believe that they are only giving expression to the general feeling of the majority of the respectable residents of the parishes which they represent.

That it is the opinion of the undersigned that the healthy character of the locality in which the school is situate, its accessibility from the metropolis, its nearness to the county town, and the support and countenance which it would receive from the Clothworkers' Company are advantages of the greatest importance, and afford such inducements as without doubt would command the services of a first-class man as master of the school. In support of the opinion they entertain, that a first-class school would meet with ample support from the neighbourhood and from the county of Kent generally, they would point out the success which has gradually attended the grammar school at Cranbrook, especially the great increase in the number of pupils at the grammar school at Maidstone, which within these two years, under the management of a new master of known ability and discretion, has risen from a state of decay, and is now a most flourishing school; and in both these cases the only limit to the number of boarders appears to be the want of adequate accommodation.

Many rumours have been circulated as to the future intentions of the trustees of the school, and it is evident that the time has arrived when same alterations must be effected in order to make the establishment of any use, either to the neighbourhood, to the Clothworkers' Company, or to the public generally.

The undersigned venture respectfully to recall the attention of the Company to the address which they issued in 1838, and especially to the memorandum prepared by them and dated the 27th of July 1848, which contain statements and suggestions of a most valuable character, and the undersigned beg leave to express their decided conviction that with masters competent by ability, discretion, and right temperament to carry out the views therein set forth, the school would become one of the first establishments of the country.

The undersigned are of opinion that it is most desirable that the school should be continued on such a footing that all the higher branches of knowledge may be there obtained which would qualify the scholars to avail themselves of the great advantages which are open to cultivated talent in this free country. They would, however, most respectfully submit for the consideration of the Company that it would be very advisable and also advantageous to many of the inhabitants of the neighbourhood that the higher course of education carried on in the school should admit of such a modification in practice that those who might desire their sons to receive a course of education there more especially adapted to the ordinary commercial and other practical business pursuits of life might have the option of availing themselves of the advantages of a good school without their children being required to go through the whole of the extended course of education hitherto contemplated by the Company.

PART II.

'LESE'S CHARITY.

Samuel Lese, by his will dated the 26th April 1634, after reciting that the parishioners of St. Andrew Holborn, had theretofore recovered of him 40s. yearly for the use of the poor of that parish declared that he was willing to confirm the same, and that the said yearly payment was to issue out of the house near Holborn bridge occupied by Mr. Cox. And he gave the house wherein he then lived near Holborn Bridge together with the said house in the occupation of William Cox and a house in Mutton Lane to the Clothworker's Company. And by a codicil dated 30th April 1639, he desired that his lands, &c. should be bestowed towards the charitable uses following: viz., to be lent to honest young men of the Company and the profits thereof paid to the poor and aged women of the Company, that a sermon should be preached every year, and he gave to his executors and their successors 5s. a piece for ever for their pains.

An information was filed after the last inquiry, in 1833, by the Attorney General at the relation of Thomas Spencer Hall against the Clothworkers' Company, praying that the said charity might be established, and that the property and funds vested in the said Company

Sutton Valence, of 135 yards, lately in the occupation of Isaac Edmed, but then of George Gilbert, and then belonging to the said Company, in consideration of the transfer of the sum of 200*l.* Consols (part of the said sum of 400*l.* Consols), and of the said sum of 1,000*l.*

Consols, then standing in the name of the official trustees to the account of "the master wardens, and company of freemen of the art or mystery of clothworkers."

might be ascertained and that the trusts of the said Samuel Lese might be made available and carried into execution, and that to that end the said real and leasehold estate so derived from the testator and then vested in the said Company might be sold, and that the produce when so realised might be laid out or otherwise disposed of as the Court should think fit, and that in case of need it might be referred to one of the masters to settle a scheme for the application of the funds, so as to effectuate and secure the due performance of the said trusts and purposes for making loans to young men of the said Company and others in case of need with such directions as might be requisite and that an account might be taken from such period as under the circumstances might appear necessary of such part of the said estates so given to the said Company as should have been by the said Company converted or disposed of to their own use and also of the yearly interest upon the same, and also in particular of the increased rent of the said freehold messuage and that all such accounts might be taken as under the circumstances appear requisite.

By the decree on the hearing of the information, made the 24th March 1835, it was ordered that the defendants the Company should continue to apply the yearly rents and profits of the premises devised under the will of Samuel Lese the testator in the pleadings named to and for the benefit of the persons to whom such benefits are thereby given, and according to the trusts and purposes of such will and as the same had been hitherto applied, and the costs of all parties including the costs of the memorial to the attorney-general were ordered to be taxed and paid.

The loan portion of the gift was subsequently included in the order of the 31st July 1840 (see Heydon's Charity) made on the petition of Mr. Henry Ball and Mr. Charles Larkins Francis, two members of the Clothworkers' Company, and the fund forms part of the present loan funds.

The payments are as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
To the churchwarden of St. Andrew's, Holborn	2	0	0
To the chaplain of the Company for a sermon at Saint James' in the Wall at which the Company attend on the 2nd May	1	1	0
To the master warden and ten assistants attending	3	15	0
To printing summonses for 2nd May addressed to all the livery	0	6	6
To the poor of the Company (in 1858)	94	13	3
	101	15	9

The distribution is made in pensions and gifts, and forms part of the fund given away as mentioned in my report on Rogers' Charity.

ELIZABETH LOVE'S CHARITY.

Elizabeth Love, by her will dated the 12th March 1805, gave 200*l.* stock in the Old South Sea Annuities standing in her name, to the governors and trustees of the Clothworkers' Hall, for the benefit of blind persons, subject to the life interest of Jane Clements and Margaret Hebbert therein named. The Company by their resolution of the 18th August 1858 appointed Mr. Orton to act with Christ's Hospital, also legatees under the will to obtain letters of administration de bonis non. On the 24th November 1858, Mr. Orton remitted to the court a cheque for 258*l.* 16*s.* 1*d.* their proportion of the estate of the testatrix. This sum was invested in 269*l.* 4*s.* 9*d.*, 3*l.* per Cent. Reduced Annuities, the income of which is 8*l.* 1*s.* 8*d.* The Company have resolved that the annual dividends deducting 5*l.* per cent. for management, shall be paid to one blind person to be nominated by the master for the time being annually in the month of May. The nomination is to be annual by a different master and it will not therefore follow that the same person will be chosen a second time.*

LUTE'S CHARITY.

John Lute, by his will of the 12th May 1585, devised four messuages in the parish of St. Dionis, Backchurch, a messuage in St. Lawrence, Old Jewry, and a messuage in St. Michael's, Cornhill, to the Clothworkers' Company, and from the profits thereof lend out 200*l.*, 100*l.* thereof to five young men free of the Company, and the other 100*l.* to ten honest householders freemen of the Company. And he directed the said Company to pay to some learned man for a sermon on St. Luke's day at the church of St. Michael, Cornhill, 6*s.* 8*d.*, and to every person of the livery present thereat 4*d.*, and to provide yearly 12 men's gowns and 12 women's gowns, 12 men's shirts and 12 women's smocks, 12 pair of shoes for men and 12 for women on St. Luke's day, six men and six women to be free of the Company, and six men and six women to be of the parish of St. Michael, Cornhill, the master and wardens to have 3*s.* 4*d.* each, and the clerks and beadles 3*s.* 4*d.* each, and the rest of the yearly profits should remain towards the reparations of the premises and the affairs and relief of the said Company.

After the last inquiry an information was filed in the Court of Chancery by the Attorney-General at the relation of T. S. Hall and Effingham Wilson against the Company defendants praying that the said defendants might answer the premises, and make a full disclosure of all the matters aforesaid. And that an account might be taken of all such sums of money paid by the said Company as ought to have been applied in making such loans as were directed to be made by the said will, and that it might be decreed that such part of the said sum of 200*l.*, as had been lost ought to be made good out of the estate aforesaid. And that the said defendants might be charged with interest on such sums respectively during such time as they should appear to have misapplied or kept the same nonapplied and that if necessary an inquiry might be directed of what the hereditaments and property of the said charity consisted, and the yearly rental thereof, and whether the existing leases were properly made and for the benefit of the said charity, and that if necessary it might be referred to one of the masters to approve of a scheme for the future management of the charity estates, and the application thereof.

The Company by their answer said that the surplus of the said annual rents was given by the said testator towards the charges, affairs, and relief of the said Company of Clothworkers according to the discretion of the said defendants.

By the order of the court made at the hearing of the cause on the 17th July 1833, it was ordered that the defendants, the Clothworkers' Company, should carry to the credit of an account to be opened in the books of the said Company, under the head of John Lute's charity, the principal sum of 200*l.* so bequeathed by the will of the said John Lute, and also the further sum of 100*l.* being the amount of 10 years' interest on the said principal sum of 200*l.*, making together 300*l.*, and it was ordered that one moiety of the said sum of 100*l.* be added by the said defendants to the loans to the five young men free of the Company, and the other moiety to the loans of 10 honest householders free of the Company, and that advertisement of such loans being available should be made as therein mentioned, and without dismissing any portion of the bill, the court ordered that the costs should be taxed and paid by the Company.

It does not distinctly appear by the pleadings or by the order of the court whether any questions with reference to this charity other than the application of the loan fund came under the consideration of the court. The prayer of the information seems to have been framed with the view of avoiding to put forward a case affecting the surplus, and thus to avoid any point of costs if such a case should fail, and yet to entitle the relators to ask for as wide a relief as possible. The defendants raised the question by their answer, but no portion of the bill was dismissed, and it therefore appears to me that the question of the extent of the charitable trust has not been disposed of by the court. Under the decisions which have taken place, it does not, however, appear to me that any case against the Company with reference to the dedication of the surplus could be successfully raised.

The loan fund has been since dealt with under the order of the Court of Chancery of the 31st July 1840 (confirming the master's report of the 21st July 1840) relating to the loan fund. (See Heydon's case.)

The sermon is annually preached on St. Luke's day in St. Michael's Church, Cornhill, and the Company pay to the rector 1*l.* 1*s.*

* ELIZABETH LOVE'S CHARITY.

Under an order of the Board of this date, the above-mentioned sum of 269*l.* 4*s.* 9*d.*, reduced, was transferred into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

15th Nov.
1877.

The court proceed in procession with so many of the livery as choose to attend, and every one who attends receives a paper of cakes of the value of 2s., which is not, however, charged to the fund.

The clothing distributed by the Company in respect of this charity in the year 1858 was 93*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.*, and is included in the aggregate sum of upwards of 700*l.* applied in these gifts, as stated in the report on Hobby's Charity.

The premises comprised in the gift are now Nos. 47, 48, 49, 53, and 54, Moorgate Street, paying ground rents amounting together to 71*l.* a year.

The balance applied by the Company to their own use after the gifts are paid was in 1858 930*l.* 11*s.* 11*d.

LYON'S CHARITY.

Dame Elizabeth Lyon, by her will of the 10th January 1556, gave 40*l.* to the Company to the intent that the same should be employed in a stock by the Company being out of the livery, whereof every such poor young man to have 20*l.* a piece for two years upon good sureties, and so from two years to two years, the same stock to be employed unto two poor young men, being out of the livery, for ever without any money to be paid by such young men other than only 10*s.* to be paid by either of the said young men unto the said Company for a drinking or otherwise to be divided between the said master and wardens. The will was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury on the 21st January 1569, and the sum of 40*l.* was received by the said Company. This is one of the charities included in the loan fund, administered according to the report of the Master in Chancery. It forms part of the moneys comprised in the schedule to that report.

MACHELL'S CHARITY.

John Machell, by his will of the 26th July 1558, gave 100*l.* to the Company, on trust, to deliver out the same to four young men of the Company for three years, to every of the said four young men 25*l.* a piece, the Company at the time of delivering the said money to take sureties for the repayment thereof at the end of the three years. The will was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury the 10th October 1558, and the said 100*l.* was paid to the said Company.

This charity is included in the loan funds administered according to the report of the master of the 21st July 1840, referred to under Heydon's Charity. It forms part of the moneys comprised in the schedules to the master's report.

*JOHN LUTE'S CHARITY.

By an order of the Board of this date, the above-mentioned annual payments were redeemed by the transfer into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 3,658*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Consolidated 3*l.* per Cent. Annuities.

By an order of the Board of this date, a scheme was established for the future regulation of this charity (other than the Loan Charity founded by John Lute) and of the charities of Samuel and John Middlemore.

A copy of the scheme is annexed.

The above-mentioned scheme for the Clothworkers' Loan Charities was approved by Her Majesty's in Council on 26th March 1878. (See Heydon's Charity.)

By an order of the Board of this date, the trustees were authorised to apply the sum of 2,210*l.* 14*s.* 1*d.*, to be produced by the sale of a sufficient portion of the said sum of 3,658*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* Consols, in the purchase of freehold ground rents, at West Hackney, producing 91*l.* 10*s.* per annum.

By an order of the Board of this date, the trustees were authorised to effect the purchase of freehold ground rents at Shacklewell, producing 58*l.* 10*s.* per annum, at the price of 1,500*l.* sterling, to be provided in part by the sale of the sum of 1,396*l.* 14*s.* 10*d.* Consols, and as to the residue by means of a loan from the Company not bearing interest and repayable within seven years.

CHARITY COMMISSION.

In the matter of the charities of John Lute and Samuel Middlemore and John Middlemore, under the management of the Clothworkers' Company, in the City of London; and

In the matter of "The Charitable Trusts Acts, 1853 to 1869."

The Board of Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, having considered an application in writing made to them on the 11th day of December 1877, in the matter of the above-mentioned charities, under the seal of the above-mentioned Company as the Trustees of the said charities:

And it appearing to the said Board to be desirable that a scheme should be established for the future regulation of the said charities:

And upon notice of the intention of the said Board to make an order for the foregoing object, having been given by the affixing of the same, according to the direction of the said Board, to or near principal outer doors of the parish churches of St. Michael, Cornhill, and St. Clements, Eastcheap, and of the Clothworkers' Hall all in the city of London, on the 25th day of December 1877, being more than one calendar month previously to the date hereof:

And no notice of any objection to the said proposed order having been received by the said Board:

Do hereby order, that the scheme set forth in the schedule hereto be approved and established as the scheme for the future regulation of the said charities.

SCHEDULE.

SCHEME FOR THE MANAGEMENT AND REGULATION OF THE ABOVE-MENTIONED CHARITIES.

1. The master and wardens of the Company of Clothworkers of the city of London, usually called "the Clothworkers' Company," and who are herein-after referred to as the Trustees, shall continue to be the Trustees of the said charities, and shall manage and administer the same and their several endowments in conformity with the provisions of this scheme.

2. The charities founded by the will of the above-mentioned John Lute, other than the Loan Charity thereby founded, and the charities of Samuel Middlemore and John Middlemore shall hereafter be administered as one charity.

3. The dividends or other income of the said charities, shall subject to the existing interests of the present recipients, be applied in making the several payments, and providing the several articles of clothing to the several persons qualified in accordance with the wills of the respective founders, but the Trustees shall nevertheless be at liberty to vary the several antique articles of apparel heretofore given in favour of other and more modernised articles of clothing.

4. The said clothing and other gifts shall from the date of this scheme be distributed, and the anniversary of the said charities shall be celebrated on the feast of St. Luke annually, or within seven days thereafter, in or at the church of St. Michael, Cornhill, and St. Clement, Eastcheap, in alternate years, but without prejudice to the claims of the beneficiaries entitled to the benefits of the said charities respectively, so nevertheless that one sermon only shall be preached in each year on the day appointed for the celebration of the said charities, and that there shall be paid out of the income of the said charities to the minister by whom the said sermon shall be preached the sum of 3*l.* 3*s.* in lieu of the fees prescribed in the wills of the respective founders.

5. Subject to the provisions aforesaid, and so far as there shall be any surplus income belonging to the said charities arising from the absence of duly qualified recipients, or otherwise, the residue of the said income shall be applied by the Trustees in promoting the technical education (either by the institution of exhibitions to Art Schools or other avenues to art culture and higher industrial training or otherwise) of persons to be selected by the Trustees, having preference to the claims of persons belonging to the following classes, namely,—persons free of the said Company or in their employment, or of persons who shall as principals or on their own account have carried on any trade or business in the said parishes of St. Michael, Cornhill, and St. Clement, Eastcheap, or have practised any profession therein, or who shall have served for not less than five years as clerks or managers or assistants to any person or persons carrying on any trade or business or practising any profession in the said parishes.

Sealed by Order of the Board this 29th day of January 1878.

HENRY M. VANE,
Secretary.

4 G

SAMUEL MIDDLEMORE'S CHARITY.

Samuel Middlemore, by will prior to 1647, gave to the Company 800*l.* to purchase lands of the yearly value of 40*l.*, to provide cloth for 20 gowns, linen for 20 shirts and smocks, 20 pairs of stockings, 20 pairs of shoes for 20 poor aged men and women, four whereof to be of the parish of Saint Clement's, and 16 free of the Company, and further to provide 10 chaldron of coal for 20 poor people; and he willed that only 33*l.* should be bestowed out of the 40*l.*, and if the 33*l.* was not sufficient there should be a deduction out of the coals, and he directed that out of the residue of the 40*l.* should be paid to the preacher at St. Clement's church 13*s.* 4*d.* for a sermon, to the two younger wardens 10*s.* each, to the clerk, 6*s.* 8*d.*, to the beadle 5*s.*, parish clerk 3*s.* 4*d.*, and sexton 1*s.* 8*d.*. Also to the churchwardens of St. Clement's 3*l.* for coals to the oldest poor people, and 30*s.* residue of the 40*l.* to remain to the Company towards charges arising about the said business.

Subsequently to the inquiry of the Commissioners an information was filed by the Attorney-General at the relation of Thomas Spencer Hall against the Clothworkers' Company, praying that by reason of their neglect to invest the sums of 800*l.* and 100*l.* in the purchase of real estate in part, and also in not having in any manner set apart or appropriated the same two sums or any specific fund, or securing the said several charitable uses and purposes of the said donors as directed by the said will of said Samuel and John Middlemore respectively, had made default and acted in breach of the said trusts in them in that behalf reposed, and that the said defendants might be decreed to make good to or for the said charitable uses the loss or injury sustained by the said default, and neglect of the said Company in not having made the said investments in land, and that defendants might be compelled to set apart and appropriate some specific real estate, or else some specific public funds or stocks of competent value or amount belonging to and vested in them as part of the general corporate property or stock of the said Company, or otherwise to provide so much so as to yield such yearly income as might appear proper, and so and in such manner that the same might be adequately charged and secured for the future performance of said charitable uses; and, further, to make suitable compensation for the benefit of the said charitable objects for and in respect of the loss sustained by reason of such neglect in not having made such investment in land, and that the said defendants might be decreed to pay to the relators their costs of the suit.

By a decree of the Court made at the hearing of this cause on the 24th March 1835, the defendants, by their counsel submitting to the prayer to be charged with the principal sums of 800*l.* and 100*l.*, as of the gifts of Samuel Middlemore and John Middlemore respectively, the testators in the pleadings named, and undertaking to pay interest for the same at 5*l.* per cent. It was ordered that the amount of such interest be thenceforth applied to, and for the purposes declared in the wills of the said Samuel Middlemore and John Middlemore respectively. And that the costs, &c. of the relator and of the defendants, including the memorial to the Attorney-General, to be taxed by the master of the Court in rotation, be paid by the defendants. And it was ordered that the said defendants be at liberty to retain their own costs, and what should be paid for the relator's costs out of the charity funds in question in the cause.

* SAMUEL AND JOHN MIDDLEMORE'S CHARITIES.

16th Nov.
1877.

By an order of the Board of this date, the above-mentioned annual payment or charge of 45*l.* was redeemed by the transfer into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 1,500*l.* Consolidated 3*l.* per Cent. Annuities.

29th Jan.
1878.

By an order of the Board of this date a scheme was established for the future regulation of these charities. (See John Lute's Charity.)

28th July
1882.

By an order of the Board of this date the trustees were authorised to effect the purchase of freehold ground rents at Shacklewell, producing 62*l.* per annum, at the price of 1,600*l.* sterling, to be provided in part by the sale of the said sum of 1,500*l.* Consols, and as to the residue by means of a loan from the Company, not bearing interest, and repayable within seven years.

† THOMAS NEWMAN'S CHARITY.

10th August
1880.

Under an order of the Board of this date, the sum of 9,000*l.* Consols, representing the endowment of this

By an order of the Court of the Company of the 14th October 1658, this and Barbara Burnell's Gift were charged upon the lands at Islington. This order does not appear to have been known at the time of the last report, and it would seem to have been lost sight of at the making of the deed of 1734 (vol. 6, page 231).

The sum of 40*l.* a year is now applied by the Company as follows:—

	£	s.	d.
Carried to the clothing account and distributed with Hobby's Charity -	32	0	0
To the churchwardens of St. Clement's, East Cheap, for sea coals -	3	0	0
To the Company -	1	10	0
The rector of St. Clement's, East Cheap -	1	1	0
The warden, clerk of Company, beadle, parish clerk, and sexton and organist -	2	9	0
	£40	0	0

In 1853 the sum expended in clothing was 91*l.* 19*s.* 5*d.* including the specific gifts above stated, and John Middlemore's gift of 5*l.* a year.*

JOHN MIDDLEMORE'S GIFT.

John Middlemore, by his will of 22nd June 1647, gave 100*l.* to the Company, to be laid out in the purchase of land, 5*l.* a year for 20 poor members of the Company. This was one of the subjects of the suit instituted by the Attorney-General at the relation of Thomas S. Hall, against the Company stated in the report on Samuel Middlemore's Charity.

The sum of 5*l.* a year is given away in sums of 5*s.* a piece to 20 poor recipients of the clothing, which is distributed on the 11th of October as mentioned in Hobby's Charity, when they attend at St. Clement's Church.*

NEWMAN'S CHARITY.

Thomas Newnam, by his will of the 9th July 1800, gave to the Company 10,000*l.* Consols, the interest to be disposed of in equal shares among 15 poor blind men and 15 poor blind women. The legacy was subject to 1,000*l.* legacy duty, and the remainder was transferred, and is still invested in Consols in the name of the Company. The dividends amounting to 270*l.* a year, are distributed annually amongst 30 blind persons in sums of 2*l.* 5*s.* a quarter.

The pensioners are appointed by the members of the Court in rotation; they must, according to the regulation of the Company, be 50 years of age, and have been blind for three years. The applicants are very numerous.†

ORMSTON'S CHARITY.

Thomas Ormston, by his will of the 24th February 1556, gave 3*l.* yearly to the churchwardens of St. Bartholomew, Royal Exchange, for bread to the poorest householders every Sunday, and 6*l.* equally to the three hospitals—Christ's, Bridewell, and St. Bartholomew's.‡

OSMOTHERLAW'S GIFT.

John Osmotherlaw, by his will of the 1st June 1642, gave to the Company 50*s.* a year for five poor clothworkers at Christmas. This money is received annually from the Merchant Taylors' Company and distributed with Rogers' gift.§

charity, was transferred into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds.

By an order of the Board of this date, the trustees were authorised to effect the purchase of freehold ground rents at Hammersmith, producing 382*l.* 10*s.* per annum, at the price of 8,950*l.*, to be provided by the sale of the said sum of 9,000*l.* Consols.

16th Sept.
1881.

† THOMAS ORMSTON'S CHARITY.

By an Order of the Board of this date, the above-mentioned yearly payments, amounting in the aggregate to the sum of 9*l.*, were redeemed by the transfer into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 300*l.* Consolidated 3*l.* per Cent. Annuities.

§ JOHN OSMOTHERLAW'S CHARITY.

By an order of the board of this date, the above-mentioned yearly payment of 50*s.* was redeemed by the transfer into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds of the sum of 83*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.* Consolidated 3*l.* per Cent. Annuities.

18th Nov.
1873.

DAME ANNE PACKINGTON'S CHARITY.

Dame Anne Packington, by her will of the 24th November, 1559, gave certain lands to trustees of the yearly value of 16*l.* 16*s.* 9*d.* to permit the Clothworkers' Company to receive the rents and distribute 3*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* among the poor of St. Dunstan's in the West, between the 1st November and 1st February; to distribute 8*l.* to the poor of the parish where she should be buried (St. Botolph, Aldersgate), viz., 3*l.* for finding of poor men's children to school, 3*l.* to be distributed among the poor of that parish from the 1st November to 1st February, to cause a sermon to be preached at St. Dunstan's on the 15th February, and another sermon in St. Botolph, Aldersgate; to distribute unto the poor, in alms, 40*s.* residue of said 8*l.*, and to each preacher 6*s.* 8*d.* over and above the said 40*s.*, and the said Company to retain for themselves the residue of 4*l.* 10*s.* 1*d.* a year.

After the reports of the commissioners of inquiry suggesting doubts as to the actual extent and the due administration of this estate (see vol. 2, page 59, and vol. 8, page 293) an information was filed by the Attorney-General, and a decree and scheme obtained, which is set forth in a further report of the Commissioners of inquiry (vol. 20, pages 260-61), and the substance of which is as follows:—

That the yearly rents should in future be divided into sixteen parts, and be applied by the Company in manner following:—

Four sixteenths thereof to be distributed yearly among the poor inhabitants of St. Dunstan's in the West, between the 1st February and 1st November, as the Company should think necessary.

Eight sixteenths to be distributed yearly among the poor of St. Botolph, Aldersgate, viz., 3/16ths towards the finding of poor men's children of the same parish to school and learning, 3/16ths to be yearly distributed among the poor of the parish between the 1st November and 1st February, and 2/16ths to poor people in alms by the said Company on such days as the sermons should be preached.

That the Company should procure two sermons to be yearly preached on such days and places as the said testatrix had by her will pointed out and should pay to each of such preachers 1*l.* 1*s.* for each sermon.

Four sixteenths, after paying the preachers, to be retained by the Company for their use in consideration of their pains and trouble in the execution of the premises and expenses attending the management of the estate and distribution of the said charity.

Preference to be given in the distribution to such persons as had never received parochial relief, and had been the longest without such relief.

That accounts should be kept of the receipts and expenditure of the charity to be audited once a year and signed by the master and wardens.

That the estate of the charity should be distinguished from the land belonging to the Company by bound stones, and that the same should be managed and let to the best advantage by the Company.

Upon a petition of the Clothworkers' Company to the Court of Chancery, heard on the 23rd May 1844, presented under Sir Samuel Romilly's Act, to which petition the Attorney-General and the churchwardens and overseers of both parishes were respondents, it was referred to the master to inquire whether an agreement of the 19th April 1844, with any and what variations should be carried into execution.

The master reports on the 11th April 1845 in favour of the agreement and his report was confirmed by the order of the court of the 25th April 1845.

The terms of this agreement for enfranchisement were carried into effect by a deed dated the 4th August 1846, between the Venerable William Hale Hale, Archdeacon of London, of the first part, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners of the second part, the Copyhold Commissioners of the third part, the master, wardens, and commonalty of the Clothworkers' Company of the fourth part, and Henry Rutt and others, citizens and clothworkers and trustees as therein mentioned, of the fifth part. Reciting the agreement of the 19th April 1844, the master's report of the 11th April 1845, and the order confirming the same: And reciting that in pursuance of the said order the said Company had paid the sum of 32*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.* into the bank in the name of the accountant-general "ex parte the account of the Copyhold Commissioners," and that the said Copyhold Commissioners had agreed to the deed: It was witnessed that in consideration of a piece of pasture land surrendered to the said William Hale Hale by the parties of the fifth part, and intended to be forthwith surrendered to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and of the said 32*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.* paid as aforesaid. And also of the sum of 119*l.* 6*s.* 3*d.* to be placed to the account of the Accountant-General "ex parte the Copyhold Commissioners," and which said piece of pasture ground, together with the said sums of 32*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.* and 119*l.* 6*s.* 3*d.*, making together 151*l.* 10*s.*, were the full consideration for the enfranchisement of the pieces of land and hereditaments therein-after described, the said William Hale Hale and the said Ecclesiastical Commissioners bargained, sold, enfranchised, and released to the said parties of the fifth part, all those five messuages or tenements, and also 21 acres 1 rood 11 perches in Islington aforesaid, and also a piece of land of 2 roods 11 perches and 3 other roods lying in another close; and also 1 acre 3 roods of meadow land, to hold the said messuages, lands, and hereditaments unto and to the use of the said parties of the fifth part in trust for the said Clothworkers' Company and their successors for ever.

The houses mentioned in the Report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 20, p. 260) and described there under Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 and let to T. Pearson and others, were taken down by the sanction of an order of the court of the 31st May 1850, whereby it was ordered that the Company should be at liberty to enter into an agreement with Mr. Samuel Rhodes for letting to him for building purposes the same piece of land as now comprised in and demised by the indenture of lease therein referred to, upon the terms and conditions in the proposal and the master's report of the 8th April 1850, with liberty for the Company to execute leases from time to time in conformity with the terms of the agreement. And the master was to settle the draft of the proposed agreement with James Rhodes and of one the leases to be granted thereunder, and the Company were to execute such agreement and leases in conformity therewith.

The agreement, which is dated the 31st July 1850, and made between the Company of the one part and James Rhodes of the other part, recited the order of the court of the 31st May 1850, and the agreement between the Company and James Rhodes to take the Crown field at Islington, containing 4 acres 2 roods 13 perches, and the prebend field, containing 14 acres 0 roods 5 perches, as the same with the general scheme of the said intended buildings were delineated on a map thereon with the easements and appurtenances for 90 years from Michaelmas 1846 at an aggregate rent of 800*l.* a year distributable as thereafter mentioned, with such additional rent or payment in respect of sewerage, and otherwise as therein mentioned with such stipulations touching roads, ways, and buildings as therein mentioned. That the said James Rhodes was already in possession of the premises under a previous lease therein mentioned (but then cancelled) and that the master had approved of the now stating agreement. And the said James Rhodes thereby covenanted with the Company to construct the roads, drains, &c., as therein mentioned and within two years from Midsummer 1850, to build 30 houses, and within the then seven following years, 10 additional houses in each year, in the five then next succeeding years 40 additional houses in each year, and in the then next succeeding year 43 additional houses, making a total of 343 houses, which said houses should not be less than third and fourth rate houses, and contain not less than six or eight rooms each, but with power to diminish the number of houses proportionately if any of such houses were built of a higher rate according to the certificate of the surveyor, and that the said James Rhodes should be at liberty to dig brick earth and remove certain old buildings, and that they would grant to the said James Rhodes such sufficient leases not exceeding 20 in the whole as therein mentioned at such apportioned rents as would amount to the said sum of 800*l.* And the agreement prescribed the form of the said leases and counterparts and the covenants and provisions therein contained.

The only variation from this agreement has been made by a subsequent order of the court of the 11th January 1859, permitting the Company to vary the form of the covenants.

The benefit of the agreement has been assigned by Mr. Rhodes to John Jay. The building on the estate was found to be much impeded by the objectionable form of the covenant which made one portion of the property liable for defaults of the other, and the Court of Chancery ordered that the said Company should be relieved from the restrictions, whereby the total number of leases to be granted was by the said agreement of the 31st July 1850 limited to 20, and the rent to be reserved in respect of any one lease was not to be less than 20l., and that the said Company should be at liberty to demise the said houses with the appurtenances then completed but not leased to the said J. Jay, his executors, &c., by any one or more lease or leases or 10 additional houses being completed pursuant to the agreement of the 31st July 1850. And it was ordered that the Company and the said John Jay, and John Hebb, and James Rhodes should execute a deed or deeds for transferring to John Hebb all the benefit and liability of the said agreement of the 31st July 1850, exclusive of the premises already demised, and of the said houses and releasing and exonerating the said J. Rhodes from all liability under the said contract, and in addition that all leases to be granted by the said Company to Jay and Hebb respectively should contain reservations of separate rents in respect of each house with the appurtenances to be comprised in such lease and in such leases should be contained provisions authorising a re-entry of the Company into so much only of the said demised premises with the buildings thereon in respect whereof nonpayment of rent or nonobservance of covenants by the lessee should respectively happen, but so that the residue of the said demised premises be not affected by such re-entry. This order was obtained at the expense of the lessees and assignees.

The five houses which were taken down as before mentioned, were comprised in an agreement with John Hebb, under an order of the Court of Chancery of the 6th June 1856, in consideration of building 30 houses for a term of 80 years from Michaelmas 1856 at 150l. a year. The Company have since redeemed the land tax, and in consideration thereof there is an addition to the rent of 6l., making together 156l. a year, and the property is held under Mr. Hebb as follows:—

Mr. Barker has built eight houses in Queen's Head Lane, and pays an apportioned rent of -	£ s. d.
The Postmaster General is the lessee of the corner premises in Packington Street and Lower Street at the apportioned rent of -	42 0 0
A portion of the property has been converted into a street which runs through it and forms part of Packington Street -	37 0 0
The remainder of this portion of the estate which fronts chiefly in Packington Street and partly in Lower Street, is on lease to Mr. Hebb under five leases for the same term at the apportioned rent of -	77 0 0
A piece of ground containing 1a. 1r. 11p., bounded by Rydon Street, Linton Street, and Church Street, Islington, let to Henry Rydon for 80 years from Midsummer 1857 at a rent of -	65 0 0
The whole of the remainder of the estate is comprised in the agreement with Mr. Rhodes and the subsequent leases under the same, and the order of the 11th January 1859, and comprising houses in Arlington Street, Dame Street, Packington Street, Linton Street, St. Paul's Street, and Queen's Head Lane, as shown in a plan of which I caused a copy to be made	—

The 1,237l. 13s. 8d. Consols found due to the charity at the time of the master's report of November 1827 (vol. 20, p. 260) in respect of the land taken by the Canal Company, and the sum of 1,436l. 9s. 7d. reduced stock bought under an order of the court, have been subsequently expended in the payment of the costs of the various proceedings in Chancery, the stock having been sold out at different times under the order of the court.

Under the scheme, 8/16ths of the income of the charity goes to the parish of St. Botolph, Aldersgate, 4/16ths to the parish of St. Dunstan's in the west, and the remaining 4/16ths to the Company for the expense and trouble of the administration.

The Company attend at St. Dunstan's Church on the 15th February, when a sermon is preached, and on that occasion 135l. has usually been distributed amongst 88 persons selected by the churchwardens and overseers, in sums varying from 10s. to 1l. 10s., and the Company usually in the month of October, give the churchwardens and overseers a cheque for the balance.

The Company also attend at the church of St. Botolph, Aldersgate, on the 25th August, when 2/16ths of the fund, amounting in 1858 to 120l. 18s. 3d. was distributed to persons selected by the officers of that parish, 3/16ths (181l. 7s. 1d.) was paid to the churchwardens, and by them handed over to the treasurer of the schools, and the balance (181l. 7s. 1d.) was paid in the February following, and was distributed according to a list of persons furnished by the churchwardens.*

DAME ANNE PACKINGTON'S BREAD CHARITY.

By an indenture of the 23rd November 1570, Dame Anne Packington gave 100l. to the Company to pay 4l. 13s. 4d. to the churchwardens of St. Botolph Without, Aldersgate, to the intent that 4l. 6s. 8d., part thereof, should be applied by the churchwardens in weekly payments on every Sunday in the year to five poor people of the parish 4d. each, and the residue to the churchwardens for the time being for their pains about the receipts and distribution, or in default made in such payments the same to be paid to the Dean of Westminster, and in default thereof to the Dean of St. Paul's, and 6s. 8d. to the Dean of St. Paul's for the due performance of the trusts committed to them.

The sum of 4l. 13s. 4d. has not been paid since 1827. It appears that this payment ceased upon the increased payment having been made under the other charities of this lady.

An application was made to the Company by the churchwardens of St. Botolph, Aldersgate, on the 15th October, 1847, to which the Company replied that they were advised that they could not safely pay the money under the circumstances.

The payment of 6s. 8d. a year was made to the receiver of the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's up to Michaelmas 1856 (paid 27th February 1857) and has since been discontinued on the ground that the duty has not been seen to.

The parish officers who attended at the time of my inquiry propose, with the concurrence of the Company and the dean and chapter, to lay a scheme before the board, and to request their advice and direction.†

* DAME ANNE PACKINGTON'S CHARITY.

1879.

By an order of the board of this date, the trustees were authorised to grant a lease of a piece of ground containing 4,000 square feet with the buildings thereon, situate between Canal Terrace and Arlington Street in the parish of St. Mary, Islington, for 58½ years from Christmas 1877, at the annual rent of 7l.

The income of this charity now amounts to 1,028l. per annum.

† DAME ANNE PACKINGTON'S BREAD CHARITY.

Under the authority of the board the sum of 282l. consisting of the endowment fund of 100l. and 182l. the amount of accumulations of income was paid to the banking account of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, and, in pursuance of an order of the Board of 27th November 1866, the sum of 313l. 6s. 8d. Consols purchased therewith was transferred to the Official Trustees on the 29th of the same month.

By an order of the Board of this date, made upon the application of two inhabitants of the parish the incumbent and churchwardens of the parish of St. Botolph Without, Aldersgate, for the time being, were appointed trustees of this charity, and it was directed, by way of scheme for the future regulation of the charity, that the clear annual income thereof, which should remain after payment thereof of the yearly sum of 6s. 8d. to the dean and chapter of the cathedral church of St. Paul's London, in pursuance of the terms

PEAKE'S CHARITY.

Sir William Peake, by his will of the 2nd October 1672, gave 100*l.* to the Company to pay 10*s.* a piece to 10 poor men of the Company at Michaelmas yearly. The 100*l.* forms part of the fund charged as a portion of the King Street and Cheapside Estate (see Heath's Almshouses). The 5*l.* a year is out of that income carried to the St. Thomas' Eve Distribution Fund, (for which see the report on Watson's Charity).

PENNOYER'S GIFT.

William Pennoyer, by his will of the 25th May 1670, devised his lands in Norfolk to trustees to pay 10*l.* a year to 10 of the blindest, oldest, and poorest clothworkers and their widows.

The governors of Christ's Hospital pay to the Company annually 10*l.*, which the Company apply to the general relief fund (for which see Roger's Charity).

PILSWORTH'S GIFT.

Edward Pilsworth, by his will of the 7th July 1603, gave his messuages, &c. in London to the Company to pay 16*l.* as follows:—12*l.* 14*s.* to the churchwardens of Shitlington, Bedfordshire, viz.:—

	£	s.	d.
To the minister yearly for four sermons	1	0	0
To reparations of the parish church	0	16	0
To six of the poor, every Sunday 4 s. , that is to say, 8 d. a piece after morning prayer	10	8	0
To the churchwardens for their pains	0	10	0

And 3*l.* 6*s.* residue of the said 16*l.* should remain to the use of the said Company, and the said Company should also pay 5*l.* a year towards the maintenance of a poor scholar at Magdalen College, Oxford.

The devised premises being a house in Bartholomew Lane, belong to the Company and produce a rent of 233*l.* 15*s.* as stated in the report of the Commissioners of Inquiry (vol. 6, page 228).

The sum of 12*l.* 14*s.* is paid to the vicar of Shitlington annually by half-yearly payments, and a certificate received from him that he has distributed the money according to the directions of the will.

The gift for an exhibition at Magdalen College, Oxford, has been by the Company (with all other such gifts) increased to 20*l.* a year. The applications are made from persons at the University, under the form and with the certificates (printed examples of which I append). The Company are bound by the deeds and instruments to dispose of the following exhibitions:—

Pilsworth's	£5
Burnell's	5
Heath's (two)	5
And Hewitt's	5

But they altogether have 13 exhibitions, which amount together to 260*l.* a year, and gratuities on academical success as specified in another printed form, which I also append.

There are generally more applicants for the exhibitions than there are such benefits to dispose of, and much effort is used to obtain success in the competition.*

SIR JAMES ROBINSON'S GIFT.

Sir James Robinson, by his will dated prior to 1679, gave to the Company 100*l.*, the profits thereof, and of 200*l.* formerly given to them, to be applied towards the augmentation of the yearly pension of the eight poor women in the Whitefriars Almshouse. This is considered to be a part of the endowment of the Countess of Kent's Almshouses, and is not separately paid. It must be considered as included in the 20*l.* a year paid to the almspeople. The 300*l.* is made a charge or apportioned share of the property in King Street, Cheapside, under the deed of the 13th June 1734. (See Heath's Charity.)

ROGERS' GIFT.

John Rogers, by his will of the 5th May 1551, gave to the Company his four houses in St. Mary Woolchurch Haw parish, to distribute the rents among the poor people of the said Company.

This is converted into a rentcharge of 20*l.* a year on the Mansion House, under the Act of Parliament of 1737, stated in the former report (p. 218). It is distributed with Bayworth's and others amongst the poor of the Company.

The poor of the Company consist of freemen and widows of freemen.

The Company have a relief book in which is entered the names of all persons who are applicants for relief. There are always persons waiting for admission on the pension list. Inquiries are made according to printed form (copy of which I annex).

Each applicant procures a member of the Court to bring the case before it, and that member is expected to pledge himself that the case is a deserving one.

The pension applications are brought before the quarterly court, and the casual petitions before the monthly courts.

CLOTHWORKERS' HALL.

2nd November 1825.

The Court having found it necessary to check effectually the frequent misrepresentations which are made by some of the poor members of the Company who solicit relief, and who thus deprive others of it who are greater objects of charity, have come to the following resolutions, viz. :—

That in future no bounty be in any instance given without the persons applying having first delivered a full statement of their respective cases, set forth in the following printed form, signed with the names (or mark witnessed) of the individuals, and each case attested (except as to age) by at least two respectable housekeepers, who well know the facts.

The Court have further determined, that strict inquiry shall from time to time be made as to the truth of the different statements; and in case wilful misrepresentation is detected the name of the petitioner is to be registered in a book, as unworthy to receive future relief from the Company.

The form of application on the following sheet, properly filled up, signed by the petitioner, and certified by two resident householders, as under-mentioned, accompanied by copy of City freedom, and certificate of baptism (with, in the case of widows, that of marriage) must be lodged with the clerk at Clothworkers' Hall, ten days or more before the ensuing Court day.

We, , resident householders of the parish wherein the petitioner resides, do hereby certify to the master, wardens, and assistants of the Worshipful Company of Clothworkers, London, that we have known the petitioner for years, or thereabouts, and we believe that the allegations and answers to the particulars on the following sheet are true—and that the petitioner bears the character of being a person of sober life and conversation, and, we believe, is in every respect a proper object to partake of the relief dispensed by the Clothworkers' Company.

SIR THOMAS ROWE'S CHARITY.

By an indenture bearing date the 4th March 1568, between the master and wardens of the Merchant Tailors' Company of the one part and the Clothworkers' Company of the other part, reciting that the said Clothworkers' Company had, on the day of making thereof, received of Sir Thomas Rowe, Knight, the sum of 100*l.*, to be by them disposed of in the form following, that is to say, to 10 poor honest householders of the Clothworkers' Company, 10*l.* a piece, to have the use thereof for three or four years, and so to have continuance from one to another for ever, and every one of the said poor householders to find three able persons to be bound with them as sureties for the repayment of the said 10*l.* at the end of the three or four years. And further reciting that the said 100*l.* was received by the said Clothworkers' Company, and that the same was held by them upon the trusts mentioned in the said indenture.

This charity is included in the Loan Fund, administered according to the scheme settled in the master's report of the 21st July 1840, referred to under Heydon's Charity. It forms part of the moneys comprised in the schedule to that report.

SHALES' OR SKALES' CHARITY.

Peter Shales or Skales, by his will of the 13th January 1584, bequeathed 100*l.* to the Clothworkers' Company, in trust, to deliver out the same in manner following, 50*l.* unto two young men of the said Company, being merchants or retailers for three years, and the other 50*l.* to be delivered out to five honest men of the said Company for three years, to each of them 10*l.* a piece, such seven persons to give security for the repayment thereof. The will was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury the 26th April 1585, and the money is included in the Loan Fund, administered according to the scheme in the report of the Master in Chancery of the 21st July 1840, referred to under Heydon's Charity.

SOUTHALL'S CHARITY.

John Southall, by his will of the 4th October 1590, gave 40*l.* to the Clothworkers' Company, to be lent to four poor men of the said Company, to have the use thereof freely for three years, giving security for the repayment of the same. The will was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury in May 1592, and the money is included in the Loan Fund, as described under Heydon's Charity.

STAPER'S CHARITY.

Richard Staper, in the year 1610, gave 110*l.* to the Company, to pay yearly on the eve of St. Thomas, to five poor men of the Company 20*s.* a piece. This is a portion of the fund forming the investment or apportionment of the King Street and Cheapside estates (see Heath's Almshouses). The Company attribute 5*l.* of the rent of that estate to this charity. For the general distribution of charities of this kind on St. Thomas' Eve. (See Watson's Charity.)

STODDARD'S GIFT.

James Stoddard, by his will of the 4th October 1607, gave 100*l.* to the Company to be lent out to young men of the said Company, and to pay yearly from the interest 20*s.* to the poor's box of St. Martin, Ironmonger Lane, 30 sacks of charcoal to St. Martin's and 30 sacks to St. Olave, Jewry.

The capital of 100*l.*, which was lost long ago, has since been replaced by the Company, and dealt with under the order of the 31st July 1840, confirming the report of the master of the 21st July 1840. (See Heydon's Charity.)

	£	s.	d.
The Company pay to the churchwardens of St. Martin, Ironmonger Lane, in respect of the gift to the poor's box and for charcoal	2	10	0
To St. Olave, Old Jewry, for 30 sacks of charcoal	1	10	0
	£4	0	0

These gifts, though insufficient for the purchase of the quantity of charcoal above mentioned, are no doubt the extent of the Company's liability, as more could not be afforded from the interest of the money bequeathed. The gift had not been paid or demanded for five years until the 23rd of January last.

STONE'S CHARITY.

Sir William Stone, Knight, of his good will gave 50*l.* to the Clothworkers' Company before his death, to be lent out to two young men free of the said Company by two equal proportions for three years. This money is also included in the loan fund as described in Heydon's Charity.

THWAYTES' CHARITY.

William Thwaytes, late of Fenchurch Street, grocer, by his will of the 24th March 1831, bequeathed to the master and wardens of the Clothworkers' Company 20,000*l.* to be distributed to poor blind persons in the way they might think most proper, but none to have more than 10*l.* annually. The will was proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury the 6th January 1835 by Ann Thwaytes, William Henry Hawkins, Richard Oliverson and Thomas Warren.

The sum of 20,000*l.*, deducting legacy duty, was laid out almost immediately after the death of the testator in 19,591*l.* 16*s.* 9*d.* 3*l.* per Cent. Consols which stands to the account of the Company. The first payment of the dividends to poor blind persons was on the 15th July 1835. The dividends amounting to 587*l.* 15*s.* are distributed to 58 pensioners at 10*l.* a year and one of the balance of the fund. The Company charge nothing for the administration. There is no limitation of the class of the blind who participate in this gift, except that laid down by the rule of the Company requiring each person to be 50 years of age and three years afflicted with blindness. The Company pays the dividends before they become due, but the pensions falling in and not demanded, generally almost equalize the account.*

SIR THOMAS TREVOR'S CHARITY.

Sir Thomas Trevor, by deed of the 29th March 1622, gave 100*l.* to the Company, to pay yearly by quarterly payments to six poor women 20*s.* a piece. The 100*l.* is treated as a part of the investment of the King Street and Cheapside estate (see Heath's Almshouses), 6*l.* a year is carried to the account of the poor of the Company, for pensions, annuities, and casual relief. (See Rogers' Charity.)

TRUSSELL'S CHARITY.

James Trussell, by his will of the 10th October 1635, gave 400*l.* to be laid out in the purchase of a house of the yearly value of 20*l.*, which he gave to the Clothworkers' Company to the end that they should pay yearly,—

The payments to the parishes of St. Faith, St. Bride's, and Christ's Hospital are made as directed, and the balance remaining applied to the benefit of the poor of the Company, forming part of the gifts, under Rogers', Bayworth's, and other benefactions.†

WATSON'S GIFT.

John Watson, by his will of the 16th December 1555, charged three houses in Basing Lane, with the annual payment of 20*s.* to the parish of St. Mary, Aldermay, and the residue to the poorest freemen of the Company the week before Christmas. It appears by the will that only three houses were devised to the Company, but that perhaps from the site having been covered with smaller houses, or some other unexplained cause, the Company have credited the trust with the rents of seven houses, viz., Nos. 1, 2, and 3, St. Thomas Apostle, 34, Bow Lane, and 9, 10, and 20, Basing Lane; the first six houses have been taken by the Corporation of London, for City improvements, and the purchase money 3,897*l.* invested in 3,971*l.* 9*s.* 3*d.* Reduced Annuities in March 1852.

The sum stands in the name of the Accountant-General of the Court of Chancery and the dividends are received of 119*l.* 2*s.* 10*d.* The rent of 20, Basing Lane, or (25, Cannon Street, West) 50*l.*

The sum of 1*l.* is paid to the churchwardens of the parish of St. Mary, Aldermay.

The residue is distributed on St. Thomas' eve to the poor of the Company, with Hussey's, Staper's and West's Charities.

The sum is distributed in money not exceeding 20*s.* to any one person. The poor freemen, or widows of freemen, attend at the Hall of the Company and receive—

The livery who attend on that day receive a paper of cakes value 2*s.*, and the wine is taken from the Company's stores and not charged. The sum of 16*l.* or 17*l.* is paid for cakes and wine distributed to the gentlemen who attend on that day. The payments for the sermon and to the parish officers, organist, clerk, sexton, and beadle are made. The assistants of the Company attending the sermon receive 10*s.* 6*d.* each.*

WEBSTER'S GIFT.

Sir Godfrey Webster by will in 1720, gave to the Clothworkers' Company 700*l.* in trust that they should yearly for ever on the 4th November pay to 20 poor working clothworkers or their widows one guinea a piece. The Company nominate 20 poor persons in October, and the 1*l.* 1*s.* a piece is paid to them in respect of this endowment. At the last distribution about 10 of the recipients were also pensioners of the Company. The members of the court of assistants alternately nominate the recipients, beginning generally in one year at the point in the list where they left off in the preceding year.

CHARITIES OF JOHN AND FRANCES WEST FOR ARTIZAN CLOTHWORKERS.

John West and Frances his wife, by an indenture of the 9th January 1713, gave certain messuages in the parish of St. Helen's, London, on lease for 1,000 years at 30*l.* per annum to the Clothworkers' Company, to distribute the rents on St. Thomas' Day every year among 15 of the poorest and most ancient artizan clothworkers, and 15 poor widows of such clothworkers.

*JOHN WEBB'S GIFT.

The above-mentioned share of the New River Company, together with 13 new shares purchased by the Company as the trustees of the charity by the application of bonus and surplus income belonging to the charity, now produces 1,074*l.* 4*s.* 1*d.* per annum.

CHARITIES OF JOHN AND FRANCES WEST FOR ARTIZAN CLOTHWORKERS.

By two orders of the Board of this date, the trustees were authorised to sell all the estate and interest of the charity of and in the above-mentioned messuages, Nos. 16 and 17, and 18 and 19, Great St. Helen's, for not less than the sums of 600*l.* and 600*l.* Consols, which were accordingly transferred into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds on the 23rd November and the 21st December 1875 respectively.

By an order of the Board of this date, the trustees were authorised to apply the sum to be realised

The distribution which up to 1853 had not extended to more than 24 persons, now embraces 42 blind persons of Newbury and Reading, or in London and other places. There is at present one blind person claiming to be of kindred. If there be no application from Newbury or Reading it is given to persons elsewhere, so as to complete the distribution of the even sums of 5l. When there are vacancies notice is sent to the churchwardens or to the town clerk of Reading, and to Mr. Turner, a private gentleman at Newbury.

The expenses attending the management are charged at 5l. per cent. on the gross income, and in the year 1858 were 11l. 3s. 6d. Of the 42 pensioners at present on the books of this charity there are of—Newbury—11 pensioners; six men and five women.

Reading—Three pensioners; two men and one woman.

London and other places—28 pensioners; 12 men and 16 women.*

WEST'S CHARITY FOR TWICKENHAM, ISLEWORTH, AND RICHMOND.

No. 2.

John West and Frances his wife, by indentures of the 23rd and 24th December 1718, granted certain other premises to the Clothworkers' Company in trust to apply the rents for poor blind men and women of Twickenham and Isleworth in Middlesex, and Richmond in Surrey, the kindred of the grantors to be preferred.

The property of the trust is described by the Commissioners of Inquiry, volume 32, part 2, page 393.

The universal rule is that, except as to the kindred, and except as to the specified place, they must be 50 years of age and three years blind, but for the kindred and the specified places there is no limitation except being of the age of 21 years. The notices of vacancies are sent to the churchwardens, and the payments are made through them or some of the parish officers. If the person appointed under the age of 50 removes from

* JOHN AND FRANCES WEST'S CHARITIES for the BLIND OF NEWBURY AND READING.

By an order of the Board of this date, the trustees were authorised to grant a lease of several pieces of land, with the four houses then newly erected thereon numbered 1, 2, 3, and 4, Hermitage Row, Hammersmith, also two cottages and a dwelling-house in the rear, with a right of way thereto through the passage running from Hermitage Row, for 60 years, from Lady Day 1855, at the yearly rent of 20l. 13s. 6d.

By an order of the Board of this date, the trustees were authorised to grant a lease of a piece of ground containing 26 perches (being the above-mentioned piece of common ground under No. 4, the Twickenham estate) situate on the north side of the road leading from Twickenham to Hampton, in the county of Middlesex, together with two messuages, being Nos. 3 and 4, Burton Villas, Twickenham, for 80 years from Michaelmas 1867, at the yearly rent of 4l.

By an order of the Board of this date, the trustees were authorised to sell the above-mentioned piece of ground in Walbrook for not less than the sum of 500l. Consols, which was accordingly transferred into the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds on the 20th October 1874.

By an order of the Board of this date, the trustees were authorised to apply the sum to be realised by the sale of the said sum of 500l. Consols towards the purchase at the price of 500l. sterling of a piece of land situate at West Hackney, in the county of Middlesex, with the factory, offices, warehouses, and other buildings belonging thereto, known as Tolkein's Piano Factory, standing thereon, then demised for 98 years from Lady Day 1868, at rents amounting in the whole to 22l.

WEST'S CHARITY FOR BLIND PERSONS GENERALLY.

No. 3.

John West and Frances his wife, by an indenture of the 28th December 1719, gave certain premises in the Poultry, London, to the use of the Clothworkers' Company in trust, to distribute the rents among poor blind men and women generally, in pensions of 5*l.* each with a preference to the kindred of the grantors.

The property, frontage 31 feet 5 inches on the Poultry (including the gateway), Nos. 23 and 24 is now demised by lease for 61 years from Midsummer 1855 to John Baldwin Wheeler, under the authority of the Charity Commissioners dated the 23rd March 1858 at a rent of 300*l.*

The charge for Michell's Almshouse is an original charge of 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.*

There is also 140*l.* 3*l.* per Cent. Consols belonging to this endowment, consisting of an investment of the small balances, and producing yearly 4*l.* 4*s.*

The distribution is to 56 persons who are nominated by the members of the court, by applications from all parts of the kingdom. In 1858 there was an expense of 2*l.* 2*s.* for a surveyor, and 58*l.* for law expenses, and the general charge of 5*l.* per cent., amounting to 15*l.* 14*s.* 8*d.* The balance in that year was 12*l.* 5*s.* 8*d.*

FRANCES WEST'S CHARITY.

No. 4.

Frances West, by indentures of the 8th and 9th January 1723, granted two messuages in the Poultry, in the parish of St. Mary Woolchurch, London, to the use of the Clothworkers' Company upon similar trusts as in the deed of the 24th May 1718 (No. 1) for the benefit of honest poor blind men and women living in the city of London or its liberties, as the said rents after the rate of 5*l.* a piece would extend to pay.

One of the above-mentioned houses was in the year 1834 taken by the Corporation of London for improving the approaches to London Bridge, and the purchase money of 3,000*l.* was invested in 3,143*l.* 12*s.* Consols in the name of the Accountant-General of the Court of Exchequer. In March 1845, 1,702*l.* 3*s.* 8*d.* of this stock was sold for 1,697*l.* 18*s.* 7*d.* being a portion of 3,300*l.*, the purchase money for premises Nos. 42 and 43, Mincing Lane, leaving a balance of 1,441*l.* 8*s.* 4*d.* Consols in court.

The property under this endowment consists now of the following:—

FRANCES WEST'S APPRENTICING CHARITY.

No. 5.

Frances West by indentures of the 11th and 12th December 1723 granted certain messuages to Sion College, London, in trust out of the rents to put forth apprentice yearly two poor boys, orphans, whose fathers were ministers of the Church of England, with premiums of 10*l.* each: and to pay 50*l.* to the clerk of Sion College for keeping the books of the charity; and then to distribute one third of the residue to as many poor men and women, kindred of John and Frances West, and if no kindred, then to poor blind men and women at 5*l.* a year each; to distribute one other third part to honest poor blind men and women at 5*l.* each; and the remaining third part to poor ancient men and women at 5*l.* a piece, the kindred of the said John and Frances West to be preferred, and after them one fourth of the said ancient persons to be of Twickenham, and three fourths of Reading.

The trust was not accepted by Sion College, and was by the Court of Chancery settled as under the administration of the Clothworkers' Company in 1736.

It appears that the charity was the subject of a suit, Attorney-General v. Clothworkers' Company, which came on to be heard on the 28th July 1796, and by the master's report in the same cause, dated the 23rd July 1800, he found that there had come to the hands of the defendants of the savings of the said two yearly sums since 1771 the several sums of money set forth in the first schedule to his report, amounting together to 625*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*, wherewith he had charged the said defendants; and he found that the said defendants had paid and applied to certain objects agreeable to the directions of the said indenture of 12th December 1723 the several sums mentioned in the second schedule to his report, amounting together to 158*l.* 6*s.* 0*d.*, which he had allowed the said defendants, and the same being deducted out of the said sum of 625*l.* 3*s.* 4*d.*, the total of the said first schedule as aforesaid, he found there remained in the hands of the said defendants of the savings of the said two yearly sums of 10*l.* and 10*l.* the sum of 466*l.* 17*s.* 4*d.*; and a scheme had been laid before him on behalf of the relator for the application of the savings of the said two yearly sums of 10*l.* and 10*l.*, and also for the future savings, whereby it was proposed that out of the said 466*l.* 17*s.* 4*d.* in the hands of the defendants the costs of the suit of the parties, relator and defendants, already taxed, and their subsequent costs, when taxed, be paid by the defendants to the respective solicitors of the parties, and that what should remain of the said 466*l.* 17*s.* 4*d.* after deducting such several costs as aforesaid be laid out in the purchase of Old South Sea Annuities in the names of the defendants; and that the interest of the said South Sea Annuities so to be purchased, as also 2*l.* 18*s.* 1*d.*, being the yearly interest of the said 96*l.* 18*s.* 7*d.* Old South Sea Annuities then standing in the name of the defendants, and the said two yearly sums of 10*l.* each should yearly for ever be paid and applied by the master and wardens for the time being of the said Company in putting forth apprentice or to service two poor boys, legitimately born, coming under some or one of the descriptions, and with the preference following, that is to say, boys whose parents should be both dead and whose fathers or mothers were freemen or freewomen of the City of London and of the said Company; boys whose fathers or mothers dying such freemen or freewomen as aforesaid should be dead; and boys whose fathers or mothers were living and such freemen or freewomen as aforesaid; preferring, in the first place, boys, the sons of freemen, whose parents should be both dead; in the second place, boys, the sons of freewomen, whose parents should be both dead; in the third place, boys, the sons of freemen, whose fathers should be dead; in the fourth place, boys, the sons of freewomen, whose fathers should be dead; in the fifth place, boys, the sons of freewomen, whose mothers should be dead; in the sixth place, boys, the sons of freemen; and in the last place, boys, the sons of freewomen. And that two poor boys within some or one of the descriptions aforesaid, and with such preference as aforesaid, should at a court of assistants of the Company be yearly for ever thereafter elected and put forth apprentice or to service.

The report was confirmed by the order of the court of the 5th August 1800.

The sum payable for apprentice fees was regulated by the Court of Chancery in 1800 as above stated by a decree directing that two annual sums of 10*l.*, and the dividends of 96*l.* 8*s.* 7*d.*, Old South Sea Annuities, 616*l.* 19*s.* 2*d.* like stock should be appointed for that purpose. The two sums and the dividends amounted together to 41*l.* 10*s.* 2*d.* The Commissioners found that the whole of this stock had been sold and applied to the redemption of the land tax on the Charity Estate. The scheme was settled by the Court of Chancery for the choice of the boys to be apprenticed.

In 1858 there were two apprentices and in 1859 there was only one. The premium is paid to the master. The trades have been miscellaneous. The Company has lately been in the habit of paying the fee in instalments of half at the first, and half after a year's service.

There was a balance on account of the apprentice fund (to which 41*l.* 10*s.* 2*d.* annually is carried) unapplied at the end of 1858, of 93*l.* 0*s.* 4*d.* of which one half year's premiums remained to be paid.

The boys are selected by the court on the application of the parents. They are all children of freemen or freewomen.

There are 18 blind persons who receive 5 l. a year a piece	£	s.	d.

FRANCES WEST'S CHARITY for READING, NEWBURY, TWICKENHAM, and the CITY OF LONDON.

No. 6.

Frances West, by a codicil to her will of the 24th March 1723-4, bequeathed to her executors 2,650*l.*, to be in invested in the purchase of lands for paying to 10 poor blind men and 10 poor blind women of the city of London 5*l.* a year each, with a preference to the relations of her late husband and herself, and after such kindred, poor blind persons of Reading, Newbury, and Twickenham to have a preference before those of the city of London.

By the decree of the Court of Chancery of the 1st June 1736 it was ordained that 2,650*l.* Orphan Stock should be transferred to the Company, such stock being paid off, the following sums were purchased,—

FRANCES WEST'S CHARITY to the BLIND of HENLEY.

No. 7.

Frances West, by another codicil to her will of the 12th November 1724, gave to her executors 650*l.* to be laid out in the purchase of lands, the rents to be applied to five poor blind men and women living in Henley-on-Thames as the same would extend to pay at the rate of 5*l.* per annum a piece, preference being given to relations; and if there should not be in Henley so many poor blind men and women as the said rents would extend to pay, poor and ancient men and women of Henley should have 5*l.* a year a piece in the stead of such blind persons as should be wanting to complete the number.

BLUE COAT SCHOOL, READING.

No. 8.

John West, by his will of the 2nd March 1688, devised that as soon after his wife's decease as a purchase of lands (such as the Clothworkers' Company should approve) could be had, 1,000*l.* of his stock, called Orphan Stock, should be sold to purchase lands to be conveyed to the said Company under trust, that the yearly rents should be applied in maintaining and educating six boys born in Reading in the Blue Coat School at Reading; and by a codicil of the 9th January 1719 he ordered that a fee farm rent in the county of Northampton of 6*l.* 5*s.* 5*d.* per annum which he intended should be conveyed to him and his wife should by the survivor be conveyed to the Company upon trust to pay the same to the mayor and burgesses of Reading for the purposes therein mentioned.

A fee farm rent of 6*l.* 8*s.* 9½*d.* (called by mistake 6*l.* 5*s.* 5*d.*) was conveyed to the Company on the 21st January 1719, and by another codicil of the 8th June 1721 he devised 200*l.* Orphan Stock to be added to the said 1,000*l.* likewise to be laid out in land for the said trust.

In 1800, 392*l.* 10*s.* 3*d.*, portion of the 1,200*l.* Orphan Stock, was sold and invested in 613*l.* 6*s.* Consols, and in 1816 807*l.* 9*s.* 9*d.*, balance of the said 1,200*l.*, was likewise sold and invested in 1,078*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.* 4*l.* per Cent. Annuities.

The sum of 613*l.* 6*s.* is still in Consols, and the sum of 1,078*l.* 8*s.* 11*d.* is now in the New 3*l.* per Cent. Stock.

* FRANCES WEST'S CHARITY FOR BLIND PERSONS OF HENLEY-UPON-THAMES.

WILCOX'S CHARITY.

Roger Wilcox, by his will dated (it is stated prior to 1603), gave to the said Company 120*l.*, to the intent to lend the same to three honest young men free of the Company for three years equally amongst them, and after the same three years ended likewise to three honest young men free of the said Company for other three years, and so from three young men to three young men free of the said Company from three years to three years forevermore; and he willed that every of the said three young men before he or they should have the same money should put in for himself two good sureties, freemen of London, to the said master and wardens not only for the repayment thereof to the said Company from time to time at the end of every three years to the intent above said, but also to deliver yearly for the use thereof between Michaelmas and Christmas 60 sacks of grate coals, that is every of the same young men 20 cwt. sacks a piece, the said coals to be distributed amongst the poorest people of the said Company, viz., to every poor person one sack at the appointment of the said master and wardens.

The sum of 120*l.* is included in the loan trust (see Heydon's Charity), and the income at the rate of 4*l.* a year is distributed to the poor of the Company according to the method described under Rogers' Charity.

All which I submit to the Board.

APPENDIX A.

"HOBBY'S CHARITY" PLUMSTEAD, AND "THE FREE GRAMMAR SCHOOL OF WILLIAM LAMBE," SUTTON VALENCE, KENT.

The condition of these institutions at the time of my inquiry into the charities under the management of the Clothworkers' Company, was stated to the Board in my report thereon. The income of Hobby's Charity under a scheme of the Court of Chancery, of 1834, is divisible into 17 parts, of which six parts are paid to Christ's Hospital, six other parts to the clothing fund of the Clothworkers' Company, and the remainder or five seventeenthths towards the discharge of 25 poor prisoners for debt in London, such as lie in for their fees, seven out of each compter and 11 out of Ludgate.

The question at present relates exclusively to the latter portion or five seventeenthths of the fund.

The manner in which it was dealt with, in assisting in the discharge of prisoners, up to the time of the passing of the Bankruptcy Act of 1861 (24 & 25 Vict. c. 134.), is set forth in my report of the Clothworkers' Charities (p. 15). The effect of the late statute, and especially of the clauses 98 to 105, in discharging all prisoners for debt (with certain exceptions mentioned in clause 104) has led the Clothworkers' Company to regard this portion of the charity as liberated by the failure of objects from the purpose to which it was dedicated, and to propose to the board that the accumulations of the fund which have not been applied and the accruing income of the five seventeenthths for the future should be applied to specific educational purposes, that is to say, the reconstruction of the Free Grammar School of Sutton Valence upon an enlarged plan. Under such circumstances I was requested by the board to make inquiry first into the fact of the absence or contemplated absence of any of the prescribed objects of the charity; and secondly, if there should be such a failure of objects into the propriety of the proposed application.

I should premise that the balance applicable to this purpose and the increase of the five seventeenthths of the estate, likewise so applicable, have undergone some change since my former report. The balance is somewhat less, from the circumstance of larger payments having been made for the discharge of prisoners in 1861 and 1862 whilst the income, as appears by the following statement, which has been furnished to me by the clerk of the Company, is considerably more.

The balance applicable to the discharge of prisoners is 1,110*l.* 3*s.* 11*d.* (17th July 1862), thus:—

I visited Whitecross Street prison, and besides a conference with the Acting Deputy Governor, I had the advantage of an interview with the city solicitor, Mr. Charles Pearson, who was kind enough to appoint an hour for meeting me there, and from whom I received a full explanation of the practical effect of the Bankruptcy Act in the confinement of debtors in the city prisons.

The effect of the Act will be to abolish imprisonment merely for debt. The debtor if retained in prison against his will, must be retained because he has been guilty of a misdemeanour under the 221st section of the Act, or because his conduct before or after adjudication of bankruptcy falls within the exceptional classes mentioned in the 3rd division of the 159th section of the Act with regard to prisoners for debt under process from the Superior Courts, I apprehend therefore that the objects have ceased.

There are, however, the exceptions mentioned in the 104th clause, which includes persons in custody under the orders of the county court judges. The committals under the Act of 8 & 9 Vict. c. 127, and 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95 (the County Court Acts) have this peculiarity, that they are not made against the parties as simply debtors but are made in default or contempt of the court for not attending the summons, for not making the required disclosures, for fraudulent conduct, or not paying where in the opinion of the judge the defendant has the means of paying, which also is, I presume, a quasi fraud. Prisoners in this condition are not affected by the Bankruptcy Act, and their cases have been represented in Parliament and elsewhere as cases of hardship. So lately as the 7th of May in the present year (1862) a discussion of which the following is a report, appears to have taken place in Parliament relating to them.

*House of Commons, Wednesday. County Courts Procedure Bill.

Mr. M'Mahon moved the second reading of this Bill. The amendments proposed by it had been suggested by persons thoroughly conversant with county court practices. Their object was to assimilate to a greater extent than at present the practices of the county courts to that of the superior courts. One amendment was to enable persons to sue in county courts on promissory notes when those notes were lost. Another was to enable a person to sue for the value of a thing which had been entrusted to him by another party for sale and which he had sold. A third class of amendments was to give power of appeal on a special case against the decision of the county court judges. No such appeal could take place under the law as it stood; and yet it was much more necessary in regard to the superior courts. Another amendment was that defendants who had not a legal, but had an equitable defence should be allowed to urge that defence. Under the Common Law Procedure Act such defences were allowed in the superior courts, but they were not allowed in the county courts. He did not think there could be any valid objections to the Bill.

The Attorney-General trusted the House would be of opinion that it would not be expedient to proceed further with this Bill. He thought he was in a position to say that the county court judges were adverse to the measure; and as to the provisions that had reference to the penal clauses in the County Court Acts, enabling the judges to impose imprisonment for longer or shorter periods, he would suggest that if they were to be considered, that should be done in a distinct shape, and their existence should not be used as an argument in favour of such a proposal as was to be found in the 8th clause of this Bill. A great portion of the clauses of this Bill were confessedly taken from the Common Law Procedure Acts of 1852 and 1854, and so far the provisions of the Bill might be made available without the intervention of Parliament at all. In reference to the proposed extension of the jurisdiction of the county court judges, he would observe without meaning to disparage them, that if this jurisdiction were thrust upon them they would not be able to discharge it in a satisfactory manner. He considered that the effect of the 8th clause would be to make the county courts the means of raising questions for adjudication before the superior courts. If a Bill were really called for, he thought the 6th clause was unobjectionable; and, if they should go into committee, his conviction was that the Bill would be reduced to that clause. If that were so it was not desirable to legislate piecemeal in this manner. Probably there were some matters connected with the procedure of the county courts that might advantageously obtain the consideration of the House, with a view to the amendment of the law. He had been in communication with some of the county court judges and suggestions from such a source would receive the consideration to which under the circumstances they would be entitled. If the matter were thus originated it would be easy enough to introduce a measure including the 6th clause, but it was not desirable to press the Bill before the House, and he should move that it be read a second time that day six months.

* The whole report of the debate is here inserted; the passages material to this subject are printed in italics. I have not seen a copy of the Bill.

Mr. Henley begged to call attention to the position in which the very poor classes of society are now left with regard to imprisonment for debt. The poorer classes are subject to be imprisoned simply because in the opinion of the judge of the court they can pay, and will not pay. Having almost relieved the upper and middle classes of society from imprisonment for debt, the Government should consider whether this system of penal imprisonment should be continued in regard to the poorer classes of society. He hoped that the Government would look to the subject and that some means would be taken to rid the gaols of poor debtors. The present anomalous state of the law with regard to rich and poor ought to be corrected.

Mr. Ayrton said nothing could be more extravagant than the state of the law at present as it affected the poorer classes in regard to imprisonment for debt. If a man could borrow 20l. he could easily sweep off all his debts, but if he could not he was liable to imprisonment. He hoped the Government would bring in a Bill to remove these anomalies with regard to imprisonment.

Sir G. Grey said the subject of imprisonment for debt was worthy of consideration, and it was one which he thought the Government ought to consider, with a view to assimilating the law to the altered circumstances introduced by the new Bankruptcy Law.

Mr. McMahon said if they were to wait for the approval of the county court judges to any measure, there would never be any improvement of the law. Of all persons judges were the last to be consulted upon such subjects. If we had been guided by the opinions of judges we might still have been hanging women with children at the breast for stealing handkerchiefs worth 6s. If the county court judges were consulted on the subject of imprisonment for debt, no Bill would be brought in. The withdrawal of their power to imprison would virtually be almost an annihilation of their business. He did not anticipate that the subject would have been brought forward, or he would have been prepared with returns showing the magnitude of the evil. In the gaols of Worcester and Stafford, however, within two years there were 300 prisoners for debt, and the debts were mainly incurred through pedlars forcing the poor to purchases beyond their means. He was thankful he had been the means of bringing this subject forward.

Mr. Vance said last year the law prohibiting county court judges from sitting in Parliament was repealed, he supposed accidentally, by the Bankruptcy Act, and he thought some opportunity should be taken to renew the prohibition.

The motion for the second reading of the Bill was negatived without a division.

Notwithstanding the opinions thus expressed it is a material question whether the application of charitable funds for the purpose of assisting in the discharge of prisoners committed to prison for such default or contempts of which they are adjudged to be guilty would not be in contravention of the law and against public policy. I have some recollection of hearing a case argued on this ground, against the establishment of a charity for payment of the fines and costs of persons committed by magistrates at petty sessions for poaching, in which the legacy was considered to be void as against public policy; but I have been unable to refer to any report of the case. The endowment in Hobby's trust, again, is only for such prisoners for debt "as lie in for their fees," and it is a question whether that is in any measure the case of the county court debtor. On perusing the warrant on which a debtor committed by the Westminster County Court was retained at White-cross Street prison, I found it specified the following particulars:—

	£	s.	d.
Judgment - - -	7	10	6
Costs of judgment summons -	0	19	6
Poundage for issuing warrant	0	13	6

the total sum forming the amount which the prisoner must pay in order to be entitled to his discharge under the 10th section of the Act 9 & 10 Vict. c. 95. It may be doubted whether the two last items in the above account can be regarded as fees, and certainly they are not fees so distinguishable from the debt that the prisoner may be discharged from the one and retained for the other.

An important question also arises whether there are or have been in fact for many years past any fees payable by prisoners bringing them within the meaning of Hobby's Charity, and whether in fact all applications of the fund in the discharge of prisoners since 1815 have not been made in error. The statute 55 Geo. 3. c. 50, abolished all fees payable by any prisoner on entrance, commitment or discharge, excepting certain prisons* which do not affect this case; and a statute of the following year (56 Geo. 3. c. 116) reciting that doubts had arisen whether the former Act extended to prisoners confined in gaols or prisoners under civil process for debt only, provides that the abolition of fees "shall extend to all prisoners as well civil as criminal whether confined for debt or crime in any of the prisons of England."

Upon a review of the foregoing statutes I think it may be concluded that the state of the law at present renders it impossible that any such objects as are contemplated in the part of the will of John Hobby above referred to, should be found. The first part of the testator's gift being for the purposes of education it appears to me that following the rule adopted by the Court of Chancery and the House of Lords in the case of Betton's Charity, the liberated endowment may be applied to purposes of education, and having regard to the conveyance of 1677 whereby the lands were vested in the Company, which was thereby charged with the trusts of the entire foundation, an arrangement confirmed by the decree of the Court of Chancery in 1679, it seems to be reasonable that the Clothworkers' Company should be entrusted with the administration of the new educational fund thus to be created.

The remaining question is on the propriety or expediency of employing the surplus fund on the Sutton Valence school.

The foundation of this institution and its condition at the time of my inquiry into the charities of the Clothworkers' Company are set forth in my report on those charities, and to that, to avoid unnecessary repetition, I beg to refer.

The master of the school resigned his office (receiving, I am informed, some compensation from the Company) soon after my former inquiry, and the school has since been closed. The school, besides its site, was only endowed with a rentcharge of 30l. a year, which the Company in 1605 sold for 360l. and thenceforward charged themselves with the payment of it. They had not, however, limited their support of the school to the amount of the rentcharge, but expended on it for several years before 1857 annual sums varying from 600l. to 900l. a year, and since the Grammar School has been closed, their subscription to the National school of Sutton Valence has amounted to little less than the annual rentcharge.

The Clothworkers' Company now propose to lay out 3,000l. on the building of the Sutton Valence school. I have been furnished with a copy of the resolutions of the Court to that effect, which are as follows:—

"Court 2nd April 1862.

"The following resolutions were agreed to:—

"1st. That in the opinion of this Court it is desirable to rebuild and reorganise the Company's school at Sutton Valence.

"2nd That the Sutton Valence Committee be authorised to commence such rebuilding of the school premises, at a cost not exceeding 3,000l., the plan and elevation of the building to be submitted to the Court for approval.

* An Act of the 5 & 6 Vict. c. 22. sec. 11, abolished fees in the Queen's Bench Prison, which was one of the excepted places.

"3rd. That a complete new code of laws and ordinances be drawn up by the said Committee embracing all points connected with the internal economy of the school, which code of laws shall be as much in conformity with the expressed designs and intentions of its benevolent founder as is compatible with the advanced state of education, science, and literature, since his death.

"4th. That no appointment whatever to any office in the school shall be made till such revised code of laws and ordinances has received the sanction of the Court.

"5th. That it be an instruction to the Committee not to admit any regulation or provision in the said rules and ordinances that would interfere with the school being a general benefit to members of all Christian denominations."

In pursuance of the second purpose of inquiry, the expediency of this application of the funds of a portion of the funds of Hobby's Prisoners' Charity in aid of the new foundation, I visited the school premises at Sutton Valence, and met some of the members of the special committee of the Company appointed on this subject, and their architect, together with the curate of the parish, and several gentlemen of the neighbourhood interested in the proposed institution.

The situation of the town or village of Sutton Valence is singularly striking and beautiful, overlooking a vast country on the south comprising the weald of Kent and Sussex, across Tenterden to the sea on the east, and to the Surrey Hills on the west. The committee of the Company think it possesses such natural attractions that if it were the seat of a first rate educational establishment, it might become a favourite place of residence for families seeking an education for their children, and certainly few inland places at a distance from any populous town have more of natural advantages to recommend them. Upon such contingencies it is, however, impossible at this day substantially to speculate, and the question probably to be considered is whether there is a sufficiently reasonable prospect of general benefit from the proposed foundation, that the surplus funds of Hobby's Charity should be permitted to go in aid of the considerable funds which the Clothworkers' Company propose to dedicate to the same purpose from their corporate resources.

Upon a view of the schoolmaster's house and the school buildings, it appeared very doubtful whether any valuable or permanent improvement could be made short of pulling down and rebuilding the whole. This, I believe, was the opinion of most of the committee and their architect, and it appeared to me that the premises, particularly the master's house, were in too dilapidated a state to justify any expenditure in repairs. It then became a question whether a better site for the new school could not be obtained.

The school premises and gardens are on the southern slope of the hill on which the village stands, and the houses front the principal street, the gardens rising in terraces behind, and extending to the top of the hill, where the outer garden wall abuts upon a lane or occupation road leading to the property of Sir Edward Filmer.

The ground which forms the table land at the top of the hill belongs to the same gentleman, who was present at my visitation, and expressed his willingness to exchange a sufficient quantity of land on the hill, for other land belonging to the Clothworkers' Company (not to the school) on the side of the valley, south of the school and street. The site thus offered would be on a level and healthy spot, in a very commanding position, and would have great advantages over the comparatively narrow and confined space below, whilst the latter would be eligible for private residences which would not improbably be in demand, especially if the school were successful. The members of the committee present expressed their intention immediately to take steps for carrying out this exchange between the Company and Sir Edward Filmer, and thereby to facilitate the plan of rebuilding and adding to the foundation of the school, and I am informed that the exchange is now in progress.

There is nothing in the terms of the foundation of the grammar school of William Lambe, which stands in the way of the adoption of a scheme for affording by its means a liberal education to persons of all classes, and referring to the foregoing resolution of the Court of the Company of the 2nd April last it does not appear that there is any inclination to restrict its benefits, but rather that they are disposed to enlarge them. The Board will probably refuse to pledge itself to an approval of the application of the funds in question in aid of a school of which the scheme of admission and government is not yet before it; but assuming that the scheme be such as the Board may sanction, the future income of the five seventeenths of the Hobby estate still remaining applicable to its original objects if any should hereafter arise I respectfully submit that there is no apparent objection to the application of the existing balance and the income from time to time accruing in aid of the Sutton Valence school.

All which I submit to the Board.

(Signed) THOS. HARE,
Inspector of Charities.

APPENDIX B.

JOHN LUTE'S CHARITY.

REPORT of MR. SKIRROW, dated the 10th day of August 1877.

TO THE CHARITY COMMISSIONERS FOR ENGLAND AND WALES.

In the matter of JOHN LUTE'S CHARITY, under the management of the Clothworkers' Company, in the city of London.

MY LORDS AND GENTLEMEN,

In pursuance of a Minute of the Board, dated 13th July 1877, I inquired into the foundation endowments and objects of the above-mentioned charity, and its present circumstances and condition, and whether any and what improvements might be made in the management or application of the same.

In the course of such inquiry, which took place on the 7th August 1877, at the Clothworkers' Hall, Mincing Lane, I received both oral and documentary evidence, but not upon oath, and now have to report as follows:

JOHN LUTE'S CHARITY.

John Lute, citizen and clothworker, by will, dated the 12th May 1585, and proved in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury on the 6th February 1586, devised four messuages, with the shops, &c. thereto belonging, in the parish of St. Dionis, Backchurch, then rented at 9*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* a year, a messuage called the Leaden Porch, with the shops, &c. thereto belonging, in the parish of St. Lawrence, Old Jewry, then rented at 6*l.* a year, and a messuage, with the shops, &c. thereto belonging, called the Lute and Maidenhead, in the parish of St. Michael, Cornhill, then rented at 10*l.* a year, to the master, wardens, and commonalty of clothworkers and their successors; and he willed that they should demise the premises and should from the profits arising by the fines of such leases within four months after they should have raised 200*l.*, thereby, lend and deliver the 200*l.*, as follows, viz.:—100*l.* thereof to five young men free of the corporation, 20*l.*, a piece for three years; and the other 100*l.* to 10 honest householders, freemen of the Company, 10*l.*, a piece for three years, on good security, and so from three years to three years for ever. And he willed that the master and wardens should of the profits of the premises pay to some learned man for a sermon in the parish church of St. Michael, Cornhill, on the feast day of St. Luke 6*s.* 8*d.*, and to every person of the livery present thereat 4*d.*; that the master and wardens should yearly provide 12 men's gowns, and 12 women's gowns, 12 men's shirts and 12 women's smocks, 12 pairs of shoes for men and 12 for women, and distribute the same on the feast of St. Luke among 12 poor men and 12 poor women present at the sermon, nominated by the master and wardens, six men and six women to be free of the Company, and six men and six women to be of the parish of St. Michael, Cornhill, and that the master and wardens should have yearly for their pains 3*s.* 4*d.* each, that the clerk and headles should have 3*s.* 4*d.* each, and that the rest of the fines and yearly profits should remain towards the necessary reparations of the premises and towards the charges, affairs, and relief of the Company of Clothworkers, according to the good discretion of the master, wardens, and assistants of the Company for the time being.

On 17th March 1832 an information (afterwards amended by an order of 21st July 1832) was filed by the Attorney-General at the relation of J. S. Hall and Effingham Wilson v. the Clothworkers' Company praying, amongst other things, that an account might be taken as to the moneys to be applied in loans under the will, and that any lost money should be made good out of the estate.

The Company by their answer of 14th June 1832 stated that they had not for 20 years made any loans, and also admitted that they declined to make any further loans and said that inasmuch as the testator had given the rest of the fines, after raising the 200*l.*, to the defendants "towards the charges, affairs, and relief" of the Company according to the discretion of the "defendants," the defendants in exercise of such discretion carried over the same to the general fund of the Company, disposable for charitable purposes, and have thereout expended and still expend large sums in the relief of poor freemen of the Company, and keep up and augment divers useful charities connected with the Company.

By an order dated 17th July 1833 it was ordered that the Company should carry to the credit of an account to be opened in the books of the Company under the head of John Lute's Charity 200*l.* bequeathed by his will, and also 100*l.*, the amount of 10 years' interest on the 200*l.*, making together 300*l.*; and it was ordered that one moiety of the 100*l.* be added by the Company to the loans to five young men, free of the Company, and the other moiety to the loans of 10 householders, freemen of the Company, so that for the future the loans of 20*l.* each to the young men, free of the Company, should be increased to 30*l.* each, and the loans of 10*l.* each to 10 honest householders should be increased to 15*l.* each. And it was ordered that the accounts of the application of the 300*l.* should be kept distinct from the other accounts of the Company. And it was ordered that the costs of the relators and the Attorney-General should be paid by the Company from their corporate funds.

By a scheme of the Charity Commissioners for "the Clothworkers' Loan Charities" (now in progress), after reciting that by an order of the Court of Chancery, dated the 31st July 1840, and made in the matter of the Clothworkers' Company, it was ordered that the sum of 2,143*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.*, being the amount of certain charitable donations (300*l.* of which money arose from John Lute's Charity), should, after deducting certain costs, be lent and advanced according to a report of the master, dated 21st July 1840; and that it was apprehended that besides 301*l.* 15*s.* 2*d.*, part of the Loan Funds, other parts of such funds amounting to 1,000*l.* would be irrecoverable, and that the Company, with a view to the advancement of education, had offered to make up out of their corporate funds the apprehended deficiency, so as to complete the full sum of 2,018*l.* 9*s.* 6*d.* (being the sum of 2,143*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* in their hands at the date of the order, less the costs of obtaining the same), as the sum applicable to the advancement of education; it was declared that it was desirable to apply for the advancement of education the several Loan Funds subject to certain payments and that the sums applicable to the poor of the Clothworkers' Company (amounting to 11*l.* 2*s.*, none of which is derived from John Lute's Charity) should be administered in accordance with such scheme.

Observations on the Property.

No. 1.—These five houses were purchased with money derived out of the sale by the Company of the premises in the parish of St. Lawrence, Old Jewry, devised by the will.

No. 2.—These two houses now represent the four messuages, with the shops, &c., in the parish of St. Dionis, Backchurch.

No. 3.—This house represents the messuage, with the shops, &c., called the Lute and Maidenhead, in the parish of St. Michael, Cornhill.

The disposition in John Lute's will, which gives "the rest of the fines and yearly profits not only towards the reparations of the premises, but also towards the charges, affairs, and relief of the Company according to the good discretion of the master and wardens and assistants of the Company for the time being," distinguishes this case from the Wax Chandlers v. the Attorney-General (House of Lords) English and Irish Appeals, vol. VI., p. 1.

The case, however, of the Corporation of Southmolton v. the Attorney-General, 6 House of Lords cases, p. 1, is in favour of the surplus or residue going to the Clothworkers' Company. That case lays it down that it is a question to be determined by the particular words of each will whether a gift of "surplus" or "residue" means "surplus" or "residue" or a mere proportional share of a particular fund and that where after the gift of a fund charged with certain payments the words were "and the overplus which the estates produce more than all these disbursements do amount to (which I do find and compute to be about 60%) shall go one half to the Mayor of Southmolton towards the expenses of mayoralty and the other half to mending certain highways" such surplus or residue went to the corporation.

1. As to the Loan Branch of this charity, that is in process of being dealt with under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, which was approved of by them in July 1877 and subsequently submitted to the Committee of Council on Education. For a copy of this scheme see Appendix A. hereto.

2. As to the remaining branch of the charity it is said that the early account books of the Company show that the cost of providing the clothing, as directed by the will of John Lute, was annually

	£ s. d.
12 gowns of freize for men; 12 gowns of freize for women -	9 12 0
12 shirts of Lockram for men; 12 smocks for women -	3 10 0
12 pairs of shoes for men; 12 pairs of shoes for women -	2 8 0
Paid for a sermon at St. Michael's, Cornhill -	0 6 8
Paid to the master and four wardens, 3s. 4d. each -	0 6 8
Paid to clerk and beadle of Company, 3s. 4d. each -	0 6 8
Paid 120 attending, 4d. each -	2 0 0
	3 10 0
	19 0 0

The rents increased and the annual expenditure upon this branch of the charity also increased, until in 1876 it reached the following amount:—

	£ s. d.	£ s. d.
12 men's suits, 4l. 15s. 10d. each -	57 10 0
12 women's suits, 3l. 3s. 7d. each -	38 3 0
		95 13 0
Payments to officers, &c. -	14 2 0
24 recipients a gift of 1l. each -	24 0 0
		133 15 0

In 1875 a great coat of the value of 38s. 6d. was exceptionally given to the men and a waterproof cloak of the value of 18s. 6d. to the women in addition to the regular suits of clothing.

In 1875 the money donation was increased to a sovereign and the allowance for making up the clothes merged therein.

In Appendices B. and C. will be found schedules setting forth in detail the above payments.

On the 24th July 1877 the Trust Committee of the Company resolved that the clerk be authorised to furnish Mr. Inspector Skirrow with any evidence or information he may require on the subject of his inquiry and that the court be requested to sanction a liberal settlement of the claim of Lute's Charity.

On the 1st August 1877 this resolution was approved of by the court of the Company.

Under these circumstances I recommend that the sum of 4,458l. 6s. 8d. Consols, which will produce an annual dividend of 133l. 15s., the present amount of the annual expenditure upon this branch of the charity, be accepted in satisfaction of all claims the charity may have against the Company in respect of John Lute's Charity. Mr. Roberts, the clerk of the Company, who alone attended the inquiry, expressed an opinion that the court might entertain this proposal favourably, but only on the condition of the Company being released from all further claims or liability either in law or equity under the will of John Lute; but that if any question was to be raised as to the construction of the residuary clause in the will, the court would prefer the matter being referred at once to the Attorney-General for final determination in a court of law.

Mr. Roberts also added that a scheme had been framed for the future administration of this and Middlemore's Charities under the management of the Company (to be found in Appendix D.) which was approved of by a resolution of the Company, dated the 24th July 1877; but that inasmuch as the fourth paragraph of such scheme had been framed upon the assumption that the "technical" liability of the Company in respect of John Lute's Charity would be assessed at 1,500l. only, the substitution of so much larger a sum, viz.—4,458l. 6s. 8d. consols, in lieu of such 1,500l., would render some modification of such paragraph necessary.

The Company now await a communication from the Charity Commissioners upon the matters contained in this report which I submit, &c.

10th August 1877.

APPENDIX A.

CHARITY COMMISSION.

In the matter of the master, wardens, and commonalty of freemen of the art or mystery of clothworkers of the city of London; and
 In the matter of the donations of Augustin Hynde, Thomas Ormston, John Mackell, Dame Elizabeth Lyon, Sir Thomas Rowe, Lady Hinde, John Halse, William Armer, John Haydon, William Lambe, Peter Shales, John Lute, Alexander Iverie, John Southall, William Blount, John Burnell, James Stoddard, Samuel Lese, James Burkin, Richard Farrington, Sir William Stone, Ralph Harmer, Roger Wilcockes, and Katherine Hylson; and
 In the matter of the Endowed Schools Acts, 1869, 1873, and 1874.

SCHEME FOR THE APPLICATION OF THE ABOVE-NAMED DONATIONS.

Whereas by an Order of the High Court of Chancery, dated the 31st July 1840, and made in the matter of the Clothworkers' Company (being the above-named master wardens, and commonalty), and of the Act of Parliament 52 George III. cap. 101, it was ordered that the sum of 2,143l. 0s. 8d. therein mentioned (being the amount of the above-named donations in the hands of the said Company) should, after deducting therefrom the costs of obtaining the said Order, be lent, advanced, and disposed of as by the report of the master in the said matter was approved and certified, that is to say, that the said sum, subject to the payment of the costs aforesaid, should be divided into two several funds to be called respectively "the Loan Fund bearing interest," and "the Loan Fund not bearing interest," and that the management of the said funds should be vested in the Clothworkers' Company, and be lent or advanced, by way of loan, to freemen or members of the said Company, in such sums and on such terms as was therein provided concerning the said funds respectively, and that the interest of the said Loan Fund bearing interest should from time to time be duly apportioned and divided between the several donations given by the above-named John Burnell, John Haydon, Katherine Hylson, Alexander Iverie, Samuel Lese, James Stoddard, and Roger Wilcockes respectively, in proportion to the amount of such donations respectively, or of what had been received in respect thereof, and such interest and the respective apportionments thereof should be applied by the said Company as far as the same would extend for or towards the charitable purposes respectively declared of and concerning such interest in and by the respective wills or instruments relating thereto.

And whereas the costs of obtaining the said Order amounted to the sum of 124l. 17s. 2d., which was duly paid out of the said sum of 2,143l. 0s. 8d., whereby the same was reduced to the sum of 2,018l. 9s. 6d., which said sum in pursuance of the said Order was divided into two several funds, and the sum of 800l. part thereof was appropriated to the Loan Fund bearing interest, and the sum of 1,218l. 9s. 6d. to the Loan Fund not bearing interest.

And whereas from time to time, since the date of the said Order, sums, amounting in all to the sum of 301l. 15s. 2d., parts of the Loan Fund not bearing interest, have been lost and become irrecoverable owing to the default of borrowers and their sureties, whereby the said Loan Fund not bearing interest has become reduced to the sum of 916l. 14s. 4d.

And whereas under the said Order and certain of the wills and instruments therein referred to sums forming part of the annual interest of the Loan Fund bearing interest are applicable in manner following, that is to say:—

	£	s.	d.
To the Mercers' Company	3	6	8
Doles for poor of the parish of St. Michael, Crooked Lane	2	12	0
Doles for poor of the parish of Great Stanmore	2	12	8
Doles for poor of the parish of St. Martin, Ironmonger Lane	2	10	0
Doles for poor of the parish of St. Olave, Jewry	1	10	0
Doles for poor of the Clothworkers' Company	11	2	0

And whereas it is apprehended that, besides the said sum of 301l. 15s. 2d., other parts of the said Loan Funds, or one or other of them, amounting in all to the sum 1,000l., or thereabouts, may in fact, on being called in, prove to be irrecoverable, owing to the default of borrowers and their sureties, but the nominal sums standing to the credit of the said Loan Funds respectively in the books of the Clothworkers' Company are as follows, that is to say:

The Loan Fund bearing interest	£	s.	d.
The Loan Fund not bearing interest	800	0	0
	916	14	4
Making together the sum of	1,716	14	4

And whereas the Clothworkers' Company are desirous that the said Loan Funds, or so much of the same respectively as is now recoverable, but subject to the payment of the said several annual sums payable to the Mercers' Company and to the poor of the said parishes of St. Michael, Crooked Lane, Great Stanmore, St. Martin, Ironmonger lane, and St. Olave, Jewry, amounting in all to the said sum of 12l. 11s. 4d. (herein-after called the external charges), and also that the said sums hitherto applicable to doles payable out of interest of the Loan Fund bearing interest to the poor of the Clothworkers' Company, amounting in all to the annual sum of 11l. 2s. 0d., should be applied for the advancement of education in manner herein-after appearing.

And whereas the Clothworkers' Company, with a view to the further advancement of education, have offered to make up out of their corporate funds all the actual and apprehended deficiency of the said Loan Fund respectively, so as to complete the full sum of 2,018l. 9s. 6d. (being the said sum of 2,143l. 0s. 8d. in the hands of the Clothworkers' Company at the date of the said Order, less the costs of obtaining the same), as the sum to be made applicable to the advancement of education as aforesaid:

Now it is hereby declared by the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, with the consent of the Clothworkers' Company, that it is desirable to apply for the advancement of education the said several Loan Funds, subject to the payment of the external charges, and also the said sums hitherto applicable to doles payable out of interest of the Loan Fund bearing interest to the poor of the Clothworkers' Company.

And the said Loan Funds (subject as aforesaid), and also the said said sums applicable to doles to poor of the Clothworkers' Company, shall henceforth be administered in accordance with the following provisions of this Scheme:

1. As soon as conveniently may be, the Clothworkers' Company shall pay to the governing body of the trust for carrying on the North London Collegiate and Camden Schools for Girls the said full sum of 2,018l. 9s. 6d. (including therein the said several Loan Funds, or so much thereof as may now be recoverable), to be held by the said governing body in trust to apply the same in the erection of school buildings in accordance with the provisions of the subsisting scheme for the management of the said trust, and in addition to the moneys by the said scheme authorised to be applied in like manner: Provided that such buildings shall comprise a principal hall, to be called the Clothworkers' Hall, for the assembly of the girls attending the collegiate school of the said trust, and for other purposes of the said trust: Provided also, that the said governing body shall in every year if required so to do by the Clothworkers' Company during such year or within reasonable time afterwards, pay to the said Company the said sum of 12l. 11s. 4d. in respect of the external charges: Provided lastly, that the said governing body in the management of the said trust, shall comply with the provisions of this scheme, so far as the said trust may be affected thereby.

2. From and after the date of this scheme the Clothworkers' Company shall pay and distribute the external charges as heretofore, by means of the said annual sum of 12l. 11s. 4d., or otherwise as they think fit.

3. Daughters of poor freemen or members of the Clothworkers' Company recommended as meritorious to the said governing body by the master, wardens, and court of assistants of the said Company, by writing under the hand of the master, or the hands of any two

APPENDIX D.

TRUSTS AND GENERAL SUPERINTENDENCE
COMMITTEE, 24 July 1877.

MIDDLEMORE'S AND LUTE'S CHARITIES.

Resolved that the clerk be directed and authorised to furnish Mr. Inspector Skirrow with any evidence or information he may require on the subject of his inquiry, and that the Court be requested to sanction a liberal settlement of the claims of Lute's Charity.

"Received and adopted" by the Court of 1st August 1877.

The Committee proceeding further to consider the new scheme to be propounded to the Charity Commissioners in the matter of Middlemore's and Lute's Clothing Trusts in pursuance of the reference of court to that effect, beg leave to submit the following heads of new scheme accordingly, and recommend the same for adoption by the court, viz.:—

In the matter of John Lute's Charity Trust founded by will dated 12th May 1585;

In the matter of Samuel Middlemore's Charity Trust founded by will dated the 22nd October 1628; and

In the matter of John Middlemore's Charity Trust founded by will dated the 22nd June 1647.

Draft Scheme for the Management of the above Charities.

1. The income of Middlemore's and Lute's Charity Trusts shall be received by the Clothworkers' Company of the city of London, and shall be applied by them in manner herein-after provided, that is to say:—

2. The dividends arising from 1,500*l.* Consols standing in the name of the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds in trust for Samuel and John Middlemore's Charities, or the produce thereof invested in land by and with the authority of the Charity Commissioners, shall be spent and applied in providing clothing and fulfilling the several other directions of the will of Samuel Middlemore, dated 22nd October 1628, so far as the endowment admits thereof, and with power for the Company to vary the several antique articles of apparel specified in the said will of Samuel Middlemore, in favour of other and modernised articles of apparel, and provided that the whole of the produce of the charity endowment, less 5*l.* reserved for John Middlemore's Charity, be spent in and about the charitable and other trusts declared in the said will of Samuel Middlemore.

3. The sum of 5*l.* arising from the said sum of 1,500*l.* Consols shall be applied in paying 5*s.* apiece to the 20 recipients of Samuel Middlemore's Charity, pursuant to the will of John Middlemore, citizen and clothworker, dated 22nd June 1647.

4. The dividends arising from 1. Consols standing in the name of "the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds" in trust for John Lute's Charity shall be spent and applied in providing clothing for 12 poor men and women, and fulfilling the several other directions of the will of John Lute, citizen and clothworker, dated 12th May 1585, concerning the said poor men and women and their attendance at church, and the sermon to be preached on the feast of St. Luke annually so far as the endowment admits thereof, and with power for the Company to vary the several antique articles of apparel specified in the said will of John Lute, in favour of other and modernised articles of apparel, provided that the whole of the produce of the charity endowment be spent in and about the charitable and other trusts declared in the said will of John Lute.

5. The charities of Samuel and John Middlemore shall be distributed on the feast of St. Luke annually or within seven days thereafter, at the same time as John Lute's Charity in the church of St. Michael, Cornhill and St. Clement, Eastcheap, in alternate years, but without prejudice to the claims of the beneficiaries entitled to the several annual payments indicated in the wills of Samuel Middlemore and John Lute respectively, so that one sermon only shall be preached on the occasion of the distribution of Middlemore's and Lute's Charities annually.

6. The Clothworkers' Company shall have power and discretion in nominating the recipients of Middlemore's and Lute's Clothing Charities, to substitute such other poor aged men and women dwelling near or within the city of London or within the limits of the Metropolitan Parliamentary boroughs or postal area, elsewhere than within the parish of St. Clement near Eastcheap, or St. Michael upon Cornhill, preference being observed in favour of such deserving aged men and women as may have been resident or employed for a period of seven years and upwards within the limits of either of the said parishes and likewise to nominate and substitute any decayed or poor aged men and women who may have been resident or employed within the limits of the Metropolitan Parliamentary boroughs or postal area for a period of seven years and upwards at the discretion of the master, wardens, and court of assistants irrespective of the qualification of their being necessarily freemen or freewomen of the said Clothworkers' Company.

7. The Clothworkers' Company shall have power and discretion to substitute a money distribution in lieu of the gifts of clothing or other apparel or coals mentioned in the will of Samuel Middlemore and John Lute, provided that the total produce of the charity endowments in each case be made applicable to the relief of the charity recipients, exclusive of the several sums payable to the several officials concerned in the administration of the charity under the said will.

8. The charities of Samuel and John Middlemore and John Lute shall hereafter be distributed together on one anniversary day, and not on two separate anniversaries as heretofore.

Resolved further, that Middlemore's and Lute's Charity recipients be summoned to attend St. Michael's, Cornhill, on St. Luke's day next ensuing (1877) and that the rector and churchwardens of St. Clement's, Eastcheap, be advised of the change.

Received and adopted by the Court of 1st August 1877.
